Barn Fell on Mr. Chamberlain.

Ottawa, April 12.—By the collapse of a barn Mr. Percy Chamberlain of Marsh, received such serious injuries that he may lose his life. The barn, which was an old one, was not used at all, but he received some machinery, which he decided to store in the old barn. He drove into the barn, but one of the horses became restless and backed against the prop, knocking it down. This was a prop put up to support the roof, and as soon as it fell the roof collapsed. Mr. Chamberlain was buried beneath the boards. Mr. Chamberlain was badly bruised and cut, besides having four ribs, his right leg and arm broken.

TOOK HIS FATHER'S ADVICE.

IT is not at all surprising that many sufferers from rheumatism have very little faith in patent medicines. The public have been gulled for years by unscrupulous manufacturers who care little who they kill or cure. It is quite different with the proprietors of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. They have a reputation at stake, worth a great deal more than a little money to be made from a temporary fake; temporary because all medicines that do not do as advertised are soon found out and discarded. Manufacturers of proprietary medicines have an intelligent people to deal with in the present age, and deception is sure to be discovered in short order. The reliable testimonials being daily received by the Dr. Hall Medicine Company are the best proofs that any firm can wish to show. John Clark, a young farmer of Pittsburg township, saved himself a lot of suffering by accepting the advice of his father, who told him he would be cured if he gave Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure a trial. One bottle cured him completely. He suffered with terrible pains in his legs and hips. The numerous other remedies he tried had no effect whatever. Mr. Clark now adds his recommendation to the many others continually coming in.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

THIS, TOO, SHALL PASS AWAY.

Art thou in misery, brother? Then I pray
Be comforted! Thy grief shall pass away.
Art thou in danger? Still let reason sway.
Temper thy joy; this, too, shall pass away!
Art thou in danger? Still let reason sway
And cling to hope; this, too, shall pass away!
One truth to heart; this, too, shall pass away!
Tempted art thou? In all thine anguish lay
So rays of loftier glory round thee play?
Kinglike art thou? This, too, shall pass away!
Whate'er thou art, where'er thy footsteps stray,
Heed the wise words; this, too, shall pass away.
—Paul Hamilton Hayne.

An Idyl Of the HT

It is sunset at the HT ranch. Four or five cowboys sit gloomily about outside the ranchhouse, awaiting supper. The Mexican cook has just begun his fragrant task, so a half hour must elapse before these Arabs are fed. Their ponies are turned into the wire pasture, their big Colorado saddles repose astride the low pale fence which surrounds the house, and it is evident that their riding is over for the day.

Why are they gloomy? Not a boy of them can tell. One is from Princeton too. They have been partners and companeros and "worked" the HT cattle together for months, and nothing ever came in misunderstanding or cloud. The ranchhouse is their home, and theirs has been the unity of brothers.

A week ago a pretty girl, the daughter of one of the owners, came to the ranch from the east. She was protected in this venture by an old and gnarled aunt, watchful as a ferret, sour as a lime. Not that the pretty girl needs watching. She is indeed in every move propriety's climax. No soft or dulcet reason wooes her to the west. She comes on no love errand. She is elegantly and profoundly tired of the east, that is all, and longs for western air and western sights. She has been at the HT ranch a week, and the boys have met her, every one. The meeting or meetings were marked by awkwardness as to the boys, utter indifference as to the pretty girl. She met them as she met the ponies, cows, horned toads and other animals, domestic and indigenous to eastern New Mexico. While every cowboy was blushingly conscious of her she was purely and serenely guiltless of giving him a thought.

Before this pretty girl came the boys were friends, and the calm tenor of their relations with each other had never a ripple. She was not there a day before each drew himself insensibly from the others, and a vague hostility shone dimly in their eyes. It was the instinct of the fighting male animal roused by the presence of the pretty girl. She, however, proceeded on her daily way, sweetly unconscious of the sentiments she had awakened.

"What did you go and take my saddle for yesterday, Bill?" said Jack Moore to a boy by the name of Bill Watkins.

"'Cause I allows I'll ride it some," says Watkins. "I thought it might like to carry a high grade cow puncher once."

"Well, don't take it no more," said Moore moodily, ignoring the gay insolence in the reply. "Leastwise, don't come a-takin of it an sayin nothin. You can palaver Americano, can't you? When you aims to ride my saddle ag'in, ask for it. If you can't talk, make signs, and if you can't make signs, shake a bush, but don't go Injunin off no saddle of mine no more."

"Whatever do you allow is liable to happen if I take it ag'in tomorry?" inquired Bill in high scorn.

Bill was of a more vivacious temper than the gloomy Moore.

"You takes it ag'in, an I mingles with you a whole lot mighty prompt," replied Moore in a tone of obstinate injury.

These boys were brothers in affection before that pretty girl came, and either would have gone afoot all day to lend his saddle to the other. Going afoot, too, is the last thing, let me assure you, a cowboy will do.

"Well, don't you fail to mingle, none," said Bill, with cheerful ferocity, "on account of its bein me. I crossed the trail of the Shorthorn like you over on the Panhandle oncet an puts him in the fire an has plenty of fun with him."

"Stop the play now, right yere," said Tom Rawlins, the HT range boss, who was sitting close at hand. "You all spring trouble round yere, an I'll be in it. Whatever's the matter with all you people anyway? You're like a passel of sorehead dogs for more'n a week now. You're shorely too many for me to sabe, an I cl'ar gives you up."

The boys started some grumbling reply, but the cook called them to supper just then, and, one animalism becoming overshadowed by another, they forgot their rancor and vague animosities in thoughts of supplying their hunger. Toward the last of the repast Rawlins arose and, going to another room, began overlooking some entries in the ranch books.

The pretty girl did not eat at the ranch table. She had little banquets in her own room. Just then she was in her own room and began singing in a low tenor some tender little love song that seemed born of a sigh and a tear. The boys at supper heard her, and their resentment of each other's existence began again to flame in their breasts and burn deeply in their eyes. None of these savages was in the least degree in love with the pretty girl either. They might have become so, all or any of them.

The singing went on in a cooing, soft way that did not bring you the words, only the music.

"What I says about my saddle awhile back I means," said Moore finally, turning dark looks on Watkins.

"See yere," said Watkins in an exasperated tone—he was as vicious as Moore—"if you're p'intin out for a war jig with me don't fool round none for reasons, but jest let 'er roll. Come a-runnin an don't bother none with ceremony."

"A man don't need to have no reasons for crawlin you none," said Moore. "You're fair game, you are. Any one's licensed to chase you round jest for fun an exercise."

"You can gamble," said Watkins confidently, "any man as chases me round much will regard it as a thrillin pastime. He won't get fat at it, none whatever."

"As you all seem to feel that a-way," said Moore, "I'll step out an shoot with you right now."

"Well, I'll shore go you," said Watkins.

They arose and stepped out at the door. It was gathering dark, but it was light enough to shoot by.

The other cowboys followed in silence. Not one said a word in comment or interference. They were grave and serious, but passive. It is not good form to interfere with other people's duels in the southwest. The pretty girl was still singing, and the strains fell softly on the ears of the cowboys. Every one, whether onlooker or principal, felt inspired with a lurking, pleased anticipation of the blood to be soon set flowing. Nothing was said of distance. They separated to about 40 paces and turned to face each other. Each wore his "Colt's .45," the loosely buckled belt letting it rest low down on the right hip. Each threw down his big hat and stood at apparent ease, with his thumbs caught in the pistol belt.

"Shall you give the word or me?" said Moore.

"You give it," said Watkins. "It'll be a funny passage in American history if you get your artillery to the front any sooner than I do then."

"Be you ready?" asked Jack.

"Shore."

"Then go!"

Bang! bang! bang! bang! went both pistols together and with a rapidity not to be counted. Moore got a crease in his left shoulder, a mere wound to the flesh, and Watkins fell, with a bullet in his side. Rawlins, the range boss, came running out. He understood all at a look. Hastily examining Moore, he discovered that his hurt was nothing serious. The others carried Watkins into the house.

"Take my pony, saddled at the fence, Jack," said Rawlins, "an pull your freight. This yere man's goin to die."

"Which I shorely hopes he does," said Jack bitterly. "I'll go, though. I ain't got no use for none of these yere he Shorthorns around the HT."

So he took Rawlins' pony, and when he stopped riding in the morning it was no marvel that the poor pony hung his head dejectedly, while his flanks steamed and quivered. He was almost 100 miles from his last corn and cooled his nervous muzzle as he took his morning drink in the Rio Pecos, a stream far to the west of the HT.

* * * * * * *

"Some shootin scrape about their saddles, miss; that's all." So reported Rawlins to the pretty girl.

"Isn't it horrible!" shuddered the pretty girl in reply.

The next morning the pretty girl and her gnarled and twisted aunt paid the injured Watkins a visit. This sight so affected the other three cowboys that they at once saddled and rode awey to the northwest to work some cattle on the Ocate mesa. They intended to be gone three months. They looked black and forbidding as they galloped away.

"It's a pity Jack Moore ain't no better pistol shot," said one as the picture of the pretty girl visiting the wounded Watkins arose in his mind.

"That's whatever," assented the others.

The pretty girl was full of sympathy for the stricken Watkins. It occurred to her, too, that his profile was clear and handsome. He was certainly very pale, and this stirred the depths of her feminine nature. She and her aunt came to see the invalid every day. Once the pretty girl said she would bring him a book to read and while away the hours which seemed shod with lead.

"I can't read," said Watkins in a tone of deepest shame. "I never learned. I should like to read, too, but there's no one to teach me. So that settles that," and the rascal expressed a deep sigh.

Watkins lied. It was he who was the Princeton man. He said afterward that this lie was the only real good work he ever did in his life.

So the pretty girl came every day and gave Watkins a reading lesson, while the gnarled aunt read a book and watched them through the open door.

"By the way," said Watkins one day, "where's Moore?"

"Why?" asked the range boss, to whom the question was put.

"You tell him," said Watkins, his eyes beginning to gather rage, "that when I get out I'll be lookin for him with somethin besides a fieldglass."

"Oh, no!" said the pretty girl, rising and coming toward his couch. Her tone showed disturbance and fear at the thought.

As he gazed at her the look changed in his eyes. Hate for Moore gave place to something else.

"No," he said at last. "Tell him it's all right, Rawlins."

The pretty girl thought him very noble.

Watkins was out in five weeks and could go about the ranch. One night Rawlins thought he heard a pony in the yard and arose to remedy the matter. As he stepped out a couple passed him in the moonlight. It was Watkins and the pretty girl. The cattle's arm was round her.—Kansas City Times.

Where the Ash Tree Was Sacred.

The Celts and Germans and Scandinavians worshiped the mountain ash, and it is especially in the religious myths of the latter that the "askr yggdrasil" plays a prominent part. To them it was the holiest among trees, the "world tree," which, eternally young and dewy, represented heaven, earth and hell. According to the Edda, the ash yggdrasil was an evergreen tree. A specimen of it grew at Upsala, in front of the great temple, and another in Dithmarschen, carefully guarded by a railing, for it was, in a mythical way, connected with the fate of the country. When Dithmarschen lost its liberty, the tree withered, but a magpie, one of the best prophesying birds of the north, came and built its nest on the withered tree and hatched five little ones, all perfectly white, as a sign that at some future time the country would regain its former liberty.—Deutsche Rundschau.

The Moments Well Employed.

"When I was a freshman in Williams college," said Garfield, "I looked out one night and saw in the window of my old competitor for first place in mathematics a light twinkling a few minutes longer than I was wont to keep mine burning. I then and there determined to invest a little more time in preparation for the next day's recitation. I did so and passed above my rival. I smile today at the old rivalry, but I am thankful for the way my attention was called to the value of a little margin of time well employed. I have since learned that it is just such a margin, whether of time or attention or earnestness or power, that wins in every battle, great or small."

Some Resemblance.

"What are you doing?" groaned the victim in the chair who had dropped in to have his teeth examined for possible cavities. "This is no prizefight."

"Perhaps not," replied the dentist. "But I'm sort o' sparring around for an opening just the same."—Chicago Tribune.

IN BED THREE YEARS.

THE HAPPY ENDING OF A VERY SERIOUS AND PAINFUL CASE.

Mrs. Hughes was Very Ill—Bloated and in Constant Misery, She Suffered for Four Years, Before She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills—She is now Well and Happy.

MORLEY, ONT., APRIL 10, (Special)—Nelson Leffar, Justice of the Peace of this place, vouches for the truth of the following interesting story, told by Mrs. Thos. Hughes.

Verification, however, will not be necessary to those who know Mrs. Hughes as that lady is one of the most highly respected residents of Grey County. Mrs. Hughes says:—

"I was a great sufferer for four years. I was treated by four doctors, and a specialist from the United States. I tried nearly every kind of medicine I could hear of, but none seemed to do me any good.

"I was in bed for nearly three years. I had pains up my spinal column, in my head, over my eyes, across my back, through my left side, and occasionally in my right side.

"For three nights at a time, I would never close my eyes in sleep. I was terribly bloated, so that I could not sit up or walk. My age was forty-one when I was taken sick.

"I have taken in all fourteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now I am strong, and able to do as good a day's work as I have ever been. The doctors said that nothing could be done for me.

"I was not able to eat anything, only corn starch or soup of some kind. My weight had increased from 112 to 147 pounds. I am now down to my normal weight again. I can never say enough for Dodd's Kidney Pills, for I am satisfied that they saved my life."

There are many ladies suffering as Mrs. Hughes did, although but few may be as low as she was.

Deranged kidneys are responsible for almost all the trouble that come to women in middle life, and no woman can afford to be careless, when her kidneys are in anyway threatened.

What cured Mrs. Hughes of this very bad case, will cure any case.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes, or Dropsy, and they have never failed.

TOO LATE.

Too late, I know thy voice, O love; too late,
  And my poor heart is striving in my breast
Like a caged bird that heareth from the nest
The sweet, insistent love call of its mate.
I cannot go to thee or even try
  To break my casement bars with these strong hands;
I may not answer, yet each yearning sigh
  That thy heart makes mine only understands.

Thou art the sun of all my days, the star
  That swings the incense of my soul on high;
Yet I must tread where deep'ning shadows are.
  Yet I must veil mine eyes when thou art nigh.
E'en so I hold one joy I would not miss
  For all possessions, honors, conquests, lands,
One joy I would not barter for thy kiss;
  What thy heart feels mine only understands.

—John Addington.

THEIR OLD MAID COUSIN.

BY W. R. ROSE.

It was a bright and cheerful September morning, but the sunshine that flooded the world outside was not reflected on the faces of May and Margaret Chesman. They were pretty girls of 18, but just now their prettiness was sadly marred by the unpleasant frowns they wore.

It was all because of the old maid cousin who had come from her far western home to visit them, and now, by their father's urgent request, was to remain for an indefinite time and take charge of the Chesman household.

They were motherless girls, these Chesman twins, and had known no real restraint since their fourteenth year. Naturally they were self willed and somewhat spoiled, and they resented this interference from one whom they considered a stranger. But they took good care not to show this feeling before their father. He was a stern man when aroused, as they had discovered on several unpleasantly remembered occasions. Besides, he seemed to have taken a strong liking to this old maid cousin. He was at no pains to conceal this feeling. In fact, her coming appeared to have made quite a new man of him. Before she came he had been absorbed and very quiet, and sometimes the girls would hear him walking the floor of his room for hours. It was business trouble, the girls fancied, but they didn't dare to speak to him concerning it.

And then after Cousin Laura came he suddenly brightened up and was quite himself again. It seemed to have begun with one evening in August when they found their father in the library earnestly talking with this cousin with a good many papers on the library table before them and their father arguing very earnestly as they paused at the doorway. They had been to a concert with Mrs. Jamison, their next door neighbor, and had just returned. Their father looked up and saw them.

"Come in, girls," he said, "and kiss your cousin Laura and thank her for all her many kindnesses." He did not speak in his usual calm voice, and the twins noticed that his face was flushed and his eyes were unusually bright.

They did as he bade them, Cousin Laura embracing them tenderly, but they wondered at it all and sorely resented the power she seemed to have gained over their father.

Cousin Laura was a handsome woman of perhaps five and thirty years, a woman of unassuming personality and plain attire, who bore in her manner a suggestion of depth of character and strong executive ability.

"You are all the relatives I have in the world," said Cousin Laura, as she beamed upon May and Margaret and then threw a swift glance at their father, "and we must be very good to one another."

The girls knew that she wasn't even a first cousin. She was only their father's second cousin, and he hadn't seen her for many years when the letter she had written from a far distant western mining town came to announce her purpose of making them a visit if agreeable. She came, and she staid. And all the time they felt that her influence was gradually bearing them down to a state of domestic subjection.

And now this particular morning, with its brightness and its reflected sunshine, seemed to have brought matters to a climax.

May had softly slipped into the little writing room that adjoined the library, but neither Cousin Laura nor her father knew of her whereabouts.

"They are lovely girls," May overheard Cousin Laura say, "but just a little spoiled and self willed, and I'm sorry to feel that they don't quite like me. They show it in many ways."

May's father's voice suddenly grew harsh.

"Have they been impudent?" he quickly asked.

"No, no!" cried Cousin Laura. "They are ladies. I don't think they could be rude if they tried. But it's a fact that they do not like me."

"And why?" asked the elder Chesman.

"Because," laughed Cousin Laura—"because they think I'm just a meddling old maid."

May's father laughed loud and long.

"We will presently cure all that," he said.

May could not hear Cousin Laura's response, but her father laughed again, and then they went away.

May came out unobserved and lightly ran up stairs to seek her sister.

"Sister," she cried, "do you know what is going on down stairs?"

"Breakfast," said the more matter of fact Margaret.

May frowned heavily, a trick she had caught from her father.

"Don't get maudlin, but listen to me, Margaret. I accidentally overheard a conversation between Cousin Laura and papa in which they admitted that the wedding would take place very soon."

"What wedding?" inquired Margaret.

"Papa's and Cousin Laura's!" groaned unhappy May.

And it was this dire probability that drove away the sunshine and cast the cloud across the two pretty faces.

It was not a merry breakfast table. Their papa and Cousin Laura talked a little, and then the maid laid a letter on Cousin Laura's plate. The twins saw that it bore a quick delivery stamp.

There was a little blush on Cousin Laura's cheeks as she looked up at the head of the household.

"Certainly," he added, with a laugh.

Cousin Laura tore open the envelope and read the letter. Then her blush deepened, and she smiled at the twins' father.

"Today," she said.

"Well, well," said the girls' father, "this does seem very sudden." And he laughed again.

Then the girls softly withdrew from the table and went away to their own room. It was all too evident that their father again contemplated matrimony. Their designing old maid cousin had broken down his resolution to remain single for the girls' sake. What an awful woman she was! Could it be that their father had grown fond enough of her to go wherever she led him? Then they both had a good cry.

"And what," groaned Margaret, "do you suppose she meant by today?"

"P-p-perhaps they are going t-to elope!" gasped May.

"I'll run into papa's room and see if he has packed anything," cried Margaret and darted away.

Pretty soon she came back.

"No," she said, "nothing is disturbed. Papa's valises are both on the high shelf in his closet, and there's dust on them."

So the girls moped through the morning, miserable, suspicious, watchful. After luncheon, Cousin Laura, who was in excellent spirits, went to her room, saying she would be down presently.

Then came a ring at the bell, and, the maids being busy, Margaret hurried to the door. Perhaps curiosity quickened her footsteps.

There was a gentleman in the vestibule, a distinguished looking gentleman with a gray beard and very bright black eyes, a gentleman who raised his hat and asked for Miss Laura. Then he added, with a bright smile:

"Is this Miss May or Miss Margaret?"

Before the astonished Margaret could reply there was a quick rustle on the stair, and the old maid cousin came fluttering down with both hands outstretched, and the gentleman caught the outstretched hands in his and, stooping, quickly kissed Cousin Laura full on the lips.

At this poor scandalized Margaret beat a hasty retreat, and a little later she and May talked the astonishing circumstance over. But really they could make nothing of it. Cousin Laura's caller lingered in the parlor, and the girls occasionally caught the hum of lively conversation.

"Perhaps," said May, "he's the minister that's come to marry them."

"Do you think so?" groaned Margaret. "But he seemed so affectionate. Well, we shall soon know."

And just then they heard their father coming in. He went right into the parlor, and then the hum of voices suddenly grew louder. May and Margaret, sitting in the library, strained their ears to catch a word.

"Does it sound like the marriage ceremony?" gasped May.

"No," replied Margaret, "not yet. There's too much laughing."

A little later they heard the door open, and then their father came into the library.

"Oh, you are here, girls!" he said. "I came out to find you. I have something pleasant to tell you. It's about Cousin Laura." May clutched at Margaret's hand. "Do you know why she came here? She came to be married." Margaret pinched May's fingers until they ached. "We are her only relatives, you know." May stared at Margaret, and Margaret stared at May. What their father's last sentence had to do with it they couldn't imagine.

"I've been afraid at times," their father went on, "that you have failed to appreciate your cousin. I want you to understand now that you owe her a debt of gratitude. Your cousin is a woman of wealth and of unusual business ability. When she came here, your father's business, through an unexpected turn in the market, was in very bad shape. Your cousin Laura found this out. She examined into my affairs, and when she was clearly satisfied that they were not entirely hopeless she advanced to me a large sum of money and became a silent partner in the firm. I am very glad to tell you that her money and her advice have put me back on a solid business footing. I tell you this, my dears, because I want you to understand that all the respect and regard you can pay your cousin can never offset the aid she thrust upon your father in his hour of trial." He paused, and the twins gave a little gasp. "There," he went on, "that will do for that. The gentleman who is with your cousin in the parlor is Senator Lorimer, who has just returned from abroad. It is the senator whom she is to marry, and the wedding will take place here some day next month. It is to be a quiet wedding, but there will be a number of out of town guests, and your cousin will need all the help you can give her. One thing more. They will take a wedding journey to the Pacific coast and then go at once to Washington, and Cousin Laura wants you girls to come and spend the winter with her in the new home the senator is fitting up. That's all, my dears," their father concluded. "And now come into the parlor and be presented to your prospective relative."

He stepped into the hall, but the twins hung back.

"Let me take your handkerchief," whispered May.

"I can't," sniffed Margaret. "I'm using it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chair Older Than America.

There is in the possession of the Bingley family of Hanover, Pa., an armchair that is older than America. With a history that began 470 years ago, when it was made in England, the chair has well stood the test of time. Kept as an heirloom by the Bingley family, it has been handed down for generations until the present owner received it in 1845. The chair is made of English oak, inlaid with several different kinds of other wood, beautifully carved and very heavy. Its construction is typical of the time at which it was made. The joints are mortised and tenoned, while wooden pins serve the purpose of screws or nails of the present day. Though made in the town of Wakefield, it remained there only a short time, being taken to Bingley, a town named after the ancestors of the present owner. There the chair remained during the reign of 20 kings and queens, from Henry VI to Victoria.

Finally, after a brief stay at Leeds, it was taken to Manchester. In 1856 the chair was brought to this country on the ship Mary Hale and was landed at Baltimore.—Exchange.

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

WEST VIRGINIA ALERT.

Governor Will Urge Appropriation to Have State Represented.

Governor Atkinson of West Virginia announces that he will embody in his next message to the legislature a recommendation for an appropriation to pay the expenses of the state commission having in charge the state exhibit for the Pan-American Exposition. West Virginia is one of the many states that are inviting capital and labor to come in and help develop their natural resources. With her 15,000 square miles of coal lands, her thousands of acres of hard wood forests, her wonderful stores of petroleum, her iron ore deposits and her great acreage of lands suitable for farming, stock raising and wool growing, she has much to offer in the way of exhibits and much to gain by bringing her resources properly before the world. It is expected that an exhibit will be made showing by maps and specimens, statistics and information of a general character what a newcomer to the state may be able to do in the way of advancing the fortunes of himself and those who depend upon him. The millions of visitors to Buffalo next year will be interested in knowing what the possibilities are in all parts of the western hemisphere. The West Virginia commission is composed of Stuart W. Walker of Martinsburg, president; J. C. Morrison of Charleston, secretary; R. B. Battelle of Wheeling, treasurer; James M. Porter, Jr., of New Cumberland and E. E. Smith of Parkersburg.

And can, if need be, freely quote
What half a dozen writers say,

A new steel centered rod is mine,
And eighty yards of perfect line,
Light as can be, yet tough as steel,
Spin on my latest patent reel.

My flybook of abnormal size
Bulges with various casts and flies,
And knowingly I pause and choose
Which of the many flies to use.

One gillie holds himself aloof
And also holds my waterproof;
A second near at hand is set,
Armed with a gaff and landing net,

And keeps an ever watchful eye
On me and on the tempting fly.
All that the angler's heart could wish
Is mine—except, of course, a fish.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Terse Reply to Complaining Mr. Bennett.

THE SELECTION OF COAL LANDS

Mr. Stephens' Complaint About the Public Works Department's Neglect of the River Thames—Mr. Tarte's Reply and Explanation—The Franchise Act Amendment—In Committee of Supply.

Ottawa, April 12.—Several Government measures were considered in the committee stage yesterday afternoon, including the bill to amend the Dominion franchise act in reference to the voters' list to be used in Dominion elections. Mr. Stephens (Kent) presented with some vigor a grievance in connection with the failure of the Public Works Department to dredge the bar at the mouth of the River Thames, and alleged lack of courtesy by Mr. Tarte. The Minister of Public Works explained that he had no funds for the work until the supplementary estimates were passed. Last evening Mr. Bennett brought up the question of filling the vacancy in the King's Bench judiciary in Ontario. Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that it was the duty of the Government to fill the vacancy, but he had received no complaints of inconvenience having arisen from delay. He characterized as unseemly the circulation of a petition to the Government asking for the appointment of any individual to the position.

Courts Congestion.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Bennett drew attention to the congested state of the Ontario courts, which he said was owing to the delay of the Government in filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Justice Burton. He referred to the attempt made to fill the vacancy by the appointment of Mr. J. J. Foy, and remarked that, if rumors were true, petitions were hawked around the City of Toronto asking the appointment of certain gentlemen. This was calculated to lower the character of the judiciary. The Government seemed to favor the policy of reserving such positions for political friends, which was not the policy followed by Sir John Macdonald, who appointed such a good Liberal as Hon. S. H. Blake.

Incidentally Mr. Bennett alluded to the appointment of Mr. Lount, to whose character and ability he paid a high tribute.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that Mr. Bennett had said that the Government had evinced a disposition, since we have been in office, to appoint to the bench only our political friends, whereas, in the earlier portion of his remarks, he had stated, with equal emphasis, that this Government had offered an appointment to Mr. Foy, who is not a friend of the Government, but an opponent. At all events, I think my hon. friends will agree with me that, since this Government has been in office, the appointments made to the bench in the Province of Ontario have not caused the admitted high standing of that bench to deteriorate. The last appointment made, that of Mr. Justice Lount, has given satisfaction to the bar of Ontario. As to the present position of judicial matters in the Province of Ontario, so far as my memory goes, no complaints have been made of the vacancy still existing, caused by the retirement of Mr. Justice Burton.

Coal Lands in Crow's Nest.

Replying to a question by Mr. Haggart, the Minister of the Interior said that the coal lands in the Crow's Nest district, accruing to the Government under the British Columbia Southern and C. P. R. agreement, had not yet been conveyed to the Government, although the railway company had for some time been ready to convey the lands as soon as they were selected. The selection was a matter requiring great care, and involving considerable work. The Government had sent out a party of topographical surveyors, and also an expert geologist to go over the country for the purpose of putting the Interior Department in a position to make a judicious selection. A plan of the territory has been prepared, and he thought all the necessary information had been acquired. It is the Government's intention, as soon as the snow is off the ground, to send out a party, with an expert, in order to complete the selection.

In committee on the bill to amend the Franchise Act, the Solicitor-General explained that the first amendment was to legalize the provincial list in force on the date of the writ, and not the list in force 60 days previous to the election, as provided in the present law.

Mr. Ingram brought up the Nipissing election case, stating that the Government must have acted illegally in postponing the election by Order-in-Council.

The Solicitor-General replied that, after the judgment of the courts in this case, any opinion of his would be valueless. The courts had decided the case.

After some further discussion, the clause was allowed to stand for future discussion.

There was a protracted debate upon the clause of the new act referring to the oath a voter must take, whose name has been left off the list, to entitle him to vote at an election. The clause was passed with the understanding that it may be subsequently amended.

The Dominion Elections Amendment Act was under consideration for a short time, and then laid over.

Mr. Stephens, the Liberal member for Kent, threatened to resign on account of circumstances which he related. He said that while in Chatham during Easter holidays he wired to the Minister of Public Works that the steam barge Ireland was ashore on the bar between Chatham and the mouth of the Thames, and as there was only seven feet of water on the bar, the entire fleet was tied up at Chatham. His telegram asked the Minister of Public Works to order a dredge, which was ready on the spot, to go to work and dredge the bar so vessels could get through. The dredge could be had at the usugl rate of $8 per working hour. To that telegram he could get no reply.

Mr. Tarte said that his department had nothing to do with floating barges that got ashore. That was a matter for the Marine Department to deal with. The reason he didn't order dredging to be started at once, was that he hadn't a dollar available for the purpose. Parliament would have to vote the money first. As for not answering the hon. member's telegram, the fact was that at the moment he received it he had to leave for Montreal, having learned that his youngest daughter was ill of typhoid fever.

Mr. Stephens replied that he had not asked Mr. Tarte to have the brage floated. What he asked was to have the bar dredged at once so vessels could get through. "If these boats at Chatham have to be laid up all year, because there was no money to open the bar, this Canada of ours is a poorer country than I ever thought it was," said Mr. Stephens, resuming his seat.

This closed the incident.

The Census Item.

In supply, on the item of $250,000 for the census, Mr. Fisher explained that a sum had been voted last year, making half a million in all, and a further sum would still be required, he could not say how much. The Minister could not say when the census of population could be made public. Several members took part in the debate, alleging that the work was proceeding too slowly to give an accurate result.

The vote was allowed to stand, and, after the discussion of some further votes, the House adjourned at 12.30 a. m.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock at the Cattle Market was moderately large for Thursday, 56 carloads all told, composed of 1010 cattle, 800 hogs, 75 sheep and 90 calves.

The quality of fat cattle was fair in the shipping class, while there was a scarcity of good to choice butchers' stock.

Prices for the best cattle in both classes were firm, while those of the poorer grades were inclined to be slow of sale.

In all other classes prices remained the same as on Tuesday.

EASTER'S PROMISE.

BY CONSTANCE LEVIEN.

COME, all ye dwellers on the earth,
Whether of high or lowly birth;
All who in God's own image are created,
Lift up the heart, lift up the voice,
'Tis Eastertide; rejoice, rejoice!
The Ship of Promise comes with treasures freighted.
The air rings with the glad refrain:
"Resurgam! I shall rise again!"

Roll back the stone! Roll back the stone!
The sepulcher is dark and lone!
The Lord has risen for the world's salvation!
Lift up heart and lift up voice,
'Tis Eastertide, rejoice, rejoice!
Land shouts to land, and nation calls to nation.
Hear the great and glad refrain:
"Resurgam! I shall rise again!"

Not to a creed or sect alone
Come the glad words, "Roll back the stone."
The Easter song is sung for all God's people.
Welcome the cry, "Rejoice, rejoice!"
From every heart, from every voice.
Let the bells sound from minaret and steeple.
The words swell up from hill and plain:
"Resurgam! I shall rise again!"

It is the promise to mankind,
The hope in every heart enshrined.
No matter what the worship be,
No matter where may bend the knee,
The Arab at his Allah's shrine,
The Persian where his fire gods shine,
The Hindoo prone at Vishnu's seat,
The savage at his idol's feet,
To all does Eastertide proclaim
A holy truth—a hope the same.

To all beneath the vault of heaven
The Easter promise has been given,
And in the swelling Easter song
Come angels' voices, clear and strong,
To every soul by error torn,
To every heart by sorrow worn,
To every bosom racked with pain:
"Resurgam! I shall rise again!"

Heat of the Stars.

Experiments at the Yerkes observatory have led to certain results on the heat of the stars that may be summarized as follows: The apparatus employed was sensitive enough to register the heat received from a candle 15 miles distant. The heat received from Arcturus was equivalent to the heat received from a candle at a distance of about six miles.

IMMIGRATION TALK.

Mr. McCreary's Able Defence of the Government's Policy.

THE DOUKHOBORS AS SETTLERS.

Are They and the Galicians Valuable Acquisitions in the Settlement of Canada?—Men Who Have Suffered for Conscience Sake Defended—The Debate Was Interesting—Readings of Bills.

Ottawa, April 13.—The House spent eight hours in the discussion of the Government's immigration policy yesterday. The subject was raised by Mr. Wilson on motion to go into supply, and the debate was participated in by most of the western members. The feature of the debate was Mr. McCreary's defence of the Government's policy. Late during the evening Mr. Clarke Wallace incidentally brought up the matter of the Fox Bay settlers, and the session ended with somewhat stormy scenes at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Postoffice Act Amendment.

Acting Postmaster-Gen. Mr. Sutherland introduced in the House a bill to amend the Postoffice Act, the principal object of which is to authorize the establishment of dead letter offices at St. John, Kingston, London, Vancouver and Dawson. Another clause authorizes the department to employ "train porters," as temporary mail clerks, in cases of unusually heavy newspaper mail, the idea being to save the expense of sending out an extra railway mail clerk. The bill was read a first time.

The Immigration Policy.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Wilson of Lennox criticized the immigration policy of the Government. He quite commended the distribution of Canadian text books in English schools, and thought they should also be sent to Germany, where emigration agents are not allowed to work. Dealing with the agencies, Mr. Wilson held that their cost was far more than the results warranted.

Mr. W. F. McCreary, the Liberal member for Selkirk, who was formerly immigration commissioner at Winnipeg, said that while the best settlers were Ontario farmers, and next to them the people from the British Isles, both the Doukhobors and Galicians were making good settlers. The Doukhobors he described as cleanly in their homes, thrifty and industrious. Mr. McCreary was cheered when he said it was a disgrace for public men to cast aspersions upon people who had suffered so much for conscience sake. Mr. McCreary paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Sifton, and said that immigrants were now pouring into the west at the rate of three train loads per day and that they were mostly persons of large means.

Mr. Jabel Robinson said that as the welfare of the country so largely depended upon the people brought into it, the Government could not be too careful as to the class of immigrants it induced to settle here.

Mr. Frank Oliver (Lib., Alberta), in whose constituency about half the Galicians in the country are settled, protested against the impression conveyed by Mr. McCreay that the prosperity of the Northwest was due to the immigration of Doukhobors and Galicians.

The debate was continued by Messrs. D. C. Fraser, Puttee, Davies, Clarke, Wallace, Hon. Mr. Sifton, Mr. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Third Readings.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:

To incorporate the Ottawa and Hull Power Company.

Respecting the London Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Canada.

Respecting the Eastern Canada Savings and Loan Company.

Respecting the Rathbun Company.

To incorporate the Algoma Iron and Nickel-Steel Company of Canada, the title of which originally was "The Clergue Company."

Respecting the McClary Manufacturing Company.

To incorporate the Bishop of Keewatin.

Both Manitoba Railway bills were allowed to stand, at the request of Mr. Charlton.

The Senate amendment to the act respecting the Supreme Court of the Independent Order of Foresters were concurred in, and a number of bills were given a second reading.

The House adjourned at 1 a. m.

More Pay for the Judges.

Ottawa, April 13.—The Solicitor-General will move a resolution in the House increasing the salary of the Chief Justice of the Northwest Territories by $1,000, namely, from $4,000 to $5,000 a year, and raising the salaries of the puisne judges of the Territories to $4,000 a year each. Provision is also made for an additional judge in the Yukon at $4,000, and the salaries of the seventeen puisne judges of the Superior Court of Quebec, who reside at Montreal or Quebec City, are raised to $5,000 per annum. The salary of the senior judge of the Circuit Court of Montreal is to be $3,600.

CHINA'S LARGE RESOURCES.

$300,000,000 in Gold Can Be Raised Without Crippling Her.

Pekin, April 12.—The Committee of Ministers, which is considering China's resources, has learned from the information thus far obtained that $300,000,000 in gold can be raised without injuring China's resources.

Trade Prospects Gloomy.

Tien Tsin, April 12.—Trade prospects are extremely gloomy. Chinese importers and wholesale dealers are fearful, owing to the disturbed state of the country and the uncertainty as to the future. The customs collections for the March quarter were 37,000 taels, against 130,000 for the same period of 1900.

French Troops to Be Removed.

London, April 13.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Pekin says that the French military authorities contemplate removing 7,000 men at an early date. The Germans are preparing to repatriate the infantry brigade. The indemnity claims are now understood to total sixty millions.

Want Them to Leave Pekin.

Pekin, April 12.—The Ministers openly express their desire that the foreign troops leave Pekin. They are seemingly as anxious for the departure as were the besieged Ministers anxious for the arrival of the troops.

"C" BATTERY GOT TOO MUCH.

By Mistake They Get $700 More Than Was Due Them.

Ottawa, April 13.—It was learned yesterday that no less a sum than £700 of Imperial money was distributed among the members of "C" Battery in mistake during the return trip of the steamer from Africa to Canada. The Imperial Government has asked for the return of this money, and, failing recovery, will deduct it from the amount of bonus which each soldier and officer who served in South Africa has earned. Any further application for money from the Militia Department will be emphatically declined.

SOME HARD FIGHTING

After Two Hours Col. Monro Makes a Good Capture.

COMMANDANT BRESLA TAKEN.

Eighty of His Men Also Captured—Kind Words for Canada and Australia by Gen. Buller—No More British Reinforcements—Africa for Africans—Sedition Among the Natives.

London, April 13.—A despatch from General Kitchener from Pretoria, dated Thursday, April 11, says Col. Munro's Mounted Infantry, after two hours' hard fighting, has captured 80 prisoners, including Commandant Bresla, at Lietfindeyne, near Dewetsdorp.

Buller Eulogizes Colonies.

London, April 13.—Gen. Sir Redvers Buller, speaking last evening at Plymouth, eulogized the assistance which Canada and Australia had rendered Great Britain in forming in South Africa a third English speaking nation.

"New nations are springing up around us," he said, "and must be allowed to do what is proper for themselves. Reasonable concession must be granted to them. We must not repeat the error which lost us America. The first great child of the Empire was lost because a fine, growing, lusty boy was not given enough rope, and was not allowed to think differently in small matters from his parents.

No More Reinforcements.

The Daily Express this morning says it understands that the Government has decided to cease sending reinforcements to South Africa.

Sedition Among Natives.

"A serious seditious moment," says the Pietermaritzburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, "is spreading among the natives. It is headed by native ministers, who preach the doctrine of 'Africa for Africans,' and incites the natives to throw off all European control. The authorities are carefully watching the propaganda, but are reluctant to interfere through fear of making martyrs of the ringleaders."

Everybody Sent to Pretoria.

Nlystroom, Transvaal Colony, Sunday, April 7.—All the inhabitants of this place have been sent to Pretoria.

The King and the War.

New York, April 13.—The Herald's London correspondent says: Intimate friends of Lord Carrington, who was sent as head of the special embassy to announce King Edward's accession to President Loubet, are saying the King Edward recently summoned Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Brodrick to express to them his displeasure at the unsatisfactory outcome of the Botha-Kitchener negotiations, which, King Edward said, were conducted in too peremptory a manner.

The King insisted on Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Brodrick submitting to him the minutest details of the negotiations, and subsequently emphatically made known his desire to end hostilities in the Transvaal.

It was his express wish that instructions should be sent to Lord Kitchener to find a basis for reopening pour parlers with Gen. Botha, which, backed this time with the King's moral influence, coupled with the feeling of fatigue prevailing throughout England, will doubtless be successfu,.

THE MULE SHIPPING QUESTION.

The Opinion of Legal Members of President McKinley's Cabinet.

Washington, April 13.—The legal proceedings at New Orleans to prevent the shipping of mules purchased in this country to South Africa was the most important matter discussed by the Cabinet yesterday, and the Attorney-General was directed to make an investigation of the question, and report his opinion to the Cabinet. As near as can be learned, members of the Cabinet with legal training are of the opinion that these proceedings are contrary to the rights of the Government. The view expressed is, that when neutrality proceedings are inaugurated in the United States courts, they should be brought in the name of the United States, an alleged violation of neutrality being a question affecting nations, not individuals.

Gas Export Must Cease.

Toronto, April 13.—At a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday it was decided to give notice to the Interior Construction & Improvement Company of the cancellation of their lease of the Detroit River bed for piping natural gas to the American side. This will dispose of the question of gas export, which the people of Essex County have complained for some time was depleting the supply very seriously on the Canadian side. It is understood that the lease has about three months yet to run.

LAW REFORM BILL WITHDRAWN.

Extension of Legislative Term Leads to Warm Discussion—The Land Grants to South African Volunteers—Discussion on the Premier's Assessment Act Amendment—Read a Third Time—Closing Scenes.

Toronto, April 13.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday before the business of the House began Hon. Mr. Harcourt made an explanation in reference to the statement made by Col. Matheson to the effect that the views expressed at the meeting of the Teachers' Association were antagonistic to the educational policy of the Government. This he strongly denied. All shades of opinion were expressed, but the tone of the gathering was by no means antagonistic to the Government. The system was criticized and he had always admitted that it was not perfect, and that there were many reforms which he would like to see accomplished.

Mr. Whitney read extracts from the reports of the Teachers' Association and contended that their criticisms justified the position of the Opposition on educational matters.

Premier Ross' bill respecting the Legislative Assembly was remodelled in committee so as to provide that the extension of the term should not be longer than 10 days.

The bill providing for land grants to the South African Volunteers came up for a third reading. Mr. Dempsey moved an amendment giving the pine on the land to the beneficiaries. Mr. McLaughlin moved a further amendment regretting that the veterans of 1837 and '38 had not been included. A question arose as to whether the amendment of Mr. McLaughlin was in order and the Speaker reserved his decision, further debate being postponed. The Speaker subsequently ruled that Mr. McLaughlin's amendment was in order.

Premier Ross moved the third reading of his bill to amend the Assessment Act, the object of which was to restore the law as to the assessment of the plant of corporations as it stood before the scrap iron decision. He pointed out that the measure was what had been asked for by the Municipal Association, who certainly could not be accused of promoting corporate interests. He indignantly repudiated the idea that members of the Legislature of either party were corruptly influenced by lobbyists acting in the interests of corporations.

Mr. Whitney agreed with the Premier's remarks as to lobbying and the bringing to bear of corrupt influences upon members, but he reasserted that the Government had withdrawn the original bill because the corporations opposed its passage.

Mr. Gross justified the withdrawal of the original bill by the Government on the ground that the question was one which required fuller and more careful consideration than could be given it this session.

Mr. Foy contended that as the draft bill had been prepared by the Assessment Commission after full investigation the Government ought not to have dropped it. He entered into an argument to show that the present bill would not nullify the scrap iron decision. He moved that the bill be referred back to committee for the purpose of inserting amendments to make it clear that corporations must pay their fair share of taxation

Dr. McKay deprecated hasty legislation on the question. The Government bill went far enough for the present. He moved an amendment to the amendment providing for the assessment of any portion of a bridge located in more than one municipality as an integral part of the whole.

Mr. Marter thought that the question had been thoroughly discussed and the members were entirely familiar with it. He drew attention to some of the anomalies prevailing under the existing law.

Messrs. Pardee and Pattullo opposed the amendments to the bill. The latter urged that the whole question of the taxation of corporations had been revolutionized in the United States and it would be well to consider the legislation enacted there before important changes were made in the law.

Dr. McKay's amendment was carried by a vote of 40 yeas to 30 nays.

The bill was accordingly referred back to committee and amended by providing for the assessment of sections of bridges as integral portions of the whole structure. It then received a third reading.

Consideration of the bill giving land grants to volunteers was resumed. Mr. Davis claimed that the terms of the bill as it stood were exceedingly liberal, as the volunteers received all the minerals and all the timber on their lots excepting the pine. Further than this the Government was not prepared to go.

In the interval before the vote was taken, Capt. Robson sang a patriotic song and was greated with loud applause. As a member of the Legislature who never speaks, but occasionally sings, the captain sets an excellent example.

Mr. McLaughlin's amendment was declared lost by a vote of 30 yeas to 40 nays. The bill then received a third reading.

When the Government Municipal Amendment bill came up for a third reading, Mr. Marter moved a reference back to insert an amendment providing that the municipal elections in Toronto might be held on New Year's Day.

Col. Matheson opposed the proposal on the ground that many excursions were held on that day, Anti-Trading Stamp bill.

Mr. Crawford said that the people of Toronto desired the change. As so other municipality was affected by it, the amendment should be made.

Mr. Latchford opposed it on the ground that many people had religious scruples about voting on that day.

Several others spoke in opposition to the proposal. Premier Ross thought it would be invidious to hold elections on New Year's Day in view of the statement that the Roman Catholics were conscientiously opposed to it. Mr. Whitney objected to adopting a different rule for Toronto to that prevailing elsewhere. Mr. Marter then withdrew his amendment.

The bill was then amended by incorporating the provisions of the anti-Trading Stamp bill.

Mr. Marter moved an amendment exempting Toronto from the provisions of the Conmee Act in regard to the establishment of municipal gas and electric services.

Mr. Conmee, in a lengthy speech opposed the amendment, contending that his act did not prevent Toronto from establishing such services as municipal undertakings.

After some further discussion, Hon. J. M. Gibson stated his opinion that the Conmee act did not interfere with the rights of the city under the Consumers' Gas Co. charter. He was opposed to giving private bill legislation by amendments to the Municipal Act, but he was prepared to consent to an amendment securing to Toronto the right to establish competing gas works as contemplated in the Consumers' Gas Co. charter, irrespective of the Conmee Act. He presented an amendment to this effect which was accepted by Mr. Marter, who withdrew his amendment. The bill as amended received a third reading.

Hon. J. M. Gibson withdrew his bill respecting County Courts jurisdiction. Premier Ross withdrew his bill to amend the Municipal Act.

The Premier moved the third reading of his bill respecting the Legislative Assembly giving the House power to extend its term of existence. The bill was opposed by Mr. Carscallon, who characterized it as a bill to prolong the life of the present Government, and declared that no sufficient grounds had been shown for its introduction. He moved the six months' hoist.

Premier Ross said the measure was framed in the interest aad for the convenience of the public alone. It was desirable to avoid an election campaign in winter and therefore the contest would probably take place in June. The extension of the term for a short time would be no precedent for a more substantial extension, such as a few months or a year. It would make no difference in the time of holding the election. If they introduced a redistribution bill they would have no trouble in getting it through even without an extension. He defended the Government from the charge of delaying public business. Any delay that had taken place was due to the protracted debates on the budget.

Mr. Carscallen's amendment was defeated. The division was: Yeas 27, nays 38.

The Succession Duties Act Amendments, to prevent dispositions being made to evade the act was adopted.

The Toronto Suburban Railway bill was passed without a division.

Hon. John Dryden evoked applause by withdrawing the Grand Trunk bill, which aimed to usurp police control of the Union Station, Toronto.

The Metropolitan Railway bill, with all the clauses concerning Toronto withdrawn, was adopted.

The Controverted Elections Act by Mr. Whitney and Mr. Lucas' bill to amend the Liquor License Act, were "lost on division."

Before adjourning, Premier Ross announced that prorogation would take place on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. He also moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Speaker, seconded by Mr. Whitney.

The Speaker eloquently replied, and the session was brought to a close for the first time with the singing of "God Save the King."

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

YOU CANNOT CURE PILES

By Internal Remedies.

The only sure way to cure every form of piles is to use a remedy like the Pyramid Pile Cure, which is applied directly to the parts affected and its wonderful healing effects are apparent from the first application, because the medicinal properties are rapidly absorbed by tissues and sensitive membranes of the rectum, and the cure is made speedily and almost before the patient is aware of it every trace of piles has left him.

This is one of the reasons why the Pyramid Pile Cure has been so uniformly successful. It is applied directly just where it is needed and where it will do the most good—not by the roundabout way of the stomach, nor by the harsh, barbarous methods of various surgical operations and so-called systems.

Direct applications to the seat of disease is the only rational way, and this is fully accomplished by the Pyramid Pile Cure.

If the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried this remedy is worth anything, then no sufferer has any excuse for longer delaying in giving it a fair trial, knowing that when you do so The Pyramid Pile cure will have made one more friend, the best possible advertisement we can have. The chief advantages of the remedy are: It cures without pain, the cure is lasting, it contains no poison, and lastly, it is the cheapest and quickest cure yet found. Your druggist can tell you what it has done for others.

Testimonials of cures from all parts of the United States will be sent on application to the Pyramid Drug Co., of Marshall, Mich.

Catarrh

The best authorities say, is a disease of the blood.

Therefore local applications cannot cure.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

By thoroughly purifying the blood, this great medicine reduces the inflammation of the mucous membrane and stops all catarrhal discharges of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, bladder and generative organs.

Catarrh is especially dangerous in persons who inherit or have acquired a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength and vigor that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and the peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the common-sense treatment for catarrh.

"I was a sufferer from nasal catarrh, gradually growing worse. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla which completely cured me of that troublesome disease." MAUD DOAN, 1615 Arrow Ave., Indianapolis, Ind. Be sure to get

JURY CONTRARY TO JUDGE.

Kemptville Killing Case Results in an Acquittal at Brockville.

Brockville, April 13.—In the case of the Crown v. Garrett, Dell, Gannon and Newman, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Lancelot Banks at Kemptville early in March, the evidence for the defence was completed Thursday night, and Sir John Boyd reserved his charge till yesterday. The substance of the defence was that Banks was a man of ungovernable temper, and that when he attacked Garrett with a stake the latter tried hard to ward off the blow with another stake, and Banks received the blow from his own stake, from which he died. The judge charged strongly against the prisoners. The jury were out only two hours, and brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

Moslems in Rebellion.

London, April 13.—The Daily Express publishes the following despatch from Vienna:

"The Moslem population of Adachale Island, near the iron gatemm chale Island, near the Iron Gate of the Danube, rebelled. The troops were called out, but met with much resistance. Sixteen Moslems were killed and 50 others wounded."

An Editor Drops Dead.

Brandon, April 13.—W. G. King, editor of the Independence, dropped dead at 1.30 yesterday. The deceased had just finished eating his luncheon at the Langham and was going upstairs to his room, when he fell. He was picked up and laid on a lounge, expiring in a few minutes. Mr. King leaves a widow and family, living near Wawanesa.

THE SPRING FEELING.

NOT EXACTLY SICK—BUT NEITHER ARE YOU WELL.

Close Confinement During the Winter Months has left you Weak, Easily Distressed and "Out of Sorts."

The words "weak and depressed" expresses the condition of thousands of people in the spring time. It is one of nature's signs that humanity cannot undergo months of indoor life in badly ventilated buildings with impunity. Sometimes you have a headache; slight exercise fatigues you; your appetite is variable; you are easily irritated or depressed; perhaps there are pimples or slight eruptions that indicate the blood needs attention. Whatever the symptom may be it should be attended to at once, else you will fall an easy prey to graver diseases. Do not use a purgative in the hope that it will put you right. Any doctor will tell you that purgatives weaken, that they impair the action of the liver and create chronic constipation. A tonic is what is needed to help nature fight your battle for health, and there is only one always reliable never failing tonic, and that is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have no purgative action. They make rich, red blood, strengthen the tired and jaded nerves, and make weak, distressed and easily tired people, whether old or young, bright, active and strong. Among those who have proved the health-bringing qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Miss Emma Chaput, of Lake Talon, Ont., who says: "I cannot thank you enough for the good I have derived through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I honestly believe that but for them I would now be in my grave. My health was completely broken down. My face as white as chalk, and if I made the least effort to do any housework I would almost faint from the exertion, and my heart would beat violently so that I feared I would drop where I stood. I was a great sufferer from headaches and dizziness as well, and my appetite was so poor that I scarcely ate at all. I tried several medicines, but they did not help me, and then I decided to send for some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got six boxes and before I used them all I was as well as I had ever been, with a good healthy color, a good appetite and an entire freedom from the ailments that made me so miserable. You may be sure that I will always have a warm regard for your invaluable medicine."

Do not experiment with other so-called tonics—you are apt to find it a waste of money and your health worse than before. You will not be experimenting when you use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have proved their value the world over, and you can rely upon it that what they have done for others they will do for you. If you cannot get the genuine pills from your dealer send direct to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will be mailed post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock at the Cattle Market to-day was not as large as was expected, there being 64 carloads all told, composed of 1000 cattle, 1200 hogs, 284 sheep and 30 calves.

The quality of fat cattle, generally speaking, was not as good as would be expected at this season of the year, too many half-finished being brought forward.

Trade was generally good, with prices firm all round, but more especially in the best grades of butcher cattle, of which there were not enough to supply the demand.

There is a good demand for feeders and stockers, and prices ruled strong at quotations given below.

Stock calves under one year old, averaging from 350 to 400 lbs. each, are in good demand at $3.50 to $3.60 per cwt.

Milch cows of good quality are scarce and wanted. There were about 10 offered, the quality generally being only medium. Prices ranged from $30 to $50 each.

Prices for hogs were unchanged and firm.

In all other classes prices remained the same as quoted for Thursday.

MILITARY TOURNAMENT.

The 1901 Horse Show at Toronto Is Full of Promise.

Toronto, April 12.—Never in the history of Canada will so brilliant and interesting an event be witnessed as will be represented at the Canadian Military Tournament and Horse Show, to be held in the Toronto Armouries on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 24, 25, 26 and 27. For the first time in this part of the world will be seen the sailors of His Majesty navy taking part in their interesting evolutions. Through the kind offices of His Excellency the Governor-General permission was given by the Admiralty for a detail of sailors to leave the North Atlantic Squadron and their exhibitions are sure to arouse the greatest enthusiasm. The other special military events will be presented in the form of an attack on a Boer outpost, free gymnastics by the Royal Military Cadets, the musical drive by the Royal Canadian Dragoons. The exhibition of horses will be the finest ever seen in Canada and the large concourse of fashionable people from all over the country will be a feature of the event. The chairman of the joint committee is Colonel Otter and the manager is Mr. Stewart Houston. There are reduced rates on all railways.

We Bring Good Tidings

To the Suffering, Despondent and Weary.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

EARTH'S BEST SPRING MEDICINE RESTORES HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

It Cures the Worst Cases of Nerve and Blood Diseases.

It Gives Energy and Vigour To Body and Brain.

Spring, gentle spring is nature's revival season. The icy bonds of lakes, rivers and streams are cast off, and the music of sounding and rushing waters is heard again. The grass as it catches the rays of sunshine springs to life and is clothed anew; the trees bud, the wild flowers lift up their heads, and the birds sing their sweetest songs.

To a vast army of men and women, the old and young—the advent of spring brings increased and intensified sufferings and woes from rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney and liver complaints, blood diseases, dyspepsia, nervous disorders and sleeplessness.

Take courage poor sufferers; we bring you at this time glad tidings. We give you the assurance that Paine's Celery Compound possesses the necessary virtues to banish your troubles and cure you permanently.

As nature around us tones up and puts on new life, so can you, if you are true to yourself and heaven, banish your disease, gain strength, vigour and happiness by use of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mrs. E. Rankin, Courtright, Ont., fully convinced of the efficacy of the great medicine, writes us:

"With great pleasure I beg to inform you of the good I have received from the use of Paine's Celery Compound. For a number of years I have been in very poor health owing to various causes, and lately I was advised to try your medicine. I used three bottles, and have received a a world of good. My severe headaches are completely banished, and the heart disease from which I suffered for thirty years has almost disappeared, and altogether I am vastly improved. I am fully convinced that Paine's Celery Compound is all it is recommended to be.'

Lieut.-Col. G. Sterling Ryerson of Toronto has been notified that he has been gazetted a Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England.

PEN AND BRUSH.

Jules Verne, now 73, has written as many books as he is years old.

Mrs. Craigie hit upon her John Oliver Hobbes nom de plume by chance while looking for a plain sensible signature to an early paper.

Edwin Austin Abbey, the American painter, has been elected a member of the famous Athenæum club of London under the rule empowering the annual election of persons illustrious in science, literature and art.

To oblige his friend, the great Cavour, Verdi accepted a seat in the Italian parliament, but the proceedings bored him, and he occupied his time setting the orators' speeches to music. The composer was very religious. He had a private chapel in his home in which mass was said daily.

The Manufacture of Plate Glass.

The casting table of a plate glass factory is about 20 feet long, 15 feet wide and 6 inches thick. Strips of iron on each side afford a bearing for the rollers and determine the thickness of the plate to be cast. The molten glass is poured on the table, and the roller passing from end to end spreads the glass to a uniform thickness. The glass, after cooling rapidly, is transferred to the annealing oven, where it remains several days. When taken out, it is very rough and uneven and in that state is used for skylights and other purposes where strength is desired rather than transparency. The greater part of the glass, however, is ground, smoothed and polished.

Doesn't Count For Much.

"Lovely wedding, wasn't it?" asked the maid of honor.

"Quite so," admitted the bride's dearest enemy.

"Every detail perfect," suggested the maid of honor.

"Oh, I don't know. We might make an exception of the groom, don't you think?"

"Oh, possibly, possibly," admitted the maid of honor, "but that's a minor detail, anyway."

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DANCE.

Given in the Water Street Assembly Hall Last Night.—Most Successful.

A quiet little dance took place last night in the Water Street Assembly Hall (old Business College) and it was unique in many ways. The affair was distinctly a young peoples' dance, being more particularly extended to the "not outs," and it proved to be a decided success. About sixty-five young people were present and a most delightful evening was spent. The floor was in excellent condition, the decorations profuse, the Misses Hurley supplied music in their usual satisfactory manner and Mr. H. Long did the catering. The dance was given under the auspices of the C.D.A., of which Mr. George Burnham is president and Mr. C. M. Paterson, secretary.

The patronesses were Mrs. R. S. Davidson, Mrs. D. J. Lundy, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. T. A. S. Hay, Mrs. A. W. Spence and Mrs. A. H. Stratton. The piano used was a Stanley.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. R. R. Hall returned last evening from Toronto.

Mrs. W. D. Wilgar left to-day for Toronto, where she will reside in future.

Mr. J. J. Crowe, License Inspector of East Peterborough, was in town to-day.

Mr. James Devine is able to be out again after several days rather severe illness.

Miss Alice McCallum has left on a three month's visit to Mt. Pleasant, New York.

Mrs. Geo. Brown, of Chemong, has been visiting in town for the last couple of days.

Miss Agnes Hall left to-day for Hamilton, where she will be the guest of Mrs. P. McCullough.

Mrs. (Rev.) James Cameron, of Toronto, is the guest of Miss Robinson, 379 Reid street, town.

Miss Bertram, of Toronto, will sing Granier's "Hosanna" at St. Paul's church to-morrow morning, and in the evening Lane's beautiful song, "Peace."

Mr. Frank McPherson is confined in Kingston Hospital with a severe attack of typhoid fever. His mother, Mrs. Angus McPherson is in Kingston with him.

Mr. J. J. Hartley and Mr. James Stevenson have returned from Toronto where they were attending the Trustees' Convention.

The Examiner had a call yesterday from Messrs. M. C. Dickson, District Passenger Agent, and Chas. J. Proctor, Travelling Passenger Agent, of the Grand Trunk Railway. They left one of their neat little pocket maps of the G. T. R. system and connections.

—In yesterday's EXAMINER it was stated that Mr. A. C. McCallum was the popular teacher in drawing in connection with the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Collier is the teacher of this department.

—Mr. Percy Might, of the Normal College, Hamilton, gave an address to the Boys at the Y.M.C.A. this morning at 11 o'clock. His subject was "Mend or Bend."

—Mr. John Scarlett, of Galway, died very suddenly of diabetes on the 7th. He was up and kindled the fire in the morning and shortly after took convulsions and died. He leaves a wife and eight children to mourn his loss. Much sympathy is felt towards his widow and children in their sad bereavement.

Bobcaygeon Independent:—Mr. David Conroy, of Peterborough, took 160 head of yearlings and young cattle from this vicinity this week for shipment to his ranch at Fort McLeod, in the Calgary district. Yearlings brought $12, well bred Polled Angus and Herefords went higher. Three thoroughbred Hereford heifers brought $60 each.

TRENT VALLEY DEPUTATION

Interviewed the Minister of Railways and Canals.

They Asked That the Southern Section be Placed Under Contract—The Speakers.

The deputation which left Peterborough and other places along the route of the Trent Valley Canal, on Thursday for the purpose of interviewing the Minister of Railways and Canals regarding the early completion of the southern section of the Trent Valley Canal, returned to town this morning after laying their case before the Government at Ottawa.

The deputation was one of the largest and most representative that has ever left this section of Ontario on a like mission, and the necessity of an early completion of the work was most ably laid down by the various speakers.

Amongst those who were present were: Messrs. J. H. McClellan, G. W. Fitzgerald, Warden County of Peterborough; Warden Graham, Victoria; His Worship Mayor Denne, Mayor Ingle, Lindsay; Aldermen Rush, Clinkscale, Batten, Best, Corkery, Roger and Edgcumbe, County Councillors Peck and Casement, Mr. Kilbourn, manages Lakefield Cement Company; Dr. Wood, Kirkfield; Vincent Eastwood, Gerald Fitzgerald, Reeve of Lakefield; J. E. Kelly, Lakefield; A. P. Poussette, K.C., Jas. Stevenson, Capt. Clegg, Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards, Aldermen C. J. Miller and J. B. Tudhope of Orillia, Mayor Phillips and the Alderman of Trenton; Warden Pearce, of Hastings County; Reeve Smith and Councillors J. B. Harris and Boddy, Campbellford; Rev. R. B. Denike, Campbellford; Thos. Ritchie, Belleville; J. B. Clark, Port Hope, and all the members of Parliament and Senators along the route of the canal.

THE SPEAKERS.

The deputation was introduced by Mr. James Kendry, M. P., to Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways and Canals; Sir Richard Cartwright, Minister Trade and Commerce, and Hon. James Sutherland. The interview took place at 3 o'clock and a meeting of the deputation was held in the Russell House at 9 o'clock for the purpose of arranging for the speakers.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, on behalf of the Peterborough Board of Trade and the Town of Peterborough, was the first speaker and was followed by J. H. McClellan, J. M. Kilbourn, President Lakefield Cement Co.; Alderman C. J. Miller, Orillia; Mayor Phillips, Trenton; Reeve Smith, Campbellford; Thos. Ritchie, Belleville; Dr. Wood, Kirkfield; and Hon. Geo. A. Cox.

The speakers all impressed upon the Ministers the advisability of the early completion of the lower sections of the canal, making a navigable stretch to Lake Ontario. The speakers all spoke along the same lines and made their case very clear.

Honourable Mr. Blair, in reply, spoke at some length. He reminded the deputation that there were many things throughout the country that they had to provide for, and it was necessary therefore for them to duly consider matters before making promises. He mentioned the fact that the Lake Simcoe sections were at present under contract, and one million dollars is yet to be spent thereon. The present Government had spent more more money on the canal already than their predecessors had spent in their whole term of office. While they constituted an important deputation judging from the offices most of them filled, and while this deputation had no doubt as to the national importance of the canal, still there was a difference of opinion regarding the same. However, the previous Administration had approved of it, and it had the Government's approval as to the importance and utility of the canal, and in consequence of this they are now spending large sums of money. The section at Balsam Lake would be completed as soon as possible, it being at present under contract, and the southern section would then be taken up.

In conclusion he expressed the pleasure he felt at meeting the deputation.

THREE TIMES A DESERTER.

Pte. Hawes Again Left Stanley Barracks Without Leave—Arrested To-day.

Pte. F. A. Hawes, who on two previous occasions has been arrested in town as a deserter from the Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry, Toronto, was once more taken in hand by the local police this morning on the strength of the following letter from Stanley Barracks:

Stanley Barracks, 10th April, 1901.
Chief of Police, Peterborough:

Dear Sir,—I beg to notify you that Pte. F. A. Hawes has again been declared a deserter from the Royal Canadian Regt. of Infantry at this station, having absented himself without leave from the 11th of March last.

I trust you will be able to apprehend this man, and shall be prepared to send an escort for him on receipt of telegram from you.

Yours truly,
F. A. LISTER,
Adjt, No. 2 Regt. Depot R.C.R.I.

Hawes was arrested this morning at his home in the south end of the town. He has yet over a year to put in at the barracks, but says he will desert every chance he can get. He is tired of soldiering.

Died in the West.

Mr. Timothy Cavanah received a telegram this morning from his nephew, Richard Phelan, announcing the death of his mother in Haywood, Wisconsin, and stating that the remains were to be brought to Peterborough for interment. The deceased was the widow of the late John Phelan.

DRILL SHED DEPUTATION.

Interview With the the Minister of Militia, Hon. Dr. Borden.

The Trent Valley delegation from Peterborough, representing the Board of Trade and the Town Council, together with Lieut. Col. E. B. Edwards, Capt. Clegg and Capt. Eastwood, of the 57th Regiment, waited upon Hon. Dr. Borden yesterday to urge upon that gentleman the need of a new armouries and a drill shed in Peterborough. The deputation was introduced to the Minister at 3 o'clock by Mr. J. H. McClellan, and the spokesmen of the delegation were Lieut. Col. E. B. Edwards, Jas. Kendry, M. P., D. W. Dumble, Mayor Denne, A. P. Pousette, K.C., and County Councillor Peck. They reminded the Minister of the fact that the drill shed was old and dielapidated and had not the necessary accommodation for the storage of arms. It was also pointed out that Peterborough is the headquarters for the 3rd Dragoons, the 57th Regt., and two sections of the Durham Field Battery.

Hon. Dr. Borden expressed himself as somewhat surprised on hearing of the condition of the shed, and stated he would ask for the papers from the Quartermaster General. He thought that in view of the fact that so many places are asking for grants of a like nature it might be well for the Government to build the armouries where needed with plans that the drill shed might be built afterwarns. His estimates for the year had been closed and were now before the House, but he intimated to the deputation that he would take up the matter next year.

The deputation withdrew, well pleased with their interview.

THE LATE MRS. A. DUNFORD.

The Funeral Took Place on Thursday Afternoon Last.

The sad and sudden demise of Mary E. Spilsbury, wife of Mr. A. Dunford, of No. 414 sherbrooke street, has been deeply felt by all her friends and acquaintances as was evidenced by the large attendance at her funeral on Thursday, April 11th, 1901.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. L. Armitage of All Saints, of which church deceased was a member, and an active worker in the Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs, Dunford was also a member of Court Queen, No. 276, I. O. F., and a large number of the members were present to pay the last sad rites of the Order to the memory of their departed sister.

Beautiful flowers were sent from Court Queen, No. 276, I. O. F., wreath; Court Chemong, No. 530, I. O. F., anchor; Woman's Auxiliary, basket; Boy's Brigade, basket; All Saint's Guild, bouquet; Sunday School and Bible Class, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, bouquet; Mrs. John Dunford, bouquet; Mrs. George Spilsbury, bouquet; Mrs. H. Wills, bouquet; Mrs. J. Williams, bouquet; flowers from family and others also.

Mrs. Dunford was the third daughter of Mr. Wm. Spilsbury, of North Monaghan, and a grand-daughter of the late Captain Spilsbury, R. N. She leaves to mourn her death, a husband, one daughter and two sons—May, aged sixteen; George, fourteen and Willie, eleven. She also leaves a mother and father, four sisters and two brothers, namely: Mrs. H. Falkner, Havelock; Mrs. P. Stewart, North Dakota; Mrs. W. Jackson, Stewart street, town; Mr. G. B. Spilsbury, Perry street, town; Mr. T. W. Spilsbury, Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. E. Hillier, of North Monaghan. All of whom were in attendance at the funeral except Mrs. Stewart.

This is the third death in the family within the last two months, the late Mr. Charles Spilsbury and Mrs. Dr. Bell being an uncle and aunt, respectively, of the deceased.

Gone but not forgotten.

DEATH OF WM. H. COULTER.

One of Cavan's Most Highly Respected Resident's Passes Away.

There passed away on Saturday last after a somewhat protracted illness William H. Coulter, of Fairmount, one of the most respected residents of Cavan. Deceased, who was in his sixty-seventh year, was born in the Township of Clarke, but nearly forty years ago moved to the north of Cavan, where he resided ever afterward. He was of Irish extraction and known as a man of sterling integrity and uprightness beyond reproach. Like his countrymen he was firm in his convictions and ever ready to advocate his views with determination and a full knowledge of his position; yet he was considerate for all and most lovable in his sympathetic nature. Although he had no children of his own his fondness for the young and his deep interest in all that made for their moral and intellectual welfare made his own mind and life young and hopeful. He had been ill for some months, not with any racking pain, but lung trouble gradually sapped the life away. W. H. Coulter has gone to his reward, but he is not dead. He lives beyond, just across the bar, and his life, influence and deeds must continue to move and help all who have known him. To his widow and adopted son, who has been a son indeed, the sincerest sympathy is extended. The funeral took place on Tuesday to Fairmount Cemetery, Rev. Mr. Coon, his pastor, and Rev. J. Kilgour, of Peterborough, his former pastor and warm personal friend, counducting the last obsequies.

ACCEPTED THE CALL.

Rev. J. L. Gilmour Decides to go to Montreal.---Resigns James St. Pastorate.

Hamilton Herald.

At the close of the prayer meeting at the James Street Baptist Church on Wednesday evening a business meeting of the congregation was held. Mr. W. J. Copp presided and Mr. H. Moore acted as secretary. Rev. J. L. Gilmour, who has been pastor of the church for five years, tendered his resignation. He stated that he felt it was his duty to accept the call—a second one—from Olivet Church, Montreal.

He had many reasons for remaining in Hamilton on the score of personal feelings and attachments after his five years' pastorate. But the importance of the work in Montreal was a stronger argument for his acceptance of the call. It was necessary that the work be kept strong and it was considerably run down in Olivet Church. He was not moving to a more comfortable position, but he had sought advice from men who stood high in the Baptist denomination and who knew the work. He said that it would be painful for him and Mrs. Gilmour to separate from the James Street Baptist Church, but he realized that it was the path of duty. He prayed God would lead the church into new and better pastures. He asked that the resignation take effect on May 5th after the evening service.

Messrs. Copp, Henry New, C. W. Bradfield and others expressed regret at the intended departure of their beloved pastor.

It was decided not to accept the resignation, as a number of prominent members of the congregation were absent, so the matter was laid over until Sunday, when a meeting will be held after the morning service.

In view of the feelings expressed by the pastor, there is no doubt the resignation will then be accepted.

The James Street Church has made considerable progress under Rev. Mr. Gilmour's leadership, and his departure will be keenly felt by his large congregation. He will also be greatly missed in religious and social circles outside those of his own church.

HAVELOCK STRIKE.

Men in the Lumber Yards Want More Money.

Eight men employed by Wm. Coulter in the lumber yards at Havelock have gone out on strike. The dissatisfaction is stated to be in the wages paid, the men demanding $1.25 per day for loading heavy green railway ties on the cars. Mr. Coulter could not see his way clear to grant the demand and the men went out.

Mr. Coulter has since secured a few men, some of whom we understand have also quit. The result of the strike is being eagerly awaited by the men, who are determined to stand out for the increase.

MATCHES AND MONEY

UNROMANTIC COURTSHIPS ARE THE RULE IN GERMANY.

There the Women Are Obliged to Have Some Financial Resources When They Marry—The Cost of Acquiring a Military Husband.

In Bavaria every girl is expected to get married. Ask a Bavarian, and he will tell you that it is impossible for a portionless maiden to find a husband. If a girl has no money for a dowry, therefore, she sets herself at work to save one.

Marriage in Germany is nearly entirely a matter of business. The father of the girl announces the sum which is to go with her, while the papa of the prospective husband holds out for more. That is the first stage of the negotiations. Little by little each yields to the other. Finally, often after months of delay, the contract is drawn up with minute specifications by a notary, and then the lovemaking may begin. The courtship is very circumscribed and is probably not altogether satisfactory, for the German maiden is a romantic creature, and the opportunities she has for getting acquainted with her husband before marriage are very meager.

The parental supervision is so inbred in the nation that even the government takes a hand in it with its servants. A German army officer is a splendid creature to the eye, but his pay is very small, ranging from a matter of $5 a week for a lieutenant to $50 a week for a full fledged general. In order to prevent the possibility of seediness in appearance or style of living the government forbids an officer to marry unless he deposits a certain sum—it is $20,000 for a lieutenant and becomes gradually less for each higher grade—with the authorities, the income of which is doled out to him semiannually. This is in reality putting a price on the man, because the greater number of German officers are very poor and can get the money required only from their brides.

The money which a wife brings to her husband, unless there is an express notarial stipulation to the contrary, becomes absolutely the husband's property. Woman in the eye of the law has practically no rights except such as her husband may allow her. He treats her very often as merely a piece of live stock. If the woman rebels, which she does very rarely, he displays a very short temper and an aptness for wielding a poker or a walking stick in a use for which they were never meant.

In a German newspaper one may always find a column devoted to matrimonial announcements. There is no romance in these advertisements. The man tells how much money he has and how much he wants. The woman names her dowry to the very pfennig. Very often the man has no money at all and expresses his desire to marry into a business, but the woman knows that it is useless to advertise at all unless she has some money, if it amounts only to $100 or so, which may be regarded as the lowest sum worthy of consideration as a mitgift.

On the other hand, it is the woman's privilege to name the calling which she prefers the man should follow. She usually chooses an official clerk or porter, a policeman or a car conductor, all of whom have tenure of office and an old age pension. She has more of an eye to stability than to ambition.

It is in the so called higher classes of society that one finds the baldest and most businesslike matrimonial transactions. There are few young men of this class who have either money or any prospect of making any otherwise than by a wealthy marriage. When they inherit fortunes, it is the fashion to dissipate them, and when they don't inherit it is against the prejudices or their education and training to seek employment or to engage in any kind of business.

Therefore most of them enter the army while waiting for a rich bride. Daughters of rich brewers and merchants are acceptable to these gentlemen, but their great and persistent dream is to capture an American heiress. They confess the matter frankly to any one and every one who will listen.

Traveling American heiresses are not so plentiful in Germany as in France and Italy; still, they are to be found. It would seem, however, that notwithstanding the fact that German titles are at least a little more valuable than those of the Latin countries they do not possess the same glamour in feminine eyes, because the German title captures the American bag of gold comparatively rarely. Perhaps it is because the Teutonic wooing is more arrogant and supercilious than insinuating.

Of all countries Germany is perhaps that in which romanticism flourishes most. It is instinct in its traditions, in its history and its literature. Yet in the affairs of daily life and pre-eminently in its matrimonial affairs militarism rises to the plane of worship.

NOT HEREDITARY

In the main, consumption is not hereditary; it is infectious. People are too afraid of heredity; better not think of the subject at all. Infection occurs continually.

Low vital force is hereditary; which gives consumption its chance. And infection plants it.

Between the two, the crop is a big one: about one-sixth of the human race, so far as is known.

We suppose it needn't be 5 per cent, if people would take fair care and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

The care saves life in all ways; the emulsion is specially aimed at the lungs, beside its general food-effect.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Toronto, Canada.

A Blind Sale.

An exchange tells of a novel plan adopted by an English hostess to secure funds for a charity in which she was interested. She gave a dance, introducing in the cotillon an auction figure. In this the favors were for sale. A table was spread with them, from which selections were made. After the choice the purchaser found the price affixed on the reverse side. This might be a penny or a pound, the limit of cost, and was set without any regard to the apparent value of the article to which it was attached. The most trifling article perhaps had the topmost mark, and vice versa, making choice so far as price was concerned pure chance.

Philanthropy.

"Yes, sir," said the well dressed man as he stopped to buy a paper from a ragged newsboy and again turned to his companion, "if I had the money, my charities would be boundless."

"Well, come on," said his friend impatiently. "What are you waiting for?"

"Why, I'm waiting for the change from my nickel," answered the philanthropic one in injured tones.

Freedom.

"Have you made any plans for the future?" asked the interviewer.

"Only this," said the young physician who had come into an ample inheritance from a forgotten uncle: "I'm going to spend the first 15 cents of the money in having these side whiskers chopped off."

After Conversion.

"Have you noticed any change in Smithers since he joined the church?"

"Yes. He uses a jointed fishpole instead of the old long one."

"What has that to do with it?"

"Oh, he carries it under his coat when he goes fishing on Sunday."

Future Gladness.

The lambs will soon be skipping on the hills;
Cheer up.
Ere long we'll be receiving icemen's bills;
Cheer up.
A little while and we may cease to pay
To sit with happy maidens at the play,
And then they'll make us thaw some other way;
Cheer up, cheer up, cheer up!

The time for golf is swiftly drawing near;
Cheer up.
The fake strawberry box will soon be here;
Cheer up.
Your weary wife ere long will hie away
To breezy mountain top or placid bay
And there run up new bills for you to pay;
Cheer up, cheer up, cheer up!

A Story Killer.

Briggs—There's one thing I will say for Dumleigh—he's honest. When he quotes one of your bright sayings, he invariably gives you credit.

Griggs—And I wish he wouldn't. He invariably spoils my joke.

One of Many.

"He has gone in for politics, I hear."

"Well, he certainly is interested in the situation in Washington."

"How do you mean? What situation?"

"Any old situation they care to give him there.'

Not Unprecedented.

"Here is a story about a man who worked for 27 years without ever taking a day off."

"Hm! That's nothing. He was probably the proprietor of the establishment."

A Traveler's Opinion.

Mrs. Quizzer (who wants to know everything)—Now, what do you consider to be the most curious thing you ever saw, professor?

Professor Trotter—A woman, madam.—Harlem Life.

Mary's Lamb.

Mary had a little lamb
Possessed of many rocks
And also very much inclined
To deal in railroad stocks

The lambkin down on 'change one day
Was spotted by a bear,
And when he left the pit he was Away up in the air.

Now Mary has no little lamb,
For, having a great head,
She shook him when he lost his fleece
And took the bear instead.

An Unpleasant Prospect.

"Professor Thompson says that electric cars will travel at the rate of 100 miles an hour."

"By gum! It's hard enough to get 'em to stop for a fellow now!"

Incurable.

"The doctor says there's one complaint he can't cure."

"What's that?"

"The one his patients make about their bills."—

An Injustice.

"You do me an injustice, gentlemen," said the star boarder meekly as he reached over and swiped the two last pieces of pie, "when you accuse me of a lack of piety."

Favorable Conditions, Certainly.

Belle—So Maude has accepted Charley! Would you have accepted him if you had been in her place?

Lena—Very likely. She was in his lap at the time.

Extinction.

When two hearts really beat as one,
There reason is to fear.
You know how lovers act! Two heads
Completely disappear.

CONSUMPTION CURED

—BY—

Powley's Liquified Ozone

Mrs. Banks Had Three Hemorrhages of the Lungs—Ozone Gave Her a Permanent Cure.

I was afflicted with bronchial and lung trouble for three years. The disease became firmly seated in my system, and I began to despair of ever being well. I had the best medical advice in the city, and spent a lot of money in medicine. I became a complete wreck, physically, at the end of three years, and at night had to be propped up in bed with pillows so that I could breathe. I had three hemorrhages of the lungs. My system was entirely run down, and I suffered exceedingly from female troubles. A friend of mine living in Muskoka told me to try Ozone, the new system of treatment, as she had been greatly benefited by it. I purchased one bottle, but did not get much relief. At the end of the second bottle I felt much improved, and when I had taken nine bottles I had quite recovered.

My husband did not know that I had taken Ozone, and thought I had stopped the doctoring altogether. He said to me:—"Didn't I tell you that you would get well when you stopped taking medicine?" When I told him about Ozone he was surprised, and thought that it would do his eczema good. He took some, with the result that it cured him.

We are both very thankful for Powley's Liquified Ozone, and consider it the best household remedy to be obtained. I have never yet been troubled with a return of my old complaint, and feel wonderfully well.

(Signed) (Mrs.) IRENA J. BANKS, 787 Queen street west, Toronto.

This case is like that of Mr. Wm. McKay, of Sutton, a most remarkable one. It shows the wonderful power of Powley's Liquified Ozone to create a healthy condition of the blood and tissues, in which diseased germs cannot live. If you know of anyone who has had hemorrhages or consumption draw their attention to these cases. You may be the means of saving life. Write for our Literature; we can interest you.

$1.00 large size bottle, 50c small size. At all druggists. Write the Ozone Co., of Toronto, Limited, 48 Colborne Street, Toronto.

Salves and Ointments.

There is a wide difference between salves and ointments, especially Milburn's Burdock Salve and Milburn's Burdock Ointment.

A salve draws and heals while an ointment soothes and heals.

Below will be found, in two columns, the different classes of diseases or complaints for which they are recommended, so that the casual observer may see at a glance which kind to purchase in case he should require either:

MILBURN'S BURDOCK SALVE.

Has a wide range of usefulness in drawing and healing old Sores, Boils, Abscesses, Ulcers, Scrofula, and all running sores where pus has gathered. Draws and heals as no other salve has ever done before.

It removes pain from a felon in a few hours, and cures in a few days.

Price, Sample Box 10c.; Large Box 25c.

MILBURN'S BURDOCK OINTMENT.

This Ointment is indicated for curing all Itching Skin Diseases such as Scald Head, Eczema or Salt Rheum, Tetter, Erysipelas, Shingles, Ringworm, Piles, Itching Piles, Internal and Bleeding Piles, Granulated Eye-Lids, and all kinds of Itching Skin Diseases.

Price, Sample Box 10c.; Large Box 25c.

In most cases eruptions of the skin are evidences of blood impurity, and while it is necessary to apply Milburn's Burdock Ointment or Milburn's Burdock Salve to relieve the local irritation, it is also of prime importance that the source of the disease in the blood should be reached and the poison completely eliminated from the system.

For this purpose there is no remedy equal to BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, which has cured the very worst cases of impure blood completely and permanently after all other means failed.

A sample of ointment or salve will be sent free on receipt of 2c. stamp for postage. Address, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

$10,000 REWARD

We will give $10,000 in cash to anyone, if they can prove that we have not paid the cash prizes to the parties whose names we advertise, or if they can prove that we ever knew or heard of these parties before they answered our advertisement. We offer this large cash reward in order to convince the public that they will always receive honest treatment from us.

Having outgrown the two buildings which we now occupy, we will remove June 1 to this handsome seven story granite block, which will be devoted entirely to our business. If we did not treat all our contestants fairly, do you think we would have achieved the greatest success made by any firm or individual in the 20th century.

$8450 IN CASH FREE!

The Chance of a Lifetime

Last October, November and December it will be remembered we advertised what was at that time considered one of the biggest contests ever published. The first prize was nothing more or less than an annuity of $300 a year for life. Mrs. L. L. Rich, of Eaton Rapids, Mich., was declared the winner and the following letter from Mrs. Rich speaks for itself:

Eaton Rapids, Mich., Feb. 19th, 1901.

President THE BERNARD-RICHARDS CO., 100 Broad St., Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir—Your letter of the 16th, containing a check for $300, being the first instalment of a life annuity, was received last eve. A more surprised or happier woman I do not believe exists in this little town to-day. I will be sixty years of age the first day of next May. Have been a widow of a soldier of the rebellion for six years, with but a meagre income. Have been unable to obtain a pension, though I believe myself justly entitled to one. Now, my present income, with this annuity, makes me independent and very happy. And I heartily thank you and all connected with the "Brown Book of Boston" for my good luck.

P. O. Box 339. Sincerely, L. L. RICH.

Just stop and think for a moment what a grand prize this was. It means as long as Mrs. Rich lives she will receive from this firm every year on the first day of February $300 in cash.

Now, if you were so foolish as to ignore our previous advertisement, we certainly would advise you not to overlook this one, for without a doubt it is the opportunity of your life, as you have a chance to win Two Thousand Dollars in Cash. We want you to read this over very carefully, for it does not cost you one cent. One of these contests is, we believe, a very hard one, in fact, so hard that it cannot be solved in a minute nor an hour, but it is going to tax your brains and take considerable of your time. However, don't give it up for it can be solved and just think of the reward. We will give $2,000 in Cash for the correct answer.

A	N	C	A	C
N	V	O	T	I
T	C	T	N	A
O	I	R	O	N

In the block square to the left we have printed twenty jumbled letters which we want you to try and arrange. These jumbled letters, when properly arranged, will spell the names of three cities in the world, one city being located in China, one in the United States, and one in North America. In making the names of these three cities, the letters can only be used as many times as they appear, and no letter can be used which does not appear. When you have found the three correct names, you will have used every letter in the twenty as many times as it appears. If you cannot find the three correct names, but find only one, you will receive a special prize worth one dollar. Remember, if you find only one correct name, you will have the same chance to win the second $2000 cash prize mentioned below. We want to distinctly impress upon your mind that there is no trick or catch about the names of these three cities. We do not mention the sections in the respective countries in which these cities are located, nor do we request you to mention that fact in your answer; simply state the country in which the cities are located, not the State or section. We do not require that. If you send in your answer at once we are quite sure you will not be disappointed. Someone is going to win the money and it maybe you. Anyway, it does not cost you any money to try, and if you are a successful contestant there is only one easy condition which will take about one hour of your time, and which we will write you as soon as your answer is received. We would advise you to get out your geography, atlas or encyclopedia, and look for the names of these three cities at once. The correct names are only known to the President of this Company and his private secretary.

The envelope containing the names of these three cities has been sealed and deposited with a leading safe deposit company in Boston, and will not be opened until the day after the contest closes. This, we believe, is the only honest way of conducting a contest, as every one will have an equal chance. In the event of more than one correct answer being received we will request five parties who have answered this advertisement to act as a committee to award the cash pro rata. They will be invited to come to Boston at our expense, and be our guests while in this city. We take this original method of ours of selecting a committee to show our good faith, as we want to treat all in the fairest manner possible. The committee will be selected solely upon their merits from among the contestants ten days before the contest closes, May 20, and in addition to their expenses being paid we will allow each one $5 a day for their time. You may be asked but not compelled to act as one of the committee. The committee who decided our contest on Feb. 1st, were Mrs. Anna C. Boyd, 1019 Terry Ave., Seattle, Washington; Miss Leila E. Cuthbert, 101 Major St., Toronto, Ontario, Canada; Mr. J. M. Conolly, Punta Gorda, Florida, and Mr. C. L. Baker, Bristol, R. I. In addition to the $2000 in cash we will give you an opportunity to win.

FIRST PRIZE $2000 IN CASH FREE!

SECOND PRIZE $1000 IN CASH FREE; THIRD PRIZE $350 IN CASH FREE; FOURTH PRIZE $200 IN CASH FREE.

FIFTY-EIGHT CASH PRIZES OF $50 EACH FREE WITHOUT LABOR OR EXPENSE.

We are going to give to someone who has entered this contest, and who complies with our easy conditions, an opportunity to win and secure from us, without any labor or expense on their part, Two Thousand Dollars in cash. We mean just what we say. If you are the lucky one, and we hope you are, for some one will get it, we will send the winner Two Thousand Dollars in cash. Now, in addition to the cash prizes already mentioned we are going to give away a Second Prize of $1000, a Third Prize of $350, a Fourth Prize of $200 and Fifty-eight Cash Prizes of $50 each in the following manner, and that is we will give to one party residing in each State and Territory of the United States and in each Province of the Dominion of Canada a Cash Prize of $50 each. You have an opportunity to win and secure from us without any labor or one cent of expense on your part, any of the above mentioned cash prizes. There is positively no deception, and as for trickery how can there be when the committee is selected from the contestants, and you yourself might be chosen to decide who the winners are. Do not throw this advertisement aside and say, Oh, pshaw, I have answered puzzles before and got nothing for it, for if you do you will regret it as long as you live, someone will win the money and it may be you; no one can tell. Anyway, it does not cost you one cent, as we do not want any money from you. Are the prizes worth trying for? We think they are, for $2000 in cash will be the means of building you either a pretty little home, or establish you in a comfortable paying business.

Do you know of any firm in the world who have made such liberal offers in such a fair manner? Of course you have no assurance except our word that we are financially able to carry out the promises we make. If you have the least doubt we would be pleased to have you get a special report from either Bradstreet's or Mutual Agencies, our bankers in Boston, or better still, write to the prize winners whose names we publish above. We are a responsible company with a paid up capital of $100,000, composed of well known business men, giving employment to upwards of 160 people, and our sole object in giving away such large cash prizes (something never heard of before) is to advertise our business; and we will leave no stone unturned to accomplish, by honest methods only, our object. Everyone entering this contest will receive honest treatment, and you will have the same chance whether you live in California, Canada or Massachusetts; distance positively makes no difference.

When you have carefully arranged the Jumbled Letters into the three names which you think are right, send your answer to us at once and enclose a stamp for reply. In a few days you will receive an answer telling you whether you are a successful contestant. We will also send you full particulars regarding our other contest whereby you can win for one moment's thought a large cash prize without labor or expense on your part. Do not delay, as this advertisement will not appear in this publication again. Address us this way:

The Bernard-Richards Co., Ltd., 432 Wharf and Broad Streets, Boston, Mass.

MEN AS THEY PASS.

Henry M. Stanley is just 60 and apparently strong enough to try the dark continent again.

Elmer Dover, Senator Hanna's private secretary, began his career as a newspaper writer at 15, when he was a reporter on the McConnellsville (O.) Herald.

Major General MacArthur was saved from a fatal wound at Kenesaw by a package of letters in his breast pocket—neither a Bible nor a pack of cards, just letters.

Michael C. Murphy, New York's new police commissioner, is proudest of the fact that he once was one of the fastest compositors in the city. He belongs to "Big Six" still.

In J. R. Burton, the new senator from Kansas, the long, lank figure of the late Senator Ingalls is repeated. There is also said to be a striking similarity in the face and in manner of speaking.

Marconi, the adapter of wireless telegraphy, is almost as much of an Irishman as an Italian. He is a first cousin of a leading Wexford merchant, his mother having been an Enniscorthy woman.

Senator Lindsay delights in a newly discovered distinction. He laughingly greeted some of his friends the other day with the remark, "A New York paper says this morning that I'm the loudest sneezer in the senate."

President Schwab's weekly wages will exceed the entire year's salary of most New York bank presidents. His colossal annual income is greater than the value of the whole output of iron in the early days of the republic.

Ex-Governor William D. Bloxham of Florida, who has just retired, is the only man who has served his state in the executive chair for two successive terms. It is related of him that he never forgets a face or the name that goes with it.

Cyrus Adams Sulloway, New Hampshire's tall congressman from the First district, who has served through three terms and has been re-elected to the Fifty-seventh congress, has already given formal public notice that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Fifty-eighth congress.

Lord Salisbury has just celebrated his seventy-first birthday. He has lived in three reigns and just missed living in another by being born nine days too late. George IV had just died when he opened his eyes on the splendor of Hatfield House. He has seen seven prime ministers and, with one exception, Lord Rosebery, he is the only man now living who was premier under Queen Victoria.

Senator R. R. Butler of Washington county, Tenn., is the oldest member of the Tennessee legislature in point of service. He is now serving his eleventh session in the senate, and before that he had served six years in the house. Besides this experience in state legislation, Senator Butler served ten years in the national house of representatives. He served in the Union army and was lieutenant colonel of the Thirteenth cavalry.

NERVOUSNESS.

The Nerve System.

When the nerves are deranged the whole system is affected, life and vigor are replaced by weariness and fatigue.

All ambition vanishes and energy is lost.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure Nervousness, Sleeplessness, After Effects of La Grippe, Dizziness, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart.

Miss Edythe Lindsay, of Stromness, Ont., writes under date of Jan. 16th, 1900:

T. MILBURN CO., LIMITED., Toronto.

I suffered two years from nervousness and sleeplessness and was extremely weak. I also had violent palpitation of the heart and was easily startled. I took four boxes of Milburn's Pills, and I am now strong and well. I cannot praise them too highly for nervousness, sleeplessness and heart trouble.

From MRS. JOHNSTON, Coteau, N.W.T., on Dec. 11th, 1900:

I have tried your Heart and Nerve Pills for nervous debility. I felt tired and weary all the time and could not sleep at night. I took three boxes of Milburn's Pills and my nervousness has all disappeared and I can now sleep well and feel like a different person. I can highly recommend your pills.

MR. JAS. D. LANE, of Limehouse, writes on Dec. 3rd, 1900:

A short time ago I was troubled with nervousness and palpitation of the heart. I got a box of Milburn's Pills and they have afforded me so much relief that I take much pleasure in recommending them to all who are troubled with nervousness and heart trouble.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Common baking soda and salt well rubbed into a wound made by the sting of an insect or by the bite of a spider will often give speedy relief. Strong ammonia is also good.

A foreign body in the nose should be sneezed out if possible. Poking is likely to send it farther up in the nostril. Carefully breathe a little pepper or snuff into the nose to induce a hearty sneeze.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Astronomers figure out that the diameter of the earth at the equator varies 3,048 feet, so that our planet is not only flattened at the poles, but slightly squeezed in the middle.

In France aluminium will be made into paper, as sheets one four-thousandth of an inch have been rolled, which will not oxidize and are practically fire and water proof and indestructible by worms.

Radium, the new metal, is an illuminant of great power. Half a pound of it will make an ordinary sized room light as day for a million years. At present the price of the metal is too high for general use. One ounce is worth $1,000.

HAPHAZARD DIETING

Malt Breakfast Food.

Used Every Morning Insures Strength and Vitality.

Many people foolishly diet themselves in a haphazard way, especially at breakfast. For a few mornings oatmeal is used, then cracked wheat, cornmeal and other grain foods are used in turn. These frequent changes indicate that the above-mentioned foods are not sufficiently relished to make any one of them a regular breakfast friend.

Nine hundred and ninety-nine people out of every thousand after once trying Malt Breakfast Food, make it their first dish each morning, and continue to use it. It is relished by young and old because of its delicious flavour and taste; it satisfies the hungry; it is retained on the most delicate stomach, and furnishes a sustaining vitality that no other food can impart. Get a package from your grocer and try it. Twenty-five to thirty meals for 15 cents.

WHERE COLORS COME FROM

Africa Has a Bird Whose Plumage Will Not "Wash."

"The man who devotes his life to the study of color in all its remarkable phases occasionally comes across some queer facts," recently said the senior partner of a well known firm of artists' color men. "The printing of a newspaper color supplement sets thousands of unsuspected toilers in motion. The natural earth of Sienna and Umbria, in Italy, produces the raw colors, and the same material fused the familiar 'burnt sienna' and 'burnt umber.' 'Turkey red' comes from the Indian madder plant. 'Carmine' and the 'lakes' are squeezed cochineal. 'Sepia' is, of course, taken from the cuttlefish. 'Gamboge' is the yellow sap of a Siamese tree. 'Ultramarine' is, or should be, made from the priceless lapis lazuli, while 'prussian blue,' which was stumbled upon by accident, is the burnt product of horses' hoofs and impure potassium carbonate. 'India ink' is made in China, 'blue black' is the charcoal of the vine stalk and 'bister' is made from ordinary wood ashes.

"As you are probably aware, the distinguishing feature of india ink is its refusal to 'run' when subsequently covered with tinted washes. It is what the drapers call a 'fast' color, and for this reason is exclusively employed by engineers, draftsmen and others.

"Most persons imagine that all natural colors, such as those of birds' plumage, are 'fast.' This is erroneous. The well known African touraco (plantain eater) is a case in point. If this bird is caught in a shower of rain, the brilliant crimson found in his plumage will 'run,' leaving the erstwhile crimson feathers a species of dirty white, notwithstanding that his green feathers will remain perfectly 'fast.' Inquiry into this curious 'running' trait reveals a marvelous provision of nature. A careful analysis of the crimson feathers shows that the brilliant coloring is due to the presence of a large quantity of copper."

PAIN IN THE JOINTS

may be muscular or rheumatic The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. RAILWAY CHANGES

That have recently taken place on the G. T. R.

Some changes and promotions have taken place recently on the Midland division of the G.T.R., owing to the retirement of Conductor Riley, of the Belleville Peterborough express. Conductor Dan McMillan, who has been on the Belleville Lindsay and Port Hope Lindsay mixed turn about with Conductor Jack Britton, has been put on to Conductor Riley's late run, and it is possible that Conductor Way, of the Toronto mixed may take the run left vacant by Conductor McMillan. If this change takes place Conductor Bert Kelly of the Belleville Lindsay way freight will be transferred to the Toronto mixed.

IT IS IMPORTANT.

To Know What You are Taking When Using Catarrh Medicines.

Catarrh is the short route to consumption, and the importance of early and judicious treatment of catarrh, whether located in the head, throat or bronchial tubes, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

The list of catarrh cures is as long as the moral law and the forms in which they are administered, numerous and confusing, from sprays, inhalers, washes, ointments, and salves to powders, liquids and tablets.

The tablet form is undoubtedly the most convenient and most effective, but with nearly all advertised catarrh remedies it is almost entirely a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into your system, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, always keep it a close secret as to what they are.

The success and popularity the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, is largely because it not only cures catarrh but because catarrh sufferers who used these tablets know what they are taking into their systems. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being composed of Eucolyptol, Hydrastin, Guaicol and similar valuable and antiseptic ingredients, and are pleasant to the taste and being dissolved in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, usual passages and whole respiratory tract.

The cures that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have accomplished in old chronic cases of catarrh are little short of remarkable, and the advantage of knowing what you are putting into your stomach is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or morphine habit has been frequently contracted as the result of using secret catarrh remedies.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets meet with cordial approval from physicians, because their antiseptic character render them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them a common sense cure for all forms of catarrhal troubles.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full sized packages.

"Red Bird" Headquarters.

The famous "Red Bird" bicycle will have its headquarters in Peterborough this year with Mr. J. W. Young, who has leased the commodious premises centrally situated at No. 144 Hunter street, next to McDonald's drug store. Mr. Young knows the wheel business from the ground up, and stakes his reputation on the "Red Bird" first, last and all the time. Mr. Young will keep fully equipped with the new 20th century "Red Birds," built for ladies, gentlemen and youths. Full lines of bicycle supplies and repairs always on deck. Repair shop and livery in connection. Wheels rented by the day or week. Everybody welcome to inspect and criticize the new 1901 mounts. dtf

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

The Port Hope Guide says: "What is the matter with the Midland League officials? Here we are, with the season almost upon us, and yet no move has been made to call a meeting of the various clubs at Port Hope, as agreed. It would be a serious mistake not to have a league, and surely at least one good man from each town interested, could be present at a meeting to re-organize and draw up a schedule of games. Without a league, baseball will be dead in this district, as exhibition games will not create one-quarter the enthusiasm raised over last year's matches — consequently the falling off of the attendance of spectators, which would practically be a death blow to the club here. If a clever Executive Committee, (composed of honourable men, well versed as to the rules of the game) was appointed, and they drew up a 'stiff' playing constitution, and then forced every club in the league to live up to the rules, there would be no trouble in running a most successful association. Get a galt on, or it will soon be too late, Mr. Baseball Man."

LACROSSE.

Now that the Y.M.C.A. boys are going to take up lacrosse, the prospects for a town league should be bright. The Vaticans have already organized, and if the Peterborough Juniors would get together a number of interesting games would doubtless take place, and a team picked from the three clubs could give an occasional exhibition match with an outside twelve. Cobourg, Lindsay and Port Hope are all in the game this year, and therefore teams could be brought here at small expense.

GOLF.

The ground is fairly dry out at the golf links, and already dozens of enthusiasts have commenced play for the season. The membership of the club promises to be very large this year.

TENNIS.

A meeting of the Y. M. C. A. tennis club was held in the "Y" last night for the purpose of discussing the proposed amalgamation with the Y.M.C.A. Athletic Association. The chair was occupied by Mr. R. F. McWilliams, and Mr. Sandford Hall was secretary of the meeting. It was decided to merge the club into the athletic association, and Messrs. F. D. Kerr and Dr. Andrew Scott were appointed on the committee.

BOXING.

J. J. Smith, of Toronto, won from Jack McDonough last night at the Argonaut boxing tournament in Toronto. Gauthier will wrestle to-night.

STREET TREE PLANTING.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As the season is close upon us for tree transplanting I have been asked to give some hints on the subject, born of my own rather extensive experience in that line.

First dig holes to plant in, about two and a half feet wide by one and a quarter deep, and not less than 50 feet apart. Spade the bottom to cultivate a bed for the roots to rest upon and make friable the earth removed from the holes, discarding stones, weeds and grass, and as soon after as the frost is out of the woods and the ground settled, select your trees healthy and free of blemish, about two inches diameter at the butt, then dig around with a very sharp spade to its full depth about one foot from the trunk, cutting with the spade any intervening roots, then lift the tree strright up from its bed, but don't pry it except just enough to ascertain if it is held by a tap root, in which case cut with spade, which can be inserted by digging back of the circle already cut. When the tree can be lifted perpendicularly with a full ball of earth adhering, then cut the top off down to the length of about eight or nine feet, making a clean cut also of any roots that have been jagged; pack the trees in a waggon box, roots down and close together, in which way they will carry with the natural mould free from the drying effect of sun or wind. On arrival at destination plant immediately loosing the upper soil in doing so and pack the roots with fine soil using the hands only in doing so until the tree is evenly and firmly bedded; about one pail of water can be used to each tree in planting and finish up with dry earth, to prevent the watered earth from baking and sun cracking allowing the air to reach the roots and kill the tree.

If these general rules are followed the tree will not only live but will grow much faster than if not properly transplanted.

Yours truly,
H. T. STRICKLAND,
Member of the A. C. A.

IDEAL MEN.

The March number of "Ideal Men," contains a photogravure of Mr. George H. Williamson, the popular General Secretary of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. The following sketch of the local work is also published:

"The Peterborough Association was never more prosperous. At the end of three years in the new building the work shows that the building is none too large to accommodate the needs of an all-round work. It will be necessary to complete a number of rooms in the basement and in the upper flat before next season. Almost every department of the work has increased during the past year. A new feature is the serving of refreshments at cost to the members on three evenings each week. The enterprise is meeting with much encouragement, and is greatly appreciated by the members. The citizens recognize as they never did before, the efficiency and permanency of the work, and contributions have been secured to meet the needs of the annual budget."

HOME INDUSTRIES ARE FIRST.

Railways Receiving Aid From Ontario Must Purchase Rails in Canada.

The Ontario Government is bound to not only develop our natural resources, but to see that Canada is made as far as possible a self contained country. In the Local Legislature on Thursday, Hon. F. R. Latchford introduced a rather important amendment to his Act respecting railways providing that the railways aided by the Government, as a condition of that aid, must purchase their steel rails from Dominion firms, provided that such rails could not be procured cheaper, freight included, in the markets of Great Britain and the United States.

BOER CASE OF MULES.

Has Bottom and Sides Kicked Out of It by a U. S. Judge.

EX-PRESIDENT STEYN'S ADVICE.

Attempt to Stab Mr. Kruger—Former President of Former Orange Free State Is Ill and Tells Commandoes to Surrender Immediately—Invaders Badly Defeated—Ninety Boers Killed.

New Orleans, La., April 15.—Judge Parlange in the United States Superior Court on Saturday handed down decision dismissing suit for injunction brought by Boer representatives with a view to preventing the shipment of mules and horses out of New Orleans to the British army in South Africa.

Judge Parlange holds that the transactions between citizens of the United States and the British Government were conducted under the color of private citizenship, and that the courts had absolutely no jurisdiction to interfere. The horses and mules, the court said, were bought in a neutral territory.

Judge Parlange continues: "If the complainants could be heard to assert here rights personal to themselves in the treaty invaded, and seeing the mules and horses involved in this case, and munitions of war, all of which is disputed by the defendants, it would become necessary to determine whether the United States intended by the declaration of the treaty (of Washington, May 8, 1871) to subvert the well-established principle of international law that the private citizens of a neutral nation can lawfully sell supplies to belligerents.

"It is almost impossible to suppose, a priori, that the United States would have done so, and would have thus provided for the most serious and extensive derangement of and injury to the commerce of our citizens, whenever two or more foreign nations should go to war, and would seem that there is nothing in the treaty, especially when its history and purports are considered, which would warrant that the United States insisted upon inserting therein a new principle of international law from which the greatest damage might result to the commerce of the country, and which was absolutely different from and antagonistic to the rule and policy which the Government of this country has heretofore strenuously and invariably followed.

"The principle that neutral citizens may lawfully sell to belligerents has long since been settled in this country by the highest judicial authorities."

Ex-President Steyn's Advice.

Bloemfontein, April 14.—It is reported that the health of former President Steyn has broken down. It is also said that he has advised all Boers on commando to surrender immediately.

Martimus Theunis Steyn is ex-president of the Orange Free State. He is 54 years of age, and was born in Orange Free State. He received his education at Bloemfontein and in Holland. Afterwards he was called to the English bar (Inner Temple) and practised law in Bloemfontein. He won honor in his profession, and was raised to the bench. In 1896 he became President of the Orange Free State. He has been intimately connected with the Transvaal war, and it was his defection of the Orange Free State that has augmented the tussle in South Africa.

Invaders Badly Defeated.

New York, April 15.—A Cape Town despatch to The Sun says: Midland farmers assert that 90 Boers were killed in the recent engagement at Jansenville. It is said this is the most crushing blow the Boer invaders have yet received.

Attempt to Stab Mr. Kruger.

Paris, April 15.—(5.40 a.m.)—L'Estafetta publishes a report that an attempt was made to stab Mr. Kruger.

Bubonic Not Increasing.

Cape Town, April 14.—There is no increase in the progress of the bubonic plague here, although there is an average of five cases daily. Since the outbreak, 392 cases have been officially reported, of which 153 have proved fatal.

New Guns For Jamaica.

Kingston, Jamaica, April 15.—The British War Office has decided to strengthen the fortifications of Jamaica. Quick firing guns of the latest pattern are being sent out, in addition to the heavy guns recently placed in the forts about Port Royal.

The disappearance of yellow fever from Port Royal is officially announced.

The direct fruit line to Bristol is now in full swing and the fruit is finding ready sale in England.

Accident on the New Bridge.

Ottawa, April 15.—The first accident on the new inter-Provincial bridge occurred yesterday afternoon. The carriage in which A. Lahaise, furniture manufacturer, and his wife, were driving, came to grief through the horse becoming unmanageable at the sight of a construction train. Mrs. Lahaise was probably fatally hurt. The bridge was crowded with sightseers at the time, and scores had a miraculous escape from injury.

No Work and no Money.

London, April 15.—The correspondent of The Daily Chronicle at Rome says that the emigration of Italians to Canada lately has been considerable. The Italian Consul at Montreal telegraphs that there is a large number of immigrants there, without work and without resources, and he asks the Italian Government to take steps to prevent such an exodus in the future.

The Guns From Africa.

Quebec, April 15.—The staff at the Dominion Arsenal in Quebec are working full time overhauling the guns which were recently brought back from South Africa, and expect to have them ready for the field battery camp to be held at Deseronto in the early part of June. One battery will be finished next week, and those already repaired are reported to look as good as new.

Twenty Cattle Cremated.

Port Stanley, Ont., April 15.—A serious fire occurred at the farm of Mr. Albert Goodhue, about half a mile north of this place, at 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning. In some unknown way fire started, and in a short time his entire barns and outbuildings were in ashes. The fire was discovered by Mr. Goodhue in the cattle stable, but as the wind was blowing strong and the fire had such headway, 20 head of fat cattle were burned before any could be got out. Mr. Goodhue was fortunate to get all his horses out, with the exception of a fine yearling colt, which he had recently purchased. In the barns, of which a new addition of 40 feet had just been completed last night, were his farm implements, wagons, buggies, etc., and over a thousand bushels of corn, all of which were destroyed.

A TALK WITH LI HUNG CHANG.

Japan Continues Her War Preparations, and Still Seems to Think a Conflict With Russia Is Inevitable—Corea Is Preparing for a Possible Invasion by Japan—Corea's Defences.

Berlin, April 15.—From a German authoritative source it is learned that the Chinese indemnities for war expenses, exclusive of the claims of individuals and missions, have been fixed as follows:

Russia, 360,000,000 marks (about $90,000,000); France, 260,000,000 marks (about $65,000,000); Germany, 240,000,000 marks (about $60,000,000); England, 90,000,000 marks (about $22,000,000). France will also present claims for the indemnity of the Italian mission.

Talk With Li Hung Chang.

Pekin, April 13.—Speaking to-day, Li Hung Chang said to a correspondent, with reference to the American China Development Company of New York, selling out the railway concession from Hankow to Canton, that he thought they acted unscrupulously in bartering a concession granted to them as Americans, to foreigners. The new purchasers, he was informed were Belgians and others, probably French. He did not believe it was a Russian move to obtain the entire line from Pekin to Canton.

He said that he thought that Russia was not unfriendly to China and that the occupation of Manchuria was merely a present necessity to guard the railroad. It was no more than any other power would do under the circumstances.

Upon the correspondent asking when the Emperor would return, he replied not until the troops had left. He said the delay in the peace negotiations was due to the everlasting petty disagreements of the various powers among themselves. When the correspondent suggested that the Emperor was doubtless quite willing to return, but the Empress feared that, once he assumed power, her power would be forever ended, Li replied, "That's it exactly."

Prince Ching Complains.

Pekin, April 14.—Prince Ching says all his reports go to show that the missionary statements regarding a rebellion in Mongolia are not supported by facts, neither does he believe that the rebellion of General Tung Fu Hsiang amounts to much.

Still Expect War.

Pekin, April 14.—The preparations which the Japanese here are making for an early start indicate that they still expect war between Russia and Japan. Vessels arriving at Taku from Nagasake report the mobilization of the Japanese fleet and the continuance of preparations on board ship for the anticipated struggle.

Lay Mines at Port Arthur.

London, April 15.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's organ, The Birmingham Post, learns that the Russian Ministers of War and Marine have issued joint orders for the laying of an extensive system of submarine mines at Port Arthur, Vladivostock and elsewhere in those seas. The apparatus leaves Odessa early in May.

Corea Is Preparing.

London, April 15.—The Government of Corea, according to a despatch to The Daily Mail from St. Petersburg, has decided to build 32 coast fortresses to resist a possible Japanese invasion.

To Fight to a Finish.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 15.—National President Uhler of the Marine Engineers' Association returned here on Saturday from a trip around the lakes in the interest of the pending strike of the members of his organization. "I found everything most satisfactory at all ports visited," said Mr. Uhler. "Not to exceed eight or ten boats have been fitted out, and not one of our members has gone to work. In my experience I have never before found the men so unanimous and determined to fight to a finish."

To Be Under Surgeon's Knife.

Antwerp, April 15.—Dowager-Queen Emma, who has been seriously ill for some time, is about to undergo an operation for the removal of an internal tumor. It is said the royal physicians at The Hague think the operation will not be attended with much danger.

About 10 per cent. of the seeding is done in the Province of Manitoba. The acreage will be about 15 per cent. greater than last year.

GEO. A. WINTON'S JOB.

Swindler Operates Successfully at Two Toronto Banks.

CRIMINAL IS YET AT LARGE.

Canadian Bank of Commerce and Imperial Bank Robbed of Amounts Aggregating $5,355 by a Clever Raising of Cheques of Small Denominations—What the Police Have to Work On.

Toronto, April 15.—Considerable excitement was occasioned in police circles late on Saturday night, when it became known that two Toronto banks haa been victimized to the extant of $5,245 by a slick individual, of whom little is known except that he went by the name of G. A. Winton. The money was secured by means of the old but effective method of raising the cheques after they had been marked by the ledgerkeepers at the two banking institutions. The cheques, which are now in the hands of the local police, bear evidence of having come in contact with some powerful chemicals, which it is believed the man used in altering their face value. The robberies are the most extensive that have been perpetrated in Toronto for some time, and the local detectives are of the opinion that the man who worked the game so successfully is a clever swindler aad not by any means new at the business.

Since a similar robbery has taken place in Toronto nearly 20 years have elapsed, and when the reports were received on Saturday night the detectives were surprised to learn that any person was bold enough to resort to the old method of bank robbery.

According to the information in the possession of the police, the man struck this city last Thursday, and went at once to the head offices of the Imperial Bank at the corner of Leader lane and Wellington street and the Bank of Commerce at Jordan and King streets, where he opened savings accounts at both places. He gave the name of G. A. Winton at each institution, and said he had just come from St. John, N. B., to this city to manage the Ontario branch of the business of the Welland Vale Cycle Co., with offices at 70 West King street. No further questions were asked of the man because he had every appearance of being all that he represented himself to be.

He turned up at the office of the Imperial Bank about 11 o'clock last Thursday morning, and after opening the account handed in ten five-dollar bills, which were placed to his credit. At the Bank of Commerce the same day he deposited $20, and on Friday handed in $50 more, making in all $70 to his credit at that institution. Later in the day, however, he turned up again at the Bank of Commerce and presented a cheque for $10, which he cashed. The withdrawal of this amount, the police say, was the first move in the game, as the man made it a point to become acquainted with the paying-teller, so that he would not be asked to be identified before receiving the cash in return for the large cheque he intended to present the following day.

At the Imperial Bank the man had but one transaction, that of the first deposit, and took the chances of having to become identified. The robberies were committed between 12 and 1 o'clock on Saturday, when the banking institutions were crowded with representatives of firms, who were arranging for the payment of their employes. The bank officials were so engrossed with the work that they did not notice anything wrong, and paid the amount of the cheques in the usual way. The man is believed to have visited the Imperial Bank first about 11 o'clock, and then returned with the raised cheque a little after the noon hour. The man presented a cheque for $10 to t ledgerkeeper, and had it duly certified. When this was accomplished, it is believed he went out to some place where he would not be seen, and with the use of two kinds of chemicals rubbed out the amount ten dollars, and inserted two thousand, four hundred and fifty-five dollars. This done, he returned to the bank and handed it to the paying teller, who gave him the amount of the cheque. The amount was made up of 24 $100 bills, one $50 and one $5 bill.

From the Imperial Bank the man is believed to have gone to the Bank of Commerce, and to have written out a cheque for $20 in full view of the ledgerkeeper of the savings department, where he had his account. The cheque was duly marked by the official and handed back to the customer. The latter then, it is said, left the institution, and returned with the cheque which a short time before called for $20 changed to $2,900. The cheque was in due course presented to Paying Teller Kelly, who gave in return 29 $100 bills. The man then departed.

The robbery at the Imperial Bank was not discovered till between 7 and 8 o'clock, and it would not have been found out for several days had not the clerks been working after hours preparing for the semi-monthly balance, which is always made on the 15th. When the fraud was found out the officials communicated with the Detective Department, and Detective Black was sent down to the institution to make an investigation.

All day yesterday the whole detective force was out scouring the city for the man who robbed the banking institutions, but as yet no arrest has been made. Bank officials say he is about 25 years of age, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches in height, and of fair complexion. He wore a light fedora hat and dark sacque suit.

Frank R. Hummel Killed.

Tottenham, Ont., April 15.—Frank R. Hummel, a quiet, industrious young man, was instantly killed Saturday afternoon while taking down a barn on the farm of Thomas Abernethy, a few miles from here. He fell from the building and his head was crushed between a falling beam and a large stone. His remains were brought to Tottenham, and will be taken to Berlin to-day.

Identified as G. A. Waters.

Ottawa, April 15.—The unknown man who suicided in Hull Saturday was George A. Waters, a brother of John Francis Waters of the Secretary of State Department.

Consumption.

One of the best ways to cure disease is to prevent it. That's the best way to cure consumption, and you can prevent that disease with Powley's Liquified Ozone. It is splendid for the least throat or lung trouble. However, if you have lung trouble of an advanced type like Wm. McKay of Sutton, who was cured by Powley's Liquified Ozone after he had been given up to die, take the preparation—the condensed oxygen kills the germs and builds up the system. Write us for detail and procure a bottle. It does not cost much.

Catarrh

The best authorities say, is a disease of the blood.

Therefore local applications cannot cure.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

By thoroughly purifying the blood, this great medicine reduces the inflammation of the mucous membrane and stops all catarrhal discharges of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, bladder and generative organs.

Catarrh is especially dangerous in persons who inherit or have acquired a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength and vigor that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and the peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the common-sense treatment for catarrh.

"I was a sufferer from nasal catarrh, gradually growing worse. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla which completely cured me of that troublesome disease." MAUD DOAN, 1615 Arrow Ave., Indianapolis, Ind. Be sure to get Winnipeg, April 15.—A. D. Cameron, member of the legal firm of Phillip & Cameron, formerly Sifton, Phillip & Cameron, dropped dead at Brandon yesterday.

SALVATIONISTS TOO STRONG.

Strange Reason Given For Attempts on Life of Gen. Booth.

London, April 15.—The attempt on the life of General Booth of the Salvation Army while in Sweden was caused by the hostility of a section of the people, who think the Salvationists are getting too strong a hold on the royal family.

From Prince Bernadotte's frequent attendance at the army meetings the report is circulated that he has joined the Salvation Army. While this is untrue, it is a fact that the King and other royalists showed great favor to General Booth, and stirred bitter feelings in many classes.

Threats having been made, the Salvationists are guarded. While the General was at Gefle Railway station an assassin made a dash at him, but was caught in time by the police.

SETTLED PART OF THE TROUBLE.

Jersey Central Engineers and Firemen Get Increased Wages.

New York, April 15.—It was announced by officials of the Central Railroad of New Jersey Saturday evening that the company had come to an agreement with its engineers and firemen. The conference which brought about this result was held between representatives of the road, General Superintendent Ilhausen and Division Superintendent Wentz. The wages of the engineers and firemen were increased, but the telegraphers and train hands did not fare so well. The former were told that they will be treated as liberally as their fellow-workers in the employ of other roads aad the trainhands are to have another conference with the officials.

Great Fire at Boston.

Boston, Mass., April 15.—The main building of the extensive blower works of the B. F. Sturtevant Company, in the Jamaica Plain district, was burned early yesterday morninb, causing a loss of $350,000, fully insured. The concern manufactured various kinds of machinery and electrical goods, as well as blowers. All patterns and plans were destroyed. Over 700 men are thrown out of work.

Shutting Out the Chinese.

Victoria, B. C., April 15. — The Chinese woman, Fong Yuk, who was detained by the customs authorities on her arrival here on the Empress of Japan, on the ground that she was of unsavory reputation, must go back to China. This decision was given by Mr. Justice Walkem in connection with habeas corpus proceedings in the Supreme Court, which have been attracting considerable interest during the past few days. Authorities are enforcing regulations more stringently than ever to keep out Chinese and Japanese, in fact, the former race is entirely excluded by the Provincial Immigration Act, which provides educational test.

Loss of Appetite.

A person that has lost appetite has lost something besides—vitality, vigour, tone.

The way to recover appetite and all that goes with it is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla—that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion and makes eating a pleasure.

Thousands take it for spring loss of appetite and everybody says there's nothing else so good as Hood's.

ARMY WILL EAT BRITISH BEEF.

War Office Will Try the Experiment of Supplying the Army With the Home-Grown Article.

London, April 13.—The British War Office confirms the report that it is going to try the experiment of supplying the army with only home-grown beef. The experiment will extend for six months from June 1.

The director of contracts, a major, said yesterday: "The new rule applies only to refrigerated beef hitherto bought in the open market in London. It will not seriously affect the American trade, as the total weekly supply for the army is only 200,000 pounds, which is barely 2 per cent. of the weekly imports of refrigerated beef into England from the United States. Mr. Brodrick's action was taken long before the New Orleans proceedings. It is quite absurd to suppose that any idea of retaliation prompted the order, which was due to a natural desire to help some of the industries. The difference in price is very trifling, and we are making that up by giving Tommy Atkins frozen mutton two days instead of one day weekly. If the plan is satisfactory, our supply problem will be greatly simplified, for we often have complaints and disagreements over refrigerated beef. You must not suppose that we now use no home grown beef. Aldershot and some of our other camps are almost entirely supplied with home-grown beef. We have hitherto used refrigerated beef as an addition to our rations rather than as an integral part. We have no prejudice against American firms and we do not believe they will miss this trade to any extent, even if it is decided to continue the experiment.

They Want to Know.

Washington, April 13.—Secretary Hay has cabled to Ambassador Choate an inquiry into the reason for the order of the British Government, a measure which excludes the American refrigerated beef hitherto used. This action is taken at the instance of the Department of Agriculture.

Boom for Canada.

Toronto, April 13.—At the cattle market yesterday the Imperial Government's action was a source of much discussion. The idea was prevalent that Canada would benefit from the action. The result would be that "stockers" would no longer be exported to the United States to be fattened there, and then shipped to England. Canada's trade in cattle will be greatly stimulated.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lisbon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew wore daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha, said I had Consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles." Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by Jas. Lynch. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Women Used Daggers.

Seville, Spain, April 15.—The strikers from the cork works, accompanied by their women folk, attacked the factory Saturday morning and with drawn daggers forced the workers to cease their tasks.

Trial on Wednesday.

Belleville, April 15.—William E. Green, who was committed for trial at Sterling on a charge of seduction, has been brought to the county jail. He gave bail to appear for trial on Wednesday next.

MATRON AND MAID.

The Empress Eugenie is in much better health and looks to a summer in her yacht on the Mediterranean.

In a few weeks Mrs. McKinley's annual delight will begin with the early budding out of her White House flower garden.

Calve persists in warning young girls that a quiet domestic life will afford them more true joy than any stage celebrity feels, even herself.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis has completely recovered from her recent severe illness and, her friends announce, has regained all her former vigor and energy.

Mrs. Mary Wardell has retired as organist of the Greenwood Baptist church, Brooklyn, after serving continuously for 30 years. Mrs. Wardell retires that she may have more time to devote to temperance work.

Mme. Modjeska has received word from Poland that the political charges against her have been withdrawn and that she may return home. Several years ago she lectured in Poland on "Personal Freedom," and an edict for her banishment was the result. It is said she will pay a visit to her native land soon.

Frau Hedwig Heyl has started a cooking school for doctors in Berlin. More than a hundred prominent physicians from France, Russia and Italy, as well as Germany, have already taken the course, and it is reported that branch schools of the same kind are shortly to be established in all the capitals of Europe.

Miss Kate Miller of Fredericksburg, Pa., is said to be the oldest "factory girl" in the United States. She has passed her eighty-first birthday and is described as still vigorous and capable of doing as much work as women 60 years younger. She has seldom missed a day from work in the factory where she has been employed for more than 20 years.

The widow of General Nathaniel P. Banks, who died recently at Waltham, Mass., aged 81 years, was long known as "the factory girl who danced with the Prince of Wales." She and her famous husband both began life in a cotton mill. When the prince visited Boston in 1861, a ball was given in his honor, and Mrs. Banks, then a very beautiful woman, was his partner in a number of dances.

THE PEDAGOGUE.

The old grammar school at Lichfield, England, which is associated with Dr. Johnson's early education, is to be removed to a better site.

The only American university providing its students with a course of lectures on poetry is Johns Hopkins. Hamilton Mabie, who has become the best all around literary man we have, is the lecturer there this spring.

"Prejudice against college students is dying out. Ten years ago they were received with disfavor by business men. Today they find the commercial world glad to receive them." So says Superintendent Cooley of the Chicago public schools.

Max Muller's successor in the chair of comparative philology at Oxford is Dr. Joseph Wright, the very up to date scholar who is using phonographs to collect specimens of English pronunciation. These he expects first to avail himself of for his great English dictionary and then to store them away for the benefit of posterity.

When Dr. Eliot became president of Harvard, the university was 233 years old, but during the period since then, constituting slightly over one-ninth of the period since its founding, the invested funds of the university have been multiplied nearly five times, the number of students nearly four times and the number of instructors nearly ten times.

COUNTERFEITS.

The following simple rules, laid down by a bank note examiner, will be found of service in the detection of counterfeits:

First.—Examine the form and features of all human figures. If graceful and features distinct, examine the drapery. Notice whether the folds lie naturally and observe whether the fine strands of the hair are plain and distinct.

Second.—Examine the lettering. In a genuine bill it is absolutely perfect. There has never been a counterfeit put out but was more or less defective in the lettering.

Third.—Counterfeiters rarely if ever get the imprint or engraver's name correct. The shading in the background of the vignette and over and around the letters forming the name of the bank on a good bill is even and perfect; on a counterfeit it is uneven and imperfect.

Fourth.—The die work around the figures of the denomination should be of the same character as the ornamental work surrounding it.

Fifth.—Never take a bill deficient in any of these points.

LEATHER NOVELTIES.

Rich reddish brown leather pocketbooks are handsomely mounted in gold.

A new finish in fine leathers, such as shown in cardcases and similar goods, includes a marbleized effect in gray and in some other colors.

The single pearl, diamond or turquoise button for the flap of the finger purse and pocketbook continues to be a dainty and elegant fashion which has not destroyed itself by becoming too popular.

Jeweling of leather wares employs about the same stones as heretofore, with baroque pearls in high favor. An enameled portrait medallion encircled with pearls is one of the rarer decorations of a cardcase.

Heavy silver embossed work, delicate open traceries in silver or gilt, huge monograms that sprawl nearly across one side of the case or pocketbook and plain, bright silver rims represent some of the ornamental mountings of cardcases or pocketbooks.

MEN'S UNDERWEAR.

The Port Hope Knitting Works are showing this week a very attractive line of men's spring underwear. Their balbriggan shirts and drawers at 25c. and natural wool at 50c are exceedingly good value. Also other lines from cotton to silk at 25c, 35c, 50c, 75c, $1.00, etc. Be sure and call and see them.

INDIFFERENT LINGUISTS.

Faculty Possessed by Americans For Spreading English.

"The average American is a poor linguist," said a customs official who speaks several modern languages correctly and sometimes acts as interpreter. "It doesn't 'come natural' to us, as it does to the Latin races and to most Germans. They will pick up other tongues with an ease and facility that are perfectly amazing, but as a usual thing an American has to be absolutely driven to it before he will make the attempt.

"I had that fact forcibly impressed upon my mind during a visit I made to old Mexico early last spring. One would say, at first blush, that a knowledge of Spanish would be simply indispensable to anybody who proposed to reside in the City of Mexico, especially with the intention of going into business, yet I found any number of Americans there who managed to get along without it and who declared frankly that it was too much trouble to acquire. These easy going gentlemen simply insisted on using English, regardless of the fact that Castilian was the current language of the country. When they entered a store or restaurant they would say, 'Send along somebody who talks United States,' and then wait placidly for the interpreter to appear. Of course they were badly handicapped in the transaction of all their affairs, but they insisted laughingly that the annoyance was preferable to learning Spanish and that they would eventually succeed in making the Mexicans discard their native lingo. This systematic forcing of one's language upon people is characteristic of Americans," continued the custom house official, "and is no doubt responsible for the rapid spread of English as a business medium in all the great foreign capitals.

"It goes without saying, however, that there are Americans who are linguists, and, as a matter of fact, the most remarkable linguist I ever met in my life was a man named Scott, who was born in Montgomery, Ala. He was educated abroad and spoke four or five continental languages, but his really phenomenal achievement was his complete mastery of French and German. He could converse in both without a trace of accent, was perfectly familiar with their slang and colloquialisms and could pass unsuspected for a native of either country. You often read of people speaking a foreign tongue 'without accent,' but, believe me, it is one of the rarest things in the world, while to learn two with such precision is next door to a miracle. I never heard of a parallel case. Picking up a working knowledge of a language is a horse of quite another color. It can be done by anybody in about the same length of time it takes to learn shorthand. How long is that, did you ask? Well, that depends on the individual and ranges between three months and 20 years."

Why We Eat Oysters Raw.

Dr. William Roberts in his interesting lectures on the digestive ferments writes: "Our practice in regard to the oyster is quite exceptional and furnishes a striking example of the general correctness of the popular judgment on dietetic questions. The oyster is almost the only animal substance which we eat habitually and by preference in the raw or uncooked state, and it is interesting to know that there is a sound physiological reason at the bottom of this preference.

"The fawn colored mass which constitutes the dainty of the oyster is its liver, and this is little less than a heap of glycogen. Associated with the glycogen, but withheld from actual contact with it during life, is its appropriate digestive ferment, the hepatic diastase. The mere crushing of the dainty between the teeth brings these two bodies together, and the glycogen is at once digested without other help by its own diastase.

"The oyster in the uncooked state or merely warmed is, in fact, self digestive. But the advantage of this provision is wholly lost by cooking, for the heat immediately destroys the associated ferment, and a cooked oyster has to be digested, like any other food, by the eater's own digestive powers."

WAVES OF WATER.

The Hudson river from its mouth to the lakes is 400 miles in length.

The Ganges is nearly 1,600 miles in length and drains an area of 750,000 square miles.

Lake Nicaragua is the largest fresh water lake between Lake Michigan and Lake Titicaca, in Peru.

THE POLAR BEAR.

He Is a Rank Coward When Brought Face to Face With Men.

The character of the polar bear is a curious mixture of cowardice and daring, for it will fly at the sight of man, but will often come close up to the huts and sometimes even try to enter them.

When met with in the water, bears are killed with harpoons. On receiving the first wound the animal utters loud roars, seizes the weapon with its teeth, pulls it out of the injured part and hurls it far away. Sometimes, but by no means invariably, it will turn upon its assailant. Quickly it receives another spear, or bird arrow, from a second kayak man, against whom it turns after treating his weapon in the same manner and sometimes breaking it, and in this way the struggle is continued until the bear is overcome. The most important precautionary rule which the hunters have to observe is, when during the fight the animal has dived, to keep a sharp lookout down into the water in order that it may not come up unawares right under a kayak. Its white gleam can always be seen when it approaches the surface, and there is time to get away if it be coming too near. When a bear is encountered in the water or amid somewhat scattered ice, its capture is considered a certainty, for, although an excellent swimmer, it cannot get away from a kayak. In the northern colonies, where they are seldom seen, the Greenlanders appear to be afraid of them, but such is far from being the case in the Julianshaab district, where, in the water, at any rate, they are considered as much less dangerous than the walrus or the hooded seal.

The food of bears consists mainly of seals, which, however, they cannot seize in the water, but only when lying on shore or on ice, but as the seal, when in such positions, is extremely watchful and wary, the stalk is often fruitless, and the bear is obliged more frequently than suits it to depart with an empty stomach. Carrion they take at any time. In summer they rob birds' nests of eggs and young ones, and appear to be partial also to berries. Probably, too, they live upon sea fowl, seizing them from below while resting on the water. According to Brehm, their ordinary food is fish, and they even capture salmon in the sea. This, however, I have never had confirmed by the Greenlanders, who all consider that the bear's powers of swimming would not be equal to it. According to the same authority, neither reindeer, foxes nor birds are safe from the polar bear, but this, I think, is a mistake. Nature has intended that it should seek its prey in the water and on the ice rather than on the land.

When really hungry, there are few things which a bear will reject, down to old skin garments and tarred ropes ends, which may sometimes be found in its stomach. It is under such circumstances that it ventures close to the huts and devours whatever it can find, sometimes even attempting to enter. In the winter of 1896-7 a bear was shot at Godhaven, with the whole of the fore part of the body in an oil cask, which it was licking. In the Julianshaab district it is not unusual for these animals to visit the Greenlanders' provision stores, where they keep their dried seals' flesh, etc., tear the stones away from the entrance and clear the place completely out.

Assist Nature.

You have been told to "hitch your wagon to a star"—that Nature will assist you. That's all right. There are times, however, when you should assist Nature, and the spring is one of these times.

Nature is now undertaking to cleanse your system—if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla the undertaking will be successful, and your complexion bright and clear.

Mr. McLagan's Funeral.

The Merchant of Venice.

The local amateurs having in charge the above named drama have decided to change the date of presentation to Thursday, April 25th, in order not to conflict with the fortnightly concert of the 57th Regt. Band, and in order that they may secure the services of the Philharmonic Orchestra for the occasion. The plan is now open at Lynch's drug store, and the tickets are placed at 75c., reserved seats 35c. Proceeds will be devoted to a local charitable institution. 1d

Dragged by the Foot.

David White was driving a team of horses through Burnley the other day when they took fright and ran away. The horses broke away from the sleigh and the driver was thrown to the ground. The lines were wound around his feet and as the horses ran down the road Mr. White was dragged over the rough surface of the ground for a quarter of a mile, when the animals were stopped. White escaped with a few bruises, but nearly all of his clothes were torn off by coming in contact with the rough boulders in the road.

"Red Bird" Headquarters.

The famous "Red Bird" bicycle will have its headquarters in Peterborough this year with Mr. J. W. Young, who has leased the commodious premises centrally situated at No. 144 Hunter street, next to McDonald's drug store. Mr. Young knows the wheel business from the ground up, and stakes his reputation on the "Red Bird" first, last and all the time. Mr. Young will keep fully equipped with the new 20th century "Red Birds," built for ladies, gentlemen and youths. Full lines of bicycle supplies and repairs always on deck. Repair shop and livery in connection. Wheels rented by the day or week. Everybody welcome to inspect and criticize the new 1901 mounts. dtf

WITH MILITARY HONOURS.

The Late Ernest McCabe Laid at Rest Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral of the late Ernest McCabe took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late residence, No. 20 Division street, to Little Lake cemetery. It was of a military character, and was also largely attended by many of Peterborough's leading citizens.

The military arrangements in connection with the funeral were in charge of No. 1 Company, 57th Regt., in command of Capt. W. Harold Cluxton and Lieut. R. E. Layfield. No. 1 Company was, of course augmented by a number of members of other companies, and the total strength, including the band, was 73. The arrangements were carried out with great precision. Promptly at the specified time the militia left the drill shed and marched to the family residence of the deceased. The services at the house and at the grave were conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, chaplain 57th Regt. The firing party numbered 19 men, and in charge of Col-Sergt. Mulligan, headed the procession, followed by the band playing the Dead March in Saul. The bearers marched three on each side of the hearse. They were Col.-Sergts. Edwards and Cottrell, and Sergts. Smyth, Sturgeon, Batten and Campbell. The remaining members of the company followed the hearse as mourners.

At the grave the ceremony was most impressive. Sgt. Trumpeter Goldey, of the 3rd Dragoons, blew retreat, followed by a volley from the firing party. "First Post" was followed by another volley, then "Last Post," followed by the third and last volley. "Lights Out" was then blown, and the band played a short hymn.

Upon the return to the drill shed, and before the men had been dismissed, Capt. Cluxton addressed a few words to the men, in which he thanked the members of No. 1 Company for the excellent turn-out, and the members of other companies also on parade. He also thanked Sergt.-Major Britton for his assistance, and also the band.

Altogether the turn-out of the Regiment was most creditable.

DIED IN OTONABEE.

One of the Oldest Residents Passes away in the Person of Mrs. Samuel Sargeant.

An old and most highly respected resident of Otonabee township passed away at an early hour this morning in the person of Ellen Johnston, wife of Mr. Samuel Sargeant, sr.

The deceased was 78 years of age at the time of her death, and was a native of County Fermanagh, Ireland, from where she came to Canada about 1843, living at first in Cavan township, and then going to the United States for a short period, only to return again to Cavan. In June, 1858, the deceased went to live in Otonabee, marrying Mr. Samuel Sargeant of that township.

Mrs. Sargeant was a member of the Salem Methodist church, and during her long residence in Otonabee won and held the love and esteem of the entire neighbourhood. She leaves five children, viz., Mrs. H. S. Armstrong, of Souris, Man.; John of Cavan; Thomas, Samuel and William of Otonabee,

The funeral will take place from the family residence, lot 28, con. 10, Otonabee, on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in the Little Lake cemetery.

CEREAL PEOPLE HERE

Engineers Looking Over the Ground and Drawing up the Plans.

Ground to be Broken for the Works Within the Next few Weeks—Fall Grain Trade to be Handled.

Mr. Stuart, of the American Cereal Co., Chicago, is in town with a corps of office men and engineers, and his statement will be received with a great deal of pleasure to the effect that it is only a matter of a few weeks now before ground will be broken for the establishment of the big Canadian branch in Peterborough.

Plans and specifications are all well under way, and doubtless the awarding of the different contracts will be announced in the very near future. Although the entire works may not be in full running order by the fall, yet it is understood that the Company considers it imperative to have the large elevators completed in their entirety in order that the fall trade in grain may be handled, and the raw material be ready for the machinery as soon as it has been placed in position. Business circles will see a big boom evidently beginning with the fall trade.

Hon. Senator Cox is expected to arrive from Ottawa this evening, and will assist in the deliberations.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Steel, of Edinburgh, Scotland, is in town the guest of Mr. G. K. Throope, 78 Ware street.

Capt. Hazen Ritchie was up from Montreal for Sunday.

Miss Stothart, of Toronto, has been the guest of Miss Pearl Lundy for the past few days.

Mr. F. J. R. Mitchell, is able to be out again after a week's illness. He was suffering from an attack of grippe.

Mrs. C. Thomas, of Birmingham, Alabama, sister of Mr. Charles Guy, of town, was one of those who escaped the terrible disaster of a few weeks ago in which 40 were killed and 100 injured.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The trees in the parks are budding out.

—The annual vestry meeting of All Saints' church will be held this evening.

YOUNG METHODISTS.

They are Probationers and will be Examined for the Ministry.

The annual examination of the probationers of the Methodist church in the Bay of Quinte Conference, begins on Tuesday in the Charlotte street church.

A public meeting will be addressed in the same church on Thursday evening by Rev. Messrs. T. Manning and W. Johnston.

The Board of Examiners is composed of Revs. W. R. Young, D.D., T. J. Enmison, B.D., W. J. Crothers, D.D., J. A. McCamus, W. J. Jolliffe, B.C.L., W. Jonnston, T. Manning, B. A., J. P. Wilson. B. A., and J. G. Lewis, A. A.

THE SOUTHERN TRIP.

Rev. D. O. Crossley Speaks Interestingly of his Journey Through the Southern States.

A very large congregation assembled in the Charlotte street Methodist Church, last evening, and heard a most interesting account of how their much esteemed pastor, Rev. D. O. Crossley spent the three month's holiday, which was recently accorded him.

Although the remarks made took the form of a lecture or address, rather than a sermon yet the lessons to be learned were many and valuable, each step taken in the journey being used as an illustration of the manifold mercies of the Almighty in providing for His people or used as a warning and admonition concerning the punishment in store for a citizenship which is appearently forgetting its Creator in the pursuits of the lusts of the world.

The speaker quickly took his attentive and deeply interested hearers with him west to Chicago and thence south to Las Vegas and over through the beautiful valley of San Bernardino, where a wonderful provision is made for fertilizing the soil in the absence of rain by the tapping of an underground lake and the process of irrigation by means of trenches.

From San Bernardino Mr. and Mrs. Crossley went to Los Angeles, Oaklands, Alameda and San Francisco and thence northwards through the Sacramento Valley, Ogden City, Salt Lake City and back to Canada.

It is a pleasing fact to note that after observing the sacreligious manner in which Sunday was spent in the United States, the pastor of the the Charlotte St. church did not wait until he reached home to administer his rebukes, but from the pulpits in which he spoke denounced the custom in no mild terms, comparing the turmoil of the American Sunday with the calm and peaceful manner in which the Lord's day is spent in Canada, in a manner which without doubt must have reached some hearts.

Peterborough's Modern Store.

SHIRT WAISTS AND SHIRT WAIST MATERIALS.

The shirt waist season is once more with us and those who want exclusive designs in coloured shirt waists, should avail themselves of the opportunity of buying them when the stocks are new and well sorted.

We have a goodly assortment of both ready-to-wear shirt waists and materials to make them for those who prefer making their own.

The principal feature in blouses this season, or the biggest change in style, is the sleeves. The BISHOP SLEEVE is the correct thing in sleeves. It is a pretty hanging sleeve with fulness between the elbow and wrist, which takes the form of a dip just above the cuff, which is a plain narrow band with strap effect. The backs are plain backs—that is, without yokes.

We show some very pretty read-to-wear waists in COLOURED GOODS, which are finding favour with the Peterborough ladies, not only on account of the pretty designs, but the fit and styles are both different to what you see in ordinary blouses. They are decidedly exclusive.

WHITE BLOUSES or SHIRT WAISTS will be very extensively used for midsummer wear this season and their pretty combinations with insertions, lace, etc., are simply innumerable.

IN MATERIALS FOR MAKING BLOUSES we show new ideas in Print Ginghams, Muslins, Percales and other materials. If you want novelties, buy early, as the pretty things are always picked up first.

In White Lawns we show both the Victoria and India Lawns in all qualities. You'll find our prices lower than elsewhere and you get the best goods here always.

CLARKE & GIBSON

THE HIGH LEVEL SIDEWALK.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

It is high time that something was done with the temporary high level board walk over the underground pavement granolithic walk at the corner of George and Brock streets. While the people were returning from the churches last evening the sidewalk at this point was very much crowed, and owing to the board walk rising precipitately where it starts from the pavement walk, a lady in the crowd, not observing the danger, struck her foot against the elevation and came nearly falling violently to the ground, when the consequences might have been serious. As it was she must have received a severe shaking up. Such injuries are causes of actions against the town and if the thing is not remedied there will certainly be others as well, and it is only after the town shall have been mulcted in damages and costs that our City Fathers will awake to a sense of duty.

OBSERVER.

YESTERDAY'S DUST.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—There have been many complaints of the dust for the last week, but the nuisance reached its culminating point yesterday afternoon when the military funeral of the late Ernest McCabe was passing down George street. How is it that our aldermen cannot realize that dust in April needs the watering cart just as much as in August, and if the doctors are to be believed it is infinitely worse now than later on? It is a stupid excuse for them to say that they are waiting until the streets are scraped. It is just as easy to water them before as after.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

TENNIS.

The annual general meeting of the Peterborough Lawn Tennis Club was held on Saturday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. Auxiliary room.

There was a good attendance of members, and also a number of new recruits. The spirit of the meeting was most enthusiastic, and bespoke of a dauntless will that would flaunt any difficulties which might be in the pathway to perfect success and enjoyment for the season 1901. The club this year is most fortunate in having the use of Mrs. John Burnham's spacious grounds, with its smooth green lawns, shade trees and excellent courts, swept at the foot of the slope by the flowing Otonabee river.

The following officers were duly elected for the ensuing year:

Patroness—Mrs. John Burnham.

President—Mr. F. D. Kerr.

Vice-Presidents—Miss Dennistoun, Mrs. Lundy.

Hon. Secretary-Treas—Mr. W. Harold Cluxton.

Special Match Committee—Miss G. Dennistoun, Miss A. Hall, Mr. H. Burnham, Mr. A. Hollingshead.

Executive Committee,—Mrs. F. Rogers, Misses Edwards, Hatton, E. Barlee, G. Meade, M. Rogers, Kendry, Dr. Young, Messrs. H. Burnham, C. Pousette, F. Bradburn, S. Hall, N. G. Boyd, W. Dean.

The following Special Committee was appointed for the holding of a musical and social evening for the purpose of raising funds for the furnishing of the new grounds: Misses Lundy, Dennistoun, Messrs. F. D. Kerr, W. Harold Cluxton.

The fees for the ensuing year are as follows: Lady associate members, 75c.; lady players, $1.50; gentlemen associate members, $1.50; gentlemen players, $3.00. The associate members will be entitled to the use of the croquet grounds.

BASEBALL.

Mr. R. A. W. Hay, Secretary of the Peterborough Baseball team, has received a letter from Mr. E. T. Elliott, secretary of the Kingston team, asking for a game here on May 19th, 20th or thereabouts.

CRICKET.

The members of the Colts Cricket Club are out hustling with tickets and have exceedingly bright prospects. Arrangements will likely be made for a game here on May 24th.

FOOTBALL.

The Toronto papers contain the following item concerning the organization of the Scots Football Team of that place:—Mr. A. W. McPherson, the ex-captain of the Scots was present, and extended an invitation to the team to visit Peterborough during the coming summer.

WRESTLING.

Toronto Globe: The final bout of the tournament was a dandy. F. Morden Neilson of the West End Y.M.C.A., and G. Gauthier of the Peterborough B. B. C., were the contestants. They wrestled for 15 minutes actual time on the mat without a fall. The bouts were of 6, 6, and 3 minutes duration, with 10 minutes rest after the first and 5 minutes after the second. Gauthier was the stronger man, but Neilson was cleverer and displayed more science than his opponent. The Peterborough man was very aggressive, and kept Neilson working hard to hold his own. The West End man was very tricky, however, and got out of many dangerous holds in eel like fashion. He was declared the winner on points.

HIS PRISONER HAD VAMOOSED

Constable Left Him at an Hotel Which He Promptly Vacated.

Man Was Charged With Defrauding Publishing House.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

On the understanding that he was going to start a public library at a village called Bancroft, Frank G. Lowe, a young man, obtained some 100 books from the Book Supply Company at 5 King street west, and ordered that they be delivered at the hotel where he lived in Havelock. In due course the books were sent, but instead of Lowe getting them, they were seized by the hotel proprietor for arrears of board due him.

The publishing house consulted the local police, and a warrant was sworn out, charging Lowe with fraud. Without delay the warrant was sent to the chief constable at Havelock, and Lowe was apprehended. No notice of the arrest was sent to the local authorities, but yesterday Constable W. H. Chambers came to the city with the prisoner, and instead of proceeding with him to the police department, he went to the office of the Book Supply Company, to see if an arrangement could not be made for Lowe's release. Negotiations failed, so Constable Chambers took his man to the Woodbine hotel on Terauley street. Leaving him there, he went to see Sergt.-Detective Reburn at the city hall, and enquired whether he would be reimbursed for the expense of bringing the prisoner here. He was told he would if he had the man, whereupon Sergt. Reburn was informed that he was at the Woodbine hotel.

The patrol waggon was called and sent to the hotel, only to find that Lowe, having been left to his own devices and unguarded, had embraced the opportunity thus afforded him by the thoughtless Foxy Quiller, and had made good his escape. He has not made known his change of address, and the police cannot locate him.

KISS AND LET'S MAKE UP.

Two Men Who Swore Out Informations Against Each Other.

There was a case of "kiss and let's make up" at the police court this morning. The participants in the affair were not children, but grown up men. Fred Stabler and Wm. McIlmoyle had differences of opinion. One used grossly abusive language towards the other, who resorted to physical punishment—at least according to the information sworn to, this was the state of affairs. When the cases were called this morning, the two had a hurried conversation with each other, and then announced to the Magistrate that they desired to withdraw the informations. They arranged the costs, amounting to $3.15, between them, and the matter ended.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

Several Cases Before the County Magistrate.

County Constable Archie Moore returned this morning from White Lake, where he went to execute an information that had been laid by Inspector J. J. Crowe, of East Peterborough, against George Armstrong, of White Lake, who was charged with selling liquor without a license. Constable Moore found several bottles of liquor on the premises and accused pleaded guilty of the offence. He will appear on Wednesday, April 24th for sentence.

High County Constable Cochrane went up to Toronto this morning with a lunatic.

The case against Mr. and Mrs. Bulle, of Bridgenorth, charged with keeping a house of illfame and against the daughter for being an inmate of the same, was dismissed this morning. The parties are now residents of Peterborough.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

GIVE PERFECT DIGESTION, SOUND SLEEP, STRONG NERVES.

A Popular Remedy for Dyspepsia, which has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of act there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood and that is through the stomach and bowels. Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly, the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gasses, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas, and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers" because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are prepared by the F. A Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

For twenty-four years Vapo-Cresolene has been extensively used for all forms of throat and bronchial troubles. All Druggists.

REV. MR. YULE.

The New Assistant for St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Rev. George Yule, the new assistant to Rev. Dr. Torrance, occupied the pulpit in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Yule is only a few years out from Scotland and is a graduate of the Montreal Presbyterian College. He created a favourable impression, in the evening particularly, delivering an excellent discourse, taking his text from the sermon on the Mount, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven, etc."

The new assistant has now entered upon duties and will fully assume the pastoral duties of the congregation until Dr. Torrance is sufficiently recovered to resume his work.

CHURCH CHIMES.

At the morning service in the George street church Mrs. Walden and Miss B. Butcher sang a very pretty duet.

At St. Paul's church yesterday morning the choir rendered Granier's "Hosanna," Miss Bertram taking the solo. In the evening Miss Bertram sang in a most delightful manner the solo, "Peace," by Lane. The anthem in the evening was entitled "Awake Thou That Sleepeth."

Miss Hendren, of Lakefield, whose ability as a vocalist is well-known, has been engaged to sing in Charlotte street Methodist church choir. Miss Hendren will commence her duties on Sunday next.

At the evening service in the George street Methodist church the anthem was "Forth from Dark and Stormy Skies," by Sheppard, with solo by contralto members. The solo, "Saved by Grace," was sung in excellent voice by Mr. G. W. Mulligan.

A BEAUTIFUL PUBLICATION.

To the Grand Trunk must be given the palm and the credit for being first in the field with a handsome new publication dealing with the great attractions of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, which will open on the first day of May for a continuance of six months.

Nothing yet as pretentious and elegant as teis book has been issued in connection with the great international event, and the Grand Trunk, never doing things by halves, has thought fit to get up this fine piece of work for the benefits of its patrons and the public generally. The publication is composed of thirty-two pages, with a four page cover. The inside is printed in three colours, including the "luxotype" finish on the illustrations. The descriptive matter has been carefully compiled and arranged with a view of giving the reader a comprehensive and true picture of the different buildings and attractions that are to be seen, also a good description of the "Midway", a feature of the exposition, which, it is said, will surpass anything of the kind heretofore attempted.

The publication tells how to reach Buffalo, gives reference to whom to apply for accurate information as to hotel accommodation. It suggests to the traveller many attractive side trips, and gives a complete list of hotels and boarding houses in the several districts reached by these side trips. A map of the Grand Trunk Railway system in three colours is embodied, as well as a map of the City of Buffalo, showing the several railway stations and the street car lines running to and from the exposition grounds, a valuable feature for the guidance of strangers in Buffalo. There is also an accurate plan of the exposition grounds, which gives a splendid idea of the lay out of the undertaking, with the names of the buildings clearly inserted for the information of the sightseer. The inside of the publication is printed in three colours on the finest coated paper, while the cover is a heavy paper suitable for embossing.

The design used for the title pages of the cover is one of artistic beauty, and represents the emblematic figure of Enlightment standing in the foreground, holding a torch in each hand, while immediately above the figure appears the Beck design of the Pan-American trade-mark. At the top of the page is shown the trade-mark of the Grand Trunk, while the title of the brochure is "Picturesque Pan-American Route to Buffalo." The colors used to bring out the pleasing effect which has been obtained, are light blue, yellow and black, embossed in high relief, and making one of the most handsome pieces of railway literature that has been issued by any transporation company. The mechanical execution of the work is without fault, and the illustrations, which are all of the half-tone process, are fine.

A copy of this publication will be sent free, post paid, to any address in the world on receipt of a two-cent postage stamp, by M. C. Dickson, district passenger and ticket agent, Grand Trunk Railway system, Toronto.

ROADSIDE REST.

Such quiet sleep has come to them!
The springs and autumns pass,
Nor do they know if it be snow
Or daisies in the grass.

All day the birches bend to hear
The river's undertone;
Across the hush a fluting thrush
Sings evensong alone.

But down their dream there drifts no sound;
The winds may sob and stir;
On the still breast of Peace they rest,
And they are glad of her.

They ask not any gift; they mind
Not any foot that fares;
Unheededly life passes by;
Such quiet sleep is theirs.

THE CONVICT SHIP

In former years, before penal colonies were abandoned, transportation meant everything that was vile, vicious and horrible.

When 50 or more convicts were ready for Botany Bay the government would hire a sailing vessel to transport them. I have seen them go in fifties, and I have seen 215 on board of one ship. A transport ship was fitted up between decks as a prison, the space being divided off by two iron gratings, and every 20 men were in charge of a captain, one of their own number. The lot were in charge of a surgeon appointed by the government to go with the ship. In all matters affecting the convicts, every man on the ship was bound to obey the surgeon. The crew had muskets and cutlasses dealt out to them, and a certain number had to stand guard as the various gangs were brought on deck to be exercised. If the surgeon was a thorough man, he got his "consignment" through in good order, but if he was not there was sure to be an outbreak of malignant type, which sometimes carried off half the lot. I knew one ship to lose 47 convicts out of 65, and with them 11 of the crew.

The ship Silver Queen, Captain James, had contracted to carry out 128 Botany Bay convicts, and this was my second year aboard of her as an apprentice. A day or two before we left England I reached my fifteenth year and was a pretty solid lad for my age. As I remember the lot, about 50 were sentenced for manslaughter, the same number for robbery and burglary, and the others were made up of forgers, embezzlers, incendiaries and so on. There were two in the lot who had escaped from the Bay and finally found their way back to be recaptured. Taken as a whole, the lot was said to be the worst one ever sent out, and the ship carried an extra officer and four extra hands. The prison part took up one-half of the space between decks. Every morning and evening, when the weather would permit, 20 men at a time were allowed to come up for ten minutes' exercise.

Boylike, my sympathies were with the convicts. No matter what they had done, the idea that they were going off to a living death settled the matter with me. The discipline of the ship was very strict, but I found several opportunities to show my good will. When on duty below, I passed them tobacco, gave them the news from above and winked at their disobedience of rules. Every convict gang had its leader. The leader of this one was a man named Harry Small—one of the escaped Botany Bays who was being returned. He was a quiet fellow, intelligent and crafty, and when he saw that I leaned his way he one day asked me for pencil and paper. I gave them to him, and he wrote a note which I afterward delivered to a sailor before the mast. I did all this out of pure sympathy, having not the slightest idea that there was any wrong in it.

Nothing whatever occurred on the voyage to the Cape of Good Hope. All the officers were agreeably disappointed in the behavior of the convicts, which was so exemplary that not a man had been flogged or imprisoned in the black hole. I heard our captain say that it was almost as fine as making a regular voyage out. I said nothing whatever occurred. I meant among the convicts. It afterward transpired that there was an excitement among the crew forward. The sailor to whom I had delivered the note had secretly declared to his mates that the surgeon had predicted an outbreak of fever after leaving the cape. The consequence was that seven of them deserted at Cape Town, and the same number of new hands were shipped. I could never see where the sailor had any hand in it, but we certainly lost by the exchange. We lost seven Englishmen, while those who filled their places were Portuguese and half breed Dutchmen, and as dirty a set as you ever saw aboard a ship.

In leaving the cape we stood to the southeast for a hundred miles and then laid the course straight for Point Davey, on the southernmost end of Tasmania Land, this course being only two points from due east. In this run, clear across the Indian ocean, we should pass a hundred miles to the south of the island of St. Paul. That and Amsterdam island are the only two within 500 miles of the course.

I was on guard below for four hours every other day. On such occasion Small asked me for the run of the ship. I could nearly always give it to him, as I heard it from some of the officers. We had been out a week when he asked me about the island of St. Paul. I had an old chart, on which it was put down as uninhabited. He asked how close we would run to it and that I find out, if possible, when we were at the nearest point. Had I been older I should not have been deceived. I was only a lad, and a green one at that, and, as I told you before, I felt a deep sympathy for the convicts.

It was on a Tuesday night that I overheard the captain say to the surgeon that if the wind held we would be opposite St. Paul by noon next day. The wind did hold, and at 10 o'clock next forenoon I went on duty below and at once gave Small the news. It was just an hour later when a fight broke out among the men, and there was a row to disturb the whole ship. The orders of the officers were set at defiance, and as a consequence, when they did succeed in commanding obedience, it was deemed best to do some flogging to overawe the convicts. Four men who were supposed to be ringleaders were singled out, the entire lot were mustered on deck, and pretty soon No. 1 was lashed up to the gratings for punishment. The first blow struck was a signal, and every convict uttered a shout and sprang for a weapon. It was a complete surprise to the officers, but it was quickly seen that there was also a conspiracy. Not one of the seven new sailors would fire a shot, and the guns of four or five others were found to have been tampered with. The fight lasted for about ten minutes, during which time the surgeon, first and second mates and three hands were killed. In return they killed seven of the convicts. I had no hand in the row. At the very first go off some one struck me in the neck and knocked me flat and unconscious.

Well, as I said, the thing had been done by the time I got my senses back, and the convict gang was wild with exultation. The rougher portion demanded that every one who was not with them should be butchered, but Small and his three or four lieutenants put them down. I think the first idea of the convicts was to go ashore at St. Paul, having previously scuttled the ship, but this gave place to another plan. The third mate, or bos'n, agreed to cast in his lot with the convicts. The captain, carpenter, sailmaker and six or seven hands got no choice. The longboat was lowered, provided with sails, oars, food and water, and the men I have named were sent adrift without being harmed. By a pocket compass which one of them carried they steered a course for the island and landed there two days later, but were on it six months before being taken off. I wanted to go with them, but Small refused me permission, saying that I had been so kind to him that he felt it his duty to reward me. All the others also spoke very kindly to me, and I had the mortification of realizing that I was the catspaw by which they had taken possession of the ship.

As soon as the longboat had left us and the dead had been thrown overboard, Small called all the people together and made a speech. He appointed his officers, stated that he proposed to steer to the north and that every one aboard could consider himself a pirate and be hanged to him. The men cheered again and again, and by an hour after meridian everything was running smoothly. Small enforced the strictest discipline, and the two or three convicts who growled about it were knocked down with promptness and vigor. I was assigned to the cabin to wait on the captain, and our cook and steward had to do duty as before. Small knew something of navigation, and he had some smart sailors with him. He had a whole ocean to himself, and the chart showed him that the nearest land to the north after passing St. Paul was the Chagos archipelago, in the Indian ocean.

For the next 12 days little happened of interest. Then one day about noon we sighted a Dutch brig on her way out from Java. The sailmaker had manufactured a very fair piratical flag, and this was immediately run up and our course changed to cut the stranger off. When signaled to heave to, he lost no time, being scared half to death. He had a crew of seven men, and no resistance was offered. Small sent a boat load of armed men to take possession, and, as it happened to fall calm soon after the crafts drifted together, they were lashed in that position for the next 30 hours. The brig was full of coffee and spices. Small took what he wanted out of her and then scuttled her, while her crew were sent adrift in their own yawl.

During the next two weeks we sighted only two sails, and they were far distant. I think it was only on the twenty-ninth day after the capture of the ship and we were well up to the Chagos when a sail was made out on our port quarter. This was about 9 o'clock in the morning, and a man sent aloft declared her to be an Indiaman. The regular track of those vessels was to the west of Madagascar, up the Mozambique channel, but this one might be going to call at some of the eastern islands. No sooner was her character made out than all was rejoicing and excitement on board our ship. The arms were got out, grog served to the men, and everybody was impatient for the Indiaman to come on. She came pacing along at a good gait, the wind being fair, and she was within half a mile of us when Small hoisted the black flag and signaled her to heave to. This was hardly accomplished when a dozen men cried out in chorus that the stranger was not an Indiaman at all, but a corvet, and a moment later she flew French colors and began to drop her gun port covers.

For the next five minutes confusion reigned supreme on our decks. Then Small hauled down the black flag and hoisted the English colors and dipped them in compliment, but the Frenchman could see over a hundred men running about on our decks, and he knew that something was wrong. He came racing up and passed us close enough to hail and ask what was the trouble. Small answered that we were an emigrant ship and that the black flag was a joke.

The corvet ran ahead, luffed up and fired a gun for us to heave to. Small ordered all sail to be set, but the men were hardly aloft before the corvet sent a solid shot over us and brought Small to his senses. As soon as our headway was checked an armed boat's crew came aboard, and the fact that we were a convict ship was at once apparent. Half our number were transferred to the corvet and 25 Frenchmen put aboard of the Queen, and thus convoyed the latter returned to Cape Town. The cook, steward and myself were exonerated from all blame when put on trial, but Small and five others were hanged, and every other man whose sentence had been less than life had it extended.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

NOT HEREDITARY

In the main, consumption is not hereditary; it is infectious. People are too afraid of heredity; better not think of the subject at all. Infection occurs continually.

Low vital force is hereditary; which gives consumption its chance. And infection plants it.

Between the two, the crop is a big one: about one-sixth of the human race, so far as is known.

We suppose it needn't be 5 per cent, if people would take fair care and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

The care saves life in all ways; the emulsion is specially aimed at the lungs, beside its general food-effect.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

Shetland Women.

There is a carrier in Shetland that does almost the work of the Shetland pony. That is the Shetland woman. All the manure for the crofts, comprising thousands of tons of gathered seaweed, the millions of fish in the operations of landing and curing and a large portion of the peat, is carried, not on ponies' backs, but on the backs of women in the universal "kashie" of the islands.

This is a creel made of twisted and woven straw like the "maysies." It is also written "cassie." Its pronunciation is best indicated in the spelling "kyshire," or "kishie." Shetland women step off nimbly with from 70 to 80 pounds weight in their "kashies," but knit, knit, knit forever and forever. Peat is the principal burden, for there is no wood fuel in Shetland.

Unprofitable.

The Shoplifters' Harvest.

One of the judges of the court of special sessions in talking to a friend regarding ineffectual efforts of store owners and courts to check shoplifting said: "No matter how severe we make the punishment it seems impossible to stop these so called kleptomaniacs. Notwithstanding the large number of convictions, shoplifting is on the increase. The owners of one of the largest department stores in the city make a charge in their books each year of $50,000 to 'loss by shoplifters.' That is a big item, but this firm does not make many mistakes in its books. This estimate has been reached after close observation and careful calculations and may be regarded as pretty nearly correct. This firm, too, has abolished its private detective service. It has decided that $50,000 worth of goods will be stolen from its counters annually, detectives or no detectives. It figures that with the detectives it is apt to have other big losses. A detective anxious to make a showing will often arrest a woman when the charge cannot be proved in court. Then there is an action for heavy damages, which the plaintiff is sure to win."

Alcoholism Can Be Cured

REV. FATHER QUINLIVAN'S ADVICE.

To whom it may concern:—The good points of Mr. Dixon's new discovery for the cure of the liquor habit, in my opinion are the following:—First, if taken according to directions it completely removes all craving for liquor in the short space of three days; its use for a longer time is intended only to build up the system. Second, it leaves no bad after effects, but on the contrary aids in every way the health of the patient, whilst freeing him from the desire for drink. Third, the patient may use it without interfering with his business or leaving his home. All other liquor cures I have yet heard of are very costly, operate slowly, are doubtful as to effects and often impair the health and constitution of the patient. I therefore look upon the remedy as a real boon, recommend it heartily to all concerned and bespeak for it here in Montreal and elsewhere every success. J. Quinlivan, S. S. Pastor of St. Patrick's, Montreal.

Why the Youngster Had to Go.

Nurse had come to bear her little charge away from the party, and the fluffy haired damsel was pleading for a respite.

"Not another second," said nurse firmly. "Come, get your coat on. There's a lamb."

But the "lamb" still demurred, and her obvious reluctance to go enlisted the sympathy of the hostess, who rashly joined issue against the nurse.

"Do let her stay half an hour longer, nurse," she begged. "You were a child yourself once, remember. If Ida's mother is angry with you, throw the blame on me."

Nurse shook her head with stubborn resolution.

"Sorry, mum, but my young man is giving a party tonight, and if I'm not there just on the minute he'll slam the door in my face. It's force of habit with him, mum. You see, he's timekeeper in a factory."

Then, despite whimpering protests, the "lamb" was ruthlessly torn away.—London Tit-Bits.

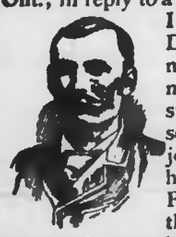
Farmer compelled to stop clearing up his farm.

There is no healthier life in the world than that of the farmer—yet as a rule farmers work too hard. They toil early and late, through the broiling sun in the summer and the blizzard blasts of the winter, and they have to suffer for it because the kidneys cannot stand the strain put on them and backache often follows. Here is what Mr. Job Costain of Mininegash, P.E.I., has to say about what Doan's Pills have done for him:

"In the Spring of 1900 I started to clear up a piece of land, but had not worked many days before I was taken with a very lame back, and of course was compelled to stop work. The trouble seemed to be down in the centre of my back and my right side and I could not stoop over. I got a box of Doan's Pills and before I had taken the whole box I was completely cured and was able to proceed with my work, and I take great pleasure in recommending them to all farmers who are troubled as I was."

SPENT A FORTUNE.

"Yes, I am completely cured," said Mr. Jas. Davison, of Oconto, Ont., in reply to a question, "and I have to thank Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure for my relief. I suffered from sciatica in the joint of my left hip for ten years. For six years of that time I was a helpless invalid, unable to move about. I was reduced in flesh, and unable to partake of food. I spent every dollar I had in seeking relief, but without obtaining it. I passed through the hands of three Kingston doctors, and each pronounced my case incurable. I took everything people recommended, but without experiencing any benefit. Before I had used half a bottle of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure I obtained relief, the first in ten years. In all I took the contents of six bottles, and I am as well and sound to-day as ever I was, except for my short leg which the rheumatism caused.



MR. JAS. DAVISON.

"Previously I could scarcely walk half a dozen steps, and arose and sat down only with great difficulty and pain. When I first began to take the medicine I weighed only 145 pounds. Now I weigh 167 pounds, and am daily gaining weight. I cannot say too much for the medicine, but I ask God's blessing for the maker on account of the good it has done me."

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE COOKBOOK.

Dip sliced onions in milk before frying.

A very good addition to an ordinary nut cake is a cupful of seeded and chopper raisins.

To brown a baked custard sift lightly over the top a little powdered sugar as soon as the surface is cooked enough to bear it.

Sometimes the last of a cold boiled ham "goes begging." Try slicing the ham thinly and broiling it over a clear fire. Squeeze a few drops of lemon juice on it and serve hot.

To make noodles for soup beat one egg and add a pinch of salt and flour enough to make a stiff dough. Roll out into a thin, long sheet, sprinkle with flour, roll up tightly, and with a sharp knife shave from the end in thin slices. These noodles should cook in the soup 15 minutes.

For a luncheon dish bake large, regular shaped potatoes while they are hot, cut them in two lengthwise and remove the soft parts. Mash this; season with butter, cream, salt and a trace of paprika. Beat it very light and replace in the shells. Sprinkle with grated cheese and return to the oven to brown. Serve very hot.

GOODBY.

Falling leaf and fading tree,
Lines of white in sullen sea,
Shadows rising on you and me,
Shadows rising on you and me;
The swallows are marching there ready to fly,
Wheeling out on a windy sky,
Goodby, summer, goodby, goodby!
Goodby, summer, goodby, goodby!

Hush! A voice from the faraway.
"Listen and learn" it seems to say.
"All the tomorrows shall be as today;
"All the tomorrows shall be as today."
The cord is frayed, the cruse is dry,
The link must break, and the lamps must die
Goodby to Hope! Goodby, goodby!

What are we waiting for? Oh, my heart!
Kiss me straight in the brows—and part!
Again! Again! My heart! My heart!
What are we waiting for, you and I?
A pleading look, a stifled cry,
Goodby forever, goodby forever,
Goodby, goodby, goodby!

A MASTER OF THIEVERY.

Stole a Man's Stocking Off His Foot Without Disturbing His Boot.

"Talking about slick thieves," said the captain of the stockyards police station, "the uncrowned king lives out in my district. If he had as much brain matter as he has ingenuity and as much daring for big crimes as he has for small ones, a Sherlock Holmes couldn't get within a mile's walk of him in a thousand years. You smile.

"Ask the boys who keep a watchful eye over the unsophisticated stock raisers who the man is they fear the most. They will tell you it is Moses Klinski. He is afraid of turning a big trick, but when it comes to getting a watch chain, an overcoat, some trinket or the spare coins in a stockman's pocket Moses beats any light fingered artist in the country.

"During the live stock show Moses stole a stocking off the foot of a Canadian who had a pen of Cotswolds on exhibition, stole it when the fellow had his big cowhide boots on and never disturbed the boot of the foot that the stocking was on, and the fellow was wide awake when it was done. One of my men caught Moses while he was getting away with the goods.

"There were half a dozen people around within a few feet of the sheep breeder and Moses when the theft was committed. This is no fairy tale.

"It was one of the big days of the show," continued the captain. "The Canadian was busy talking to some western people about his breed of sheep. He was sitting on a bale of hay. Moses was shambling through the sheep section. How he escaped my men and got inside is something that he alone could tell. He edged up to the group around the Canadian. One of my plain clothes men caught sight of him, and he noticed that Moses was busy with his hands.

"He could not see what the fellow was doing and waited. In a few moments Moses dropped something into his overcoat pocket. The plain clothes man took hold of him and, reaching into the overcoat pocket, drew out a ball of red yarn. He walked Moses back to the group and, holding out the ball of yarn, asked if any of the men had been 'touched.' They looked and shook their heads negatively.

"The next morning the Canadian came over to the police station. Moses had been run in on general principles, and I asked the caller what had happened to him. He held up a red sock. 'Moses stole the other,' he said to me. 'See here,' and he put his cowhide boot on a chair in my office and pointed to a little hole in the toe. 'Yesterday afternoon that fellow stole my sock through this hole. He unraveled it and wound it into a ball. One of your men caught him, but I did not know the yarn belonged to me until last night when I pulled off my boot and found the sock was gone.'

"Moses admitted the theft. He said he saw a bit of the red sock through the hole in the toe of the boot, and he noticed it was a good quality of yarn, and, taking the blade of his knife, he started the raveling, knowing that the man was too busy talking to pay any attention to the loss of a sock."

A CLASS BY THEMSELVES.

Employees of the Government Who Have Grown Old In the Service.

"Whenever I read in the papers of the unknown dead of Washington, I think of the unknown dead in the executive departments," said a chief clerk.

"At first blush it may appear paradoxical that a man or a woman may be alive in the departments, reporting for duty when not sick, drawing pay and breathing and eating and at the same time be a corpse. But of the type of clerks of which I speak, they are to all intents and purposes, from an official standpoint, dead.

"These clerks are forgotten. They are buried. They are like two or three cards in a deck; when the pack is shuffled, they shuffle along with the rest. They are to be found by the dozens in the different departments, men and women alike. How they got in no one but themselves knows. Most of them are old clerks. They stay because they constitute one of the components of a system. Once in the service they have remained in the maintenance of the system. But for the beneficent protection of the civil service they would be hunted out, named and numbered and tagged like victims selected for the block and summarily decapitated.

"The influences which secured their appointment have long since passed to the other side or been snuffed out of political favor or power. They were put at desks, and they remained obscure and overlooked. Even their chief may not know how they got there. He found them in his division when he took up the reins, and he retains them as fixtures, not unlike the desks and chandeliers.

"They constitute a curious set, these dead alive clerks. Some may still have what they consider 'influence' or a backing of some sort upon which to rely in case of need and trouble, but most of them have nothing tangible upon which to base this assumption. They are drifters. They float because others float with them and carry them along on the surface of the official stream.

"They work, of course. Everybody nowadays in the departments works. They may be good workers. Every clerk thinks he or she works harder than his or her fellow clerk. But their quantity and quality of work are not the reason for their official existence, as is the case in outside employments. Anybody else could do their work just as well and, in all probability, better.

"Some have been in the service for 20 and 30 years, others not so long. They constitute a class distinct to themselves. They wouldn't admit this, however, if they were conscious of it. But if an official had the power to go through his department and collect them in a group their classification would be easy. They have outlived their influence and in many cases their usefulness. But they hang on. Only death itself will remove them, for they never resign. There is no special reason why they should resign under the existing rules. The world owes them a living as well as their more favored neighbors.

"Most of them are unobtrusive. Some are cranks. Old age and long tenure in office tend to the making of cranks of some of us. In their unobtrusiveness lies their main hold. If they were to become too assertive, the inquiry might be raised as to why they are there at all or the question if their salary would not be earned to better advantage by clerks in the lower grades who want promotions and have the ability to secure such if the necessary reduction can be made. So they saw wood, or, rather, scribble and say nothing."

SOME OLD TIMERS.

Dr. Jesse C. Green of West Chester, Pa., 84 years old, is said to be the oldest active wheelman in the country.

Daniel Wark, a Dominion senator from Fredericton, N. B., is said to be the oldest legislator in the world. He was 97 on Feb. 19.

Former Governor Boutwell of Massachusetts is the only living man who was the executive of a state 50 years ago. He was only 31 years old when in 1851 he was inaugurated governor of Massachusetts.

Former Chief Judge Logan B. Bleckley of Georgia has matriculated at the State university for a course in mathematics. He is 76 years old and engaged on a book, part of which treats of a branch of mathematics in which, as he says, he has "grown rusty."

Timothy T. Sawyer, the president of the Bunker Hill National bank of Charlestown, Mass., is the oldest bank president in New England. He has been connected with the institution over 50 years and has been its president since 1884. He is now 84, but attends to all his duties at the bank.

George W. Putnam, a descendant of the famous Revolutionary general, is said to be the oldest railroad mail clerk in the country. He was appointed by Lincoln in 1861 and has been in the service ever since. His home is in Westfield, O., but his "run" is between Ashtabula and Oil City, on a branch of the Lake Shore road.

During a recent speech in congress Senator Morgan, with a brief intermission, was on his feet for six hours, talking steadily. He is 77 years old; but, to quote his own language, he is not as rapid in his action and speech as his colleague, Senator Pettus, who is 80 years old. "I cannot keep up as closely with the procession," he said. "I only stagger along."

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Big Miners Strike.

Cumberland, Md., April 15.—A big strike is on at the mines of the Maryland Smokeless Coal Company, in the Meyersdale region. The men, who had been receiving 50c a ton, demanded 55c a ton, the scale rate at other mines. The mines are closed.

Fell Off Pier to Death.

Halifax, April 15.—A despatch from Sydney says: D. I. McKenzie, assistant superintendent at the ore pier of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, was instantly killed Saturday morning by falling off the pier. He was a native of Pictou County.

A DUNDAS FARMER

After Many Trials and Failures, and Much Expense, he at Last Finds a Cure for his Stomach. Leading doctors had said he could not be Cured, but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets did it.

One of Hamilton's leading doctors, as well as the local physicians pronounced the case of Donald George Ross, a farmer of Dundas, Ont., one of Chronic Dyspepsia.

They told him his was a very bad case, and gave him no hope of ever being completely cured.

Several of them treated him for some time, but failed to help him. He became alarmed.

The Dyspepsia had brought on severe headaches and nervousness, which for three years made his life one of misery.

To-day Mr. Ross has no headaches or nervousness. He has no dyspepsia. He has no Indigestion or Stomach Troubles of any kind. He can eat heartily and sleep well. In fact he is an all round well man. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured him.

He tells the story this way:

"For about three years I have been troubled with headaches and nervousness, caused by dyspepsia. I could not get any relief. The doctors told me I had a very bad case and that I would not get a cure. I became very much alarmed, and immediately consulted one of Hamilton's leading doctors, but to no use.

"I heard of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and determined to try them. I am now cured. From my experience I believe that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any case of Dyspepsia, and would strongly advise any sufferer who may have failed to find a cure through the doctors or other medicines, to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Mr. Ross' character and reputation for honesty, makes this voluntary testimonial a valuable tribute to the curative properties of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All who suffer as Mr. Ross did, should be guided by his successful experience, to use the only remedy for Dyspepsia that never fails, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

No matter what anybody says, or how many medicines have failed in your case Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will not disappoint you.

CANADA WILL SHARE.

An Official of War Office Says "Surely Canadian Beef is British."

London, April 15.—Canadian circles in London are considerably exercised over the official announcement that the War Office has decided to exclude all but British beef from the supplies of fresh meat to be purchased for the army.

The question was put to an official of the War Office as to how this would affect Canada. He hesitated to pronounce an opinion until a case in point should arise, but pointed out that the announcement reads that "contracts shall be confined to British meat in future."

The comment of one official, high in the service, but speaking unofficially, was: "Surely Canadian meat is British."

DR. BOND TO SUCCEED.

House of Bishops of Church of England Meets in Montreal.

Montreal, April 15.—The House of Bishops of the Church of England in Canada will meet here to-day for the purpose of discharging the most important function that falls to its lot, the election of a chief, who is dominated by the Metropolitan.

The Archbishop of Ontario, the Most Rev. Dr. Lewis, resigned at the close of the century, and his successor is to be chosen by the house.

It is understood that the bishops are unanimous in their determination to elect the Rt. Rev. Dr. Bond, the Bishop of Montreal, and the senior member of the Bench of Bishops, to the vacant position.

INCREASE IN EXPORTS.

Trade Returns for the Nine Months Ending March 31.

Ottawa, April 14. — Canada's aggregate tarde on the basis of goods entered for consumption and exports, exclusive of coin and bullion, continues to exhibit a substantial growth. For the nine months ended March 31 the aggregate trade exceeded that for a similar period in the previous fiscal year by $17,105,276. This increase was entirely in exports, as the imports for the nine months show a falling off of $683,762. There was a decline of $1,015,586 in the imports of dutiable goods, but the imports of free goods increased by $331,824, thus making the net increase as stated above.

Trouble at Montana Mines.

Anaconda, Mont., April 15.—Six hundred men employed by the Anaconda Copper Mining Company at this place are affected by a strike, which was inaugurated six weeks ago, with indications pointing to a protracted struggle. The Moulders' Union has joined the strkers, and the foundry department of the Anaconda Company has been shut down.

Tugmen Will Go to Work.

Toledo, Ohio, April 15. — Members of the Tugmens' Protective Association, who voted several weeks ago that they would not go to work until the strike of the Marine Engineers had been settled, reconsidered their determination yesterday, and will go to work this morning.

Hair and Scalp Torn Off.

Winnipeg, April 15.—Annie Fraser, a little girl of 11 years, was admitted to the hospital on Saturday. While she was engaged turning a cream separator in the milk house, her hair was caught by a revolving shaft and gradually twisted round. No one was at hand to render her aid. The entire skin of the head on which the hair grows was wrenched from the scalp, and she was afterwards found free from the machine. Saturday a long and critical operation commenced, lasting seven days, during the whole of which time the head will be held in contact with a living animal, until a portion of the skin of the latter is engrafted on the denuded scalp.

The American Army Scandal.

Manila, April 15.—The trial of Sergeant Memson, the first of the commissary cases, began with the startling disclosures expected. Two witnesses testified that quantities of flour were taken from a Government warehouse and sold by three commissary sergeants and two others, who divided the proceeds. Finnick, proprietor of an American bakery, was incriminated, and other business men were involved. The extent of the illegal sales has not been ascertained.

Toronto Boys Arrested.

London, Ont., April 15.—James Malone and John Carroll, two young Toronto lads, were arrested Friday afternoon by Detectives Nickle and Egelton, charged with stealing money from the grocery store of Mrs. Pugh, corner of Dufferin avenue and Ontario street, the other day. When captured the pair had money amounting to $4.75. At the police court Saturday morning the boys were remanded until the 17th inst.

Buller May Come to Canada.

Halifax, N. S., April 15.—Military headquarters here received a communication from England on Saturday stating that the name of General Buller had been mentioned in connection with the appointment of commander-in-chief of the Imperial forces in British North America.

RED SEA EMERALD MINES.

Known as Cleopatra's Mines and Worked by the Romans.

What are known as the emerald mines of Cleopatra lie in the mountain range that extends for a long distance parallel to the Red sea and a few leagues west of the coast, in a latitude rather south of Eofu, on the Nile. This, like some other parts of the region—such as the porphyry quarries of Jebel Dokhan—was far better known than it is now and more thickly peopled about 20 centuries ago, and only during the last hundred years, so far as we know, have isolated explorers at long intervals found their way into the treasure house of ancient Egypt.

When its rulers first used the emerald for personal adornment is uncertain. Whether the large, clear green stones which, according to ancient authorities, ornamented the Egyptian temples were really emeralds is a matter of dispute, but as this gem, owing to its regular shape, which is commonly a six sided prism, with its beautiful tint, stands less in need of the lapidary's art than many others it probably formed part of the regalia of princes at a very early period.

That it was known to the Romans is certain, and the mines now revisited used to send their treasures to the gem cutters of the capital. Ever since then the stone has been highly esteemed. These mines of the northern Ethbai seem to have remained untouched since the decline and fall of Rome caused them to be deserted. According to Mr. MacAllister, the workings are only small passages, hardly more than burrows, excavated in the emerald bearing cyst and sometimes extending for a long distance.

Many scattered ruins may also be seen—dwellings, watchtowers and tombs—besides those of the fen settlements. In these, no doubt, the mining population used to live, and the difference in style suggests they were occupied for a long time. Some are mere hovels, very roughly built; others show a more careful construction, while a third group are well finished. Mr. MacAllister also found three rock cut temples, for the soft stone lends itself to that kind of architecture. He thinks that their pillars, though very primitive in style, indicate Egyptian designs, with traces of Greek influence. One, indeed, contains a crumbling inscription in that language.

Broken pottery, sometimes ornamented, is abundant, but there is no evidence that the neighborhood attracted visitors for any business purposes. Notwithstanding this there was in those times a settled instead of a nomad population, and travelers once must have been rather frequent, for in one place many drawings of persons, animals and tribal marks are scratched upon the rocks. Some of the figures evidently are much older than others, but as a whole they recall to memory the Sinaitic inscriptions which some 40 years ago were believed to be memories of the wanderings of the Israelites.

Weak Human Nature.

The man took a Thirty-fourth street car at Sixth avenue and remained standing out on the platform. When the conductor turned to him for his fare, he slipped his thumb and finger into his ticket pocket and then looked astonished. "By Jove, I had a transfer, but I guess I've lost it! Well, I suppose there's nothing for it but to contribute another nickel to your bloated monopoly?"

The conductor put out his hand to take it, then looked the man in the face a second time and stopped. "Oh, no, I guess I won't soak you this time! You haven't got the phiz of a man who could work a skin game for 5 cents."

Two minutes later the trolley purser was the richer by two 25 cent perfectos. "I loss money mit dem goots," murmured the man in the long ulster as he got off at Tenth avenue, "but when a compliment like that was aimed at me I simply had to come down."

Humors of all kinds are prolific of worse troubles. They may be entirely expelled by a thorough course of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The Views of a Stranger.

An English traveler stood looking at the glories of Yosemite for the first time. He had journeyed 3,000 miles to see that wonderful valley. Before him in solemn grandeur rose the Cathedral rock, the Three Brothers and the Sentinel Dome. The Bridal Veil falls, dissolving in a feathery mist as the waters descended the tremendous precipice, lit up with varied tints the somber majesty of the scene, while El Capitan, mighty, overpowering, unapproachable, seemed to frown sternly over all. The traveler became conscious he was not alone. At his side, apparently lost in wonder, stood a stranger, looking at the marvelous scene. He addressed the stranger:

"Is not this stupendous?"

The stranger bowed his head as if he felt the inability of words to describe his emotions.

"Do you think," pursued the traveler, "that this terrific gorge was caused by some titanic upheaval from below? Or is it the result of glacial action? What are your views, if any, as to"—

"My views," blandly interposed the stranger, opening a bag he carried in his hand containing photographs, "are only $1.50 a dozen and cheap at twice the money. Permit me to show you a few samples."—Exchange.

NOT IN FRANCE FOR HEALTH.

It Is Said Premier Waldeck-Rousseau and Premier Salisbury Will Meet.

Paris, April 15.—Doubts are expressed here concerning the ultra-favorable reports of M. Waldeck-Rousseau's health that have lately been circulated. It is asserted that if M. Waldeck-Rousseau feels himself sufficiently strong to undergo the fatigue of an interview, a meeting will be arranged to happen "by chance" between him and Lord Salisbury, the British Premier. Antibes is near enough to Beaulieu, Lord Salisbury's residence in the South of France, to make such a meeting easy. It is believed that the British Premier is not in France merely for his health.

King Edward and Gen. Von Moltke.

London, April 16.—King Edward yesterday received Gen. Von. Moltke, nephew of the former Field Marshal and Lieut. Usedom at Marlborough House. The German officers were accompanied by a sergeant wearing the new German field service uniform sent by Emperor William for King Edward's inspection. The uniform differs little from the usual colonial equipment. The knapsack and other paraphernalia are so arranged that their weight falls entirely upon the wearer's back, and the whole equipment can be released whenever required by unclasping a single buckle.

King Edward expressed warm approval of the uniform. He made Gen. Von Moltke a Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, and Lt. Usedom a Commander of the same order.

KITCHENER SATISFIED

South African Progress Seems Slow—'Tis Only Seeming.

MORE BOER GUNS CAPTURED.

Langer Near Klerksdorp Rushed at Daylight—Twenty-Three Prisoners Taken There—Col. Plumer's Capture in the North—Only a Canard That Gen. French Was Surrounded and Captured.

London, April 16.—While the letters of responsible correspondents in Pretoria depict the situation in a rather despairing mood, the Pretoria representative of The Daily Mail sent yesterday a despatch of the most hopeful character.

"The next six weeks," he says, "will see a resumption of active campaigning. Lord Kitchener will renew his sweeping movements. He has an army of 250,000 efficient troops, including 60,000 mounted men, with a good supply of horses, 40,000 having been secured in Cape Colony alone.

"The army is in good spirits, and Lord Kitchener is satisfied with the progress of events, slow though it seems."

One Treason-Monger Sentenced.

Barkley West, April 15.—Pony Dewet, a member of the Cape Assembly, has been sentenced by the Treason Court to imprisonment for three years, with a fine of £1,000, for seditious speeches.

KITCHENER'S REPORT.

Gallant Colonel Took Prisoners, Guns and Ammunition From Boers by Rushing Klerksdorp South Laager.

London, April 16.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, April 15:

"Col. Sir Henry Rawlinson's column rushed the south laager, northwest of Klerksdorp, at daylight. Six Boers were killed, ten wounded and twenty-three taken prisoners. He captured a twelve-pounder, one pompom complete and two ammunition wagons with ammunition.

"Our casualties were three wounded.

"Col. Plumer captured a field cornet and seven men, with ten wagons and eighteen rifles.

"During Col. Pilcher's operations in Orange River Colony seven Boers were killed."

MOST LIKELY A CANARD.

Report That General French and 500 Men Are Captured.

London, April 16.—It is said that a private tolegram has been received to the effect that General French, with 500 British troops, has been captured by the Boers, while his force was enveloped in a mist on the hills. No confirmation of the report can be obtained.

The War Office here knows nothing about the rumored capture of Gen. French, and entirely discredits the report.

BOER WAR MEDALS.

Canadian Soldiers Who Fought in South Africa Will Be Honored With Commemorative Battle Clasps.

Ottawa, April 16.—In an Imperial army order issued on the 2nd inst., it is announced that His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to confirm the order given by her late Majesty, that a medal be struck to commemorate the military operations in South Africa. The order proceeds:

The medal, in silver, will, provided the claims are approved by the commander-in-chief, be granted to all officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the British, Indian and colonial forces and to all nurses and nursing sisters who actually served in South Africa between October 11, 1899, and a date to be hereafter fixed; to all troops stationed in Cape Colony and Natal at the outbreak of hostilities, and to troops stationed in St. Helana between April 14, 1900, and a date to be hereafter fixed.

According to the regulations, Canadian Infantry will receive four clasps, "Cape Colony," "Paardeberg," "Dreilfontein" and "Johannesburg." D Batterymen will receive three clasps, "Cape Colony," "Orange Free State" and "Belfast."

The Mounted Infantry and Royal Canadian Dragoons will receive clasps for "Johannesburg," "Diamond Hill," "Cape Colony" and "Orange Free State." The Royal Canadian Dragoons will receive the "Belfast" clasp.

C Battery will also obtain the following: A clasp inscribed "Relief of Mafeking," will be granted to all troops under the command of Col. Mahon, who marched from Barkley West on May 4, 1900, and to all troops who were under Col. Plumer's command between October 11, 1899, and May 17, 1900, both dates inclusive, and who were south of an east and west line drawn through Palachive."

JAPAN IS HOSTILE.

Has Sent an Ultimatum Through Li Hung Chang to China, But It Is Really Intended for Russia.

London, April 16.—Japan has issued an ultimatum to China that Russia must be ejected from Manchuria, the alternative being that occupation of that Province shall become international instead of solely Muscovite.

While directed to Emperor Kwang Su, through Li Hung Chang, the ultimatum is undoubtedly meant for St. Petersburg. It is the serving of notice on the Czar that he must abandon Manchuria or fight.

The wording of the ultimatum does full credit to the reputation of Marquis Ito as the Bismarck of the Orient. Beneath the flowery language is concealed the mailed fist. First presented as a petition, Japan's demand is now couched in words of command.

It is significant that Li Hung Chang, ardent special pleader for Russia, should be chosen as the medium for transmitting the ultimatum, and especially so when it is considered that Japan sent her first message to Kwang Su through Prince Ching. It is shrewdly conjectured here that Earl Li's first message yesterday, after the receipt of the ultimatum, went to the Czar instead of to his own nominal sovereign.

That Japan has determined to precipitate a crisis in the far east is now no longer open to doubt. That, while openly acting independently, she has been promised support by other powers, Great Britain among them, is more than probable.

One thing is certain. Russia must now show her hand. She can no longer hide her purposes behind the assertion that she must retain her troops in Manchuria to preserve order and protect her interests. International aid in so doing is now offered her. That she will reject it is a foregone conclusion. Therefore, a clash seems inevitable.

Japan's assurance to China that all the nations regard the latter as a "friendly power" is interpreted here as an Oriental intimation to Russia that she herself is not considered in that category, as far as Japan is concerned.

Russian Marines Recalled.

London, April 16.—According to a despatch to The Daily Express from Tokio, dated yesterday, the detachment of Russian marines stationed at Na San Pho have been recalled, owing to Japanese representations.

"The Chinese Imperial Court, through the Chinese Minister at Tokio, has thanked Japan for assisting China to resist the Manchurian convention," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Standard, "and has asked for Japanese aid and support in any future contingency."

MYSTERIOUS DEATH—POISON.

Strange Result of an Inquest at Port Arthur, Ont.

Port Arthur, April 16.—The inquest to inquire into the death of Gracie Prevost, the 4½-year-old child who died at her parents' home on April 8, has disclosed an unexpected result. According to the evidence adduced, the child became ill, and when a physician was called in he found it to be suffering from convulsions, and detected a strong smell of alcohol. On Sunday, the day preceding the child's death, Maxime Prevost, the father, and Frank Duval, were in the house alone with the two children. They were both drinking, and Prevost gave several drinks of the gin, undiluted, to the little girl. She became drunk and about 9 o'clock, the mother, who had been to church, returned, and took the child, without comment, upstairs.

The jury, after considering the evidence, returned a verdict that the child came to her death by poison, accidentally.

JAUNT TO THE COAST.

Sir Wilfrid Will Have a Large Party With Him on His Holiday.

Ottawa, April 16.—A big Ministerial party, it is said, will go out to the coast when the House rises, or very soon afterwards. The Prime Minister will be the central feature in the group, and he will be accompanied, according to report, by Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Hon. W. Paterson, and Hon. Clifford Sifton. The party are likely to make a trip to Dawson by way of Skaguay and the White Pass Railway. Elaborate preparations will be made at the coast for welcoming the distinguished guests.

CENSUS CIRCULARS.

Mr. Fisher Promises an Investigation Will Be Held.

THE MANITOBA RAILWAY BILLS.

They Were Sent to the Railway Committee by Consent—The Cold Storage System—Mr. Fisher Shows What the Government Has Done and the Beneficial Results—Military Pensions.

Ottawa, April 16. — The House yesterday afternoon gave second readings to the bills confirming the contracts entered into by the Manitoba Government for leasing the Northern Pacific Railway lines in that Province and handing them over to the Canadian Northern. There was very little discussion, the bills being sent to the Railway Committee by consent, the members not being committed to either the principle or subject matter of the bills by this course. The fight was thus transferred to the Railway Committee. In reply to questions by Lieut.-Col. Prior, Dr. Borden explained some features of his proposed pension bill. In supply Mr. Fisher explained what the Government had done to improve the cold-storage system in connection with the transportation of Canadian produce. There was a prolonged debate upon the vote for the census, during which the Minister was the object of an attack in reference to the circular issued by Mr. Cote regarding the enumeration of people of French origin. The circular asking enumerators to report to Liberal candidates in Ontario the names of persons between the ages of 16 and 21, which formed the subject of debate in the Ontario Legislature last week, was also made the ground of an attack upon the Minister of Agriculture, who denied all knowledge of the circular, which had not emanated from his department, and expressed his intention of holding a departmental investigation to ascertain the facts before determining what further steps were necessary in the matter.

Read a Third Time.

These private bills were read a third time and passed:

To incorporate the St. Lawrence Lloyds.

Respecting the Manitoba and Northwest Loan Company.

To incorporate the Manufacturers and Temperance and General Life Assurance Company.

While the last-named bill was under consideration in committee, Mr. Clarke Wallace moved an amendment, the effect of which was to oblige the company to publish annually in its report "a statement of the financial account of each section of the company's business as it stands to date."

The mover explained that two rates were given by the company, one for total abstainers, and another for policy-holders who were not abstainers, and it was desirable the House should know to what extent the discrimination was justified.

The amendment was defeated and the bill went through as it left the Banking and Commerce Committee.

After an explanation by Mr. James Sutherland, to the effect that, by consenting to the second reading, members would not be considered to have committed themselves to the principle of the measure, the two bills respecting the lease by the Manitoba Government of certain railways was read a second time and referred to the select standing committee on railways.

Mr. H. R. Dobell stood up next to answer Mr. Northrup's question as to whether the report was correct that "for conscientious reasons" he could not support the purchase of the Plains of Abraham by the Government.

He said the statement attributed to him in the report in question was substantially correct, adding: "I don't think that conscientious scruples are matters for consideration in this House."

Mr. Northrup also inquired as to the circulars sent out by Assistant Census Commissioner Thomas Cote, as to the classification as "French" of persons with French names, regardless of whether or not they spoke the language or had ever Anglicized their names.

The reply of the Minister of Agriculture was that 1,855 of such "confidential" circulars had been sent out, 744 to Ontario, 196 to New Brunswick, 257 to Prince Edward Island and 441 to British Columbia. But, he said, instructions had also been sent to Quebec to classify the Frasers, Rosses and Pettygrews as English, although they might be French speaking.

The Matter of Pensions.

Col. Prior, on motion to go into supply, urged the necessity of giving pensions to the headquarters staff and to members of the permanent militia corps. A new interest had been lent to the importance of the militia since the colonies had gone to the assistance of the Mother Country in South Africa. He, therefore, hoped that the Government would look upon the matter of pensions more favorably than they did in years gone by. The work of organizing the force had fallen upon the headquarters staff, and in this instance the staff, considering the limited time at their disposal, had done well.

Col. Prior likened the headquarters staff to the boiler of the engines of war, and urged that the importance of the service receive permenent recognition.

Col. Prior advocated an expenditure annually of $1 per head, instead of 40 cents, and urged that rifles should be manufactured in Canada as well as ammunition.

Col. Thompson endorsed the project of the militia pensions.

Mr. Ross of Victoria, N. S., who was Minister of Militia in the Mackenzie Administration, also favored the scheme.

Lieut.-Col. Hughes advised a higher rate of pay, in addition to a retiring allowance.

Mr. Hyman warmly supported the proposal for an adequate allowance to permanent corps.

Dr. Borden was pleased, he said, at the turn of the debate, as it would prepare the House for the bill he intended to introduce in a few days. He argued that it was time Canada made proper provision for her permanent force. The bill would practically extend to the non-commissioned officers and men of the force the system of allowance now in force as regards the Northwest Mounted Police. There would be no contribution asked from the men, but officers would be required to contribute to the pension fund. But, in addition to the pension, the present retiring allowance of one-tenth of the salary for each year of service, would be continued as an annuity.

The House then went into committee of supply, and the estimates of the Minister of Agriculture were taken up.

On the vote for the census Mr. Bennett drew attention to Mr. Cote's circular asking enumerators to be careful that all Frenchmen are enrolled as such, and also to an effort made by the Ontario Government to have enumerators receive political information.

Mr. R. L. Borden said that it was practically admitted in the Ontario Legislature that such a circular had been issued, and the Minister of Agriculture should ascertain who had placed it in the hands of the enumerators. Whoever asked the enumerators to make such a return had asked them to commit perjury in disclosing information, and to defraud the Government by doing it during the hours for which they were paid by the Government. It was a disgrace that such a circular had been issued, and the facts were such as should impel the Minister of Agriculture to ascertain who was responsible.

Mr. Fisher said he had been misunderstood. He fully intended to look into the matter and ascertain the facts, after which he would be guided by the information he obtained in future action to be taken. His attention had only been called to the matter yesterday, and he could not be expected to depend upon newspaper reports, but must first ascertain the actual facts in a proper way. He assured the House that if any irregularities had been committed the offenders would be brought to book.

It was then discussed another hour, and finally allowed to stand to enable Mr. Fisher to be in a position to give the House further information.

The House adjourned at 12.30.

AN EXTRA CIRCULAR.

Hon. Mr. Fisher Sends a Notice to Census Commissioners.

Ottawa, April 16.—As Mr. Fraser stated in the House last evening, his attention was only yesterday called to the report of the debate in the Ontario Legislature upon an unauthorized schedule which, it was asserted, had been sent to census enumerators, requesting them to return to Liberal candidates for the Ontario Legislature a list of all males between 16 and 21 years of age. Last evening the following circular, which speaks for itself, was sent from the department to every census commissioner in Ontario:

The statement is made here that a schedule entitled, "Male residents 16 years of age and over," has been placed in the hands of census enumerators. If such a schedule has been employed it is fraudulent, and you are required forthwith to instruct all enumerators in your census district to discontinue it under pain of dismissal from office and prosecution and punishment under the provisions of the Census Act. Any such schedules in the possession of enumerators, whether filled or not, must be destroyed and delivery of them to any person or persons, or the retention of them by enumerators, will be visited with the full penalty of the law. See sections 11 and 15 to 19, inclusive, of the Census Act. Wire me to-morrow any information you may have regarding this matter, and of the use of the reputed schedule in your census district. (Signed) Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture.

Catarrh

The best authorities say, is a disease of the blood.

Therefore local applications cannot cure.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

By thoroughly purifying the blood, this great medicine reduces the inflammation of the mucous membrane and stops all catarrhal discharges of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, bladder and generative organs.

Catarrh is especially dangerous in persons who inherit or have acquired a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength and vigor that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and the peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the common-sense treatment for catarrh.

"I was a sufferer from nasal catarrh, gradually growing worse. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla which completely cured me of that troublesome disease." MAUD DOAN, 1615 Arrow Ave., Indianapolis, Ind. Be sure to get

Paine's Celery Compound

THE GREAT SPRING HEALTH BUILDER.

Owing to its peculiar and scientific combination Paine's Celery Compound is unequalled as a blood cleansing and health restoring medicine, and stands to-day at the head of all known spring remedies. The wondrous and matchless cures wrought by Paine's Celery Compound in dyspepsia, nervous prostration, kidney and liver complaints, troubles arising from impure and poisoned blood, rheumatism, neuralgia and insomnia, have won the admiration and confidence of all classes of our Canadian people.

If you are run down, weak, nervous or suffering from any of the common maladies mentioned above, Paine's Celery Compound is your only hope; it is the only medicine that can permanently banish your burden of misery, and give you that health, vigour and happiness your soul so earnestly desires. Mr. C. E. Beck, of Goderich, Ont., tells of his cure by Paine's Celery Compound:

"About thirteen years ago I had an attack of rheumatic fever. While recovering I took a cold and had a relapse which ended in inflammatory rheumatism, and was laid up two years. I was also greatly afflicted with sleeplessness and my doctor said I could not live to see my thirtieth year. While almost giving up in despair your Paine's Celery Compound was recommended to me. I bought a bottle and used it and to my surprise it gave me natural sleep and rest. After using six bottles I was entirely cured."

PREPARING CAVIARE.

Process by Which the Toothsome Edible Is Made Marketable.

By far the most valuable byproduct obtained from the sturgeon is the roe, from which the valuable commercial product called caviare is prepared. For this only the hard roe of the "cow" fish is supposed to be used. The manner of preparation is as follows:

After the eggs have been removed from the fish they are placed in large chunks upon a stand, the top of which is formed of a small meshed screen. On the underside is arranged a zinc lined trough, about 18 inches deep, 2 feet wide and 4 feet long. The operator gently rubs the mass of eggs back and forth over the screen. The mesh is just large enough to let the eggs drop through, and as they are separated from the membrane by the rubbing they fall through into the trough and are thence drawn off into tubs by means of a sliding door at the end of the trough.

After all the roe has been separated the tub is removed and a certain proportion of the best Luneberg (Germany) salt added to the roe, after which the operator carefully stirs and mixes the mass with his hands. The most delicate part of the whole operation is in the manner of mixing. No direct rule can be given for doing this portion of the work, as the condition of the roe regulates the time consumed and the manner of handling. It requires practical experience to become proficient.

After adding the salt the mass of eggs first dries up, but in 10 or 15 minutes the strength of the salt draws from the eggs their watery constituents and a copious brine is formed, which can be poured off when the tub becomes too full. The salted eggs are poured into very finely meshed sieves, which hold about ten pounds each. In the caviare house are usually arranged long, sloping boards, with narrow strips nailed on each side. On these the sieves are placed and are left there from 8 to 20 hours in order to thoroughly drain.

The eggs have now become caviare of commerce and are transferred to small casks of either oak or pine, which have been steamed in order to prevent any possible leakage; the casks are covered and allowed to stand until the gas escapes and the eggs settle. The vacant space caused by the settling is then filled, and the cask headed up and put in a cool place until ready for shipment. The casks cost about $1 each and hold about 135 pounds net. It requires about 11 quarts of salt to prepare a keg of caviare.

Mimicking the Queen.

Few people are perhaps aware how thoroughly Queen Victoria enjoyed a joke. A gentleman in waiting, whom we will call Mr. B——, distinguished for his imitative powers and dramatic talent, was a frequent visitor at both Windsor and Osborne. One day the queen, looking with a certain austerity straight into his face, demanded:

"Now, Mr. B——, I am perfectly well aware that when my back is turned you imitate me. I wish to see how you do it this minute!"

Poor Mr. B— fell straightway into the royal trap, crimsoned, faltered and utterly lost his countenance.

"Ah," exclaimed the queen, "I see I was right! You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" and then added, laughing as heartily as any schoolgirl, "But, mind you, don't do it again."

In the Dumps.

"I heard a man the other day," said a philologist, "give a novel derivation for the phrase 'in the dumps.' According to him, Dumops, an Egyptian king, built a pyramid and died of melancholy, and from Dumops' name and the story linked with it our word 'dumps' is derived. That is very ingenious and striking, only, like so many ingenious and striking things, it happens to be false. Our word 'dumps' comes from the Danish 'dump,' which means dull, low, depressed. The word, indeed, runs through a number of languages."

MIGHTIEST OF LOADSTONES.

It Attracts Not Only Metals, but Fishermen, Dogs and Hogs.

A deep hole of water in Nolyan creek, ten miles south of Hopdenville, Ky., has for some time been attracting attention by reason of the fact that it has a very strong suction. For years it has been known as the "suck hole." It is about 10 feet deep and about 50 yards long. The water is clear, and bottom can easily be seen. This hole has been watched by people in that section for a number of years, and it has also to some extent been avoided. It now develops that it is no "suck hole," but in the bottom of the river it is claimed there is a streak of powerful loadstone.

A man in that community recently constructed a large and substantial raft for the purpose of investigating the causes of the suction in this particular part of the river. It was discovered that the river bottom is solid rock and that through the center of the rock, running lengthwise, is a black streak. It is about five inches in width and runs the length of the hole. This streak was examined with a common fish gig and was found to be very hard. The gig adhered to the stone, and it took no little pulling to extricate it. Further investigation was made, and it is said the streak following the bottom of the river is undoubtedly powerful loadstone.

This hole was discovered over 40 years ago by Enoch Atteberry, who came near losing his life in the water, having been rescued by two men, who pulled him out by means of a long pole. Lum Wess and Luther Trulock also came near losing their lives in the hole a short time ago while seining. They were rescued half drowned by other members of the party. The attraction was so powerful toward a chain on the bottom of the seine that the seiners had to abandon it. The hole is not in the main stream, but is an outlet.

A dog thrown into the water never comes out, but is quickly drawn to the bottom. When a trout line is stretched across the place, the unseen energy attracts the hooks to the black streak and there holds them securely until they are drawn out. At times there is a strong undercurrent in the bayou, which is unaccounted for and which often sweeps the bottom clean, relieving the loadstone of its collection.

The locality of the "suck hole" is getting to be a much dreaded one, especially by the superstitious. It is known to all negroes as the "death hole," and farmers in that section find it difficult to employ negro help. Many cattle and hogs have been lost.

Spring Under Foot.

The first of Spring we gladly welcome. It means relief from the discomforts of winter. It means a relief from heavy and stout shoes and rubbers and other very desirable things—in their way and use.

Spring Footwear is as necessary and as seemly as Spring clothing. We look after Spring Footwear, and look after it well. Our trade demands the best in each line, for there are best things in goods of moderate price, just as well as in goods of the very finest manufacture. We sell to all, provide for all, meet all Wants. Neill's is a Word, taken as a store, that means a Welcome and a hearty service. Here are several lines for Spring:—

FOWLS AND THEIR FRUIT.

It is of no advantage to sell the old geese.

One drake and five ducks make a good breeding pen.

Feed cracked wheat to the little chicks as soon as they will eat it.

Regularity in feeding is of more consequence than quantity. Many poultry disorders are caused by alternate gorging and starving.

Never attempt too much. Keep only as many fowls as you have ample room for and only as many varieties as you can do justice to.

The evening ration should be of whole grain and generously fed, the object being to keep the crop of the fowls full during the night.

With proper care in selecting and mating, the qualities of a strain of fowls may be improved and their egg production increased as well as their plumage.

A DUNDAS FARMER

After Many Trials and Failures, and Much Expense, he at Last Finds a Cure for his Stomach. Leading Doctors had said he could not be Cured, but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets did it.

One of Hamilton's leading doctors, as well as the local physicians pronounced the case of Donald George Ross, a farmer of Dundas, Ont., one of Chronic Dyspepsia. They told him his was a very bad case, and gave him no hope of ever being completely cured.

Several of them treated him for some time, but failed to help him. He became alarmed.

The Dyspepsia had brought on severe headaches and nervousness, which for three years made his life one of misery.

To-day Mr. Ross has no headaches or nervousness. He has no dyspepsia. He has no Indigestion or Stomach Troubles of any kind. He can eat heartily and sleep well. In fact he is an all round well man. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured him.

He tells the story this way:

"For about three years I have been troubled with headaches and nervousness, caused by dyspepsia. I could not get any relief. The doctors told me I had a very bad case and that I would not get a cure. I became very much alarmed, and immediately consulted one of Hamilton's leading doctors, but to no use.

"I heard of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and determined to try them. I am now cured. From my experience I believe that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any case of Dyspepsia, and would strongly advise any sufferer who may have failed to find a cure through the doctors or other medicines, to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Mr. Ross' character and reputation for honesty, makes this voluntary testimonial a valuable tribute to the curative properties of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

All who suffer as Mr. Ross did, should be guided by his successful experience, to use the only remedy for Dyspepsia that never fails, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

No matter what anybody says, or how many medicines have failed in your case Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will not disappoint you.

"Whip Dog Days."

There is a curious old custom still extant in the city of York, England. St. Luke's day, Oct. 18, is known as "Whip Dog day," when it is allowed to whip any dog that is found on the street.

VESTRY MEETING OF ALL SAINTS.'

The Congregation Assembled in yearly Conclave.

ANNUAL REPORT WAS READ.

The Affairs of the Church Shown to be in a Most Satisfactory Condition—Minister's Stipend Increased.

The annual Vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held last night, and was largely attended.

The Church Wardens' report showed a considerable increase in the regular offertory, and splendid contributions towards the debt and the improvements in the church.

The total receipts for the year were $1,938, of which $1,093 was for current expenses, leaving a balance on hand of some thirty dollars. The average increase in the Sunday offerings was a little over two dollars a Sunday.

The contributions to Missions, and the various Synod collections were larger than ever before.

Mr. James Mulholland was appointed Rector's Warden, and the people elected Mr. James Edgar as their Warden.

Messrs. Bamford, Smith, Hooper, Goode, Dayman, Brundrette, Dryland and Hankinson were chosen as sidesmen, and Mr. Wm. Buller was appointed representative on the Charity Board of the town.

Rev. Mr. Armitage reported on his year's work, which showed increase in all the societies, the Sunday school and the number of communicants.

Amongst the gifts to the church during the year were a lawn mower by Mr. Burritt, a handsome pulpit light from Mr. Alexander, and a beautiful brass almsdish, an anonymous donation at Easter.

Since last Vestry a new pipe organ had been put in by Messrs. Breckels & Matthews of Toronto, and was felt to be satisfactory in every particular. A new pulpit, the work of Mr. A. Comstock, was also a great pleasure to all.

The thanks of the vestry were tendered to all contributors and to Messrs. Evans, Martin, H. Evans, Manley and Bell, for services during the year. Also to the choir and Mr. Lacheur, whose salary was increased $10.00.

An increase of $100.00 was made to Rev. Mr. Armitage's stipend and several eulogized his work and faithfulness. Mr. F. D. Kerr, warden of St. John's, was present, and spoke on the happy relations between the two congregations. He also referred to the high esteem in which Mr. Armitage is held both in the church and also in the town, and all were pleased that he had not accepted a tempting offer to go elsewhere.

A hearty vote of thanks was then passed to the rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, for presiding at the meeting and for his words and works of encouragement to the congregation.

At a subsequent meeting Mr. J. H. McClellan was re-elected lay-delegate to the synod.

YOUNG BURNS IN TROUBLE

HE IS CHARGED WITH INDECENT ASSAULT

Upon a Barnardo Home Girl Aged 16 Years—Sent up for Trial.

Arthur Burns, a young man employed as nightwatchman at the National Hotel, is now confined in jail having been committed for trial by Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday afternoon, on a charge of indecent assault upon a young Barnado Home girl, 16 years of age. The circumstances of the affair according to the young girl's story are about as follows: She arrived off the midnight train on Sunday morning and was disappointed to find no one on hand to meet her, which circumstance is explained by the fact that she should have arrived on an earlier train. Upon approaching several young men she inquired of them if there was anyone at the station from the Barnado Home. She was told there was not and then she says that the prisoner said that he was taking some passengers in that direction and would convey her up to the Home. She agreed to this and stepped inside the bus. At the hotel, which was reached in due time, it is said Burns, the prisoner, suggested to the regular driver, Macdonald, that he, (Burns) should take the girl on up to where she desired to go as well as another passenger going the same direction. Burns therefore took full charge. The other passenger was let out at some point which the girl cannot tell, not being acquainted with the town, and the busman drove on, the occupant of the bus at the time, knows not where. Burns then said that his horses were tired, that there was no light in the Home and that he was cold. He therefore entered the bus in which the girl was seated, turned down the light, and to say the least, according to her story, became too familiar with her. She says she cried aloud and the young man then drove her back to the hotel and got her a room for the night, acting at this time in a perfectly proper manner. But the girl would not stay. She walked out into the streets and finally came across P. C. McGinity, to whom she related her storey. Mr. McGinity brought her to the police station and from there P. C. Adams accompanied her to the Barnardo Home.

Burns was early next morning placed under arrest and was given a hearing yesterday afternoon. He will appear at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

FELL INTO THE FIRE.

A Baby Receives A Number of Severe Burns.

A-year-and-a-half-old child of Mr. Roland Hill, Weller street, had a narrow escape from being fatally burned this morning by falling into a bonfire.

It seems that a quantity of leaves and rubbish was being burned in the back yard, and the toddler being unwatched for an instant, fell into the flames. It's cries brought its mother quickly to the scene, and the little one was rescued before it received any but superficial injuries. The skin however is badly burned on the arms, legs, and face of the little one, and but for its prompt rescue, the result would without doubt have proved fatal.

Dr. Greer and Drs. D. C. and Lionel King were in attendance.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

They Are Making Good Progress With Their Work.

The census enumerators are making good progress with their work, which however, would be greatly facilitated if the various questions were answered with more directness. The enumerator has his instructions to secure the answers and as it comes to the same thing in the end the questions might as well be answered first as last.

The public should understand that the enumerator, as well as every official connected in any way with the compilation of the returns, is sworn to strict secrecy in the matter.

A NEW SIDING.

G. T. R. Surveyors Are at Work.—Tap The Grand Junction.

G. T. R. surveyors are in town to-day surveying the route for the proposed new siding to Matthews Coy's establishment, corner of Wolf and George streets. It is proposed to tap the Grand Junction line at the corner of Perry and Aylmer street. The siding if it is completed will fill a long felt want to the Matthews Company, and will place the G. T. R. on an equal footing with the C. P. R. in this regard.

A COMING LECTURE TREAT.

Miss Hill will Lecture in St. Paul's on the Evening of the 19th.

Miss H. M. Hill, of Toronto, a lady who had travelled much in Europe and who has the happy talent of being able to describe what she has seen in a most entertaing manner, will deliver a lecture illustrated with lime light views, in the school house of St. Paul's church, on Friday evening, April 19th, at 8 o'clock. The subject will be, "Reminiscences of Windsor Castle, Queen Victoria, and also many notable people and social events in England during the last two years." Miss Hill gave this lecture in St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, recently, and speaking of it, the Bishop of Toronto says: "Miss Hill's lecture derived much charm from the personal character of her reminiscences and the easy and graphic naturalness with which they were related. At a time when all thoughts turn so lovingly to the home life and surroundings of the mourned sovereign, such a chat as Miss Hill is able to give about these is most timely and welcome. The admirable lime light views exhibited by Canon McNab were a great help to the realism of the word pictures."

Tickets for the lecture on the 19th are 25 cents.

"Red Bird" Headquarters.

The famous "Red Bird" bicycle will have its headquarters in Peterborough this year with Mr. J. W. Young, who has leased the commodious premises centrally situated at No. 144 Hunter street, next to McDonald's drug store. Mr. Young knows the wheel business from the ground up, and stakes his reputation on the "Red Bird" first, last and all the time. Mr. Young will keep fully equipped with the new 20th century "Red Birds," built for ladies, gentlemen and youths. Full lines of bicycle supplies and repairs always on deck. Repair shop and livery in connection. Wheels rented by the day or week. Everybody welcome to inspect and criticize the new 1901 mounts. dtf

SHIRT WAISTS AND SHIRT WAIST MATERIALS.

The shirt waist season is once more with us and those who want exclusive designs in coloured shirt waists, should avail themselves of the opportunity of buying them when the stocks are new and well sorted.

We have a goodly assortment of both ready-to-wear shirt waists and materials to make them for those who prefer making their own.

The principal feature in blouses this season, or the biggest change in style, is the sleeves. The BISHOP SLEEVE is the correct thing in sleeves. It is a pretty hanging sleeve with fulness between the elbow and wrist, which takes the form of a dip just above the cuff, which is a plain narrow band with strap effect. The backs are plain backs—that is, without yokes.

We show some very pretty read-to-wear waists in COLOURED GOODS, which are finding favour with the Peterborough ladies, not only on account of the pretty designs, but the fit and styles are both different to what you see in ordinary blouses. They are decidedly exclusive.

WHITE BLOUSES or SHIRT WAISTS will be very extensively used for midsummer wear this season and their pretty combinations with insertions, lace, etc., are simply innumerable.

IN MATERIALS FOR MAKING BLOUSES we show new ideas in Print Ginghams, Muslins, Percales and other materials. If you want novelties, buy early, as the pretty things are always picked up first.

In White Lawns we show both the Victoria and India Lawns in all qualities. You'll find our prices lower than elsewhere and you get the best goods here always.

CLARKE & GIBSON

TRENT VALLEY DEPUTATION.

THE GOVERNMENT URGED TO COMPLETE THE CANAL.

Great Industries Depending Upon the Waterway—Mr. Blair Shows What is Being Done.

The Globe's Ottawa correspondent says: A deputation of about one hundred, representing residents of Peterborough, Northumberland and Hastings Counties, waited upon Hon. A. G. Blair, Sir Richard Cartright and Hon. Jas. Sutherland Friday, and urged that measures be taken for the early completion of the Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Dumble, President of the Peterborough Board of Trade, admitted that they were very importunate in the matter of the Trent Canal, but the wonderful development at Sault Ste. Marie, the establishment of iron works at Collingwood and Midland, and the inauguration of cereal works at Peterborough, and cement works at Lakefield, had resulted in an industrial activity, which called for cheap and improved transportation facilities.

Mr. Kilbourn, President of the Lakefield Cement Company, spoke of the advantage which the completion of the canal would give, in the matter of cheap freight rates, to the industries established on its banks near Peterborough. He mentioned particularly the cereal works, the cement factory and the Kirkfield works for the production of peat fuel.

Hon. George A. Cox said he had never failed to remind the Minister of Railways of the importance of the Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Blair—I can certify to that. (Applause.)

Mr. Cox—The fact is the people do not understand the importance and utility of this work, otherwise they would soon want the money for its completion. I had a great deal to do with the location of the canal works in Peterborough, and I do not believe they would have been established there had it not been for the prospect of the early completion of the canal. The President of the company said to me: "The fact that we will be able when this work is completed to float grain from our elevator at Chicago to our mill at Peterborough, even although we may not use it to the extent of one ton of stuff, is a very great matter in regulating our freight rates." The only thing that can justify the expenditure so far made upon the work is the early completion of the canal.

Hon. Mr. Blair, in reply, said he did not suppose the deputation imagined that they would receive a definite assurance or statement as to what the action of the Government would be. There were differences of opinion upon this, as upon other points, and some people did not consider the enterprise was of the general character and importance which the deputation believed it to be. Some people thought it was taking too sanguine a view of the character of the work to assume that the enterprise was at all likely to give a competing route with that via Buffalo. From the local point of view all would acknowledge its importance. The Government was asking for a vote of $1,000,000 to complete the Lake Simcoe end of the canal. When that was done the extension of the other end would be taken up. He realized the importance of what had been said with respect to the Trenton section, but the Government had to heed legitimate claims for public works from other parts of Canada. He trusted, therefore, that the deputation would not consider it unreasonable if he asked them to be content with the appropriation for the Lake Simcoe end for the present, bearing in mind the importance and magnitude of the innumerable claims which the Government had to meet.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETICS.

All the out-door sports in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Athletic Club will be arranged for this week. Tennis is already under way—the courts are in fine condition.

Lacrosse enthusiasts will meet on Wednesday evening at 7.15 o'clock. Representatives to the Y.M.C.A. Athletic Club will be elected. They will decide when to practice also.

Association Football men will meet on Thursday evening at 7.30 sharp. Prospects are very bright for the coming season. All the old men as well as new are asked to be present to elect representatives, settle practice nights, etc.

Track athletics will be arranged for on Saturday. Pole vaulting, shot putting, jumping, hurdling, sprinting and all outdoor athletics will be indulged in.

LACROSSE.

The Peterborough's will in all probability play a number of exhibition games this summer. With Glover, the two McCabes, Lipsett, McDonough, McWilliams and Dillon to start with, quite a husky team could be placed on the field. Campbellford wants the Peterboroughs for the 24th of May, as does Lindsay.

Cobourg and Port Hope teams are getting into shape.

CRICKET.

A meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Colts' Cricket Club will be held in the office of Mr. R. E. Wood's at 7 o'clock to-morrow night.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

The Port Hope Guide says: "Mr. J. F. Clark, our representative to Ottawa on the Trent Valley Canal deputation, arrived at noon to-day, and reports a strong opposition to Port Hope route by the Trenton delegates and their friends, who in their efforts to exclude Port Hope and Cobourg, overshot the mark, thereby influencing the Government not to proceed this year with the the construction of the canal to Lake Ontario. The decision will afford the Government ample time to fully investigate the merits of the Port Hope route."

LECTURE ON LIFE OF JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

BY MR. KENNY OF LINDSAY, LAST NIGHT.

Under the Auspices of St. Peter's T.A.S. —An Interesting Address.

The last of a most profitable series of entertainments under the auspices of St. Peter's T. A. S., was given in the rooms of the society last night, when Mr. M. J. Kenny, of Lindsay, delivered an address on John Boyle O'Reilly. Mr. Kenny is a fluent and eloquent speaker, and in a short though interesting address reviewed the life of the noted Irishman. The chair was occupied by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, who opened the proceedings with a few brief remarks.

The programme was opened by a piano duett by the Misses Doris.

Mr. O'Connell in introducing the lecturer of the evening referred to the previous occasion on which Mr. Kenny had visited Peterborough, and to his prominent position in the bar of the district.

MR. KENNY.

Mr. Kenny after acknowledging very modestly, the very kind references that had been made concerning him by the chairman, alluded to the circumstances under which he was visiting Peterborough. He had always felt it an honour to visit the town, but more so perhaps on the present occasion, when he was present under the auspices of the Total Abstinence Society, the organization, he ventured to say, that was doing more good than any other society in town. The success of the T.A.S., might in a large measure be due to the efforts of the clergy, but were it not for the enthusiasm of the members they might not be in the flourishing condition they are at present. He congratulated the society on its progress.

Proceeding with his subject, the speaker said that it was one of great interest to the Irish Catholics of the country, as well as to people of all nationalities and creeds, because of his principles, which were those of generosity and kindness, and which if taken example of by others will be instrumental in bringing about much good. John Boyle O'Reilly was orn near the town of Drogheda, in the most picturesque part of picturesque Ireland, in the year 1844.

Continuing, Mr. Kenny took up the early life of O'Reilly, his first occupation being that of a printer in the office of the Preston, England, Guardian. In 1865 he enlisted as a trooper in the Tenth Hussars, and a short while afterwards he began to sow the seeds of dissension in the ranks. This was as he intended, and was brought about by the failure of Daniel O'Connel to secure the repeal of the union through agitation, the expected aid from the people of the Northern States of the American Republic, the belief that there was no abatement in the injustice that was alleged to have been meted out to the people of Ireland, and the fact that 30 per cent. of the British Army was Irish. O'Reilly therefore believed that the Irish section of the army would declare themselves for the Irish cause. His scheme was discovered and O'Reilly was sentenced to be shot. This was afterwards commuted to a sentence of 20 years in jail. After 8 months he was sent to Australia to finish his sentence, but after serving 2 years he escaped. The story of his adventure across the ocean was most amusing. He reached the City of Boston without money and there began to make a home for himself. He soon became the editor in chief of the Boston Pilot, and began to make a name for himself. The lecturer at this juncture read several articles from the Pilot to show his liberal views. There was something more than the fact that he was eloquent and clever that brought him into such prominence in the land of his adoption. This was the hand of friendship that he was always willing to extend towards Protestants. He was a practical Catholic.

"Races and sects were to him profanity.
Hindoo and Negro and Celt were one,
Large as mankind was his splendid humanity
Large in its records the work he has done."

In conclusion Mr. Kenny spoke of the lessons that are to be learned from studying the life of John Boyle O'Reilly.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by Mr. Michael O'Brien.

Mr. Pakenham rendered a couple of vocal selections, and a very pleasant and profitable evening was brought to a close.

LAID AT REST.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. John Phelan This Morning.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Phelan, who died in Wisconsin, and whose remains were brought to Peterborough for interment, took place from the residence of her brother, Mr. T. Cavanagh, Stewart street, at 9 o'clock this morning, to St. Peter's cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic burying ground. The deceased was well known in and around Peterborough, having left here about 8 years ago to reside in the States. The remains were accompanied to Peterborough by her two sons, Richard and John.

CROSSED RICE LAKE.

Mr. Charley Calcutt Walked From Harwood on the Ice.

On Sunday last Mr. Charley Calcutt crossed Rice Lake on the ice from Harwood to the north shore. This appears to be a most extraordinary venture at this season of the year, but it is nevertheless a fact. Capt. Calcutt did it more for the sensational experience than anything else.

THE MARCH OUT.

The 57th Regiment Will Have a Parade This Evening.

The weekly parade and march out of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, will take place this evening. A full turn out is urgently requested. The band of the regiment will be at the drill shed at 7.30 o'clock. Members of the band are requested to bear this in mind. The regiment will march down George street promptly at 8 o'clock. The ranks are filling up in fine style and the turn out to-night will likely be quite large.

THREE YOUNG LADIES

Endorse the Curative Powers of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

1

Oct. 15th, 1900.

MISS KATE A. SPECK, Arden, Man., writes:

"Before taking Milburn's Pills I was greatly troubled with nervousness, dizziness and palpitation of the heart, followed by pain and weakness. I took two boxes of the Pills and have not had a bad spell since."

2

August 27th, 1900.

MISS MARY PEARRON, Corinth, Ont., writes:

"My system was badly run down, and I was very nervous and could not sleep.

My heart palpitated, and the slightest exertion caused distressing shortness of breath, and left me tired and weary.

After taking four boxes of Milburn's Pills all of the above troubles disappeared, and I am now completely cured."

3

Oct. 10th, 1900.

MISS BESSIE UNDERHILL, Margate, P.E.I., writes:

"I have been troubled with Neuralgia of the Heart ever since I was eight years old. I heard of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I procured a box and gave them a trial. They have done me so much good that I think it my duty to write you and express my thanks for the wonderful benefit I received from their use."

THE BURGLAR'S BIBLE.

He Said That He Would Get It Back Again, and He Did.

Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin when a young man was attorney for two men charged with stealing.

There had been taken from the men a well worn Bible and a small drawer. On the fly leaf of the Bible was the inscription, "To My Darling Boy, From Mother."

The trial was held the next day, and the future senator made a brilliant speech to the jury. He exhibited the Bible and pointed to the inscription, and without leaving their seats the jury returned a verdict of "Not guilty."

After the trial the young men gave the lawyer $50.

"Boys," said Mr. Spooner as they were about to separate, "I am curious to know why you carry that Bible and the empty drawer." Then the senator listened with astonishment to the history of his clients.

"We are professional safe blowers and have been for five years. This Bible has a double cover and opens like this" (here the self confessed criminal pressed a hidden spring in the thick cover and disclosed a hollow in which there lay two steel files and a small saw), "and this old drawer has a secret bottom, where we keep our tools."

The future senator confiscated the Bible and the drawer.

One of the thieves shouted angrily, "We'll get those things back yet, you mark my words!"

Several years passed, and then the incident was brought back to Mr. Spooner's recollection in the following manner: One evening he and his family attended an entertainment, and no one was left at the house. When they returned at a late hour, they found that the house had been entered by burglars and ransacked, but that nothing apparently was missing. The next day's mail brought a letter which read:

Dear Sir—Please excuse the way we came in last night, but the door was locked. We never did think you treated us squa. by swiping our outfit, and so we came back after it and found you were not at home. We always keep our word. Yours truly, JACK AND JIM.

THE BARGAIN CRAZE.

Men, It Is Alleged, Are as Much Infected as the Women.

"This perennial joke about the love of women for bargains wearies me," said a bright business woman the other day. "With most presumptuous superiority men charge our sex with an extravagant zeal for bargains, but I see enough of business men to assure me that they are just as eager as women are to get an article at a few cents less than the usual price.

"Mr. A—— is generally extravagant in his personal expenditures, but he is keen after bargains. The other day he came into our office wearing an air of great satisfaction, and his jubilation had no other foundation than the discovery of a street stand where 'seconds' in lead pencils were sold at 2 cents each.

"'If you know a good pencil when you see it,' he explained, 'you can rummage in the pile and pick out 5 and 10 cent pencils at 2 cents each or three for 5.

"'And that reminds me of another bargain. You know the 10 cent cigars I smoke? Well, there is a little shop down near the ferry where you can get them four for a quarter. I just heard of the place and ran down there at lunchtime and filled my pockets. Great bargain.'

"And would you believe it, that man, whose transactions run into the millions, went on telling my employer of bargains in clothes, stationery, etc., and Mr. B—— stopped in the midst of his estimates on a big contract to note addresses and to tell Mr. A—— of bargains he had discovered in neckwear and shoes and household supplies.

"Yet women are said to monopolize the bargain hunting disease."—New York Press.

Cost of a London Fog.

A London fog is an expensive visitation. A day of it, counting the day at eight hours, is estimated to cost anything from £50,000 to £100,000 in hard cash. No small proportion of this goes to the gas and electric light companies, which have to supply about a third more power than usual. But there are also the railways. Fog signaling is expensive. At Clapham Junction alone £50 has been spent by a single railway company during a day's fog in extra pay to the plate layers. When the red light cannot be seen at a distance of a hundred yards, the plate layers become fog signalers, and for this they are paid a shilling a day in addition to their regular wages and fourpence per hour overtime, providing the overtime does not run into a second shilling.—London Chronicle.

When Mr. Gladstone was alive, he was once discussing with some friends at Hawarden castle the greatest day in the world's history. Each member of the group was asked to say on which day he, in the past or the future, would prefer to live, it being supposed that he should have his present knowledge and afterward return to his present existence. Mr. Gladstone chose a day in Greece when Athens was at its highest glory.

Putnam's Corn Extractor

MOTHER AND CHILD

Let the mother take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil for the two; it is almost never superfluous.

One can eat for two; but nourishing two is a different thing; it implies a degree of interior strength not often found in woman of either extreme.

Luxurious people are not very strong by habit, and overworked people are weak from exhaustion in some of their functions. Between the two is the happy mean; but how many women have plenty of life for two?

The emulsion is almost never superfluous.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

THEY TWO.

They are left alone in the dear old home
After so many years,
When the house was full of frolic and fun,
Of childish laughter and tears.
They are left alone, they two, once more,
Beginning life over again,
Just as they did in the days of yore,
Before they were nine or ten.

And the table is set for two these days;
The children went one by one
Away from home on their separate ways
When the childhood days were done.
How healthily hungry they used to be!
What romping they used to do!
And mother—for weeping—can hardly see
To set the table for two.

They used to gather around the fire
While some one would read aloud,
But whether at study or work or play
'Twas a loving and merry crowd.
And now they are two that gather there
At evening to read or sew,
And it seems almost too much to bear
When they think of the long ago.

Ah, well, ah, well, 'tis the way of the world!
Children stay but a little while
And then into other scenes are whirled,
Where other homes beguile,
But it matters not how far they roam
Their hearts are fond and true,
And there's never a home like the dear old home
Where the table is set for two.
—Mrs. Frank A. Breck in Youth's Companion.

THE "L" ROAD MANNER.

Startling Transformation It Effects in the New York Swell.

"In New York there has developed what might be called an elevated road manner, which must in the end obliterate every vestige of good breeding," says John Gilmer Speed in Ainslee's. "Let us follow a man who has acquired this manner, say, from his home in West Seventy-second street, New York, to his office in Wall street. At 9 in the morning he has had his breakfast, looked over his newspaper, seen his children off to school, kissed his wife goodby and steps out into the handsome street in which he lives. He is well groomed. His boots are highly polished, his gloves are fresh, his hat is brushed to a glistening smoothness. He walks erectly, with his head up and eyes to the front. He seems the personification of prosperous amiability and unruffled content. He walks toward the elevated station.

"As he hears the trains thundering along he quickens his pace. When he gets to the bottom of the stairs, he jams his hat tighter on his head and begins to rush up two steps at a leap. When he gets to the top, he crowds to the window for his ticket, rushes through the gate and reaches the platform very red in the face and his blood full of the heat of battle. Every weaker man, woman and child must get out of his way, for he must be the first on the train. Sometimes he is and sometimes not, for there are hundreds of others just like him in that very neighborhood, and they are all, every mother's son, trying to do exactly the same thing.

"When he enters the train, he makes himself as disagreeable as possible, for his bulky body enables him to clear a way by merely leaning on the others who have to stand. Upon the men who have seats he frowns as though they had usurped rights which were his. And so all the way down town he is a burly bully, ready to fight anything that comes in his way. Finally his station is reached, and he rushes through the long arcade leading to Broadway as though there were a prize waiting for him in that great thoroughfare. And there is.

"In Broadway he regains his serenity. He readjusts his hat, he pulls down his waistcoat, he shakes himself together and reassumes the look of well being which he had when he left his own doorstep. All day he is patient, courteous, quiet and mannerly. He leaves his office to go home with the same self poise. But when he reaches the elevated railway stairs the same devil which possessed him in the morning takes him in hand and stays with him till his home street is reached. This is a very interesting type of ill mannered metropolitans. I often speculate as to how long this Jekyll and Hyde business can be kept up. Even in Stevenson's story the good Jekyll was finally lost in the vicious Hyde."

THE CYNIC.

A love affair is the only thing that will open some men's pocketbooks.

The friends who have something disagreeable to say to you always find time to call.

If a woman has absolute faith in her husband, it is a great compliment to his powers of concealment.

Things even themselves up. When the grocery bill is small, it means that the dry goods bill will be larger than usual.

Everything seems to be produced on a larger scale than 20 years ago except the strap that hung behind the kitchen door.

The doctrine that it is more blessed to give than to receive is always entertained by those persons who believe the world owes them a living.

FOREIGN NOTES.

In the matter of crops Germany last year merely held its own as compared with the previous year.

Queensland, Australia, is 12 times larger than England, with a population about equal to that of Birmingham.

Some time ago German postoffices were established in the cities of Smyrna, Beirut and Jerusalem, in Asiatic Turkey.

The total value of the rice exported from Siam during 1899 was $22,834,160 Mexican. Rice is Siam's staple product.

On a recent municipal election day in Wurttemberg only one person—a police sergeant—took the trouble to vote, and he elected the whole municipal council.

Lincoln as a Life Saver.

William A. Newell, who had the rare distinction of being governor of two states—New Jersey and Washington—told in Success of his romantic experiences as a congressman in 1849, when he originated the life saving service by offering a resolution in the house of representatives to appropriate money to save lives imperiled by the sea. Fellow members of congress at that session were John Quincy Adams and Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Newell said:

"Various objections were made to my motion, the strongest of which was that the scheme was impracticable. I laid the matter before a great many senators and members, speaking to them in person. Ex-President John Quincy Adams occupied a seat just behind mine and after the reading of the resolution clerk leaned forward and said to me, 'I would like to see that resolution.' I sent for it and handed it to him. He read it over carefully and, handing it to me, said, with a smile: 'It is good. I hope it will prevail.' Abraham Lincoln also read it and said: 'Newell, that is a good measure. I will help you. I am something of a life saver myself, for I invented a scow that righted itself on the Mississippi sand bars.'"

Calling the Doctor.

A good story is told of Dr. X., who is the physician in charge of the female wards of one of our best known charitable institutions. One evening about 9 o'clock Mary, a new Irish servant girl, knocked at the door, saying:

"Doctor, the head nurse wants you to come down to supper."

The doctor, swelling in his pride of superiority above the nurses, sent the Irish girl away with a curt message. Half an hour later the head nurse came to his room looking very serious.

"Doctor," she said, "No. 8 is very bad indeed. I think you ought to see her at once."

"Why did you not let me know before?" was the reply.

"Why, doctor," said the nurse, "I sent you word by Mary half an hour ago."

"The fool!" said the doctor. "She told me to come down to supper!"

"Why," said the nurse, "I sent you word to come down to eight!"

An inquiry made the whole thing clear. Mary thought it more polite to say "Come down to supper" than to say "Come down to ate."

A Sensitive Scot.

A sensitive Scot rebukes the London Daily Chronicle for saying that his countrymen pronounce man "mon." "The absurd form 'mon,' he writes, "is the hall mark of Scots' vernacular as written by a southern pen, and its intrusion has often lent additional sadness to comic journalism, even, alas, to the pages of our chief humorous periodical. In the north of England 'mon' certainly occurs; in Scottish speech never. In Scott and Stevenson one may look for it in vain. The broad, soft vocalization of the word in Lothian dialect lies somewhere between 'maun' and 'maan,' but as it cannot be literally symbolized the word should be spelt in dialect passages simply as in English."

Accordingly.

"She's well educated, isn't she?"

"Well, she's one of those women who can pass as being that way. When she meets any one who can speak French and not German, she can speak German, and when she meets any one who can speak German and not French she can speak French."

His Mistake.

"How lovers are given to freaks of fancy!"

"What's the case in point?"

"Here's a story where a fellow calls his girl's hair golden, and the accompanying picture shows it's only plaited."

A POKER FAIRY TALE

QUEER CLIMAX OF THE WIND UP JACK POT OF THE GAME.

Manxy Displayed Wonderful Powers of Perception and Analysis, Won the Pool and Saved His Opponent the Amount of the Last Raise.

"Manxy was one of the best poker players I ever saw. He was a good winner and a good loser. He played his cards all the time for everything they were worth and then some more, and he played a game that was simply insoluble."

The board of trade man leaned back in his chair and smiled reminiscently.

"Manxy not only had Hoyle down so that he could recite the poker rules backward and say 'sir' after each word, but he rose to the higher science of the game. He made a careful study of every man around the board, and he never played a card but what he darted a keen, sweeping glance at every player and drew his conclusions as to what they were about to do. If a player had any little tricks or habits that asserted themselves in spite of efforts to repress them, Manxy knew them by heart.

"I will never forget the night he took Carter into camp. Carter was a good, cool, nervy player too. He was an old player and possessed splendid judgment. One night we had been playing several hours, and as it was getting toward daylight we agreed to have one more round of jack pots and then go home. We had our round of jack pots, three of which Carter won, and then decided on one last consolation jack pot, with no limit but the roof and $5 to come in. Carter raised the come in to $20, and everybody dropped out except Manxy and one other player. Manxy called for three cards, showing that he had only one pair or nothing at all; the other man took two cards, indicating that he must have threes of a kind, or else he wouldn't have paid $20 for the privilege of playing any longer, and Carter stood pat.

"That looked bad. Carter had never been known to stand pat on anything but something that was worth while. He must have had something pretty good to raise the come in to $20, and his standing pat argued that he either had fours or else a straight or a flush. He had betrayed a nervous start when he first picked up his hand, and it argued that he had seen something awfully good. Now, Manxy had seen the start that Carter gave and knew his style of play well enough to argue that Carter had seen something even better than a straight or a flush, and that was a straight flush, something that comes once in a great, long while in a poker game. In fact, Manxy came to the conclusion that Carter had a straight flush, and the fact of the matter was that a straight flush in spades, king high, was just exactly what Carter had seen in his five cards when he picked them up.

"Manxy deliberated a long time before he came in with his $20, but he was out $75 or $100 on the game, and as it was the last pot he determined to stand a good bit of money in the hopes of making a recoup. He drew to a pair of tens and caught one more. Manxy started the betting with a $10 bill. The other man dropped out, and Carter saw the $10 and raised $25. That looked as though Manxy's surmise about the straight flush which he thought Carter was holding was good. He deliberated for some time. Then he said:

"'Carter, I think and everybody around here thinks you've got something better than fours. I was playing you for that. But now I'll tell you, Carter, what I'm going to do. I've noticed that your eyesight is bad and that tobacco smoke when it is right in front of your face always interferes for a moment or two with your vision. Just as you picked up your cards I noticed that you puffed a great cloud of smoke out of your mouth and that the cloud of smoke was in your eyes when you looked at your cards. Now, I believe that you think you have a straight flush, but I don't believe that you read your cards correctly. I am going to do something that may seem to be awfully bad poker, considering the hand I have, but I am going to play you for your poor eyesight. I see your bet of $25 and raise it $25 more on the ground that your eyes deceived you. You'd better study your cards before you see my raise.'

"We all waited in breathless silence for a moment, then Carter quietly threw his cards face upward on the table.

"'You're right,' he said quietly. 'I thought I had a spade straight flush, king high, in my hand. What I thought was a nine of spades was a nine of clubs. I lose.'

He Went.

One of those gilded youths who "don't care to dance, old chappie; too much of a beastly bore," was recently taken down in a manner which hugely delighted the hearers. Airing himself in a London ballroom, he was pressed by his host to take part in the worship of Terpsichore, but for a long time resisted. At last, moved by the statement that his proposed partner was exceptionally pretty and an heiress withal, he relented.

"Well, twot her out, deah boy," he drawled.

He was promptly led up to the expectant fair one, but unfortunately she had overheard his remark. The introduction took place, and the maiden, raising her pince nez, surveyed him with a critical air for some score of seconds. Then, with a shrug and a perfect imitation of the youth's lisping drawl, she said:

"No, thanks, deah boy; twot him back again."—London Answers.

Victoria's High Spirit.

That Queen Victoria had a high spirit when a child is well known, and once she displayed it in a very determined manner. Being one day, when in a reluctant mood, told by her music teacher that without industry and perseverence she would never become mistress of the piano, the princess cried out:

"But what would you think of me if I became the mistress of it within the next minute?"

"That you cannot do," said the music teacher. "There is no royal road to music."

"Well, there is a royal way of becoming mistress of the piano," said the princess, at the same time shutting down and locking the lid of the instrument and putting the key into her pocket, "and there it is."

She quickly, however, repented of her hasty temper and made a pretty apology to the music teacher.

The Joker's Addition.

A grocer had written on his window the other day, "Only fresh laid British eggs sold here."

Next morning some joker had written underneath. "We scorn the foreign yoke."—Tit-Bits.

None to Imitate.

"Now, Johnny," his mother said, as they started for church. "I want you to behave like a good little boy."

"I can't!" blubbered Johnny. "I don't know any good little boy!"

Test of Merit.

If the test of merit is the length of time a proprietary medicine remains a seller, then BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS is a record breaker. It has now been over twenty years on the market and stands out prominently as one of the biggest sellers to-day. In all that time you can count on one hand all the ($) dollar preparations that have sold over 100,000 bottles in any one year. B. B. B. is one of them, and still stands in the first rank, not only as a seller, but in the estimation of those who have used it as a family medicine for the cure of boils, pimples, dyspepsia, constipation and bad blood. Its healing, cleansing and purifying properties manifest themselves in curing all blood and skin diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

Testimony from one who has used it:

October 22, 1900.

MRS. PRICE, Hamilton, Ont., says: "About three months ago I was covered with pimples, was very nervous, and had dizzy spells several times a day. I took three bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS and it completely cured me. I now recommend it to all my friends."

Mr. Haddon Chambers has finished a one act play, to which he has given the title of "Blue Roses." The characters are three in number, and the story is of a neglected wife.

Another monarch has come into the field of dramatists to rival Emperor William. The Prince of Montenegro has written "The Empress of the Balkans," and it may soon be acted.

Sir Henry Irving has bought a blank verse drama to produce after "Coriolanus" in London this spring and in New York next fall. It is by Fergus Hume, author of many sensational novels.

INDIANS AND THE FUTURE.

They Believe That After Death the Spirit Becomes an Animal.

Charles Gibson, the Indian poet and writer, described the Indian's idea of the future as follows:

"The Indian knows nothing of a Christ Child having been born on Dec. 25 or any other month to save the so called sinner. He knows no sin. He says that he came here without his own consent, and if he does any sinning in the body he sees no reason why his soul should suffer for the sins of the body, and if his soul is sent to hell for his sins, all right, let it go to hell and suffer, as he will know nothing about the matter nor the suffering of the soul. He says there is no fear of hell in his make up, as he is nothing but an Indian until death removes him, and then he is fit for nothing but worm food.

"As to the happy hunting ground, he knows nothing of it. This happy hunting ground has been got up by the paleface. The Indian says he doesn't go to hell or heaven just as soon as he dies. He claims that the life that was in his carcass enters on another life by being a bird, cat, dog, wolf or most any animal that has life. They are very careful about abusing little animals as cruelly as is pictured by the white man. The old buck always cautions the little bucks about being cruel to any animal or bird that is not to be eaten.

"The Indian believes there are certain animals and birds that are not for food. The little ones of the Indians are always careful of hurting a cat, dog or anything else wantonly, as they are told that after their death they are liable to be a dog, cat, bird or something of the kind. A full blood Indian never kills or cripples anything he doesn't eat. The Indian on his native heath is not as savage as he is pictured. They were a little savage on the white man in early days; but, like other men, when the conqueror's foot is upon his neck he has surrendered.

"Once in a great while you will find an Indian who hates a white man because the Indian has been mistreated by the white man. On his native heath he has no religion. He says that he was not placed upon earth by any one; that he came out of the bowels of the earth, out of what he terms the navel of the earth.'

The Immensity of Space.

Light travels from Jupiter's satellites at the same rate as it does from our gas lamps. A few years ago, says a London newspaper, a star suddenly came into sight, burst into first order brightness and then in five or six weeks died out of sight. Difference of opinion existed between spectroscopists like Huggin and Lockyer as to what it meant, but there was general agreement that what we saw was something that happened in the time of Queen Elizabeth, only that the light had taken 300 years to reach us. It was the "latest news," in fact, from that part of the heavens. The rate of transmission no one questioned.

Cast iron plows were first made in this country in 1797 and were greatly objected to from the belief that the cast iron poisoned the ground and prevented the plants from growing.

THE SESSION ENDED.

Lieut.-Gov. Sir Oliver Mowat Dismisses the Legislators.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

The Attendance of Members Was Barely Large Enough to Validate the Proceedings—112 Bills Assented to By His Honor—Many Measures of Importance Referred to in the Speech.

Toronto, April 16.—The Legislature was formally prorogued yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The attendance of members was small, barely sufficient, in fact, to validate business proceedings. A large number of citizens were present, both on the floor of the House and in the galleries. The speech of His Honor, Sir Oliver Mowat, referred in complimentary terms to the important legislation of the session. Assent was given to the bills of the session, which number no less than 112.

His Honor was received by a guard of honor from the 48th Highlanders, accompanied by the band. The speech from the throne was as follows:

Speech From the Throne.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

In dismissing you from the arduous labors of the session, I have to thank you for the attention given to the public duties imposed upon you, and for the valuable legislation which I have just sanctioned.

I cordially approve of the measures for connecting the railway system of Ontario by means of the Manitoulin & North Shore Railway, with the unsettled districts lying to the east of Lake Superior, the effect of which, I trust, will be to add greatly to the productive area of a hitherto unoccupied part of the public domain.

I have assented with much pleasure to the act respecting the University of Toronto. The changes made in the organization of the university and the assistance granted for the maintenance and extension of the departments which bear upon the industries of the Province will, I am confident, add materially to the usefulness of the university and to its claims upon the continued confidence of the people. The acts also for amending and consolidating the laws respecting public and high schools have my hearty approval.

Your efforts to facilitate transportation throughout the Province by simplifying the machinery for the addition of tolls and by granting $1,000,000 for the improvement of public highways, are, I believe, in the public interest. It is of great importance to the farmers of the Province that they should be able to reach, at all seasons of the year, the markets at which they dispose of their produce with reasonable comfort and as cheaply as possible. The advantages which these measures afford will, I trust, prove satisfactory.

The measure for the encouragement of the manufacture of beet root sugar deserves public favor. The establishment of a new industry so closely connected with advanced methods of agriculture and with the activities of rural life cannot fail to improve the condition of that important class of the people of the Province who depend for their subsistance upon the profits to be made from the cultivation of the soil.

I notice with much satisfaction the recognition so well deserved which is given to the volunteers who served in South Africa, as well as to the volunteer militia of Ontario who served on the frontier in 1866 and 1870. The grant of 160 acres of land to each of the volunteers and their families is, I believe, a wise appropriation from the public domain, and will, I am sure, be appreciated by those to whom it is given, and, at the same time, be regarded by the people of the whole Province as a just tribute to the patriotism of the men who risked their lives in the interests of the Empire and the Province.

The amendments made to the municipal and assessment acts for improving and rendering more effective the government and powers of municipal corporations and to other statute laws of the Province with a view to improving the administration of justice will be of material advantage to all classes of the community.

I notice that the private legislation of the session indicates, as usual, the increasing wants of our people. These measures, some of which are of a very important character, bear evidence of having received careful consideration.

I thank you for the liberal appropriations which you have made for the public service. The supplies which you have granted will be expended with economy and in the public interest.

DOES NOT DISAPPOINT.

The New Discovery for Catarrh Seems to Possess Remarkable Merit.

A new catarrh cure has recently appeared which so far as tested has been remarkably successful in curing all forms of catarrh, whether in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, or in stomach and liver.

The remedy is in tablet form, pleasant and convenient to take and no special secrecy is maintained as to what it contains, the tablet being a scientific combination of Guaiacol, Eucalyptol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar valuable and harmless antiseptics.

This safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Whether the catarrh is located in the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and trachea from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, coughing, hawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer.

Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration in some cases to such an extent as to destroy the nose entirely, and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. Nasal catarrh gradually extends to the throat and bronchial tubes, and very often to the stomach, causing that very obstinate trouble, catarrh of the stomach.

Catarrh is a systematic poison, inherent in the blood, and local washes, douches, salves, inhalers and sprays can have no effect on the real cause of the disease. An internal remedy which acts upon the blood is the only rational treatment, and Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the safest of all internal remedies, as well as the most convenient and satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

Dr. Eaton recently stated that he had successfully used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in old chronic cases, even where ulceration had extended so far as to destroy the septum of the nose. He says: "I am pleasantly surprised almost every day by the excellent results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. It is remarkable how effectually they remove the excessive secretion and bring about a healthy condition of the mucous membranes of the nose, throat and stomach."

All druggists sell complete treatment of the Tablets at 50 cents, and and a little book giving the symptoms and causes of the various forms of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart & Co., Marshall, Mich.

Well Posted.

RESULTS OF BANK AMALGAMATION.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce Completes the Purchase of the Assets of the Bank of British Columbia.

THE BANK'S CAPITAL NOW EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS AND ASSETS OVER SIXTY-THREE MILLIONS.

The negotiations for the purchase of the assets of the Bank of British Columbia by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, an announcement respecting which was made some months ago, have been carried to a successful conclusion. A thorough examination of the affairs of the Bank of British Columbia was made by the officials of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and this proving entirely satisfactory, the amalgamation was finally completed on the 2nd of January. A statement of the affairs of the Canadian Bank of Commerce after the amalgamation has now been issued, and discloses a very strong position. In point of Capital and Reserve the Bank now ranks Fourth among banking institutions on the Continent of America. It has 62 branches throughout Canada; five branches in the United States, namely, at New York, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland (Oregon), Skaguay, (Alaska), and one in London, England; 68 establishments in all. The acquisition of the London office is an important step in the progress of the Bank. The Bank's transactions in sterling exchange in the United States and Canada each year amounts to many millions of pounds, and the ability to handle this business through the Bank's own London office will result in an important addition to the earning power of the Bank. In many other directions also the interests of the two Banks will be immensely benefited by the amalgamation.

The following is a condensation of the statement issued by the Bank at the close of business on the 31st of March:

THE NEW METROPOLITAN.

Most Rev. W. B. Bond Was Elected to the High Position.

Montreal, April 16.—Bishop Bond was yesterday morning elected Metropolitan of Canada and Lord Archbishop of Montreal. There were present Bishops Bond (in the chair), Dunn, Baldwin, Courtney, Kingdon, Thornloe, Dumoulin, Mills, Sweatman and Hamilton. The Archbishop, in a few words, conveyed his thanks, and in the evening the city clergy and influential laymen met and tendered their congratulations to His Grace.

Sketch of His Career.

The Most Rev. William Bennett Bond, Archbishop of Montreal and Metropolitan of Canada, belongs to a Cornish family, and was born in Truro, England, on September 10, 1815. In 1841 he was ordained a priest in Quebec by Bishop Mountain; in 1848 he was called to St. George's, Montreal, as assistant to Dr. Leach, whom he succeeded as rector. He became Dean of Montreal in 1873, and on January 25, 1879, he was consecrated Bishop of Montreal. He married, in 1841, Miss Eliza Longley of St. John's, Nfld., who died on June 20, 1879.

MILITARY PENSIONS.

Hon. Dr. Borden's Resolution Introduced in the House.

FOR THE PERMANENT MILITIA.

Retiring Allowances to Be Granted to Staff Officers and Men and to the Widows and Children of Such Officers—Total Amount That May Be Granted to a Family.

Ottawa, April 16.—(Special.)—The Minister of Militia has given notice of a resolution containing the scale of pensions to be paid to the officers and men of the permanent corps. It is as follows:

Resolved, that it is expedient to provide that pensions or gratuities may be granted to staff officers and officers and men of the permanent militia force, and to the widows and children of such officers, as follows:

To an officer compulsorily retired for any cause other than misconduct or inefficiency, after 20 years' service, or retiring voluntarily after 35 years' service, a pension not exceeding 1-50th of the pay and allowance of his rank, or appointment at the time of his retirement, for each year's service, service beyond 35 years not being reckoned.

To an officer who retires voluntarily after 25 but less than 35 years' service, a pension not exceeding 1-40th of such pay and allowance for each year of service, service beyond 35 years not being reckoned.

Towards making good the said pensions 5 per cent. shall be deducted from the pay of officers.

To an officer retiring on account of infirmity or retired to promote efficiency or economy in the service, a gratuity not exceeding one month's pay for each year's service; if retired on account of injury received in the discharge of his duties, a gratuity not exceeding three months' pay for every two years' service.

To a non-commissioned officer or militia man, if he has served 15 but less than 21 years, a pension equal to 1-50th of his annual pay for every year of service; for 21 and less than 25 years' service, 20-50ths, and in addition 2-50ths for every year over 20; for 25 years, 30-50ths and in addition 1-50th for every year over 25, not exceeding, however, 2-3rds of his annual pay, exclusive of extra pay or allowance during the three years preceding his retirement.

To the widow and children of an officer who served 20 years and was at the time of his death or full pay, or in receipt of a pension, the following pensions or allowances:

In the case of a colonel $500 to the widow and $80 to each child.

Lieut.-Colonel, $450 to the widow and a yearly allowance of $80 to each child.

Major, $350 to widow and $70 to each child.

Captain, $250 to widow, $65 to each child.

Lieutenant or second lieutenant, $200 to widow, $50 to each child.

The amount to children to be doubled if they are motherless and in need.

No allowance to a son aged 18 or a daughter aged 21.

The total amount granted to the family of an officer in one year not to exceed the amount of the pension attached to his rank.

IN SUPPLY.

Proceedings in the Dominion House on Tuesday Were of a Strictly Business Character.

Ottawa, April 17.—The House was in Committee of Supply yesterday afternoon, and the item under discussion was one of $50,000 for a drill hall at Vancouver. Mr. E. F. Clarke seised the oportunity to ask the Government for a supplementary grant for the Toronto Armouries. He showed the need was great.

Mr. Tarte replied, stating that there were many other places which needed grants just as badly, but he would ask his hon. friend to watch the supplementary estimates and see whether his eloquent appeal had been effective.

The House spent the remainder of the sitting discussing the appropriations for harbor and river works improvements in Nova Scotia.

The House adjourned at 12.30 a.m.

THE SENATE.

Ottawa, April 17.—In the Senate yesterday a discussion took place regarding the Government's policy respecting Yukon railways. In reply to other debaters, Hon. David Mills said: "There was a decision of the Government that no charters should be granted for railways running from the Lynn Inlet. As far as he knew, the Minister of Justice said, no change had taken place. Unfortunately one charter had been entered before this policy was decided upon."

Hon. Mr. Casgrain moved the second reading of an act respecting applications for railway charters. He explained that the bill was intended all necessary data should be supplied to prevent charters being obtained for speculation, and provided that the House in which the bills originated.

Hon. Mr. Lougheed said the principle of the bill was vicious and urged the House not to pass it.

The bill was read a second time.

ARCHBISHOP LEWIS PLEASED.

His Two Votes Determined Election of Bishop Bond as Metropolitan.

New York, April 17.—Archbishop Lewis of Ontario, ex-Metropolitan of Canada, who is lying dangerously ill at a hotel in this city, was rejoiced Monday night when he learned by a despatch from Montreal that his personal friend, Bishop Bond of Montreal, had been elected to succeed him as head of the Anglican Church in Canada. Lying on his sick bed, Archbishop Lewis wrote his signature and set his seal last Thursday to the two votes that determined the election in the House of Bishops. In his weakened condition the excitement and sense of responsibility that accompanied his few strokes of the pen seriously imperilled the Archbishop's recovery, but he is mending slowly once more.

STEEL COMBINE IN CANADA.

J. Pierpont Morgan Has a $500,000 Option on Ore Lands.

New York, April 17.—The Commercial has this special from Duluth: The American Mining Company, a part of the United States Steel Corporation, has a $500,000 option on ore lands in Canada, which is expected to be closed next week. This is regarded here as an entering wedge towards the introduction of foreign ores free of duty.

There are no important opened mines in Canada that could compete with the United States corporation except those of the Glergue syndicate at Sault Ste. Marie, and their ores will be largely consumed in their own works for the manufacture of steel for export to Europe.

Body Cut to Pieces.

Port Hope, April 16.—George Whittaker, one of the section men of the G.T.R. at Newtonville, while on his way home Monday night, was run over and killed, his body when found being literally cut to pieces. Dr. Aldrich, coroner for the united Counties of Northumberland and Durham, was notified and certified that the deceased was evidently under the influence of liquor at the time and had lain down to sleep. The liquor was obtained in or near Newtonville.

A Grand Send-Off.

Colombo, Ceylon, April 17.—The Duke and the Duchess of Cornwall and York boarded the steamer Ophir, en route for Australia, at midnight Monday night, arriving from the Queen's House through streets filled with enthusiastic crowds. The Governor bade them farewell at the jetty, which was illuminated. Massed bands played the National Anthem.

CHINESE REBELLION.

Ten Thousand Men Within the Territory of the Allies.

GERMANS SPOILING FOR A FIGHT

Kaiser's Forces Are Being Sent in Different Directions to Provoke a Fight in China if Possible—Modifying Their Claims—France Knocks Off $9,000,000 in Her Indemnity Demand.

London, April 17.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegraph Company from Pekin, dated April 16, says that Gen. Von Gyle, in command of 5,000 German and 3,000 French troops, is heading an expedition to attack Liu Huilu (Liu Kuang Ting), who is within 120 miles of Pao Ting Fu. Liu's position is inside the territory defined by Field Marshal Von Waldersee as the sphere of operations of the allies. Liu has 10,000 men, and has refused to retire, saying if the allies wished him to retire they had better come out and compel him to do so.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

Kaiser's Forces Are Being Sent in Different Directions to Provoke a Fight if Possible in China.

New York, April 16.—The Herald prints the following from its special correspondent in Pekin:

The war rumors in circulation during the last ten days have been reduced to a few concrete facts. These facts all go to demonstrate anew what everybody knows, viz., that the Germans are spoiling for a fight.

Five hundred German cavalry, with interminable ammunition, left for Nankow Pass this morning. There they are to await the much heralded Mongolian hordes commanded by Prince Tuan and Gen. Tung Fu Siang.

A German brigade of 4000 men at Pao Ting Fu leaves that place to-morrow for the west. The purpose of the expedition is not announced, but it is probably intended to take possession of other passes leading into Shan Si Province and to provoke battle with the Chinese if possible.

MODIFYING THEIR CLAIMS.

France Has Knocked Off $9,00,000 in Her Indemnity Demand.

Washington, April 17.—Notwithstanding the reports from Pekin of the slow progress of the negotiations there on the subject of indemnity, the officials here are not without hope that a way may be found out of the present complications. Later figures are coming in respecting the indemnity claims, which slightly modify the amounts reported from other sources. For instance, the French claim is now given as $56,000,000, instead of $65,000,000, as reported. The Russian claim is about $87,000,000. The claim of Great Britain is only about $21,000,000. The Japanese claim has been cut down to less than $20,000,000. The German claim is elastic, ranging from $60,000,000 to $80,000,000.

The little powers, those that furnished no troops at all, or an insignificant number, loom up with big bills. Belgium wants $6,000,000, and similar claims are preferred by Holland and Spain.

WILL AID CAPT. BERNIER.

Dominion Government to Provide Ship and Instruments For Expedition.

Ottawa, April 17.—It is understood that the Government has decided to aid Capt. Bernier's proposed polar expedition to the extent of furnishing him with a vessel and the necessary scientific instruments. It is expected that the requisite funds for paying the crew and equipping the vessel will be forthcoming from the general public. It is conceded that Capt. Bernier is the right man to lead the expedition. The various scientific societies doubtless will aid him financially.

Another Church Mortgage Burned.

St. Catharines, Ont., April 17. — There was great rejoicing in the St. Paul Street Methodist Church here last night, the occasion being the declaration of the church's freedom from debt. Supper was served, speeches were made, and at the conclusion the burning of the mortgage ceremony was gone through.

Sir Robert Peel Committed.

London, April 17.—In the Westminster County Court yesterday an order for committal to prison was made against Sir Robert Peel, for non-payment of a judgment debt. The warrant, however, was suspended for a week, and it was announced in court that a settlement would be effected in the interval.

Seized For Smuggling.

Ottawa, April 17.—The ferry boat which plies between Prescott and Ogdensburg has been seized by the Canadian customs officers for smuggling. The owners have deposited $400 pending a decision as to what shall be done with the vessel.

MURDER IN ALBERTA.

David Karr of Innisfail Shot to Death by His Brother-in-Law.'

Innisfail, Alberta, April 17.—David Karr, a farmer, residing about seven miles from town, was shot and killed Monday night by his brother-in-law, Arthur Bioletta, a section man, employed on the Calgary and Edmonton Railway. Karr was in town Monday on family business, and in the evening was followed home by Bioletta, who carried a revolver. Bioletta called upon Karr to come outside, but Karr refused for some time. Bioletta says when Karr came out he chased him with an axe. He was compelled to shoot him in self-defence. Bioletta slept at Karr's place all night and yesterday morning sent in word to the police that Karr had been killed. The Mounted Police went out to investigate, and found Karr lying dead with two bullet holes in his body, one in the head and another through the body. Bioletta assisted to remove the body to a wagon, and then gave himself up.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

GIVE PERFECT DIGESTION, SOUND SLEEP, STRONG NERVES.

A Popular Remedy for Dyspepsia, which has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of act there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood and that is through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly, the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gasses, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas, and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers" because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tabets are prepared by the F. A Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

Condensed.

"Of course," said the great star's manager, "it will cost something extra to display the title of the piece on your electric light sign."

"Oh, I don't know," replied the proprietor of the theater. "We ain't spendin no more'n we have to. We've arranged to shorten it to read, '2 Gents of Verona.'"

It is told of a St. Louis miser that he eats his meals in front of a mirror because it doubles the dishes.

MEN WHO WON GLORY

Canadians Named in Despatches by Lord Roberts.

DESPATCH DATED APRIL 2, 1900

The Transport Service—A Further Despatch from Lord Roberts—Cape Mules Ranked First—Indian Mules Next—Praise for the Chief Officers—Details of the Stores Handled.

London, April 16.—Another despatch from Lord Roberts on the subject of the South African campaign, dated April 2, 1900, has been published in The Gazette. It largely concerns the transport service, and says the mule transport consisted of what are called in South Africa buck wagons, carrying a load of 3500 pounds, drawn by ten mules each, with two native drivers. After mentioning the serviceable wagons made in Cape Colony and the frequent retiring and other repairs which the English-made wagons required, Lord Roberts said: "Six buck wagons were imported for trial from the United States. These proved to be superior to any other pattern, of either Cape or English manufacture. The wheels were of hickory, the body of black walnut and the metal work of steel. The superiority of these vehicles was doubtless due to the fact that mule wagons are largely used in America for the carriage of goods, as well as for military transport. The manufacturers have, therefore, learned by practical experience what is the best wagon and the most suitable materials in building them. It may be added that the wagons in question cost considerably less than the Bristol pattern wagons."

The best mules, Lord Roberts thinks, are Cape mules, and the next best the Indian mules. The mortality among the oxen was greater than among the mules.

Lord Roberts, in his despatches, goes over all branches of the service, and in viewing the hospital department, mentions the American hospital ship Maine, "fitted out and manned by the splendid generosity of private individuals, and the committee of American ladies."

Lord Roberts heads eleven pages of special mentions by cordial acknowledgements of the services of Sir Alfred Milner and Gen. Kitchener.

There are paragraphs praising almost all the division and brigade commanders, including Generals White, Methuen, Baden-Powell, Kelly-Kenny, French, Arthur Paget and Pole-Carew. Gen. Buller is mentioned first after the staff officers, but in merely formal terms, without commendation.

Detailing the stores handled, he says there were 1,031,000 rounds of artillery ammunition, 122,000,000 rounds of ammunition for rifles and machine guns, and 2,000,000 pairs of horse shoes.

Catarrh

The best authorities say, is a disease of the blood.

Therefore local applications cannot cure.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

By thoroughly purifying the blood, this great medicine reduces the inflammation of the mucous membrane and stops all catarrhal discharges of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, bladder and generative organs.

Catarrh is especially dangerous in persons who inherit or have acquired a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength and vigor that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and the peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the common-sense treatment for catarrh.

"I was a sufferer from nasal catarrh, gradually growing worse. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla which completely cured me of that troublesome disease." MAUD DOAN, 1615 Arrow Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

Forty Boers Re-Elected Steyn.

London, April 17.—A special despatch from Cape Town, under yesterday's date, says 40 Boers recently met at Boshof and solemnly re-elected Mr. Steyn President of the Orange Free State.

Milner Going to England.

London, April 17.—Sir Alfred Milner, according to The Daily Chronicle, is coming to England early next month, and will remain two months to recruit his health, which has been severely tried by his arduous labors in South Africa.

A despatch to The Times, from Middelburg, Transvaal, says: "Operations in the Eastern Transvaal have been begun. There is no doubt that Acting President Schalkburger, Gen. Botha, Mr. Steyn and Gen. Dewet had a meeting at Ermelo, but their subsequent movements are obscure. Raids on the railway have become less frequent."

REDUCTION TO HELPLESSNESS.

Colonel McCalmont Returns From Boer War Hopeful.

London, April 17.—Col. Harry McCalmont, M.P., returned to London yesterday from the war in South Africa, where he has just completed several months' active service as commander of the Warwickshire militia.

Col. McCalmont said in an interview:

"No man except one who has measured his strength against its distances can realize the prodigious extent of the country in which the war is being fought. These distances not only make successful military operations difficult, but baffle judgment regarding the numbers and general state of the Boer combatants.

"Our troops are throwing a pacifying influence into all the main regions embracing strategic points of the highest importance, but they necessarily leave other regions wholly at the disposal of the burghers. These are fighting doggedly in some sections, but are in terribly hard lines in others. The British forces are carrying on a relentless campaign, marching and fighting most of the time.

"My personal feeling is that we are gradually reducing the enemy to helplessness, and possibly the cold weather now imminent may put an end to military operations of any consequence. However, there will unquestionably be heavy police duties for our men for many months, both in the Transvaal and in the Orange River Colony."

Twenty-Six Natives Killed.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, April 16.—A cage filled with natives fell down a deep shaft of the Geldenhuis Mine. Twenty-six of the natives were killed.

'Tis Easy to Feel Good.

AGUINALDO'S SUCCESSOR.

General Sandico, of Good Family, Will Assume Filipino Command.

Paris, April 13.—Agoncillo, the agent of Aguinaldo in Paris, received a cablegram yesterday morning announcing that the Filipino general, Sandico, had been elected as Aguinaldo's successor as commanding general of the Filipino forces, as well as director during the continuation of the insurrection. Sandico belongs to a distinguished family residing at Pandakan, near Manila. He is a man of energy, and is well educated, speaking several European languages.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock at the Cattle Market here to-day was the largest of the season, 109 loads all told, composed of 1918 cattle, 1700 hogs, 367 sheep, 175 calves. About 12 loads of the above mentioned cattle were not for sale, having been bought by the export dealers in the country.

The quality of fat cattle generally was better than for several markets.

Considering the large number of cattle offered, trade was fairly good, especially in the early part of the day. Prices for exporters were a little firmer, selling all the way from $4.30 to $5.25 per cwt., but only one load at the latter price.

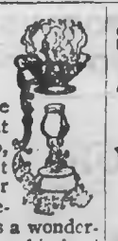
Do You See It?



Look carefully at this little picture. There's a great deal to it. There's a lamp, that makes the heat. Right over it is the vaporizer that holds the Vapo-Cresolene. This Cresolene is a wonderful medicine. It kills most kinds of disease germs, and is a most remarkable healing agent. You simply breathe in the vapor of it, that's all; it goes all through your bronchial tubes, curing asthma, croup, coughs, catarrh, whooping-cough. 11

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

VERDI'S FIRST LIBRETTIST.

The Singular Life of Adventure of Temistocle Solero.

Verdi's first librettist, Temistocle Solero, had so adventurous a life that it reads like a romance of Dumas.

He was in a military school in Vienna, placed there through the direct influence of the Austrian emperor, when, tired of the confinement, he ran away and joined a gypsy band, going with them into Hungary, where he was eventually found by the police. As he was being marched off he met his brother, an officer in the Austrian army, who took him under his care, putting him in a college in Milan. From there he was graduated and made an acquaintance with Verdi, poor and lonely as himself, for whom he wrote the librettos of five operas.

He afterward went to Spain as director of the orchestra. One evening at the theater, hearing an officer insult Queen Isabella, who was present, he turned and boxed his ears. Upon this ensued a scene of confusion. The queen, hearing of its cause, desired to see and speak with her defender. Solero, a handsome man of most prepossessing manners, soon became first favorite and had all Spain at his feet. One day he discovered a conspiracy against her majesty, led by Don Francesco, her cousin. After that Solero's life was no more safe, as several attempts were made to assassinate him, so that even the queen advised him to return to Italy, which he did, after spending everything he had. He settled in Milan, earning a precarious living by writing, but a true Boheme, gay and starving. For a few months he returned to Spain and had his pockets well relined with gold, but on the homeward journey by sea a storm arose, and the passengers escaped with only their lives, so that he landed in Milan without a penny.

Eighteen hundred and fifty-nine saw him in Paris, confidential agent of Napoleon III, and on returning to the peninsula he was sent against the brigands, whom he dispersed. In 1869 he was found in Egypt organising the police, but his restless temperament again interfered, and it was not long before he was again in Milan, speculating with the fortune which he had made. He now lost everything and fell into extreme poverty. From that moment the goddess of fortune deserted him, and he died in 1878 in Milan.

Himself to Blame.

In one of Bret Harte's clever parodies of the French he told a story in words something like these: Three gamins were playing in the streets of Paris. A priest passed by. "There goes a priest," cried one; "look out for your eggs and your chickens!" Then the priest, hearing the words, knelt down and prayed for the boys. But upon reflection he was convinced that it was not the fault of the boys, but of their parents. He knelt down the second time and prayed for the boys' parents. On another thought he saw that it was not the fault of the boys' parents, but of society. He knelt down again and prayed for society. As he rose from his prayer he said to himself: "My friend, who is society? You and I are society." So he knelt down the last time and prayed for himself.

To Spite His Creditors.

A nobleman in Madrid, after spending his fortune and getting deeply into debt, lost his wife. His friends advised him to marry a rich bride, but to the dismay of his creditors he married a poor woman. When asked why he did so, he answered: "For revenge. To make my rascally creditors rave"

SUBDUED THE MULES

AN AMUSING EXPERIENCE IN WHICH GRANT PLAYED A PART.

When the First Unruly Animal Had Been Cowed After Playing Havoc With a Score of Men, Grant Found a New Way to Break the Drove.

In the war with Mexico Grant was second lieutenant, but for the most of the time he commanded one company in the Fourth infantry. He was quiet, gentle and mild mannered. He said but little to any one, but when he did speak there was excuse for it. In camp he was always busy doing something. If a man was sick or simply ailing a bit, it was not the surgeon who first knew it, but Lieutenant Grant. If rations were short and poor and the army was where full rations and good ones could be had, Grant would not rest until his men were properly supplied.

History has told how bravely Grant fought in the hardest battles of the Mexican war, but no history has told it just as his company saw him in those battles. There was no bluster, no fuss and feathers, no wild swinging of arms, no swearing on the part of the popular lieutenant in those battles. He was as cool and collected as he was on drill, yet he seemed to fly from one end of the company to the other, giving orders in that quiet but effective way which characterized him in later years.

Many will recall that funny mule story in which Grant played a part—the Mexican war story. Well, the writer of that story did not tell the funniest part.

The brigade quartermaster had received a number of wild, unbroken mules after the army reached Mexico. The quartermaster and his force of civilians spent a day in trying, without success, to break two spans of those mules to harness. The minute a harness was thrown on to a mule that minute a mule's heels began to fly in the air, and they continued to fly until the harness was strewn over the ground.

That night the quartermaster sent for a detail of a lieutenant and 20 men to report to the corral early the next morning to aid in training mules to service in transporting army rations and stores.

Lieutenant Grant marched two men from each of ten companies to the corral at the appointed hour and was told what was wanted. The young officer took a survey of the mules, harness and army wagons he had been called upon to deal with. His first order was:

"Bring a couple of ropes 20 feet in length."

The next order was: "You men," addressing the quartermaster's civilians, "surround that mule, halter him and hold him, no matter what he does—do you hear, hold him. Corporal, take ten men, five on a side, and as soon as the animal is haltered manage to fasten one end of these ropes to his hind legs."

When that was done, and it was not accomplished without a good many bruises, he directed that a set of five men should take charge of each rope and hang on to it, no matter how much the mule objected and kicked. The men proceeded to obey orders. They extended to about ten feet in front of the victim, thus virtually fencing him in on three sides. That done, other civilians were told to place the harness upon the beast. Almost before the last buckle was fastened the mule bent in preparation for a masterful kick.

"Hang to those ropes," called the lieutenant.

The ten men hung to the ropes, and that first attempt to clog the air with mule heels was a dismal failure. The victory made the men overconfident. As quick as a flash, when the rope holders were not watching, not braced for attack, both mule hind feet flew in the air and ten soldiers were yanked flat to the ground in the mud, and before they could foregather away went the heels again and again, and ten men were mixed in that mud to the queen's taste.

"Let no man loose his hold!" commanded Grant.

Well, that mule kicked and wallowed those two strings of soldiers in the now thin mud until it was worn out by the hard exercise, and then had sense enough to stand still until fully harnessed. The mule was conquered, but at what cost to uniforms, pride, flesh and bones!

The wagon master asked if there was not a better way to train the animals.

"There can't be a worse way," said the lieutenant as he wandered away from the corral a few rods to a large and nearly square rock at least ten feet high and seemed to scrutinize it closely.

Returning, he gave orders to take the next victim to the large rock. It was backed as close to the obstruction as possible without actually touching it. Half a dozen men were told to hold the brute by the head, ears and neck and on no account to let it advance from the rock. Then a man was told to clap a harness on quickly.

As soon as the buckles began to fasten the mule became restless. Pretty soon it made a sudden lunge and succeeded in getting four feet away from the rock, and then the fun began. Its heels cracked against the rock savagely for a short time. It was a new experience and apparently a painful one, for the battered hind feet were lifted again and again, but very gently, and only one at a time, while its head shook and ears flopped.

That mule was cured, and the problem was solved. The detail returned to camp late that evening having accomplished its mission—taken the kick out of a drove of as unmanageable mules as ever hauled pork and hard tack.—Major J. A. Watrous, U. S. A.

Couldn't Find It.

I heard the other day a funny story illustrating the ignorance and stupidity of some Russian provincial governors. The Russian government resolved to gather some statistics regarding its far-off provinces and to that end dispatched letters of searching minuteness to all the officials. One was received at St. Petersburg in which a certain question in regard to the progress of civilization was thus answered: "The civilization is not to be found in my province. It may be on the Chinese border, but two Cossack horsemen have been sent to hunt it up." On further inquiry the fact was developed that the official thought some unheard of tribe of nomads was meant.

MICE QUICK TO LEARN.

So Says a Maine Man Who Finds Them Interesting Pets.

Out on Forest avenue is a mouse fancier whose residence, lest he lose caste with his neighbors, is withheld. In a pen he has half a dozen or so ordinary field mice.

"They are the most sociable pets I ever had," he remarked, "and any one of them will rise to attention as he hears my step approach the pen. I have had these young ones about six months. They don't live long when cooped up, and they will come freely to my hand to eat or drink. Some of them are so tame that they will climb to my shoulder and display not the slightest alarm at being touched. They haven't acquired so much faith in all humanity, however, and have refused to trust any one else so far.

"While mice eat a great deal for an animal so small when food is abundant, they can exist for a surprising long time with next to nothing. Any one whose house has been invested with mice and who had passed weary weeks when everything that possibly could serve as food was carefully under lock and key, finally calling to service an active ferret, will appreciate this fact. He is a mighty aggressive and tireless forager after food, not hesitating at walls or similar obstructions, through which he patiently gnaws a path. As a test of persistence in this line I hung a basket of food from the ceiling by a rope and after a week's fast placed a mouse at a hole in the ceiling above the basket. He descended some eight feet or more on a slender cord and safely reached his haven, later climbing up again.

"All of my mice I have taken from nests about the premises and notice that they invariably seek shelter below or behind something, never in so exposed a locality as almost any other animal would select. For a nest paper, cloth or any soft material seems to satisfy, and the exceeding fineness with which it is chopped suggests some mighty artistic work with their teeth."

A VERY PARTICULAR BIRD.

If the Bathing Dish Didn't Suit Him, He Went Unwashed.

"Birds have as much character as human beings," said a specialist on birds. "Some are the most arrant little aristocrats, while others are regular little plebeians. I had a little fellow some time ago who, despite all my efforts, would not bathe. Each morning when, with his white porcelain tub in my hand, I approached his cage, he would resolve himself into the sulkiest, drearest little ball of feathers you can possibly imagine. I coaxed and pleaded; I even bribed. Bathe he would not. So consistent was he in his determination not to bathe that I named him Tramp. One morning I broke the tub, and in its place I took a shallow blue and white dish of Japanese ware. Tramp eyed me for a moment with all his old hostility, and then as he caught sight of the pretty dish he flew down from his perch with chirps of joy and darted into the water before I could take my hand from the cage.

"I had found the way to his heart, and his morning bath now became a daily source of joy to both of us. But ont fatal morning I broke the blue and white dish. In an apologetic manner I brought to Tramp once more the regulation white bath dish, hoping that his cleanly habits were by this time so ingrained that he would overlook the prosaic appearance of his tub. Not so. An angry flutter of wings, a threatening little beak, a perfect tempest of shrill cheeps and twitterings and then sulky silence on the topmost perch.

"So it went on till I secured another blue and white dish and then peace and harmony and morning baths again."

Railroad Man's Prayer.

An old railroad man, having been converted, was asked to lead in prayer. The following was the response: "O Lord, now that I have flagged thee, lift up my feet from the rough road of life and plant them safely on the deck of the train of salvation. Let me use the safety lamp known as prudence, make all the couplings in the train with the strong link of thy love and let my band lamp be the Bible, and, heavenly Father, keep all switches closed that lead off the sidings, especially those with a blind end. O Lord, if it be thy pleasure, have every semaphore block along the line show the white line of hope that I may make the run of life without stopping. And, Lord, give us the Ten Commandments for a schedule, and when I have finished the run on schedule time and pulled into the great dark station of death may thou, the Superintendent of the universe, say, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant; come and sign the pay roll and receive your check for eternal happiness.'"

THE WAIL OF THE BACK.

'TIS A WARNING CRY OF KIDNEY ILLS.
DON'T NEGLECT AN ACHING BACK.
PROMPT ACTION SAVES TROUBLE.

Urinary Troubles lead to Dropsy, Diabetes and Bright's Disease, and are caused by neglecting the first pain in the back. DOAN'S PILLS absolutely cure Backache and all Urinary Troubles. Read these testimonials:

MR. BENJAMIN STEWART, of Zionville, N.B., writes:
"For four months I was troubled with lame back, which was so bad at times I was unable to turn myself in bed without help. I tried plasters and liniments of all kinds, but none of them helped me. A friend of mine induced me to try Doan's Pills, and by the time I had used one box my backache had disappeared and is as strong and well as ever it was. I can faithfully recommend Doan's Pills to anyone troubled with lame back or urinary troubles."

MRS. GEO. H. ALWARD, White's Point, N.B., writes:
"I was so bad with backache that I could scarcely move around the house. My feet and ankles swelled up and were so painful that I could get no rest night or day. I tried several remedies, but they seemed to do me no good. I was advised to give Doan's Pills a trial, and from the first I perceived a decided change for the better, and by the time I had taken three boxes I could do my house work as well as ever and am completely cured. I cannot say too much as to the merits of Doan's Pills when I consider the health I now enjoy."

MR. BENJAMIN BROOKS, West Cape, P.E.I., writes:
"I contracted a severe cold which settled in the small of my back and was so sore that I could hardly walk. I procured a box of Doan's Pills, and by the time I had taken them I was completely cured. I might also say that my little boy was troubled with his kidneys. We tried several remedies, but none did him any good until we tried Doan's Pills. They proved to be what he wanted and have made a complete cure. I cannot recommend them too highly to all kidney sufferers."

CONSUMPTION.

You don't have to take our word as to the ability of Powley's Liquified Ozone to cure consumption. The statement of Wm. McKay, of Sutton, who had lung trouble, was corroborated by solemn declarations.

We have other cases—some of them have suffered for two years and over and had hemorrhages—all cured by this preparation.

The condensed oxygen is accountable. It is nature's method of curing disease, and it can hardly fail. Splendid for the lungs and a good flesh former. Try a bottle.

50c and $1.00 a bottle, at all druggists. Write the Ozone Co., of Toronto, Limited, 40 Colborne St., Toronto.

Father McGuire at Bracebridge.

Huntsville Forester: Rev. Father McGuire of Hastings, formerly parish priest at Bracebridge, is a staunch admirer of Irish pluck. While on a recent visit to his friend, Judge Mahaffy, of Bracebridge, he expressed gratification that the efforts of nineteen policemen were necessary to forciby expel one Irish member from the British House of Commons. After a hearty laugh the good natured Father left a $10 bill to augment the brass band fund. The Herald says: "We never experienced other than kindness at his hands, and he will not soon be forgotten in Bracebridge." Father McGuire takes a very practical way of keeping his popularity afloat.

Mr. Young will keep fully equipped with the new 20th century "Red Birds," built for ladies, gentlemen and youths. Full lines of bicycle supplies and repairs always on deck. Repair shop and livery in connection. Wheels rented by the day or week. Everybody welcome to inspect and criticize the new 1901 mounts. dtf

PIANO RECITAL.

A Very Delightful Musical Evening in The Y. M. C. A. Last Night.—Mademoiselle Decrey.

A fair sized audience assembled in the lecture hall of the Y. M. C. A. last night to hear the recital given by Mademoiselle Decrey, assisted by Mrs. A. G. Parker. The affair was one of the richest musical treats that the people of Peterborough have had the privilege of attending in many years, nor did those present fail to demonstrate their appreciation of the delightful manner in which the various numbers were executed. This is the first occasion on which Mademoiselle Decrey has appeared in public in Peterborough and it is safe to say that she made a most decided impression. She is the latest addition to Peterborough's list of artists, and a most valuable one at that. Her sympathetic and general execution of the various numbers was such as to charm her audience and baffle the attempts of any amateur musical critic.

Mrs. Parker who assisted Mademoiselle Decrey has been heard before by the music loving people of Peterborough, and her efforts last night were most delightful. She sang several numbers with that richness of voice which she is well known to possess and added not a little to the success of a distinctly high class and delightful musical evening.

The programme was as follows:

1.	Toccata	D Minor	Bach
	Gigue		Scarlatti
2.	Hear ye, Israel		Mendelssohn
3.	Novelette	E Minor	Schumann
	Prelude	G Major	Chopin
	Valse	C Minor
	Etude	Op. 10, No. 12
4.	Two Gypsy Songs		Dvorak
	Cradle Song		Tchaikowsky
5.	Au Bord d'une Source		Liszt
	Love Dreams
	Valse Caprice		Schytte

The affair was given under the patronage of the following ladies: Mesdames R. P. Boucher, J. C. Davidson, A. L. Davis, J. Dennistoun, R. M. Dennistoun, Robt. Hamilton, T. A. S. Hay, Jas. Kendry, A. G. Parker, J. R. Stratton, H. Symonds and E. F. Torrance.

PERSONAL.

Mr. E. B. Stone was in Lindsay on business yesterday.

Sergt. Traill, of Strathcona Horse, is visiting at the residence of Mr. J. D. Collins.

Miss Stothart, who was visiting Miss Pearl Lundy, Aylmer street, has returned to Toronto.

Miss Pauline Johnston, the well known Indian authoress and elocutionist, has been spending the last few days in town.

A cut of Mr. John Lang, East Peterborough's popular representative in the Commons, appears in to-day's Globe.

Miss Lyman, of New York City, arrived in town on Monday morning and is demonstrating the perfection and quality of the "P. D." Corset at R. Fair & Co.'s.

Amongst the Canadians who have been mentioned by Lord Roberts in to-days dispatches, for distinguished service, is the name of Lieut. F. N. Young, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles. Lieut. Young is a brother of Dr. Young of town.

Mr. John McCarthy, of Nelson, B. C., who has been home for the past four months visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jermiah McCarthy, 137 Lake street, returned to Nelson last evening accompanied by his brother, Mr. Joe McCarthy.

Rev. W. R. Young, of Port Hope, is in town in connection with the examination of the Methodist ministerial probationers, and is being warmly greeted by his many friends in town. Dr. Young states thats that this is the smallest class of probationers which he ever assisted in examining, there being only ten candidates. He can remember when there were 35 and 40 being examined, but the demand for ministers is not as great as it was in Canada. With the settling and opening up of New Ontario, Dr. Young expects to see the classes again swell to their former size.

To-day's Fire.

The old diamond house in Ashburnham at the point where the old Lakefield line crossed the C.P.R., was burned to the ground at about ten o'clock this mornidg. The fire is supposed to have originated from burning grass. The little shack has, of late, become the resort for tramps, and has been of no service to the railroad company.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE IN THE SOUTH END.

A Young Lady From Buffalo Takes Poison.

OVERTAKEN BY REMORSE.

Went out for a Drive With Young Men and Became Intoxicated—The Physician Saved Her.

The South End furnishes the town with a genuine sensation, which, but for the timely presence of a physician, would have been attended by circumstances of a nature so thrilling that the case would have been of more than purely local interest, and would have been far-reaching in it effect. For obvious reasons the names in the case are suppressed.

A young lady from Buffalo, it seems, has been visiting friends in town since Easter and on Monday evening was persuaded, together with the daughter of the house, to go for a drive with a couple of young men.

Some ale was taken along, and the party drove to Keene, leaving there for home at about midnight. The girls, as well as the young men, had imbibed freely, and when the carriage had reached Peterborough its occupants had reached an almost helpless state of intoxication. The girls were dumped ont of the rig and left on their doorstep, where they were found at about 4 o'clock by the pater-familias and brought inside. On realizing her position, as the fumes of the beer cleared from her brain, the American visitor felt the disgrace so keenly that she swallowed several tablets containing a powerful disinfectant as its principal ingredient. The drug acted rapidly and by the time the family realized what the girl had done and secured a physician the battle with death had begun. Even at this stage the girl's mind was firmly fixed on suiciding and her jaws had to be pried open before emetics could be used. After the necessary precautions had been taken and the effects of the drug counteracted it transpired that the young men, in order to assist the beer in its work with the girls had mixed whiskey with it, reducing the girls to a condition of complete helplessness.

The young American with the suicidal intentions was shipped home to her parents during the afternoon, and it will be some time before the young lady with whom she was staying will have an opportunity of again driving to Keene.

LAST NIGHT'S MARCH OUT.

The 57th Regt. Have their Weekly Turn Out—The Orders.

The 57th Regiment had a splendid march out last night. The streets were in perfect condition, the band played inspiringly, the townspeople watched expectantly and the boys marched their prettiest. The ranks were fairly well filled up. No. 6 was recruited up to almost full strength, and No. 5 was about the same. Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards was in command. After marching around town the Regiment returned to the drill shed when the following orders were read:

Headquarters, Peterborough, April 16, 1901.

Orders by Lt. Col. E. B. Edwards, Commanding 57th Regt., P.R.

No. 1. Detail of duty for week ending April 23rd: Captain for the week, Capt. Clegg; next for duty, Capt. Mills. Subaltern for the week, Lt. Cameron; next for duty, Lt. McWilliams.

No. 2. The following have been struck off the strength of their respective companies: B Company, Corp. Kemp, Ptes. McKenzie, Minaker, Smith, McClellan and Graham; E Company, Sgt. W. Roberts, Ptes. Kemp, Eastwood, Mulligan, Sharpe, Butcher, Hurtebois and Freeborne.

No. 3. The following have been taken on the strength of the Regiment: E Company, Ptes. Campbell, Ridge, H. Manly, D. Manly and Crossland.

No. 4. The following extracts from general orders is promulgated for the information of the Regiment:

Provisional Second Lieutenant W. L. Allen, retires. To be Second Lieutenants, provisionally, R. E. Layfield, vice A. W. McPherson, promoted; J. Hamilton, vice G. B. Cameron, promoted; W. W. VanEvery, vice R. F. McWilliams, promoted.

No. 5. Second Lieutenant Layfield is hereby posted to A Company; Second Lieutenant Hamilton is hereby posted to D Company; and Second Lieutenant VanEvery is hereby posted to E Company.

No. 6. The Commanding Officer is pleased to make the following promotions: B Company, to be Corporal, Pte. L. G. Payne, vice Corp. Kemp, left limits; F Company, to be Lance Corporals, Ptes. J. Gibson and R. Watt.

By order,
D. Walker, Lieut.,
Acting Adjutant.

As will be noticed by the above orders Mr. R. E. Layfield has taken a commission in No. 1 Co. Mr. Layfield has perhaps served the longest of any of the younger men in the service, having been for many years a non-commissioned officer.

SUNDAY FUNERALS.

The Regiment Will Not Turn Out During Sunday School Hours Again.

In consequence of the Regimental funeral of Sunday last taking place at three o'clock in the afternoon there was a noticeable falling off in the attendance at the Sunday schools. When giving his permission for the volunteers and band to attend the funeral, the fact that the parade would interfere with the Sunday school attendance never crossed Col. Edwards' mind. As the matter, however, has been brought to his attention, arrangements will be made providing for funerals hereafter attended by the Regiment to take place at either an earlier or a later hour than three o'clock.

The ladies of St. Andrew's will give a high tea on Tuesday, May 7. on the occasion of their anniversary. Keep it in mind and tell your friends. Tickets 25 cents.

CLARKE & GIBSON

THE ASHBURNHAM VILLAGE COUNCIL.

SPECIAL MEETING WAS HELD ON MONDAY NIGHT.

They Will Encourage the Planting of Trees—The Street Watering.

The Ashburnham Village Council met in special session on Monday to deal with several important matters. There were present Mr. F. Adams, reeve, in the chair, and Councillors Robert Pollock, John H. Smith and Robert Sheridan.

As an outcome of the last meeting of the Ashburnham Civic Association, Mr. Strickland appeared before the Council on behalf of that body to ask the Council to deal with the matter of tree planting. He was aware of where he could secure quite a number of beautiful trees, but it would require the work of several men and a couple of teams to assist the Association in securing the trees and transplanting them. The speaker also pointed out that it was the intention to plant the trees on Arbour day, May 3rd.

In reply to Mr. Strickland, Reeve Adams said that he considered that the idea was one deserving of every consideration, but the people whose property would be beautified by the tree planting should assist to some extent.

Mr. Strickland said it would be advisable that some one who understood the work should do the planting.

Mr. Pollock also thought that whoever got trees should pay for them. He was willing to pay 50c for every tree planted in front of his place.

Reeve Adams assured Mr. Serickland that the matter would receive the council's serious consideration.

STREET WATERING.

Street watering contracts were then taken up. Mr. David McMahon tendered at $223, and Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald tendered at $220. Before the contract was awarded to anyone a petition was read from Mr. John G. O'Connel and a number of others asking that the limits for street watering be extended to McFarlane avenue.

Mr. Fitzgerald asked that his tender be withdrawn. When he tendered he thought that the contract covered only 5½ miles when in reality it was 6¼.

Mr. Sheridan was of opinion that there was too much territory to be covered to have the watering well done. He was satisfied if the main street was watered well any spare time could be devoted to the other streets.

On motion of Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Sheridan, the tender of Mr. D. McMahon was accepted for street watering for the sum of $223, he to furnish security to the satisfaction of the council for the faithful performance of the contract.

The Civic Association proposition next came up for discussion. It was the general opinion that, with all due appreciation of the Association's motive, the individual securing the trees should pay at least ten cents each for the same, and that no trees should be planted in front of vacant lots. There were not a few of the latter, and it was feared that if they were to have trees planted in front of them those citizens who desired trees would get none.

Mr. Butcher, a member of the Association, pointed out that the desire of the Association was to have the tree planting uniform, that is, in regular unbroken rows along the streets.

On motion of Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Sheridan, the sum of $10 was granted to the Civic Association for the purpose of procuring shade trees for the village of Ashburnham, they to see to the planting and all trees to be planted a uniform distance and in line with trees that are already planted, application for shade trees to be made to the Civic Association.

Prior to adjourning the Council held an informal discussion in regard to the street and sidewalk improvements that would have to be attended to this summer. It was also decided to have the scrapings from the streets divided equally among parties asking for the same. The scrapings are used for levelling purposes chiefly.

Council adjourned.

AN OLD MILLBROOK RESIDENT.

Demise of the Late G. W. H. Anderson—Was Widely Known.

The Millbrook Reporter has the following to say concerning the death of Mr. G. W. H. Anderson of that village who recently passed over to join the great majority. Deceased was well-known throughout the country as a powerful bass soloist, in years gone by:

"The old landmarks of Millbrook are, one by one, passing away, and in the death of the late Mr. Anderson, Millbrook has lost a public spirited citizen, who for over twenty-five years was foremost in all that made for the healthful progress of the community. Deceased was born in the city of Carlisle, where he lived until full manhood, learning there his trade of tailoring and acquiring also a proficiency in music which was always willingly contributed to every cause that solicited his help. An entertainment of any pretentions or any public function without Mr. Anderson's resonant voice was unthought of, and without money and without price he went far and near to help church, lodge or some festival when occasion demanded. His illness commenced some months ago and an operation was resorted to in order to relieve his ailment, but without success, and his sufferings were extremely painful. His funeral was under the direction of L.O.L., No. 79, and Millbrook Home Circle, both of which organizations enrolled him among their membership, and silently and reverently they laid him to rest in Gardiner's Cemetery on Saturday, March 30th. Service was conducted in St. Thomas church by Ven. Archdeacon Allen before the interment. Mrs. Anderson and two daughters, Mrs. J. R. Young, of Ottawa, and Miss Anderson at home are left to mourn their loss, besides the grandchildren, to all of whom we tender the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends in Millbrook and Caven and many others scattered to the four winds of the earth, who, as they read this notice, will recall his songs of long ago.

ST. LUKE'S VESTRY MEETING.

ADJOURNED FROM A WEEK AGO MONDAY EVENING.

Most Satisfactory Reports Received From the Wardens and the Various Church Societies.

The adjourned Vestry meeting of St. Luke's church was held on Monday night in the school house, when reports were received from the Church Wardens and from the various societies of the church, Rev. H. Symonds presided.

Mr. E. A. Peck, on behalf of the Wardens, made a short address, in which he congratulated the audience on the financial condition of the church. He thought the prospects for the future of the church were bright. There was every probability of an increased population in the village, and suggested that some effort should be made this year to reduce the debt of $1250 on the church property.

Mrs. W. J. Scott read the report of the W. A. for the past year. The membership is 47 as compared with 46 last year, and the average attendance 12, as compared with 9 last year. Five bales had been sent out. The net proceeds of the annual tea handed to the Churchwardens were $84. A life membership had been presented to Mrs. E. A. Peck, the devoted president of the society. All the figures presented showed an increase over the previous year.

Mr. G. F. Warde, vice-president, reported for the men's chapter of the guild. This chapter had taken the initiative in the formation of the Ashburnham Civic Association. The committee of the Mark street Methodist church had warmly co-operated with them in this undertaking now crowned with success. Several meetings had been held during the year, and the Chapter is in a thoroughly healthy condition. The officers are J. J. Turner, Jun., President; G. F. Warde, Vice-President; G. G. Pratley, Sec.-Treas.; Committee, T. H. Adams, D. Curtis, A. Dawson, S. Gaskins, W. H. Long, A. H. Nesbitt, A. O. Sawyer, A. Wilson.

On behalf of the young women's Chapter of the guild Miss K. Phillips reported a membership of 50. Eight meetings had been held. The annual easter concert resulted in a net profit of $48.16. They had undertaken and successfully carried out the furnishing of the new vestry. Officers, Miss Miss M. Calcutt, president; Miss A. Tivey, vice-president; Miss K. Phillips, sec.-treas.

After the reading of this report Mrs. Parker sung Kingsley's beautiful song "Clear and Cool."

Mr. D. Spence reported for the Sunday School. There were some apparent decreases, but this was owning to the fact that the Bible class had been separated from the Sunday School and organized on a separate basis. There are 140 scholars on the roll and the average attendance is 98. The teachers number 14 and officers 5.

Mr. H. Adams, Sec.-Treas., presented the financial statement of the Sunday School. The receipts from all sources were $176.34, and expenditure, including a grant of $30 to the new furnace, $119.30, leaving a balance on hand of $57.04.

A new society in St. Luke's is known as the Social Workers. Miss Mills, Hon. President; Mrs. Gibbs, President; Mrs. G. Long, Vice President and Miss K. Meade, Sec.-Treas. Mrs. Gibbs reported that a good number of church women not members of any other society had been gathered together, and very pleasant meetings had been held. It has been decided to work for a granolithic walk to be laid down from the sidewalk to the church and Sunday school.

In the absence of the president, Miss Mills, who has just left for a visit to England, the chairman reported on the good work of the Visiting Chapter of the Guild.

The chairman also told of the good work of the Sunnyside Branch of the W. A.

Miss Greta Symonds read the report of the Junior Branch of the W. A. Twenty-eight members are on the roll. A bale had been send to Rev. Mr. Gander of Offington, and a bazaar was to be held on Monday April 29th. President, Miss Helen Rogers; vice-pres., Miss G. Meade.

Mr. J. J. Turner read the report of the Bible Class which showed a flourishing state of affairs. On the roll, 63 members. Officers—Hon. Pres., Rev. H. Symonds; president, J. J. Turner, Jr.; vice pres., Miss K. Phillips; secretary, W. F. Turner; treasurer, Percy Jameson; absentee secretaries, Miss Lipsett and R. McFadden.

Mr. Webber Turner read the Secretary's report and Mr. Percy Jameson's report. The total amount of receipts was $26.02, and expenditure $19.10. This included a grant of $10 to the Easter collection and of $5 towards a new church now being erected in the Mission of Minden.

The report of the Decoration Chapter was read by Miss Maud Adams. There was a membership of twenty-four, and the work of Church decoration spoke for itself. Thanks were tendered to all those who had contributed so liberally towards the decorations during the past year. President, Mrs. H. Adams, secretary, Miss K. Phillips.

Mr. A. G. Parker, Secretary to the choir, read Mr. Davies' report in his unavoidable absence The attendance had fluctuated considerably, but was now good. Mr. Davies drew attention to the need of repairing the organ, and suggested that the Wardens give the choir an excursion during the summer.

All the reports were heard with much interest and evoked loud applause.

Rev. H. Symonds then gave a short address, in which he referred in warmest terms to the hearty co-operation he received from all. He felt that the congregation was thoroughly united, and that the best spirit prevailed throughout. He then nominated the following sidesmen: Messrs. H. Adams, H. Burnham, W. H. Carter, D. Curtis, E. A. Peck, G. G. Pratley, A. O. Sawyer, A. E. Sedgwick, Alex. Wilson and A. Waterman.

Mr. A. Dawson made a few stirring remarks, in which he expressed his sense of the honour done him in making him Churchwarden, He eulogized the Rector, and thought the outlook for the future was bright. He then moved, seconded by Mr. F. Adams, People's Warden, a vote of thanks to the Bible Class for their donation of $10 to the Easter collection.

After this the Women's Auxiliary served refreshments, and then, as is the custom at St. Luke's on the occasion of this pleasant social re-union, the members joined hands in a circle round the school house and sung with great heartiness "Auld Lang Syne." The proceedings terminated with the singing of the National Anthem.

"P. D." CORSET DEMONSTRATION.

Miss Helen M. Lyman of New York City, will be in daily attendance at the Golden Lion from April 15th to 20th for the purpose of exemplifying perfect corset fitting. There is no other corset that begins to compare with the "P.D.," in style, comfort and fit at the price. 5d67

ROBERT FAIR & CO.

REV. MR. SYMONDS RESIGNS.

He has no Longer the Time at His Disposal to Conduct the Normal Classes.

The Sunday school teachers, who have been attending the Friday night meetings, will be sorry to learn that Rev. H. Symonds will not be present at any future meeting this season, owing to another engagement on Friday evenings. He has expressed himself as being willing to help in any way after the holiday season.

There will be a meeting for the study of the lesson on Friday night as usual, and to discuss some good plan for the balance of the season.

GET A CUP OF TEA.

The Ross Advertisement in Messrs Mason & Co's Store.

The store of Messrs. E. F. Mason & Co., George street, contains something unique these days and will contain such during the present week. Just inside the entrance door is a cute little bower of Oriental type and constructed in a dainty and most elaborate style. The trimmings are of the prettiest colours of silks and satins, and the frame work of light material and artistic design. Inside the cosy little house a young lady, becomingly attired, serves up to her callers a cup of tea or several of them if one may desire. It is for the purpose of giving the public an idea of the value of Ross's high grade Ceylon tea. The facilities for serving the tea are most complete, a dainty little tea set being amongst the equipment of the little Japanese house.

The window, too, is conspicuously occupied with packages of Ross's tea, but a visit to the establishment will give one a better idea of the elaborate style of the display than an attempt at description.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The brigade was called out to a chimney blaze on Gilmour street this morning.

—Will Patterson, the alleged grave robber, will be tried before Judge Weller on Friday next.

—What about a new band stand for Victoria Park, or is the band going to play in the Central Park this summer?

—The G. T. R. station house is being somewhat renovated. A new floor has been laid in the general waiting room.

—The remains of the late Harry Beek were taken from the vault in the Little Lake Cemetery yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock and interred in the grave.

NORWOOD NOTES.

A Big Celebration for the 24th of May.

Miss Mary Rork, of Toronto Junction, is still at home.

Mr. Gerald S. Roxburgh has returned from visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mr. O. Moran has returned from his home at Centerton.

Mr. Geo. Buck returned to his place of business, Cold Springs, Monday evening.

Mr. P. Graham, one of the high school staff, has returned after spending the holidays at his home in Campbellford.

Mr. R. N. Merritt, one of the high school staff, has returned after spending the holidays at home.

Mr. E. E. Moore, of Hastings, spent the Easter holidays at his home, Norwood.

Do not leave Norwood or make any preparation to leave on May 24th. The High School Cadets intend to have a big day on the 24th, and invite everybody to come and enjoy themselves. They expect to have uniforms by that time and will perform several military manuvers. If possible, companies of the 40th and 57th Battalions will also be present and drill on the grounds. Lacrosse and football matches will be arranged and any other sports that will give a good enjoyable day. Everybody is welcome and so a large crowd is expected. The money is to pay for the uniforms of the Cadets.

Mr. A. S. Harrison has his store overhauled now and will be soon running at full speed.

The Norwood Football Club organized Monday evening and in a few weeks they will be prepared to meet any club from Havelock up to the Toronto Scots.

Mr. Wm. Cuthbertson met with a very unpleasant accident last Sunday. When returning home from a stroll he accidently slipped off the bridge over the creek with the result of a pretty cool ducking. His hat which floated into the pond was rescued by Jack Buck's dog.

Maple syrup is unusually scarce in the village this year.

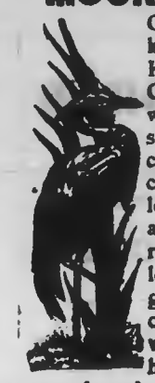
THREE BOTTLES
...CURED HIM...



One of the best known residents of Kingston, Ont., is Charles H. Clarke, who for nine years in succession held the civic street-watering contract. While following his daily vocation he contracted rheumatism in his legs and feet, through getting them wet so often. For three weeks he was so bad he could barely walk around, and could not put on his boots. He had almost lost the use of his legs, and was unable to obtain any relief from the terrible pains until he gave Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure a trial. It worked like magic; and before he had taken the contents of three bottles he was as well as he ever was at any period of his life. He took the contents of only three bottles, and is completely cured, with no sign of a return of the old complaint. He says Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is a marvellous medicine for the cure of rheumatism.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

CHANGED OVERCOATS

TRIVIAL INCIDENT THAT BROUGHT ABOUT SERIOUS RESULTS.

A Narrative Which Goes to Show What Tremendous Influences Insignificant Happenings May Exert Over the Affairs of Life.

An accidental exchange of overcoats at a local restaurant one evening recently recalled a queer story to an old lawyer who was dining at the other side of the room. "One evening in the early seventies," he said, "a garcon hurrying through a crowded cafe not very far from here knocked down two hats that had been hanging above a couple of overcoats on a wall rack. He picked them up and restored them to the pegs and by that simple act condemned a very estimable gentleman to four years of acute mental torment and started another individual, considerably less estimable, on a road that led eventually to a suicide's grave. The funny part about it was that the garcon didn't know either man from Adam's house cat. If he had been told later on of the trouble he caused, he would probably have had a stroke of apoplexy. I remember being told that he was rather fat.

"I am something of a student of causation," continued the old lawyer, "and I have frequently amused myself by tracing out the extraordinary consequences of some apparently trivial incident. It is nearly always the shifting of a pebble that brings down the avalanches of social life, and in this case—but I will briefly sketch the facts, and you may draw your own conclusions.

"The fat garcon, as a matter of course, hung the hats over the wrong garments, and a few minutes afterward a young fellow who had just finished his dinner got up and walked off with another man's overcoat. By an odd coincidence it was so much like his own that he wore it for a week without discovering the change. Then one day he felt in the inside pocket and pulled out several letters that were strange to him. I think I could repeat their contents even now from memory, but there are professional reasons why I cannot be very explicit. Suffice it to say that they put him in possession of certain facts, partly of a commercial and partly of a personal nature, that spelled absolute ruin for the man whom they concerned.

"As I have already hinted, the young person who stumbled into this information was not a very estimable character, but he had plenty of nerve and shrewdness, and he began at once to plan how he could turn his discovery into cash. Meanwhile the other fellow, who was a quiet, middle aged business man, had failed to observe that he was wearing somebody else's coat. I may say right here that he never found it out and died in ignorance of a fact that might have saved him an infinite deal of worry.

"The young man with the incriminating letter was afraid to act personally, because he was in rather a ticklish position himself, owing to numerous shady transactions in the past, and his victim might easily have turned the tables upon him. So he made a tool of a miserable old drunkard, who had once been a lawyer, and they proceeded to put on the screws. The business man had missed the letters, of course, but he hadn't the faintest idea of how he had lost them and imagined that they had been stolen out of his coat at his office, and that theory, by the way, resulted in the abrupt discharge of several entirely innocent and unsuspecting employees.

"When the ex-shyster approached him, he promptly flew into a panic and paid the first installment of blackmail almost without a protest. What followed was somewhat commonplace," said the old lawyer musingly, "and I will merely skeletonize it. In a year or so the ex-shyster succumbed to prosperity, complicated with jimjams, and the man with the letters had to get a new catspaw. He picked up a queer looking character who had been a sort of horse doctor and all around fakir. This fellow knew nothing of the facts, but merely acted as a go between and used to appear at intervals with a card on which a certain amount would be scrawled in pencil.

My blackmailing gentleman had become a good deal of a wreck during his years of successful operation, and not long after I put a period to his little game his former victim died. That destroyed any lingering hopes he may have had of renewing the squeeze, and he came to my office one day and offered to tell me exactly how he secured the letters if I would give him enough money to go to Chicago. For the sake of clearing the matter up I accepted the proposition, and he related the incident of the cafe. It is undoubtedly true. He drifted north with the money I gave him, got on a tremendous spree and killed himself by jumping out of a window."

THE BLACK VENUS.

An Ugly Stone Figure Worshiped by Peasants of Brittany.

Even false religions die hard, and there are reminders of all extinct faiths still existing in the world. One of the most curious relics of paganism which are still worshiped in a Christian country is the gigantic black stone figure of a woman which is to be found in a forest of the district of Morbihan, in Brittany.

It is known as the "Black Venus," but probably dates far back of the time when the Greeks and Romans worshiped that goddess. Antiquarians assert that this ugly idol belongs to the age of the serpent worshipers, one of whose subterranean temples is in the neighborhood. This would make the figure far older than the Christian era.

The statue is that of a huge, uncouth woman, with a sullen, angry countenance, her form enveloped in a loose mantle.

The superstitious Bretons have always worshiped the figure, asserting that it has power over the weather and the crops. If the idol is neglected, they declare that the grain dies on the ear, and if the anger of the black woman is further roused a tidal wave sweeps over Morbihan.

Twice the stone was cast into the sea by pious folk who hoped thereby to put an end to this idolatry, and twice the peasants dragged it back and set up an altar before it.

About two centuries ago Count Pierre de Lannion, on whose estate the figure stood, in order to save the statue from both friends and enemies, dragged it by 40 yoke of oxen to his own chateau and set it up in the courtyard. He cut an inscription on the base of the pedestal, declaring the figure to be a Venus carved by Cæsar's soldiers.

The count and his chateau are both gone, but the huge black woman, overgrown with moss, still stands in the forest, and the peasants still beseech her to bless their crops.

TEACHING A YOUNG LARK.

How Its Mother Coaches It to Hop About and Fly.

J. M. Barrie, the noted Scottish story writer, in Scribner's Magazine told how a young lark got its first lesson.

A baby lark had got out of its nest sideways, a fall of a foot only, but a dreadful drop for a baby.

"You can get back this way," its mother said, and showed it the way. But when the baby tried to leap it fell on its back. Then the mother marked out lines on the ground on which it was to practice hopping, and it got along beautifully so long as the mother was there every moment to say, "How wonderfully you hop!"

"Now teach me to hop up," said the little lark, meaning that it wanted to fly, and the mother tried to do it in vain. She could soar up, up, very bravely, but she could not explain how she did it.

"Wait till the sun comes out after the rain," she said, half remembering.

"What is sun? What is rain?" the little bird asked. "If you cannot teach me to fly, teach me to sing."

"When the sun comes out after rain," the mother replied, "then you will know how to sing."

The rain came and glued the little bird's wings together.

"I shall never be able to fly or sing," it wailed.

Then of a sudden it began to blink its eyes, for a glorious light had spread over the world, catching every leaf and twig and blade of grass in tears and putting a smile in every tear. The baby bird's breast swelled, it did not know why; it fluttered from the ground, it did not know why.

"The sun has come out after the rain!" it trilled. "Thank you, sun! Thank you! Thank you! Oh, mother, did you hear me? I can sing."

Then it floated up, up, calling, "Thank you, thank you, thank you!" to the sun. "Oh, mother, do you see me? I am flying!"

A Good Memory.

A bad memory in most cases might be more properly described as one rusting from sheer want of use. The fact is our brain cells are always "ready to oblige," but we do not give them sufficient encouragement in their well meant efforts. Naturally the individual may cultivate a memory for certain details more readily than for others, but the general basis of all recollective acts is the same, and there is no department of human mental activity in which the motto that "practice makes perfect" holds more truly than in the science of mnemonics. The view may be expressed, indeed, that we never forget anything presented to our brain cells. When we say we have forgotten, we really mean that we cannot find the mental photographic negative whence we can print off a positive reproduction.—London Chronicle.

The Queen's Legal Rights.

Queen Alexandra has more independent legal rights than any other wife in England. The Law Journal points out that the queen consort's legal status differs from that of all other married women. She is regarded by law as a "feme sole." She may bring an action in the courts as if she were unmarried. She has her separate court, her separate guards and her own servants, distinct from those of the king. By an act dating from the sixteenth century she is empowered to write after her name the title, "Queen of England," and, although she is only a subject, an attempt to assassinate her is punishable as high treason.

Common, everyday earth is a cure for many an ache or pain. In the case of a burn from an acid the chief thing is to apply an alkali to neutralize the acid. This may be done by gathering a handful of earth and laying it on the injured part, for the earth contains alkali enough to render it very efficacious. Soda may be used for an acid burn.

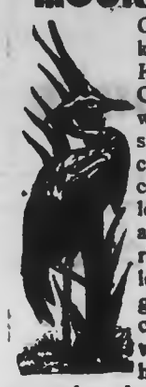
THREE BOTTLES
...CURED HIM...



One of the best known residents of Kingston, Ont., is Charles H. Clarke, who for nine years in succession held the civic street-watering contract. While following his daily vocation he contracted rheumatism in his legs and feet, through getting them wet so often. For three weeks he was so bad he could barely walk around, and could not put on his boots. He had almost lost the use of his legs, and was unable to obtain any relief from the terrible pains until he gave Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure a trial. It worked like magic; and before he had taken the contents of three bottles he was as well as he ever was at any period of his life. He took the contents of only three bottles, and is completely cured, with no sign of a return of the old complaint. He says Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is a marvellous medicine for the cure of rheumatism.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

CHANGED OVERCOATS

TRIVIAL INCIDENT THAT BROUGHT ABOUT SERIOUS RESULTS.

A Narrative Which Goes to Show What Tremendous Influences Insignificant Happenings May Exert Over the Affairs of Life.

An accidental exchange of overcoats at a local restaurant one evening recently recalled a queer story to an old lawyer who was dining at the other side of the room. "One evening in the early seventies," he said, "a garcon hurrying through a crowded cafe not very far from here knocked down two hats that had been hanging above a couple of overcoats on a wall rack. He picked them up and restored them to the pegs and by that simple act condemned a very estimable gentleman to four years of acute mental torment and started another individual, considerably less estimable, on a road that led eventually to a suicide's grave. The funny part about it was that the garcon didn't know either man from Adam's house cat. If he had been told later on of the trouble he caused, he would probably have had a stroke of apoplexy. I remember being told that he was rather fat.

"I am something of a student of causation," continued the old lawyer, "and I have frequently amused myself by tracing out the extraordinary consequences of some apparently trivial incident. It is nearly always the shifting of a pebble that brings down the avalanches of social life, and in this case—but I will briefly sketch the facts, and you may draw your own conclusions.

"The fat garcon, as a matter of course, hung the hats over the wrong garments, and a few minutes afterward a young fellow who had just finished his dinner got up and walked off with another man's overcoat. By an odd coincidence it was so much like his own that he wore it for a week without discovering the change. Then one day he felt in the inside pocket and pulled out several letters that were strange to him. I think I could repeat their contents even now from memory, but there are professional reasons why I cannot be very explicit. Suffice it to say that they put him in possession of certain facts, partly of a commercial and partly of a personal nature, that spelled absolute ruin for the man whom they concerned.

"As I have already hinted, the young person who stumbled into this information was not a very estimable character, but he had plenty of nerve and shrewdness, and he began at once to plan how he could turn his discovery into cash. Meanwhile the other fellow, who was a quiet, middle aged business man, had failed to observe that he was wearing somebody else's coat. I may say right here that he never found it out and died in ignorance of a fact that might have saved him an infinite deal of worry.

"The young man with the incriminating letter was afraid to act personally, because he was in rather a ticklish position himself, owing to numerous shady transactions in the past, and his victim might easily have turned the tables upon him. So he made a tool of a miserable old drunkard, who had once been a lawyer, and they proceeded to put on the screws. The business man had missed the letters, of course, but he hadn't the faintest idea of how he had lost them and imagined that they had been stolen out of his coat at his office, and that theory, by the way, resulted in the abrupt discharge of several entirely innocent and unsuspecting employees.

"When the ex-shyster approached him, he promptly flew into a panic and paid the first installment of blackmail almost without a protest. What followed was somewhat commonplace," said the old lawyer musingly, "and I will merely skeletonize it. In a year or so the ex-shyster succumbed to prosperity, complicated with jimjams, and the man with the letters had to get a new catspaw. He picked up a queer looking character who had been a sort of horse doctor and all around fakir. This fellow knew nothing of the facts, but merely acted as a go between and used to appear at intervals with a card on which a certain amount would be scrawled in pencil.

"It seems incredible, but this went on for three solid years. Then one day the victim got desperate and did what he should have done at first. He came over to my office and made a clean breast of the whole affair. I took the bull by the horns. To begin with, I quietly got out a warrant for the fake veterinary, and when he appeared I gave him 30 seconds to furnish the name of his principal. That secured, I swore out a second warrant and went after the young man myself.

"'I want those documents,' I said, 'and also your signature to this confession.' He blustered a good deal, but my bluff was the stronger, and inside of 15 minutes I had what I came after. He told me he had found the letters on the floor of the postoffice, and I let it go at that. But I warned him that any future attempts at extortion would result in his instant arrest.

"There the story proper ends, but there is one thing to add—namely, how I found out the truth about the overcoats. It was very simple. My blackmailing gentleman had become a good deal of a wreck during his years of successful operation, and not long after I put a period to his little game his former victim died. That destroyed any lingering hopes he may have had of renewing the squeeze, and he came to my office one day and offered to tell me exactly how he secured the letters if I would give him enough money to go to Chicago. For the sake of clearing the matter up I accepted the proposition, and he related the incident of the cafe. It is undoubtedly true. He drifted north with the money I gave him, got on a tremendous spree and killed himself by jumping out of a window."

A baby lark had got out of its nest sideways, a fall of a foot only, but a dreadful drop for a baby.

"You can get back this way," its mother said, and showed it the way. But when the baby tried to leap it fell on its back. Then the mother marked out lines on the ground on which it was to practice hopping, and it got along beautifully so long as the mother was there every moment to say, "How wonderfully you hop!"

"Now teach me to hop up," said the little lark, meaning that it wanted to fly, and the mother tried to do it in vain. She could soar up, up, very bravely, but she could not explain how she did it.

"Wait till the sun comes out after the rain," she said, half remembering.

"What is sun? What is rain?" the little bird asked. "If you cannot teach me to fly, teach me to sing."

"When the sun comes out after rain," the mother replied, "then you will know how to sing."

The rain came and glued the little bird's wings together.

"I shall never be able to fly or sing," it wailed.

Then of a sudden it began to blink its eyes, for a glorious light had spread over the world, catching every leaf and twig and blade of grass in tears and putting a smile in every tear. The baby bird's breast swelled, it did not know why; it fluttered from the ground, it did not know why.

"The sun has come out after the rain!" it trilled. "Thank you, sun! Thank you! Thank you! Oh, mother, did you hear me? I can sing."

Then it floated up, up, calling, "Thank you, thank you, thank you!" to the sun. "Oh, mother, do you see me? I am flying!"

A Good Memory.

A bad memory in most cases might be more properly described as one rusting from sheer want of use. The fact is our brain cells are always "ready to oblige," but we do not give them sufficient encouragement in their well meant efforts. Naturally the individual may cultivate a memory for certain details more readily than for others, but the general basis of all recollective acts is the same, and there is no department of human mental activity in which the motto that "practice makes perfect" holds more truly than in the science of mnemonics. The view may be expressed, indeed, that we never forget anything presented to our brain cells. When we say we have forgotten, we really mean that we cannot find the mental photographic negative whence we can print off a positive reproduction.—London Chronicle.

The Queen's Legal Rights.

Queen Alexandra has more independent legal rights than any other wife in England. The Law Journal points out that the queen consort's legal status differs from that of all other married women. She is regarded by law as a "feme sole." She may bring an action in the courts as if she were unmarried. She has her separate court, her separate guards and her own servants, distinct from those of the king. By an act dating from the sixteenth century she is empowered to write after her name the title, "Queen of England," and, although she is only a subject, an attempt to assassinate her is punishable as high treason.

Common, everyday earth is a cure for many an ache or pain. In the case of a burn from an acid the chief thing is to apply an alkali to neutralize the acid. This may be done by gathering a handful of earth and laying it on the injured part, for the earth contains alkali enough to render it very efficacious. Soda may be used for an acid burn.

If you will only have bare floors and rugs in your house there need never be a regular housecleaning period. The house will be cleaned from week to week, and carpet cleaning as an exceptional function will not be known.

FIGHTING A WILDCAT

AN ADVENTURE THAT MADE ONE MAN SHY OF THAT KIND OF BEAST.

He Is Willing to Go a Long Way Around to Avoid Ferocious Animals, Even Though Science Says They Will Flee at Man's Approach.

"I have read in the papers certain scientific assertions that no wild animal will voluntarily attack or pursue a human being, but that, on the contrary, the fiercest of them, as tradition and the tales of woodsmen classify them, will make haste to escape the possible sight of man, unless, in desperate cases, hunger may urge it to approach him, its most dreaded foe, such cases being extremely rare," said a matter of fact and veracious New York business man.

"If that is so, I had a little experience once with a wild animal that must have been the most desperately hungry beast that ever longed for food. The occurrence was in northwestern Pennsylvania, where one winter I had some business that called me ten miles from the county town to one of the backwoods districts. It was late in the afternoon when I started on my return to the village. The way was over a lonely, narrow, crooked mountain road, bordered by deep woods much of the distance. Toward dusk, as I was rounding a short turn in the road, my horse, which had a good deal of spirit, shied suddenly and sprang forward on a furious run.

"At the same instant an animal with glaring eyes plumped down from somewhere and landed in the sleigh at my feet. It had evidently leaped from a tree at the horse, the quick movements of which nervous animal had defeated that purpose, and the attacking animal had alighted with its fore feet on the robe that lay across my lap. It glared furiously at me, with its face not more than two feet away, as it clung to the robe with its sharp claws, growling fiercely. I had never seen a wildcat, but I knew instantly and instinctively that I had one to deal with here, and it seemed to be a very large and savage one at that. I had no weapon, but fortunately the whip that stood in its socket on the dashboard was loaded at the butt.

"Clinging to the reins with my left hand—the horse was running away—I quickly drew the whip from the socket and struck the wildcat on the head with the heavy butt. That caused the animal to loosen its hold on the robe and drop into the snow at the side of the sleigh, but the agile and furious beast was up in the fraction of a second and with one bound sprang on the back of the sleigh, which had a low body.

"Although the horse was running madly away along the narrow and crooked road, throwing the sleigh from side to side and threatening it constantly with destruction against some rock or stump, I was obliged to drop the reins and leave the result of the runaway to chance, for the wildcat was struggling desperately to gain a foothold in the sleigh and fight me at close quarters. I knew that if the sleigh should happen to come into collision with any obstacle heavy enough to wreck it I would be no match for the catamount, now wrought to the utmost ferocity, fighting it on the slipping snow, even if I were unharmed by the collision, so I strained every nerve to conquer the determined beast while I still possessed the advantage of foothold in the sleigh.

"Once I thought it was all up with me, for as the sleigh was carried abruptly round a short turn in the road by the speeding horse one runner struck a stone or a root, and the sleigh careened and ran at least 50 feet on the other runner alone. I mechanically threw the weight of my body toward the upper side of the sleigh, all the time raining rapid blows on the head of the wildcat with the butt of the whip, and forced the sleigh down to its balance on both runners again. A few more blows after that, and I was rejoiced to see the determined and tenacious beast first loosen one claw, hang for a second or so by the other, while it tried to seize the top of the back of the sleigh again with its teeth, and then tumble to the road and lie motionless in the snow.

"I dropped back on the seat limp and weak and too much unnerved to make the least effort to obtain control of the runaway, which was still rushing wildly along the uncertain road, made still more uncertain by the gathering darkness. The horse ran at least three miles farther and then began to slow up and at last stopped half way up a long and steep hill from sheer exhaustion. I had by this time recovered sufficiently to take charge of the horse again and drive the rest of the way to the town, which wasn't far, and where I arrived with the horse covered with foam, a sleigh splintered and covered deep with scars and scratches made by the desperate wildcat and myself so badly used up by nervous shock that it was three days before I was able to get about again in anything like good condition. I never heard whether the wildcat was killed by my blows or not, but I have an idea he was. I hope so. Science may be all right in declaring that wild animals will hasten to flee at the very suspicion of man's approach, but if ever I am going anywhere and hear there are wildcats in that direction I'll go around some other way."

Sardines dipped in boiling water, skinned, boned and pounded in a mortar make excellent sandwiches.

An addition to the list of sauces served with vanilla or banana ice cream is pineapple sauce. The sauce is made with the shaved fruit cooked in sugar as for preserving.

Pineapple used in the place of lemon in tea is a little out of the ordinary. Either the fresh fruit or that which has been preserved may be used, and a very little in a cup of tea has the effect of a cordial.

THE ROYAL BOX.

Queen Alexandra, wife of the new British sovereign, has from girlhood been an accomplished musician and some years ago received from Trinity college, Dublin, the degree of doctor of music.

Queen Victoria received about $120,000,000 from the British nation in payment of her official salary. This would make about 170 tons of gold in English sovereigns, or more than two tons of gold for each year of her reign.

According to the Rotterdam correspondent of the London Express, the national present for Queen Wilhelmina, which had hitherto been kept a great secret, will take the form of a new crown, and £20,000 has been subscribed.

One result of the accession of King Edward is to elevate his eldest daughter, the Duchess of Fife, to the position of princess royal of England. The title is of no great practical value, except that the holder of it is included within the provisions against treason that guard the persons of the sovereign and of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

Queen Marguerite is writing the "Home Life of King Humbert" and is collecting all the correspondence which ever passed between them, for the king never destroyed a letter or telegram that he received from her. She is also collecting all the prints and engravings of the king and herself whenever they were together at any ceremony, public and private.

Miss Olive Monalesen, daughter of a European resident of Bombay, has just been married to the young rajah of Jhind, lord of a native state in India. The wedding took place according to the Sikh rites, the bride being fully aware that the groom already had at least two wives.

The Duchess of Somerset will be the first among the British peeresses in order of precedence at all the coming ceremonials, as there is no Duchess of Norfolk. The duchess was a Miss Susan Mackinnon and married the fifteenth Duke of Somerset in 1877. The dukedom of Somerset, which ranks next to that of Norfolk, dates from 1546. The Norfolk dukedom is of still more ancient creation, dating from 1483.

King Edward has just conferred the Royal Red Cross upon Mme. de Ferrieres, superintendent of the French hospital at Johannesburg. This decoration was instituted in 1883 as a recognition of services rendered by women in connection with the nursing of the sick and wounded of the army and navy. Among the first upon whom it was bestowed was Miss Nightingale. Countess Roberts is also entitled to wear it.

MEXICAN MATTERS.

Fifty thousand men are at present employed on public works in Mexico.

Nearly one-fourth of Mexico's foreign trade was handled through the port of Tampico last year.

The 20 Mexican banks reported in the government reports show a combined capital of $70,000,000.

The foreign trade in Mexico, both import and export, now amounts to an annual value of $140,000,000.

The public debt of Mexico amounts to $115,178,612 payable in gold and $123,118,982.20 payable in Mexican silver.

Last year Mexico manufactured 376,000,000 packages of cigarettes and 119,000,000 cigars. This is an increase of 10 per cent over the previous year.

The Mexican army of more than 25,000 men is supported upon a trifle more than a million Mexican dollars a month. The Mexican congress does not cost a million dollars a year.

Henequen will continue to be Mexico's most important article of agricultural export for a good many years to come. The value of this fiber shipped during the last fiscal year was over $20,000,000. Coffee comes next in importance, with a value for the export crop of nearly $11,000,000.

The ice began to shove with such force last week that the wharf was almost destroyed before it was noticed. Capt. Harris already has it partially repaired.

The steamer "Beaver" is being painted and made ready for the summer's work.

Putnam's Corn Extractor

Doesn't lay a man up for a week, but quietly and surely goes on doing its work, and nothing is known of the operation till the corn is shelled. Plenty of substitutes do this. Some of them are dangerous—no danger from Putnam's except to the corn.

DOURO COUNCIL.

Council met at a call from the Reeve on April 7th. Members all present. Dennis Moloney, Reeve, in the chair. The readings of the minutes of the previous meeting was dispensed with.

On motion of Messrs. Condon and Sullivan, Chas. Curtis and John R. Allen were appointed commissioners to examine the contract on line of road between concession 7 and 8 in front of lot 3, and in the event of the same being satisfactory, that the treasurer pay cost of same on the said commissioners order, cost not to exceed $10.00.

On motion of Messrs. Allen and Curtis,, the reeve was appointed a commissioner to act in concert with a commissioner from the Dummer Council re water course on boundary between Douro and Dummer in front of lot 3, and report at next meeting of council.

Moved by Messrs. Sullivan and Condon, that the sum of $15.06, being a refund of printing account for 1900, be paid over to the treasurer, the same to be credited to the general funds of the municipality.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Curtis the reeve ordered the payment of $24 to Sister St. Edward, Mother Superior of the House of Providence, Ashburnham, for the keeping of Mrs. Norah McMahon and her two children to date.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Curtis the auditors' report was referred back to the auditors for correction by inserting the name of Patrick Ryan, for $8.00, and Edward Nolan for $3.45, in statement, and that the clerk be authorized to have report so corrected attached to printed statement.

On motion of Messrs. Condon and Sullivan the reeve ordered the payment of $2.00 to William Abbott for statute labor performed, but charged on the collector's roll of 1899 against H. Daubez.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Curtis the clerk was instructed to allow William Abbott 2 days statute labor when preparing the list of 1901, if he finds by the assessment rolls that Mr. Abbott was over charged to that amount in 1898 and 1900.

On motion of Messrs. Curtis and Sullivan, the treasurer was authorized to allow the following statements to the collectors as final settlement of his roll, viz: 5 per cent. on his taxes, $1.38; 5 per cent. on his portion of uncollected taxes to Dec. 14th, 17c., and his salary $50.00.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Condon, William Garbutt was appointed an arbitrator to decide on the contemplated alteration of S. S. No. 6, Douro, No. 10 Lakefield, and the formation of a new S.S. out of portions of said School Sections as may be alterated.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Curtis, James McCliggott, ex-Reeve, was directed to hand over to Mr. Maloney, the present Reeve, all property in his possessions belonging to the Municipality.

On motion of Messrs. Sullivan and Allen, the Reeve and Councillor Curtis were appointed commissioners to interview the Peterborough Town Council re the boundary between Douro and the Town of Peterborough.

On motion council adjourned to the 27th day of May next, then to meet as a Court of Revision.—Carried.

CORONATION OF KING EDWARD.

Will Take Place in Westminister Abbey the End of June, 1902—Royal House in Ireland.

London, April 16.—The coronation of King Edward will take place at the end of June, 1902. Westminster Abbey, according to Truth, will be entirely closed to the public for four months prior to the event, and all services will be suspended in order to prepare the interior for the ceremony.

According to Onlooker, a society paper, a site of 145 acres has been acquired in Ireland for the erection of a royal residence, the plans for the building have been approved and work will commence shortly.

TWO MEN WENT TO DEATH.

Four Others With Them Were Injured, Two Probably Fatally.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 16.—A derrick car and a gondola toppled over a bridge over Eighteen-Mile Creek, 18 miles from Buffalo, on the Nickle Plate Railroad, this afternoon. Six men went with them to the rocky bed below. Two were so badly injured that they died within half an hour after the accident. Four others were brought to the Emergency Hospital in this city. At midnight the surgeons said it was doubtful if two of them would live until daybreak.

Canadian Vet to Be Admitted.

Albany, April 17.—A bill to admit a Canadian veterinarian graduate to practice in the United States without certain regent examinations, was advanced to a third reading in the Senate yesterday.

STEELMAKERS STRIKE.

Prospects of a Big Fight to a Finish Between 50,000 Workmen and a Very Strong Corporation.

McKeesport, Pa., April 16.—Within two days more than 50,000 men employed in the different mills controlled by the United States Steel Corporation will be called out on a strike unless the American Sheet Steel Company, operating the W. Dewees Wood Mills here, consents to reinstate a number of its employes who were discharged a week ago because they organized a union and joined the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Plate Workers.

Not a wheel was turned in the Wood mills here to-day by skilled labor. About 25 laborers were working about the mill, but all the departments are held up. Efforts were made at 8 and 4 o'clock to start, but not enough men could be secured to operate a single sheet mill.

Manager Samuel Cooper said to-night: "You can say most emphatically that this company will never recognise the Amalgamated Association."

He didn't deny that the employes were discharged because they joined the union.

At a meeting of strikers this afternoon Theodore Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association, said it was a fight to the finish between the United States Steel Corporation and the association.

The local union increased its membership to-day about 100. About one-half of the thousand men who are out are striking in sympathy with union men.

Will Lock Out the Men.

Berlin, April 16.—The Employers' League of Berlin builders has decided upon a lockout to affect all workmen who participate in the usual labor demonstrations on May 1, the lockout to continue for the rest of the week.

Two Hundred on Strike.

Scranton, Pa., April 17.—Two hundred switchmen in the Lackawanna yards here, at Taylor and at Clark's Summit struck yesterday afternoon against the discharge of two men by Yardmaster Newell, who wanted to replace them, it is said, by men brought from Hoboken. There is a complete tie-up of freight and coal traffic here, and word has been sent down the Bloomsburg and other divisions to hold all trains. Three miles of loaded coal cars are already blocked on the Bloomsburg division between here and Pittston Junction.

Strike on at St. John.

St. John, N. B., April 17.—Most of the iron workers of the city struck for 25 cents per day additional pay. The men in three shops are all out. Part have joined the strikers from another, while a fifth has granted the increase asked for.

Pulp Makers Strike.

Montreal, April 17.—Monday the management of the Laurentide Pulp Mills at Grand Mere notified the 800 men employed that a reduction of from 10 to 15 per cent. in their wages would come into force and the entire number stopped work. The company employ 500 men by the day and their night gang numbers 300. The wages ranged from $1 to $1.50 per day.

C. P. R. Trackmen Confer.

Montreal, April 17.—A committee representing the trackmen of the C. P. R. is now holding daily sessions at the Grand Union Hotel, discussing the grievances of the men, prior to laying them before the officials of the company. This committee is a representative one, every section of the line having its delegate present. The committee have John T. Wilson of St. Louis, Mo., president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America, to guide them and give them counsel.

TAPS FROM THE WIRE.

The pickrel season has been extended until Saturday.

Frederick Remington was thrown from his mustang in New Rochelle Monday, and broke several ligaments of his leg.

Willie Wilkinson, of Hoath Head, Sydenham, swallowed a false tooth. He was nearly strangled, but a doctor recovered both breath and tooth.

Ald. H. Lemon of Owen Sound lost a steer four months ago. He found it dead in a twelve acre bush yesterday, where it had spent the winter. It has been dead only a short time.

J. Pierpont Morgan is said to have bought the Gainsborough portrait for £25,000. He has also bought a Scotch collie for £300. London will probably become the headquarters of the steel trusts' foreign business.

The Minister of Agriculture has received word that the Ontario stock recently sold in British Columbia realized about $6,000. The shorthorns averaged $150. At Calgary at a breeders' sale, Albertabred stock fetched $78 to $90.

The big copper trust is moving slowly but surely. The consolidation of the Boston and Montanna Copper and Silver Mining Company and the Butte and Boston Mining Company with the Amalgamated Copper Company is being effected.

The dead body of James Finnegan, better known as "Puck," was found Tuesday night on the G. T. R. tracks, a little west of Strachan avenue crossing in Toronto, by Fred Shoemaker, a switchman. Nobody saw Finnegan meet his death, but it was apparent that he had been struck by an engine about 100 yards east of the point where the remains were discovered. It is believed he was pushed along under the engine, for his body was terribly mutilated. Finnegan was last seen alive when he was engaged with some others in assisting to load cattle on a train at the Western Cattle Market. There will be an inquest.

To be strong you must have good appetite, good digestion, and good assimilation. Miller's Compound Iron Pills bring all these. Sold by Wm. Madill.

SIR ALFRED MILNER.

Blue Book Published Containing His Correspondence.

GRANTED THREE MONTHS' LEAVE

He Describes the Situation on the 6th of February Last—It Was Not Then, As Sir Alfred Saw It, Very Rosate — The Fight Now One Mainly Over Supplies.

London, April 18.—The South African Blue Book, containing recent despatches from Sir Alfred Milner and other official correspondence, was issued last night.

Sir Alfred Milner wired, under date of March 3, requesting permission to return home at an early date upon leave of absence for the purpose of resting. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, replied by granting his request, but expressing the Government's regret that it should be necessary for Sir Alfred to leave South Africa at the present time, quite recognizing, however, his need for rest, and mentioning three months as a possible period of absence.

In a despatch, dated Feb. 6, Sir Alfred Milner reviews the situation in South Africa, and says that he had hoped some definite point would be reached at which it might be possible to sum up that chapter of history containing the war, and forecast the administrative reconstruction which must succeed it. "But I am reluctantly forced to the conclusion that there will be no such dividing line," continued Sir Alfred Milner, "I have not the slightest doubt of the ultimate result, but I foresee that the work will be slower, more difficult, more harassing and more expensive than was at one time anticipated. At any rate, it is idle to wait much longer in the hope of being able to describe a clear and clean-cut situation. In spite of the confused character of the present position, I think it better to attempt to describe, however roughly and inadequately, the state of things as they exist to-day.

It is no use denying that the last half year has been one of retrogression. Seven months ago this colony was perfectly quiet, at least as far as the Orange River. The southern half of the Orange River Colony was rapidly settling down, and even a considerable portion of the Transvaal, notably the southwestern districts, seemed to have definitely accepted British authority and to rejoice at the opportunity to return to orderly government and the pursuits of peace. To-day the scene is completely altered. It would be superfluous to dwell on the increased losses to the country, caused by the prolongation of the struggle, and by the form which it has recently assumed. The fact that the enemy are now broken up into a great number of small parties, raiding in every direction, and that our troops are similarly broken up in their pursuit, makes the area of actual fighting, and consequently of destruction, much wider than would be the case in a conflict between equal numbers operating in large masses.

Moreover, the fight is now mainly over supplies. The Boers live entirely on the country through which they pass, not only taking all the food they can lay their hands on, but looting the small village stores of clothes, boots, coffee and sugar, of all of which they are in great need. Our forces are compelled to denude the country of everything movable in order to frustrate these tactics of the enemy.

"The loss of crops and stock is the more serious to the Boers," continues Sir Alfred Milner, "than farm burning, of which so much has been heard. I say this not at all as an advocate of such destruction. I am glad to think the measure is now seldom, if ever, resorted to."

Sir Alfred Milner considers that the inexpensive character of the farm buildings is a comparatively small item in the total damage caused.

Sir Alfred Milner points out that the damage to the mines is not great, relatively to the large amount of capital stock in them, one mine having been damaged to the extent of £200,000.

"South Africans are sick unto death of war," he says, "but are prepared to suffer in order to make South Africa indisputably one country under one flag."

He believes that the young country will recuperate in a few years when the war is over.

Wessels Reported to Be Alive.

Cardock, Cape Colony, April 17.—Advices from Helibron say that Andries Wessels is alive. Wessels accompanied Morgandduel on his visit to the Boers in the capacity of peace envoy, and was reported to have been shot by order of Gen. Dewet.

ANOTHER CANADIAN KILLED.

General Statement of Casualties Among Canadians in South Africa.

Ottawa, April 18.—The general of communications at Cape Town cables as follows to Lord Minto:

"April 13—Sergt. F. Davidson, Canadian Scouts, formerly Canadian Mounted Rifles, killed near Vrijheid, April 11."

The Davidson referred to is Frank Davidson, at one time in the Northwest Mounted Police.

The following statement of the casualties among the Canadian contingents who served in South Africa has been compiled:

Corps.	Died.	Killed.
R. C. Infantry	29	39
R. C. Dragoons	18	7
C. Mounted Rifles	8	6
R. C. Field Artillery ...	8	1
Strathcona's Horse	14	12
Artificers	3	0
Total casualties	80	65

NIAGARA CAMP POSTPONED,

Will Be Held So That the Duke of York May Be Present.

Ottawa, April 18.—The Militia Department considers it advisable to postpone the Niagara camp for the troops of No. 2 Military District, which is usually held in June, until September or October, when the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York will be on a visit to Canada. The royal travelers will take in the Falls during the trip to Toronto and Hamilton, and the proposition is to have an imposing military review at Niagara and at the same time give an opportunity to the Duke to present the South African medals to the Ontario troops who served in the Boer war.

Two Fires of Importance.

New York, April 18.—The New York Central car shops at Rochester were burned this morning and the loss is over $100,000.

Pekin, April 17.—The Palace of Pekin, which Count Von Waldersee and his staff occupied, was burned to-day and everything except the military papers were destroyed.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Latter Threatens Easy Existence of the Big Steel Trust.

SETTLING GRAND MERE STRIKE.

The Men Who Are Out Had Their Wages Reduced — Conciliation Methods Are Apparently Prevailing—About 800 Men Out, Two-Thirds of Whom Are Willing to Accept New Scale.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 18.—Chances of a strike of all of the men of the Amalgamated Association, employed in the organized mills of the American Sheet Steel Company, and subsequently of all the men in the mills of the United Steel Corporation, tremble in the balance. On the one hand President T. J. Shaffer is backed up in his determination to call a general strike by a majority of the members of his advisory board and the district vice-presidents and trustees, who were in session all day yesterday. On the other hand there is a new move towards conciliation and arbitration, which may end the entire controversy in Pittsburg to-day or may be carried to New York to be adjusted by a higher power.

President T. J. Shaffer said last night that the outlook for settlement is better than at any time since the McKeesport trouble started. He refused to explain this statement.

A canvas of all parties to the dispute indicates that the declaration of a strike will not take place for several days. If the strike takes place it will involve 109,000 men.

Grand Mere Strike About Settled.

Grande Mere, Que., April 18.—The papermakers who went out on strike on Monday and the following morning were joined by the laborers, making in all about 800 men, are still out. The new schedule of wages, which went into effect on April 15, decreased part of the men's wages, and increased the wages of others. This was the cause of the strike. The strikers appointed themselves delegations, who have discussed the situation several times with D. Lorne McGibbon, manager of the company, and as a result about two-thirds of the papermakers have signified their willingness to accept the new schedule of wages. Also about one-half of the common laborers are quite ready to return to work, but the other half are endeavoring to keep them away and induce them not to accept this new scale.

No Strike in Rossland.

Rossland, B. C., April 18. — The Rossland Miners' Union have balloted on the question as to whether a strike should be inaugurated to sustain the muckers in their demand for an advance of from $2.50 to $3 in the pay per day, and as to whether certain other grievances should be remedied on penalty of a walk out. When the balloting was concluded it was found the vote stood 12 short of the number required for a three-quarter majority, the number necessary for the strike.

FATAL RIVER ACCIDENT.

Terrible Catastrophe on the Fraser River —Steamer Ramona Blown Up—Four Persons Killed.

Vancouver, B. C., April 18.—The boiler of the steamer Ramona, which runs between New Westminster and Langley, on the Fraser River, thirty miles from Vancouver, exploded yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Four people were killed outright, and of seven others who were seriously injured not more than two are expected to live. The dead are: Mrs. Henry Morrison of Fort Langley, Mrs. James Bailey of Mount Lehman and two deckhands who had been on the vessel but a week. They were Joe Macarie and A. Pipps. The accident occurred just after the vessel had left Langley Wharf and was in midstream. All at once there was an explosion, like the report of a cannon, and the whole front of the vessel was entirely blown away. The two women who had been standing on the bow were knocked into the water and drowned. The deckhands were frightfully burned by the escaping steam, and both were dead when picked up. A. Power, the purser, was fatally injured, as were also J. Maynard, mate, and V. Knoll, the fireman. It is not thought that any of these will recover. Four Indians were also badly injured, the skin hanging in shreds from their faces and bodies. They stood the torture like stoics, however.

RESCUED 194 MEN.

Sealing Steamer Greenland Saved Crew of the Hope.

St. John's, Nfld., April 18.—The sealing steamer Greenland arrived here this morning, having rescued 194 members of the crew of the sealing steamer Hope, which was wrecked on Bryon Island, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. All are well. The Hope was broken up by the furious gales, but her cargo of 5000 seals was saved.

Fearful weather was encountered by the Greenland.

MONTREAL VS. QUEBEC

House of Commons Discusses the Transportation Question.

CLAIMS OF MONTREAL STATED.

Mr. Bickerdike Defends the Harbor at Montreal and Says It Has Paid Its Own Way—The Heavy Insurance Rates—The Improvements Necessary in the Lower St. Lawrence.

Ottawa, April 18.—On motion to go into Committee of Supply in the House yesterday Mr. Bickerdike of Montreal brought up the transportation question. He complained that during a former discussion some members had spoken of Montreal as a port of the past. It was true the Grand Trunk had forsaken Montreal and made the foreign port of Portland their terminus. The papers, when brought down, would show that not a single dollar of public money had been spent in Montreal harbor. The Government had guaranteed interest on certain bonds, but the interest had always been promptly paid. He went thoroughly into the subject of improved aids to navigation, and pointed out where new lighthouses and fog alarms were needed.

Dr. Roddick, referring to the question of insurance by the St. Lawrence route, said that, whereas the rate to Baltimore was 4½ per cent., the rate to Montreal was 9, 10 and 11 per cent. On a ship worth $500,000, making five trips per season to Montreal, this would make a difference of $35,000 in the year. He also read the evidence of sea captains, showing that the existing Admiralty charts of the Gulf of St. Lawrence were incorrect as to soundings, and they advocated a new survey of the route and a further examination of the currents. Dr. Roddick urged the Government to take over the port of Montreal and make it a free port. The present high dues militated against the harbor of Montreal in competition with Newport News, Baltimore and other free harbors in the United States.

Mr. W. C. Edwards thought Montreal had been liberally dealt with. There was no doubt about getting grain and other products to Montreal; the difficulty was in obtaining shipping to carry the cargoes to the countries importing. If the route were improved, the insurance difficulty would disappear. He held the opinion, however, that large expenditure on the St. Lawrence River was so much more wasted. The city of Quebec was the natural port of the St. Lawrence, not Montreal. The channel between Quebec and Montreal would never be safe for large vessels.

Mr. Gallery (St. Anne's division of Montreal) said the Government had spent five or six millions on Quebec harbor, and it was not a national port yet. In the past few years 20 million dollars had been spent on the canal system, but the harbor of Montreal had not got a five-cent piece.

Mr. Dobell spoke for Quebec and the necessity of more elevators, so that when we got winter navigation, which we would certainly get in the near future, that port would be in a position to handle a large grain trade. It was discrimination in insurance rates that kept the St. Lawrence trade back, Mr. Dobell said. He advocaced making the route safe by additional aids to navigation. He added that as a winter port Quebec could successfully compete with Portland.

Mr. Gourlay (Colchester, N. S.): "The whole solution is to double track the Intercolonial Railway and lower the rates to Halifax."

Private Bills Passed.

After recess an hour was devoted to consideration of private bills and the following were passed:

Respecting the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Respecting the Saskatchewan and Western Railway Company.

Respecting the Ottawa and Gatineau Railway Company and to change its name to the Ottawa, Gatineau and Western Railway Company.

Respecting the Vancouver and Lulu Island Railway Company.

Respecting Columbia nad Kootenay Railway and Navigation Company.

To incorporate the Kootenay and Arrowhead Railway Company.

The Edwards Bill.

The bill respecting W. C. Edwards & Co. (Limited), was under discussion when the hour had elapsed.

Sir Louis Davies, speaking as a private member, objected to the enormous powers given to the company by this bill.

Mr. W. F. Maclean argued that the Government should have a policy with respect to the powers granted in private bills, as well as in regard to public legislation, inasmuch as the Government was practically responsible for all measures which passed the House.

During consideration of the Gatineau Railway bill, Mr. Edwards protested against the clause empowering the company to own timber limits and mineral lands. Accordingly the bill was amended to make it clear that such powers were to be used only "for the purposes of the undertaking, and that the company should not have power to expropriate in connection with such enterprises."

Mr. Monk on Transportation.

Resuming the debate on the transportation question, Mr. Monk observed that while the House was talking about improvements on the harbor of Montreal, the Grand Trunk was taking its freight away from Montreal to Portland. He attributed the whole trouble to division of authority upon the question between Mr. Tarte and the Montreal Harbor Commissioners on one side, and the Minister of Railways on the other. Mr. Monk suggested placing the whole question of transportation under a commission free from political control

Mr. Charlton strongly favored Quebec as the St. Lawrence terminus of ocean navigation. He expressed doubts as to whether the Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal would materially reduce the cost of grain transportation below the rate at which Mr. Booth was now carrying grain by rail from Parry Sound. Dismissing, therefore, the consideration of an expenditure of $100,000,000 for this canal, and bearing in mind the new 14-foot system, the problem was changed. The use of larger vessels on the lake, the fleet of vessels drawing but 14 feet loaded would go out of business on the lakes, and carry grain from Port Colborne to the seaboard. As for the national port, it should be Quebec, which was destined to become the commercial, military and social metropolis of Canada.

Mr. Prefontaine urged the making of Montreal the national port of Canada.

Mr. Ganong advocated a complete hydrographic survey of the St. Lawrence and Atlantic ports, and the establishment of naval stations, one in the west and two on the Atlantic coast, to train the seafaring population who now went to the United States for employment in the navy.

Mr. Brock agreed with Mr. Monk's suggestion of a non-political commission on transportation.

Mr. Wright of Renfrew urged the advantage of the Georgian Bay Canal.

Mr. Ross of Victoria advocated Halifax as the national port.

Mr. W. F. Maclean asked how it was, if all this was true about Halifax, that more of the trade of Canada did not go through that port.

Mr. Ross laid the blame to high freight rates on the Intercolonial.

Mr. Fowler followed, in support of St. John, and Sir Louis Davies moved the adjournment of the debate.

About Ice Breaking Boats.

Although the time for receiving private bills has long expired, Mr. McCarthy was allowed to introduce bills to give the Western Assurance Company power to own and operate ice-breaking and wrecking steamers, because similar powers have been granted to the St. Lawrence Lloyds.

Mr. R. L. Borden renewed his suggestion that a general act be passed.

The House adjourned at midnight.

Fruit Bill in Senate.

Ottawa, April 18.—Mr. Fisher's fruit bill got its second reading in the Senate yesterday.

Silver Service For G. A. Clare, M. P.

Ottawa, April 18.—Last night, in Opposition caucus room, number six, Mrs. Borden, on behalf of the Conservative Opposition, presented Mr. George A. Clare, of South Waterloo, chief whip, with a beautiful solid silver tea service. The occasion was the 25th anniversary of his wedding. Mr. Clare suitably replied.

DOES NOT DISAPPOINT.

The New Discovery for Catarrh Seems to Possess Remarkable Merit.

A new catarrh cure has recently appeared which so far as tested has been remarkably successful in curing all forms of catarrh, whether in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, or in stomach and liver.

The remedy is in tablet form, pleasant and convenient to take and no special secrecy is maintained as to what it contains, the tablet being a scientific combination of Guaiacol, Encalyptol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar valuable and harmless antiseptics.

This safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Whether the catarrh is located in the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and trachea from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, coughing, hawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer.

Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration in some cases to such an extent as to destroy the nose entirely, and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. Nasal catarrh gradually extends to the throat and bronchial tubes, and very often to the stomach, causing that very obstinate trouble, catarrh of the stomach.

Catarrh is a systematic poison, inherent in the blood, and local washes, douches, salves, inhalers and sprays can have no effect on the real cause of the disease. An internal remedy which acts upon the blood is the only rational treatment, and Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the safest of all internal remedies, as well as the most convenient and satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

Dr. Eaton recently stated that he had successfully used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in old chronic cases, even where ulceration had extended so far as to destroy the septum of the nose. He says: "I am pleasantly surprised almost every day by the excellent results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. It is remarkable how effectually they remove the excessive secretion and bring about a healthy condition of the mucous membranes of the nose, throat and stomach."

All druggists sell complete treatment of the Tablets at 50 cents, and and a little book giving the symptoms and causes of the various forms of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart & Co., Marshall, Mich.

FORGET THEIR LINES

ACTORS AND SINGERS OFTEN LOSE PRESENCE OF MIND.

Embarrassing Breakdowns Which Occur on the Stage and the Various Devices to Which the Players Resort to Bridge the Gap.

"It's about the most embarrassing thing that can happen to one," recently declared a well known actor when referring to momentary lapses of memory on the stage.

"Some players," he continued, "are peculiarly liable to forget their words, and personally the longer I have been playing one character the more prone am I to 'run off the line.' You see, you, as it were, get to know the words too well. They are so familiar that they fail to claim your attention, and then one night, before you are aware of it, memory fails you, and you find yourself staring at your audience speechless.

"A tragedian told me a rather peculiar story as to a breakdown that happened to himself. In the middle of one of his speeches a lady dressed in bright red came into the stalls, and, watching the patch of brilliant color, the actor forgot his words. The next evening a kind of terror seized upon him lest some one in red should again take a seat and he repeat his previous night's unfortunate performance. So strong had this feeling become that, after three or four nights, that man actually bought his wife a bright red dress and got her to sit in the stalls so that he might overcome his apprehension.

"Another man I know plays in musical comedy. He never forgets the lines of his spoken parts, but often makes a slip in a song. He comes to the end of a line and can recall nothing but the beginning of the next verse, and he has to stop the orchestra and begin over again. Some singers, when in this predicament, just sing on 'lum-ti-tum' to the tune till the words come back. Some have told me that having once been at sea with their words they are sure, out of nervousness, to make another slip the same evening. They are so anxious to avoid another mistake that their minds can think of nothing but that they must remember their words. In singing, the tune, of course, somewhat assists you to remember the lines.

"As you know, the prompter usually comes to the rescue of the player so stranded. But occasionally that official is not at his post, and then the man on the stage has to wrestle with his brains. Sometimes one of the company will, perhaps very audibly, supply the omission. While some players when they break down resume as best they can and take no notice of the mishap, others gag or take the audience into their confidence. Said one over the footlights: 'Now, those are just the very words I thought I should forget. The gas man called as I was learning them.' Another, on coming to one of these awkward full stops, said: 'Pardon me, please. I was thinking whether there was enough of that cold chop to do for supper and quite forgot my words.' These things sound poor enough to relate, but at the same time they 'go' well enough.

"One singer who broke down said: 'Look here! We'll get over that difficulty by dropping the verse altogether. You'll still get your money's worth, for I'll sing the last verse twice.' There is one little trick that usually goes down well. The singer has failed and has had to appeal to the prompter. When he finishes his song, he darts off and drags on the prompter—probably in his shirt sleeves—to share in the applause, which is usually quite enthusiastic.

"Well, as most players keep their memories in hand, as I must say, some peculiar things have happened. In one play an actor 'doubled' two parts. He was an old man in the prologue and a young one later on, and in each he had a longish speech to make. These speeches he always attempted to transpose, and one night he got out some four or five lines of the wrong speech ere he realized what he was doing. Another man played in a piece having a darkened scene. Stepping on to the gloom shrouded stage, he, to no one's surprise more than his own, commenced a portion of a part that he had played in another drama having a similar 'lights low' episode.

"There are some vocalists who cannot trust themselves to sing a single note in public without the printed or written words. This is awkward if they obtain engagements—and most seek them—on the variety stage, for there, as you know, it is not the custom to hold music in the hands. Some ballad singers and others write the words very small on a card and hold this in the palm of the hand. I heard of one man who, singing three new and rather difficult songs, adopted this little device. He got so used to having the words there that he was afraid to do without them. When he changed to other songs, he attempted to dispense with the paper, but he found that he had become so used to having it to look at now and again that he was ill at ease and awkward before his audiences without it.

"In opera breakdowns are not, I think, frequent. You see, opera is special work. The opera season is an event that excites great interest, and all renderings are inevitably contrasted with those of other great singers. This puts the players on their mettle and keeps them excited about their work. They have no chance of playing and singing mechanically, and so their memory does not often fail them. Any slips that do occur are usually caused by nervousness. I heard of one prima donna who, in a new opera, had a particularly fine song to sing. So eager was she to get to this that by mistake she started it instead of one that should have preceded it. The conductor luckily saw the slip instantly, and, rousing his men, he cleverly went with the singer. She faltered a little as the truth flashed upon her, but, having the music all correct, she sang the song out and earned great applause.

"As I have said, however, while you remain thoroughly interested in your work you are not likely to experience a breakdown. On a long run the opposite is the case, and it is when you are so familiar with the words that you don't bother about them that you suddenly discover you have for the time being lost them altogether."

No One Disappointed.

ALL WHO HAVE TRIED

Malt Breakfast Food

ARE DELIGHTED WITH IT.

Tens of thousands of men and women and the children, too, in Canada, acknowledge that Malt Breakfast Food is the choicest, most delicious and most healthful breakfast food they have ever used. No single individual has been disappointed in Malt Breakfast Food. All expectations have been fully realized as far as the establishment of health and strength are concerned.

All say that Malt Breakfast Food is the most satisfying, most sustaining and most palatable food. Malt Breakfast Food may be imitated by unscrupulous manufacturers, but it can never be equalled in health giving and nourishing qualities. The patent process whereby pure Malt is added to the choicest wheat is unknown to the makers of other grain foods. Malt Breakfast Food, the most popular of breakfast grain foods, is sold by all grocers at 15 cts. per package.

Bruises.

For an ordinary bruise such as results from an ill directed hammer or from a door shutting on one's finger use a mild astringent of some sort, such as witch hazel or vinegar. Keep the bruise constantly wet until the pain ceases, using a bandage of old muslin for wrapping. If the pain is very intense, laudanum may be added. After the pain has ceased and only discoloration and swelling remain to tell the tale it is a good plan to apply a stimulating liniment. This induces an extra flow of fresh blood to the spot. In the case of a severe bruise the supply of blood to the injured part must be lessened by elevating it above the heart and applying cold water or even ice.

Of course when the bruise, or contusion rather, is of such moment house remedies should be indulged in only while waiting for a doctor, a truth that necessarily applies to all the various emergencies that arise. In cases of severe burns physicians are often hampered by the home remedies that cover the burns and hide the real extent of the injury.

Massage For Apoplexy.

The medical profession recognizes today as it has never done before the remarkable aid of massage. It has done marvelous things for paralysis, even for apoplexy, at which doctors once looked on helplessly. Apoplexy is caused by a clot of blood on the brain, and if that clot can be broken up, if an emptying can be effected of clogged veins, recovery is in sight. Constant massage of the forehead and skull will do it (this has been proved over and over again), while paralyzed limbs, by patient, constant kneading, can have new life rubbed into them.

Some railroads advertise to carry passengers through without change, but they make a fellow pay just the same.

FACES.

In the eye that lights to meet us and the face that smiles to greet us
Are the shadows of the future and the impress of the past.
And the cheek that in its dawning flushed as rosy as the morning
Shows the outline of its beauty as it fades away at last.

And the little children's faces mid their dimples are the traces
Of the maiden's glowing beauty and of manhood's brow of care,
And the prophecy of gladness and the shadow of the sadness
To the thoughtful eye that gaseth are they lurking ever there.

But the faces that are nearest and the faces that are dearest
Are the true, the tender faces that our trust and loving win;
Then, when comes to them the shading, when the roses shall be fading,
Like the vase with light illumined shall we see the soul within.

MARRIED HANNER HIMSELF.

The Wedding Came About Through a Deal Over a Mortgage.

"Never heerd how I got the best of ole Simmons, did you?" queried the farmer from the upper part of the state, who is visiting his son. "You knowed what a skinflint he was? Worst I ever see or read about.

"Well, you been foppin round a good bit 'bout ole widderers gittin married ag'in, so I'll tell you how it was. Simmons held a mortgage on that south forty. He beat me outen the money on a sharp dicker, and I been ready ter put the scalpin knife enter him ever sence, but I calkerlated thet I'd have ter settle or give him the land. While I was savin up ter clear off the mor'gage I got a intermashing frum Si Duke that ole Simmons was payin 'tention ter Hanner Watsing. Si gi'me the hint and same time tole me he was lettin on ter be Hanner's stiddy jest so as ter devil Simmons.

"When I went ter see the ole skinflint 'bout givin me a leetle more time on the mor'gage, he kinder giggles round and looks like he'd been stealin sheep and ast me what the talk was 'bout Si and Hanner. Now, I ain't no college perfesser, but I see righs off what way the wind was blowin, and I spun a yarn 'bout it bein common report as how Hanner and Si was goin ter hitch.

"I thought ole Simmons would have a spell, but I braced him up, all the time a-tellin him thet Si and Hanner would be a good match. Well, the upshoot was thet he said ef I'd git Si ter move to Indianey and stay there I could have the mor'gage cleared without payin a cent. Si was blamed glad ter go for $50, and it cleared me 'bout $1,500. But ole Simmons was so tarnel mean in talkin 'bout it thet he got my mad up, and I sailed in and married Hanner myself. Thet's the way you got yer new mother-in-law, and ef you ever hear of me bein knocked over you investergate ole Simmons."—Detroit Free Press.

A Fine Old Government Clock.

It is a fine old clock which stands in the senate lobby fronting the main entrance to the senate chamber. For almost a century it has been ticking away, night and day, and now it is as good as ever.

The old clock is about eight feet high, and its frame is solid mahogany. Its face is about a foot and a half in diameter, and the name of Thomas Voight, Philadelphia, shows by whom and where it was made. It used to stand in the old senate chamber, now the supreme court room, where Webster and Clay and Benton and all the famous men of the past debated great questions. If the clock could only talk, it could tell many tales of dramatic interest.

Upon the mahogany case is carved a large shield, with stars to represent the states. When the clock was built, there were only 17 states in the Union.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lisbon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew wore daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha, said I had Consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by Jas. Lynch. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A Queen Who Married Her Brothers.

At 17 years of age Cleopatra was married to her half brother, Ptolemy Dionysius, who was then 13. This was because of the will of his father, who left him the throne on condition of the marriage with his sister. They reigned jointly under the guardianship of the Romans until Cleopatra became dissatisfied with her brother's attempt to gain sole power. She plotted against him, and, obtaining the aid of Julius Cæsar, she brought about Ptolemy's death. Thereupon she married another brother, a boy of 11, whom she later poisoned, assuming sole power 43 B. C. With her death (30 B. C.) ended the dynasty of Ptolemy in Egypt.—Woman's Home Companion.

The Sword.

There is only one sword factory in the United States, a Massachusetts concern, and that one has ample capacity for supplying the domestic demand for swords. The saber lost its efficiency as a cavalry weapon as far back as the war of the rebellion, and the increased range of rifles has made the sword equally obsolete as an implement of actual combat. It is about as dangerous now as a bandmaster's baton and serves much the same purpose.

The Kermess will be a Success.

The ladies taking part in the Kermess are specially invited to make an engagement as soon as possible at Whiten's studio, and have a photo taken in the latest artistic style. Our lighting is of that character which bespeaks artistic results. The children taking part are also invited to come, this week if possible. A number have already made engagements. We want all to come. Studio next to Tully's drug store. 3t

Trouble on Wolfe Street.

A lady resident of Wolfe street came to the police station this morning with a complaint. She resides, so she says, close to an old bachelor and two old maids who are "cranky" beyond description. The bachelor yesterday administered a thrashing with a stick to the complainant's nine-year-old boy and the mother wanted to know if this was going to be allowed. She was persuaded to let the matter stand, but if the assault is repeated there will be a big row on Wolfe street.

Budding Out.

The announcement on behalf of Messrs. Henry & Co., grocers and liquor merchants, which appears in to-day's Examiner, gives a hint of some new and important changes which are to take place in the personnel of the firm and in the equipment of the store premises. The public will doubtless be taken into full confidence shortly; in the meantime it may be fairly assumed—judging from the ring of business in the announcement—an expansion of the firm's business is aimed at. The energy of the present members of the firm is good for an increased display of enterprise and more scope for the growth of a "growing" trade. The necessity for money to carry on these changes is evidenced by the call for a prompt "cashing up," and a settlement of unpaid accounts should be arranged for before the first of next month.

Geo. F. Grettan, Burleigh Falls, granted.
The Board adjourned until April 27th.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Geo. Edmison is in Toronto on business.

Mrs. (Dr.) T. P. McCollough is on a visit to Toronto,

Mr. J. A. McDonald of Norwood, is in Peterboroug to-day.

Mr. J. B. Oke returned to-day from a trip to Toronto and other points.

Lt. Shaw, of B (Millbrook) Squadron, is taking a course at Stanley Barracks, Toronto.

Mr. W. G. Hetherington of Millbrook, is undergoing trantment in the Nicholls' Hospital.

Mr. R. H. Shephard, assistant to Pauline the hypnotist, who was somewhat indisposed, is able to be out again.

The many friends in town of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wilgar will sincerely regret to learn of the demise yesterday in Toronto of their little daughter, Mary Margaret.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming and Miss Gertrude Brooks of town, were in Lindsay on Tuesday, attending the wedding of Miss H. M. Taylor and Mr. G. V. Bell.

Mr. J. L. Travers, the popular representative of Chase and Sanborn's coffee, gave the Examiner a pleasant call this afternoon. He reports business booming in his line as usual.

The many friends of Mr. Richard Hall, who is at present at Clifton Springs, N.Y., will be pleased to learn of his improvement in health. He will be home in the course of a few weeks.

Lindsay Post:—Mr. Chil. Turner, of Peterborough, who lately returned from South Africa, was in town Tuesday, and was kept busy discussing the events of of the campaign with Trooper Graham. They were comrades for many weeks.

"Mr. Michael O'Brien of Peterborough, Inspector of Separate Schools for Eastern Ontario," says the Lindsay Post, "has been a guest at the Simpson House since yesterday, and is being warmly welcomed by many friends, he having been headmaster of the Separate school here for a number of years."

Lindsay Post:—Mr. J. P. Stanton, some years ago conductor on the G. T. R. between Peterborough and Belleville, was in town Tuesday evening, a guest at the Simpson house. Mr. Stanton is now a Knight of the Grip, and has added largely to his stock of good stories.

The Winnipeg Daily Tribune says:—The first appearance of Miss Maggie Falconer, of Peterborough, Ont., was looked forward to with some curiosity by Winnipeg musical critics, and the lady scored a decided success. Such old favorites as "Prince Charlie," "Loch Lomond" and a "Hielanman's Toast," carried the audienc, and brought a third and fourth recall. Miss Falconer is no longer a doubtful quantity and many will hope to hear her again before she leaves Winnipeg.

Mr. John A. Macdonald, who for many years represented the Canada Paper Company on the road, has received the appointment of special agent with the Imperial Life Insurance Company. His courteous manner and careful attention to business have won for him a circle of friends in every town which he was in the habit of visiting and this fact should stand him in as good stead in his new position as in the old. The Examiner, as well as all of Mr. Macdonald's old customers, will have nothing but good wishes for Mr. Macdonald in his present venture.

To-Morrow Night's Lecture.

Miss Hill's lecture in St. Paul's school room to-morrow evening on "Reminiscences of Windsor Castle, Queen Victoria, and also many notable people and social events in England during the last two years," promises to be most interesting. Admission, 25 cents. 1d

CEREAL COMPANY NOTES.

J. A. Jameson, the C. P. R. Elevator Contractor, Figuring on Plans for the Local Works.

At present, until suitable offices can be secured, the Cereal Company staff is located in the large Board Rooms in the rear of the Canadian Life Assurance Co., offices on Hunter street.

Mr. C. H. Keefer, the well-known Canadian engineer, is here from Ottawa with a carload of plans and blue prints, and with him is Mr. J. A. Jameson, who erected the big C.P.R. elevators. The latter will in all probability receive the contract for the erection of the elevators which are to be used in connection with the Cereal Company's operations,

The stupendous operations which the company have in view are hard to realize, as within a couple of years the output will be 2,600 barrels a day. There will be 1000 barrels of oatmeal, 500 of peas and 100 of barley. Besides this the erection of a flour mill of a capacity of 1000 barrels a day is contemplated.

Mr. Scott, who is to be in charge of the Canadian branch of the business, has purchased the residence of the late T. G. Hazlett, on Water street.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The steamer Beaver of Gore's Landing is being painted.

—The old tannery in Ashburnham is being torn down.

—The steam yacht "Rob Roy" came up the Otonabee river yesterday as far as Hunter street.

—A sum of money tied up in a pocket handkerchief was found to-day and left at the police station.

—It has been decided to keep the remains of the late Harry Beck in the vault for some little time longer.

—The officers' class in connection with the 57th Regiment is progressing in the work most favourably. The members of the class are very regular in their attendance, enthusiastic in their drill, and they will go up to try their examinations about the first of next month.

A BAD PAIR.

A valise and other articles belonging to Pauline, the hypnotist, were stolen at Orono last week. On Thursday Chief Jarvis arrested a man named Thos. J. Purdy, agent for the Singer Sewing Machine Co., who has been living here for some time, and placed him in the lock up, but shortly afterwards he picked the lock and escaped. His wife is supposed to have passed him a chisel. The valise was found hiden in Bloomer's hay loft, and a search of the house revealed a number of stolen articles, most of which have been identified. M. A. Weaver, agent for a tea firm in London, manufacturer of O. K. soap, painter, shoemaker, etc., who resided with him, is also missing. The Chief also found a die for making 1900 25 cent pieces. Thus far they have escaped detection but the officials will make it interesting for them when caught.—Bowmanville Statesman.

HYMENEAL.

Nuptuals of Mr. Alfred Lancashire to Miss Reta Irwin, Both of Town.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Irwin, 304 Stewart st., a pretty and appropriate event transpired yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Reta, a graduate of 1896 from the Nicholl's hospital, was married to Mr. Alfred Lancashire, for many years a prominent salesman in Mr. Turnbull's store. Owing to the decease on the 8th, ultimo, of her only brother, the late George Roland Irwin, and also that on the 10th instant, of her grandfather, the late George Windram, of Coboconk, it was desirable that the marriage should be fittingly private. Accordingly the bride was appropriately, yet most richly attired in black with purple and a bouquet of English violets. Her hat perfectly matched her dress. She was made the recipient of many very handsome presents. The groom received a valuable book-case and writing desk in solid oak from the clerk's in Mr. Turnbull's. The young couple were wedded in the presence of a small company consisting of the bride's parents and little sister, Olive, and Mrs. Macknight and the Rev. R. Macknight, B.A., the officiating clergyman; and took the Montreal Express train for Toronto, intending to extend their bridal tour to Hamilton, where Miss Dollie Irwin is in a hospital position. A large circle of friends vie with one another in heartiest wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Lancashire's prosperity and happiness.

BEAUTIFUL PAINTINGS.

Three Pictures in Wm. Lech & Son's Window.

Three exquisite water colour paintings are on exhibition in the window of Wm. Lech & Sons, George street fur store. The largest of the three represents a small tender towing a brig into Plymouth harbour, and the colouring of the water together with the attention which has been given to the detail work makes the picture one which commands instant attention. The picture of a French lugger off Dieppe, is also one which is possessd of great merit, the handling of the lights and shades of the sunset hour in the sky as well as in the shadows of the sails, is particularly worthy of mention. The third picture is a fishing scene and is a little gem. All three are handsomely framed and are the product of Mr. K. G. Lech's artistic brush.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

Regular Monthly Meeting of the Lodge Was Held Last Night.

Queen Alexandra Circle, No. 136, Ancient Order of Foresters, held their regular meeting in the S.O.E. Hall Wednesday, and had a pleasant time. There was four new members initiated and some propositions for next meeting. The Circle is progressing rapidly since its institution. After the business of the meeting last night, there was a musical programme in the Good and Welfare.

Peterborough's Modern Store.

SHIRT WAISTS AND SHIRT WAIST MATERIALS.

The shirt waist season is once more with us and those who want exclusive designs in coloured shirt waists, should avail themselves of the opportunity of buying them when the stocks are new and well sorted.

We have a goodly assortment of both ready-to-wear shirt waists and materials to make them for those who prefer making their own.

The principal feature in blouses this season, or the biggest change in style, is the sleeves. The BISHOP SLEEVE is the correct thing in sleeves. It is a pretty hanging sleeve with fulness between the elbow and wrist, which takes the form of a dip just above the cuff, which is a plain narrow band with strap effect. The backs are plain backs—that is, without yokes.

We show some very pretty read-to-wear waists in COLOURED GOODS, which are finding favour with the Peterborough ladies, not only on account of the pretty designs, but the fit and styles are both different to what you see in ordinary blouses. They are decidedly exclusive.

WHITE BLOUSES or SHIRT WAISTS will be very extensively used for midsummer wear this season and their pretty combinations with insertions, lace, etc., are simply innumerable.

IN MATERIALS FOR MAKING BLOUSES we show new ideas in Print Ginghams, Muslins, Percales and other materials. If you want novelties, buy early, as the pretty things are always picked up first.

In White Lawns we show both the Victoria and India Lawns in all qualities. You'll find our prices lower than elsewhere and you get the best goods here always.

CLARKE & GIBSON

THE DAN SPENCE MEMORIAL.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—About six months ago a most enthusiastic meeting was convened by the Mayor (then Mr. Kendry) to consider a proper form for commemorating the death of Trooper Dan Spence, who nobly laid down his life for the Empire. It was also suggested that the memorial should include the name of Trooper Hampden, of Norwood, who also fell during the war. At this meeting a large committee was formed to work up the matter and for a time contributions came in handsomely. So far as can be learned this committee has never met since, and nothing has been done towards the project.

The contingents have long ago returned to Canada, and to civil employment. Every city, town and village, except Peterborough, who have lost representatives in the war, have done something to commemorate the death of their fallen sons, and why has our enthusiasm been allowed to cool off, and what does the committee intend to do with the money subscribed?

It was felt by many at the time that limiting the subscriptions to $1.00 was a mistake, for several generous citizens would gladly have subscribed sums from $25.00 down.

I would humbly suggest that our present Mayor, who is a most energetic young man, and one who has the interests of the town at heart, should reorganize the committee, and proceed with the original intention.

Yours truly,
ALEX. STEWART.

"P. D." CORSET DEMONSTRATION.

TENNIS.

Another Tennis Club has made its appearance in Peterbourough. This time a west end organization has sprung into existence. At a meeting held the other evening the West End Tennis Club was organized with the following officers: Mr. E. G. Patterson is President, Mr. F. D. Mackey is Sec.-Treas., and the Executive Committe is composed of Messrs. Charles Stanley, A. J. Gough, T. F. Matthews, W. H. Bradburn and Dr. Morrison. The work of preparing the courts will be proceeded with at once.

LACROSSE.

The firemen of Millbrook intend putting on a mammoth celebration on May 24th and have written to the Secretary of the Lacrosse Club asking if they will play Lindsay in Millbrook on that date.

CRICKET.

At a meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Colts Cricket Club which was held in the law office of Mr. R. E. Wood last night, the secretary was instructed to write to Upper Canada College, T. C. S. and other clubs for games. It was decided to put on a local match on May 24th between the Vets. and Colts. The team committee was made up of the captain, Frank Bradburn; the manager, E. S. Clarry, and Harold Armstrong. A ground committee was also appointed. Mr. A. A. Hollingshead has donated a bat and Mr. R. E. Wood a ball for competition amongst the players.

GOLF.

The committee of the Golf Club is already looking out for matches for both the first and second teams. All those properly qualifying are likely to have ample opportunity to enjoy golf and the appurtenances of the game.

BASEBALL.

The fireman of Millbrook are trying to arrange a game between Port Hope and Peterborough for May 24th.

STOCK WINTERED WELL.

A Bright Outlook Reported From the Prairies of the West.

The stock oulook on the prairies of the far west is a bright one. Mr. F. W. Hodson, Canadian Live Stock Commissioner, who has just returned from an extended trip through the Territories, was at the Parliament buildings on Tuesday. He said that although the grass was in rather poor condition when winter set in the cattle came through with a smaller percentage of loss than last year. On Friday last the first annual auction sale of pure bred cattle was held at Calgary. The animals were the progeny of Ontario thoroughbreds and brought high prices, bulls averaging $40 and cows $75. Mr. Hodgson says that seeding is about as far advanced throughout the west as in Ontario and the acreage will be a large one.—Globe.

Ten Per Cent. For Ten Days.

From Saturday, April 20th, until Tuesday, April 30th, China Hall will hold it's Annual Stocktaking Sale during which time a discount of ten per cent. will be given off everything in the store. This will be a rare opportunity for spring buyers to make their purchases. The stock is all new and more complete than ever, and the store at present is well worth a visit. Double trading stamps instead of cash discount if preferred. THE MACFARLANE WILSON Co., Limited. 2d1w

DEATH OF JAMES McCARTHY.

He Was Born in Asphodel and Lived and Died in That Township.

Another old resident, of Asphodel, passed away on Friday morning, in the person of James McCarthy.

The deceased was ill about a week. Previous to this time he was in good health and was always a strong and active man.

He was born in the Township of Asphodel in July of 1833, and up to a month ago has resided on lot 19, concession 6, of that township. He was a very industrious and energetic man, a successful farmer, a kindly neighbor and was very highly esteemed and respected by a large circle of acquaintances.

In 1865 he married Miss Mary Burns, who predeceased him a few years ago. To them were born ten children, eight of whom survive as follows:—Rev. Jos. McCarthy, S.J., Montreal; Jas. A. McCarthy, S.J., St. Louis, Missouri; John F., Norwood; Charles, Asphodel; Mrs. P. Murray, Misses Bridget and Lizzie, of Chicago; and Sister Mary Teresa, Sunnyside Orphanage, Toronto.

About a month ago the deceased held a sale disposing of his farming utensils, and retiring from the farming life, went to live with his son Charles.

The remains were interred in the R.C. cemetery, Asphodel, Saturday, and a large concourse of people were present to pay the last tribute of respect to their departed friend and neighbor.

SUGAR BEETLETS.

Over 02 per cent. of all the sugar manufactured in the world is made from sugar beets.

The difference between cane sugar and beet sugar can be detected only by an expert, and what little difference there is, is in favour of the beet sugar.

You are using beet sugar every day if you use any granulated sugar at all.

Beet sugar is absolutely pure white granlated sugar.

A beet sugar factory cannot manufacture any brown or yellow sugar.

Each man, woman and child in the United States consumes on an average 65 pounds of sugar in a year.

The inhabitants of ths United States spend more money for sugar than they do for flour.

It requires $500,000 to build and equip the average beet sugar refinery.

One ton of wheat per acre is a large yield. Sugar beets often yield twenty tons per acre.

One acre of land planted to sugar beets will yield about one and a half tons of sugar in a season.

At the present rate of increase in the consumption of sguar in the United States, it will require the building of at least 25 modern beet sugar refineries each year to take care of the increase alone.

The operating season of a sugar refinery is known in the business as "the campaign," and lasts from 100 to 150 days of 24 hours each, stopping only in the case of breakdowns or for an occasional clean up. A 1,000 ton beet sugar refinery in a campaign of 150 days requires as follows:—150,000 tons of beets, 22,000 tons of coal, 2,500 tons of coke, 9,000 tons of limestone, 120,000 barrels or a like capacity in sacks, and miscellaneous materials to the value of $15,000. It employs 300 men and pays out $125,000 for salaries and labour. It pays to the farmers over $500,000 for sugar beets, and the pulp produced during the campaign is worth in actual value as food for live stock at least $100,000.

It would require 30 beet sugar factories capable of slicing 500 tons of beets every 24 hours to supply the people of Canada with sugar.

The natural conditions of Canada for growing sugar beets and the manufacturing of beet sugar exceed any country on earth.

The Ontario farmers are the most successful growers of root crops in the world.

At four dollars per ton, the farmer can make five times as much per acre from sugar beets as from the average farm crop.

The pulp from the refinery makes a splendid food for all kinds of live stock.

[The above is quoted from the Farming World, Toronto, which will hereafter devote a regular department to the sugar beet industry in Canada, an industry which has passed the experimental stage, and which promises to be of great importance to the farmers. We have made arragements to club the Farming World with the Examiner. Sample copies may be had at this office.]

A STROLLING SINGER.

He sang along the woodland paths
When all the world was warm and gay;
The birds half mocked him overhead;
The shadows cooled his greenlit way.

The earth was sweet with growing things,
The vintage promised full and fair,
And one with eyes like larkspur buds
And garnered sunshine in her hair

Stood watching by the flex trees,
A glow, a welcome in her eyes.
He sank, too tired, at her feet
And smiled through wistful little sighs.

"Dear love," he said, "I cannot live;
I shall not see the morrow's sun,
But I am fortunate to die
While yet my loving is not done.

"And weep no foolish tears for me,
But when the vines with gold are hung,
Think, 'Life was very good to him,
For he had lived and loved and sung.'"
—Charlotte Becker in Ainslee's Magazine.

FIVE MOUNTAIN STORMS.

All Raging at Once in Sight of Virginia City.

"Virginia City," said a man from Nevada to a reporter, "is pretty well up in the world, as any one knows who has ever been there, and there are very few localities in all the Rocky mountain region from which a wider range of country can be taken in at one view. Owing to that fact some very beautiful, striking and unusual sights are frequently seen by the dwellers in that famed city, almost within sounding distance of the clouds. I have witnessed some of them myself, and one in particular I remember. In fact, it was a sight that no one having seen could ever forget. It was a moving panorama, grand, impressive, in the extreme, being no less than five distinct snowstorms raging among the mountains and deserts to the eastward, while in the city not a flake of snow was falling. The storms represented all degrees of fierceness and covered an area of at least 100 miles. The one farthest to the east and at the same time the most northerly one was apparently passing directly over the 40 mile desert. It was as black as a thundercloud, so dense was the whirling body of snow, and was perhaps ten miles in diameter. Any one in the midst of it would have been willing to swear that a snowstorm must be raging over the entire continent, and just to the north of it several tall, stately peaks rose out of the fierce storm and towered above it in the full splendor of sunlight. The high hills that lay beyond the storm were shut off from sight as though by a gigantic black curtain.

"Nearer and to the southward another storm not so black and fierce as the first, but still dense enough to hide all the region behind it, was in less active progress. It crept along toward the east, reaching from the level of the Carson valley upward to the very cloud where it came high in the heavens. Still nearer and between the city and the mountains of Como a lighter storm, yet one only two or three miles in width, passed on its way. Through this the mountain peaks could be seen dimly, as in a thin fog. A mile farther south a fourth snowstorm, smaller in area than even the last one, but as black and temptestuous as the great blizzard that, with the sun touching its crown, was sweeping the 40 mile desert, raged in awful fury. All behind it was hid as with the pall of blackest night. Miles away, farther up to the southward, the fifth storm, a vast and violent one, was sweeping along, covering and hiding a range of 30 miles of high hills.

"Between these several storm bodies hills, plains, mountains and peaks stood revealed as far as the eye could see, all lying in the glory of a late October sun. The gleaming peaks that rise golden far above the black masses of storm as they raged in fury at the mountain bases and far up the rocky sides made a particularly striking and awesome part of that strange picture."

The Hotel Detective.

The duties of a hotel detective are not arduous, and his greatest value to the guests is as a cicerone. He is supposed to know the city thoroughly, to be an authority on the theaters and to be able to direct men who want to gamble to places where they can find "square games." One hotel detective who was discharged not long ago was said to have made nearly $10,000 a year in tips from guests and commissions from gambling houses. He was able to do the latter many a good turn, and they showed their appreciation for his work by paying him liberally. Nominally he was engaged by the proprietor of the hotel to preserve order, but in reality he was expected to make himself generally useful to visitors. He must know where to pilot parties on slumming expeditions, and the more weird tales he can tell them about the places to which he takes them the larger will be his tips.

A detective employed by one Broadway hotel for many years became quite as well known as the hotel itself. He was an authority on boxing, and the last word about any big contest was not said until he chose to express his opinion. He was also the stakeholder in many big bets.

MATRON AND MAID.

A big yellow carriage is the Duchess of Buckingham's distinctive turnout in London.

Mrs. Frances W. Marshall, New York city's latest woman lawyer, was admitted to practice the other day.

One of Susan B. Anthony's presents received by her on her eighty-first birthday the other day was two $500 United States government bonds.

Mrs. Barclay Allardice, mayoress of Lostwithiel, in Cornwall, has seen five British sovereigns, having been first presented to Queen Adelaide.

Mrs. Emmons Blaine, the daughter of the rich manufacturer of agricultural implements, has agreed to spend $95,000 a year in support of a school for teachers. She also devotes to buildings and equipment the sum of $500,000.

Mrs. Carrie Nation, the saloon wrecker, has rather a kindly face when she is engaged in anything else than wielding the hatchet in a barroom. She wears black silk dresses, bonnets that are sadly out of date, and her hair is gray.

Details of Mme. Bernhardt's encounter with the obdurate San Francisco landlords who refused hotel hospitality to her dogs reveal an unexpected reason for the actress' solicitude about her canine pets. "I am naturally timid," said Sarah, "and am in the habit of having a dog in my room at night."

The Congregationalist of Boston announces that Mrs. Alice Gordon Gulick has raised $68,000 of the $100,000 required for the International Institute For Girls, in Spain, and it is hoped that before many months the school can be removed from Biarritz, France, its headquarters since the outbreak of the Spanish war, and planted in Madrid, the political and commercial center of the Spanish nation, where it rightfully belongs.

Mrs. Stafford of Martha's Vineyard is a daughter-in-law of Lieutenant Stafford, commander of the United States frigate Bonhomme Richard. In a glass case in the parlor she has the remains of the flag that floated at the masthead during the fight with the Serapis. A shot threw it into the sea, and Lieutenant Stafford rescued it and nailed it to the masthead, for which deed the flag was presented to him by congress.

Mrs. Anna C. Hough of Los Angeles has placed in escrow a deed transferring to the University of Southern California property valued at $25,000, the transfer to be completed if the university raises an additional $75,000 by Oct. 1. Mrs. Hough has already endowed the university with a business block in Los Angeles worth $40,000 under similar conditions. Mrs. Hough is the widow of the Rev. A. M. Hough and the only sister of the late Jay Gould.

THE PEDAGOGUE.

Public schools in Tennessee were open 96 days last year, and the average cost of tuition per pupil per month was $1.07.

Dr. Voorsanger, rabbi of the Congregation Emanu-El of San Francisco, has given free his services as head of the department of Semitic languages and literatures in the University of California.

Professor A. A. Stagg of the Chicago university says the best thing about football is that it "curbs the temper and makes men forbearing and patient." As a Yale man and one who has witnessed many encounters on the gridiron, Mr. Stagg knows whereof he speaks.

At a convention of head masters in England recently one of the speakers referred to his fellow delegates as members of "a profession without prizes." The amount of intelligent effort that will win a college professorship at $3,000 will secure larger returns in the business world.

POINTS OF LAW.

The test as to whether a promise is direct or collateral is whether the credit was given to the person making the promise or to a third person.

The parties to a written contract have power to reform it, so as to correct a mutual mistake, without any new consideration passing between them, whether the mistake was as to the legal effect of the writing as it originally stood or was caused by the accidental omission of words which they intended it to contain.

Decision has been rendered by the Iowa supreme court to the effect that a stock feeder who buys stock to feed and sell is not a merchant within the meaning of the code and cannot be assessed for taxation purposes in the same way that a merchant would be assessed. The case came up on an appeal, the lower court having held a contrary opinion.

"Better out than in" that humor that you notice. To be sure it's out, and all out, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Turkey Droves in Athens.

The turkey merchant is the most wonderful of street venders. He arrives with 200 or 300 birds, which he drives about town for a week or two, selling them one by one. He is armed with a long pole, with which he touches up lazy or quarrelsome birds. They gobble continuously, and he shouts above the din, "Gallous, gallapouls, gallopules!" ("Turkey cocks, little turkeys, little hen turkeys!") When one drove meets another face to face or at right angles, they pass through without confusion, and no bird changes masters.—Scribner's Magazine.

BLOOD

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor.

There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high, we are being refreshed, bone muscle and brain in body and mind, with continual flow of rich blood.

This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood, is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil. It sets the whole body going again—man, woman and child.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Toronto, Canada.

Dyspepsia

Dyspepsia, indigestion, water brash, belching of wind, nausea and pain after eating, sour stomach, catarrh of the stomach—these conditions all mean that the usefulness of the stomach is impaired, that the food is not being digested properly. When you find your stomach out of order, use BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS without delay. There is no better medicine for the stomach compounded, and none which has such a record of permanent cures of stomach troubles.

January 26, 1900.

LEONARD SMITH, Selma, N.S., writes: "Eight years ago I had a bad attack of dyspepsia. I took two bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS and am thankful to say that since then I have been able to digest my food as well as any body."

GAINED 23 POUNDS.

March 26, 1900.

MISS AGNES LANG, West Liscomb, N.S., writes: "I have been using your BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS for dyspepsia and kidney troubles for five months. I have gained 23 pounds since I commenced it, and attribute my recovery to its efficacy. I tell my friends that I owe my life to B.B.B."

HIS STRONG CARD.

By Its Use the Drummer Gained a Profitable Customer.

"It's a hard life, that of the drummer," said one recently to whom 30 yards of hard work had given the right to speak with authority. "It's a hard life, but it's an interesting game and gives a man a close hold on facts and realities. The drummer learns in a hard school, but he does learn, and the lessons pay. What is the first lesson he has to learn? How to manage men; how to approach a reluctant or an indifferent or a suspicious buyer so as to win his confidence and overcome his indisposition.

"Experience teaches this better than anything else, though some men learn it more easily than others. I remember when I first began to travel as a salesman, when I was hardly more than a lad, I had an experience that proved valuable to me. There was an old fellow on my route who had been known for years as the terror of all traveling men. He was declared to be absolutely the worst natured, worst mannered fellow they had ever met anywhere, but I hadn't even heard of him then, and so I entered his store very confidently and handed him my card. He took it without even glancing at it, tore it into bits and threw the pieces on the floor. 'Now, sir,' he said to me, 'get out of my store.' There were two pretty young girls in the store, who did not understand the proceeding and who looked at me as I walked out as if I had been an escaped convict.

"Well, I smarted for several days over that affair, during which time I made up my mind that I'd even matters up with him if I could next time. So before I visited his town again I had a card made expressly for my good friend. It looked exactly like the one I used before, only that it was made of tin. When I reached his town, I waited until I saw the store pretty well filled with people, and then I walked in and gave him my card. He took it just as before, glared at me and gave the card a twist.

"But it didn't fall on the floor in bits this time, and he only succeeded in giving his wrist a wrench and raising a titter among his customers.

"I was nearly out of the door by this time, for I really didn't think my life was safe, but he called after me, and I went back. 'Come into my office,' said he. I went in, expecting never to come out.

"'What do you want to sell me?' he asked me.

"'Dress goods,' I responded.

"'Well, go on.' And I actually sold the old curmudgeon $1,000 worth of cloth before I left. For years after, so long as he lived, in fact, he was one of my best customers and one of the best friends I ever made in my business.'

HEAT AS A CURE ALL.

Here Are Some Good Suggestions For the Amateur Nurse.

When a patient is not confined to the bed, it may be well in a case of throat trouble to use cloths wrung from hot water, but under no consideration is it safe to use water about a patient in bed, notwithstanding the belief of many in the efficacy of hot water as a cure all, writes a woman who knows in Good Housekeeping.

It is heat, not moisture, that quiets pain. Wet cloths retain heat only a brief time, but they do something else. They dampen the bedding and the patient's clothing, to his great danger. Often the dampening produces serious cramps, causing excruciating suffering, and those in attendance, thinking the cramps are a part of the illness, keep up the wet cloth treatment instead of hastening to change the wet clothing for dry. There have been cases where death soon followed such treatment.

Nothing proves better than a good dry heat to quiet pain. Hot water bags and bottles are excellent if perfectly tight. Hot sand bags also are good to place beside the body and limbs. A relay of hot plates wrapped in woolen cloth will do wonders in giving relief to a patient.

In any case of serious bowel trouble it is well to follow up with relays of hot plates, light weight earthen, or better still, because of their lightness, are the tin plates such as are used by bakers, being always careful they are as hot as can be borne and not too hot and wrapped in cloth.

This remedy will allay inflammation and pain to a wonderful degree. It is also excellent in rheumatism of the hip, knee or ankle. A frequent change of hot plates well wrapped in woolen and placed beneath or over the suffering joint as the patient lies in bed will bring great relief.

Hot woolen blankets greatly assist in pulling a patient through serious neuralgic pains. Another great help in the sickroom is found in the use of wool cloths smaller than blankets. These are made by cutting one or more thick wool blankets into four or six pieces each. Do not flinch at cutting up a blanket. Consider that the object is to get the sick one restored to health. The price of a pair of blankets would go but a little way on a doctor's bill, and these wool squares will last for years for use in the sickroom. They can be cleansed and put away from moths between whiles.

Nothing is more handy. They can be heated and tucked around the patient as desired, being heated often enough to keep up the necessary warmth. This gives much comfort and induces sleep. Beware of dampened beds and clothes, even in health.

Pleasing Husbands and Wives.

The greatest secret of domestic happiness lies in husband and wife pleasing each other. It is quite as easy to say pleasant, graceful things as disagreeable ones. It is far sweeter to a wife to have tender words from her husband than it was to have them from him before marriage—husband in the role of lover has a double value in a wife's estimation.

It pleases a woman to know her husband says pleasant things to her because he means them and not as flattery. Flattery never pleases her. It pleases her to be told by him that he needs her—that his happiness depends upon her companionship. To feel that her efforts to please are successful and are appreciated accordingly will stimulate most women to greater endeavor.—Woman's Life.

HARD TO PURCHASE.

The Peculiar Red Ribbon of the French Legion of Honor.

The peculiar red ribbon which members of the Legion of Honor of France are entitled to wear is to be had in New York at one establishment, which is naturally sought out by Americans honored with this decoration. But they never have the satisfaction of getting the ribbon until the firm that has the exclusive sale of it has received official notice that the persons applying have the right to display it.

"I know it," said one of the clerks the other day to a would be purchaser of the ribbon. "I know that you are a member of the legion and have a right to buy the ribbon, because I read your name in the paper and know who you are. But we have not received official notification of your appointment and you have not your diploma. So I could not sell you any of it.

"We had to make this rule first because the French government required it of us when we received the agency, but we also realize the necessity of it. All kinds of persons who have no right to this ribbon try to get hold of it. All of them pretend when they find that we sell it only to persons entitled to wear it either that they are members of the legion or that they are buying it on behalf of persons who do belong to the order. The ribbon is not like any other, and we know that if any of this ribbon is bought in New York that it comes from us. For that reason we are particular to the extent of requiring documentary proof from every applicant unless we have received official notification of his right to wear it."

Scalding.

"Oh, come now," said the woman who dislikes exaggeration, "you know you did not actually weep scalding tears."

"I did," said the woman who sticks to what she says. "I did. They actually cracked my glasses."—London Fun.

And a little bit of sleep.

A little bit of hoping
And a little bit of fear;
A little bit of lonesome
And a little bit of cheer.

Why be apprehensive
As to what the day may bring?
Where's the use of kicking
Over such a little thing?

His Lateness.

Towne—Magnificent woman! Who is she?

Browne—That's the late Mr. Bibber's—

Towne—A widow, eh?

Browne—Yes, a grass widow.

Towne—But I understood you to say the "late" Mr. Bibber.

Browne—Yes; he was always late getting home. That's why she left him.

Best For All Concerned.

Comedy—I noticed you in the audience last night. What did you think of my part?

Criteek—It suited you.

Comedy—What did you think was the best thing I got off?

Criteek—The stage.

The Testimonial Age.

Drug Clerk—This remedy has cured ten congressmen, eight senators, six prima donnas—

Customer—Hold on, young fellow. I ain't none of them. Just lay that aside and show me something that has cured a few common people.

Sanguinary.

Mr. Ferguson—What a fiery waist you have on. What color is it?

Mrs. Ferguson—Ox blood.

Mr Ferguson—I begin to understand now why you told the dressmaker to put in another gore.

Humankind.

And all complain
In thankfulness.

They're born that way,
And there are many
Who'd kick because
They hadn't any.

Brave.

McSwatters—I tell you my wife is an extraordnarily brave little woman.

McSwitters—What's she done now?

McSwatters—She staid in the room while I smoked that cigar you gave me yesterday.

Like All Others.

"I wonder why they call the hotel bellboy 'Buttons,'" said the inquisitive traveler.

"Probably," replied the bachelor, "it's because he's off when you need him most."

No Further.

"I met Higginbee, and he stopped me to tell me what his little boy said. But I'll bet one thing."

"Huh! What's that?"

"I'll bet he didn't tell his boy what I said."

An Impossibility.

A STRANGE LAKE.

The Peculiarities of a Body of Water in Australia.

Lake George is situated about four miles from the railway station at Bungendore, Australia, and has for many years engaged the attention of scientific men by reason of the singular and inexplicable phenomena connected with it. The estimates of its size vary considerably according to circumstances, but when moderately full about 20 by 7 miles will be found tolerably correct. At either end the land is fully 100 feet above the highest recorded surface of the lake, which possesses no known outlet, although it is fed by numerous mountain creeks.

The lake was discovered by a bushman in 1820 and was known to the blacks as the "big water." It was then supposed to form the source of a river having its mouth on the south coast, but subsequent visitors were much perplexed at the manner in which the blacks avoided the lake, of which they appeared to entertain a superstitious dread, one aged aboriginal stating she had seen it all covered with trees, another explaining that the whole of the water sunk through the bottom and disappeared, while others remembered the lake only as a series of small ponds.

During the following 20 years considerable variations were noted in the depth and extent of the lake. In 1841 the lake became partially dried up, the moist portions being simply grassy swamps. A few months later large numbers of sheep were pastured in the bed of the lake, but fresh water had to be carted for the use of the shepherds, that of the lake being too salt for human consumption. The place remained more or less dry until 1852, the year of the great floods in that part of the colony, when it again became filled, with an average depth of nine feet. Since then the surface level of the lake has varied considerably, but the bed has never been so dry as in former years. There are indications that many hundreds of years ago the lake covered a far larger area than any yet recorded, remains of trees over 100 years old being found in spots formerly under water. The saline character of the lake is the more remarkable by reason of its being fed by pure and sparkling fresh water streams.

The Spring Life-Giver

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Carries on Its Great Work in All Classes of Society.

ITS PRESENT USE WILL ESTABLISH A FIRM FOUNDATION OF HEALTH FOR THE FUTURE.

The success of Paine's Celery Compound, as a life-giving spring medicine is confined to no one class of society. Its grand work in banishing disease has won the approval of those in high positions, and it also fully enjoys the confidence of our city toilers, and the farmers of our broad Dominion.

At this season, when health-restoring should be the first thought, take no chances with medicines that have no reputation or established fame. The wise and prudent make Paine's Celery Compound their chosen remedy, and never suffer disappointment. Mr. G. J. McDonald, of Cornwall, Ont., gladly writes as follows:

"After having given your Paine's Celery Compound a thorough testing, I am pleased to say a few words in its favour. For three years I suffered terribly from rheumatism. It seemed to me that I was forced to endure all the agonies and pains that a mortal could possibly experience from the dreadful disease.

"While suffering I tried many of the advertised medicines and also doctors' prescriptions, but never found a cure until I procured a supply of Paine's Celery Compound. It worked like a charm—it seemed to strike at the very root of my trouble. I am now cured; all pains are banished, and in every respect I am a cured man.

"I shall always consider it a pleasure and duty to strongly recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who are afflicted with rheumatism."

Never Clear of Smoking Cars.

"I seldom advise my patients to stop smoking, because I know it's a waste of breath to do so," remarked a suburban physician yesterday. "In many cases I do advise moderation in the use of the weed, and when a patient has a weak throat there is one thing that I positively insist upon, and that is that he shall not ride in the smoking cars attached to railroad trains. Breathing that atmosphere for half an hour will do a man more injury than smoking half a dozen cigars in the open air or in a properly ventilated room that is not crowded with other smokers. Smoke if you must, I say, but steer clear of smoking cars."

Misread the Sign.

"How is it," asked the victim, "that you charge me 35 cents when the sign says, 'First class hair cut 15 cents?'"

"But you haven't first class hair," replied the barber.—Philadelphia North American.

Why the Door Was Locked.

"Nora, I can't get into the parlor."

"Sure, it's meself knows that, and yes won't with the kay in me pocket."

"Open the door immediately.'

"Will yez go in if I do?"

"Certainly I will."

"Then yez don't get the kay."

"Open the door immediately. What do you mean?"

"Sure, it's by yer orders."

"My orders!"

"Yis. Yez said yesterday, 'Don't let me come down stairs in the mornin and see any dust on the parlor furniture.' So I just puts the kay in me pocket and says I, 'Then she won't.'"

Hopeless.

RAILWAY VS. CANAL.

Great British Railway Rival to the Isthmian Canal—How It Will Beat Water Competitor.

London, April 18.—The great British rival to the Isthmian Canal is a railway which is being built across Mexico's narrowest point. This will be mainly an extension of the Tehuantepec line, built by the Mexican Government to connect the Gulf of Mexico with the Pacific, which has no terminal facilities.

S. Pearson & Co., of London, are reconstructing the railway into an inter-oceanic freight thoroughfare, under an agreement made two years ago, the Mexican Government leasing the road to the British for 50 years.

The line will be ready within four years. Two thousand men are working, personally supervised by Sir Weetman Pearson. Harbors are being constructed at both ends, affording anchorage to the largest vessels. Pearson says: "We hope for two million tons yearly on the railway. If the Nicaraguan Canal carries that it will have to charge 30 shillings a ton to make 4 per cent. against our charge of 10 shillings. Again, there will be a saving of time. We shall handle a ship's cargo in one day, against three spent in the canal. We have the best of the distance and a start of fully five years. Though the road is 100 miles long, it has 900 bridges of iron and stone, which, with the steel rails, are coming from America."

J. Pierpont Morgan has the greatest faith in the future of the railway, and regards the canal scheme unfavorably.

FRANCE TO PROTECT CATHOLICS.

But Must Be Asked to Do So by Other Nations Before Acting.

Paris, April 18.—The Foreign Office confirms the despatch from Washington, saying France will take charge of the Catholic claims against China, explaining that this act is in accordance with her traditional protectorate over the Catholic missions in the far east. But France does not intend to press the claims of other Catholics than the French, unless requested by them to do so. It is expected, however, that all the Catholics of Latin countries will place their claims in her hands. The German missions in Shan Tung rely on their own Government.

Now It Is £70,000,000.

Pekin, April 17.—At to-day's meeting of the Foreign Ministers, the question of indemnities was considered. It is now estimated that £70,000,000 will cover all claims.

N.P LINES WILL NOT BE SOLD.

J. J. Hill Said to Have Made a Statement to That Effect.

Winnipeg, April 18.—The following New York despatch, dated yesterday, is published here:

"J. J. Hill says the Northern Pacific lines in Manitoba, which have been leased to the Canadian Government, but in which details lacked the approval of the Ottawa Parliament, will not be sold. They will be merged into one management with the Burlington and Northern Pacific at St. Paul."

Another despatch quotes Hill as saying reports of his connection with the deal are not worth denial.

May Buy Out Mr. Reid.

Montreal, April 18.—There appears now to be no doubt whatever as to the Newfoundland Government's intention to take over Mr. R. G. Reid's railway and compensate that gentleman for the outlay he has made. "From what I know," said Hon. E. P. Morris, a member of the Bond Government, "I am sure that an agreement will be reached satisfactory alike to Mr. Reid and the people of Newfoundland. No attempt has been made, except by sensational newspapers, to interfere with Mr. Reid's rights under his contract, excepting by adequate compensation. It is a well recognized principle that a country has the right to acquire for public purposes any property owned by individuals, on payment, of course, of a sum decided upon by a competent court or a board of arbitrators. It is only in this sense that the party in power ever contemplated the acquiring of any of the properties held by Mr. Reid under the 1898 contract."

Kensit Raised a Row.

London, April 18.—The scene in Bow Church yesterday during the consecration of Right Rev. A. F. W. Ingram as Bishop of London resembled a political meeting, rather than a religious service. Mr. John Kensit, anti-Ritualist, offered an expected protest against the appointment. He spoke for some time in a loud voice. His remarks caused an extraordinary uproar, and he was greeted with cheers, hisses and shouts of "Order!" "Shame!" "No Popery!". Mr. Kensit accused Dr. Ingram of being unfaithful to all his promises when he was consecrated Bishop of Stepney. Disorderly scenes and hustling recurred outside the church, and finally Mr. Kensit was escorted home by a score of policemen and followed by a howling mob.

Motorman Has Smallpox.

Toronto Junction, April 18.—This town is again threatened with the smallpox epidemic. A new case has been discovered in York Township, on the Weston road, close to the boundary of the municipality. The victim to the disease is Mr. R. Muson, a motorman on the Suburban Electric Railway, who was taken ill on Saturday last. How he contracted the disease is not known.

Mexico Has Signed.

The Hague, April 18.—Mexico yesterday signed the convention of the Peace Conference. China, Luxumberg and Turkey are now the only countries which have not signed the peace convention.

Died at 106 Years of Age.

Halifax, April 18.—Word has just reached here that Angus Campbell died at Middle River, B. C., on April 9, aged 106 years. He was born in Scotland and came to Canada in 1805, landing first at Prince Edward Island. On the way over the vessel in which he was, was attacked by a French warship, but after an exciting experience she escaped.

Laundry Machinery.

"Some idea of the variety in which laundry machinery is now made," said a dealer, "may be gained from the fact that in one catalogue of such appliances there are to be found about 300 numbers. One maker produces washing machines in 80 varieties. These include machines of different sizes, materials and weights adapted to all manner of uses.

"Of ironing machines there are nowadays many, including machines specially designed for ironing particular parts, as bands, collars and so on, and then there are mangles in great variety, some of them big machines weighing many tons, made for the ironing of flat goods only, as tablecloths, napkins, sheets, towels and so on. There is more or less hand laundry work in one branch and another, but there is now no work done in laundries for which machines cannot be had."

He'd Sooner Walk.

At a funeral some time ago two old men, after a long discussion on the good qualities of the deceased, turned their conversation to the dilapidated appearance of the hearse which bore the remains of "poor Con Conway" to their last resting place.

"Well, now, Mickey," said one to the other earnestly, "I wonder greatly at Biddy to put her husband in that ould hearse."

"Aye, troth, you're right there, Pat," answered his companion absentmindedly. "Sure, I'd sooner walk than be seen going to my grave in that ould yoke."

ENGLISH MONARCHS.

Death Often Unkind in the Manner of Their Taking Off.

Of the monarchs who have reigned over England since the days of the Norman conquest nearly one-quarter of the number have met violent death. William I was killed by a fall from his horse, William II was shot while hunting, whether by accident or design is still one of the unsolved problems of history; Richard I was killed by a shaft from a crossbow while besieging the city of Chalus, in France; Richard II was murdered in Pontefract castle, Edward II was murdered in Berkley castle, and Edward V in the Tower of London. Richard III was kiled on the battlefield of Bosworth and Charles I had his head cut off in London.

Elizabeth's death was hastened by remorse that she had ordered the execution of Essex, and her sister Mary sickened and died soon after the loss of Calais, declaring that the name of the city would be found after death written on her heart. The death of Edward III's son, the Black Prince, caused the aged monarch to die of grief. So, after the loss of his son in the White Ship, Henry I was never seen to smile again and lived only a short time. Henry VI and George III were insane during the latter years of their reigns and finally died from what in these days would be called paresis. Charles II, Henry VIII, Edward IV and George IV hastened their deaths by the dissipated and sensual lives they lived. Only two monarchs died of that great national scourge, consumption; they were Edward VI and Henry VII. Queen Anne's death was due as much as anything else to overfeeding. Only two monarchs, Henry VI and George III, died after long illnesses.

THE BRITISH BUDGET.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Makes His Speech.

EXPORT DUTY ON COAL IMPOSED

A Graduated Scale of Sugar Duties—West Indian Sugar Not Exempt—The Income Tax Made 14 Pence in the Pound—£60,000,000 to Be Borrowed by Means of Consols.

London, April 19.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, rose in the House yesterday at 4.18 p.m., amidst rounds of cheers, and commenced the budget statement.

His opening sentence was not promising. "During the last five years," said the Chancellor, "we have been invariably able to congratulate the House on a general increase in the prosperity of the country, but the year 1900, especially the last six months, showed symptoms of a change. Our foreign trade during the year considerably increased, but in value rather than in volume. This has been mainly derived from the high prices of certain articles, notably coal, which, naturally, must have injured important industries, especially railways."

Revenue Has Not Decreased.

Nevertheless, the revenue for the past year had shown no signs of decrease, and the Exchequer receipts showed a surplus of £2,865,000 over the estimates. He was bound to say, however, that the excess had been due to forestallment on dutiable articles. But for this his estimates would have been barely realized. Much could be said for and against forestallment, but it was an unmitigated nuisance to financial statisticians. The forestallment of 1899-1900 amounted to £3,250,000, which properly belonged to the revenue of the last year.

The forestallment of the past year somewhat exceeded the previous year. He would say that the consuming power of the people was maintained, but there was no material evidence of the expansion of that power beyond what was fairly attributable to increase of population.

Various Items of Revenue.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach then proceeded to review the various items of revenue, mentioning that the revenue from beer was £4,000,000 less than the estimate. "That decrease," said the Chancellor of the Exchequer, "is probably attributable to the fact that many beer drinkers are in South Africa, and also to the decrease in the spending power of the people, owing to the high price of coal. Experience has shown that we have practically reached the limit in the profitable taxation of spirits. The receipts from the death duties were £1,500,000 below those of the preceding year, but he had better expectations for next year.

Results of the War.

"The prolongation of the war and the absence of business on the stock exchange were responsible for the unsatisfactory yield for stamps." In noting that the year's receipts from the income tax were £1,150,000 above the estimate, the Chancellor of the Exchequer remarked that in 12 years the income on which taxation was paid had been increased by no less than £120,000,000, a fact that he hoped the House would remember when he reached a later part of his speech.

The only other points of the revenue which he needed to touch upon were the exceptional receipts owing to the mint, to silver coinage and to the telegraph receipts, which compared very favorably with the expenditure.

Total Receipts and Expenditures.

The total receipts amounted to £130,385,000 and the expenditures to £183,592,000, of which £65,000,000 was for the war in South Africa, and £3,000,000 for China.

The deficit £53,207,000, showed that they had paid £15,413,000 out of the revenue for the cost of the war. The total amount provided by the State last year aggregated the enormous sum of £198,346,000.

The National Debt.

"As to the national debt," said the Chancellor of the Exchequer, "it stands in painful contrast with last year. But the funded debt had decreased by £1,425,000. April 1 the national debt stood £687,500,000, an increase of £55,000,000 on account of the war."

Estimated Expenditure This Year.

Turning to the present year, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said that the total estimated expenditure was £187,600,000. On the existing basis it was estimated that the revenue would be £132,255,000, leaving a deficit of about £55,000,000.

"How is this deficit to be met?" asked Sir Michael. "I will never be responsible for the fatal policy of paying the whole cost of the war out of the loans, without putting a reasonable amount on the taxpayers of the day. The real difficulty, however, is not so much the cost of the war in South Africa as the operations in China, as they will increase our ordinary expenditure, even if the war comes to an end within three or four months." (This statement caused cheering from the Irish members.) "Or sooner than the honorable members suppose. Our ordinary expenditure would not permit of the remittance of the additional taxation proposed for war purposes last year. It, therefore, becomes necessary to put our expenditure on broader bases. The country has reached a point when it is necessary to widen the scope of taxation, but direct taxpayers must bear their share of the burden. I propose that two pence shall be added to the income tax, making one shilling and two pence in the pound. The extra two pence will realize £3,800,000. There will be no addition to the beer, wine, tea, spirits or tobacco duties. I am not disposed to impose a customs duty on manufactured imported goods, as suggested by Sir Howard Vincent.

"The average consumption of sugar is 56 pounds per head. Sugar is taxed in every other community in Europe and is taxed in the United States. In this country taxes remained on sugar long after the institution of free trade. What I propose is not a protective duty, but an adequate public necessity has arisen for some duty of which the laboring classes should bear a fair share. The effect of my proposals on the price of sugar is doubtful, as the price of sugar is governed by the bounty system. The great bulk of the imports of sugar comes from bounty-giving countries.

The Bounty System.

"The bounty system is that a country giving a bounty encourages production within its borders, and at the same time does its best to restrict consumption by its own people by every possible means. The result is that there is an enormous surplus which has to find a foreign market, and this country, under the present circumstances, is the only market. Therefore, it is quite conceivable—unless, of course, the bounty-giving countries either reduce the area of their sugar production or lower their own duties on sugar for the benefit of their own population, both of which actions would mean the abolition of the bounty system—that the result of the new tax, although at first the price might rise and consumption, consequently, be reduced, would be that there would be such an inflow into this country of bounty-fed sugar unable to go elsewhere that the price might be brought down. Again, I do not believe the duty will injure manufacturers using sugar, to anything like the extent feared. Of course, provision will be made for imposing a duty on manufactured articles from foreign countries coming into competition with the home articles. I have endeavored to reconcile the conflicting interests.

Not a Protective Duty.

"Nothing must be done to protect the British refiner to the disadvantage of the British consumer. But, on the other hand, fair play must be given to the British refiner, as compared with his continental rival. The refiner of beet sugar must not be favored as against the refiner of cane sugar, or vice versa. I propose a duty on refined sugar, of four shillings and two pence a hundredweight. A half penny per pound would be four shillings and eight pence, so a margin of six pence is left to cover the customs handling, etc. There is, therefore, no reason why a tax of four shillings and two pence should increase the retail price more than a half penny per pound.

The graduated scale of taxation will be as follows: Refined sugar, which is polarized at 98 and upwards, and which represents two-thirds of the total imports, would pay the full tax. This will diminish to a minimum of two shillings per hundred weight on raw sugar polarized at 76. This scale is only tentative, and I am perfectly willing to listen to criticism and the benefit of experience and better knowledge.

Molasses, in which are included the grocery syrups, consumed largely by the poor, pay two shillings per hundred weight, and glucose, of which a great deal has been heard lately, and which is in the manufacture of jams and aerated waters, will have to bear a tax of one shilling and eight pence. I anticipate a yield of £5,100,000 from this tax. The West Indies will not be exempt.

Export Duty on Coal.

"My next proposal is a novel one, unknown in this country for 45 years. It is an export duty of a shilling a ton on coal. In aiming to secure a revenue from coal I am not sacrificing trade. The imposition of a shilling, which is infinitely less than the fluctuations in price, will do no real injury to the coal trade, even supposing that the export of coal is checked. I am not sure that even that result will be an evil. From this source I expect £2,100,000, an aggregate of £11,000,000 from new taxation.

The Final Balance Sheet.

"My final balance sheet will be, from taxation a revenue of £122,200,000; from non-taxation £21,055,000, a total of £143,255,000. I propose to reduce the expenditure by again suspending the sinking fund to £182,962,000. This shows a deficit of £39,707,000, to which must be added £1,250,000 for the fresh debt I have to borrow. I must ask the House to give me borrowing powers considerably in excess of this deficit of £41,000,000. In order to finance the Exchequer, I ask power to borrow £60,000,000, by means of consols.

As to the Transvaal.

"As to obtaining contributions from the Transvaal, Sir David Barbour's reports are not encouraging at present. I think the House will see the war has brought the country to the verge of ruin. (Opposition cheers greeted this remark.) This can no longer be considered. The small war has cost £151,000,000, or double the cost of the Crimean war. There was £67,000,000 of the unfunded debt redeemable within the next ten years.

Concluding Remarks.

"I have tried to put before the House a true account of our finances for the present and immediate future. In our time no Chancellor of the Exchequer has had so difficult a task, and none has had a more indulgent audience. I have not laid proposals before the House with the view of gaining transient popularity, but I have endeavored to establish a principle of contribution by the whole community to the burdens of the State."

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach concluded at 6.44 p. m., amidst loud applause, having spoken two hours and twenty-six minutes.

Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt's Reply.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt complimented the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the ability he had shown, declaring that his speech was characterized by honesty, a quality very much lacking in the conduct of the war, in telling the House and country the truth in regard to the position.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

GIVE PERFECT DIGESTION, SOUND SLEEP, STRONG NERVES.

A Popular Remedy for Dyspepsia, which has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of act there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood and that is through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly, the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gasses, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas, and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers" because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tabets are prepared by the F. A Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

Odd Name Combinations.

"It gets curioser and curioser!" exclaims Alice in Wonderland. Mr. Pitt-Lewis, Q. C., the deputy judge of the city of London court (and the recorder of Poole), was inclined to do the same. Some time ago he tried a case of Alabaster versus White. A little while afterward there was one of High versus Low, and later he was confronted with a suit of Halfpenny versus Penny. His honor was at first under the impression that some one was playing a joke, but the litigants were real enough.

Strange conjunctions of names occur, however, in other places than law courts. In the early part of the nineteenth century a parson in Bloomsbury began one morning by tying the nuptial knot between Prior and Nun. The second couple embarking in matrimony were called respectively Doctor and Patient and the third Beans and Bacon. The fourth couple was put off for four and twenty hours because their patronymics were Toogood and Best. "Come tomorrow," said the cleric. "Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof."

Fairy In Disguise.

The waiter girl was undeniably pretty, and she did not seem to know it.

Modest, ladylike in demeanor, mindful only of her duties, she moved swiftly to and fro through the crowded restaurant, heedless of the admiring glances darted at her by susceptible young men, filling the orders of exacting guests with exemplary patience and good nature and tactfully repelling all attempts to engage her in airy badinage or in any conversation not pertaining to the business of feeding hungry men.

"What is your order?" she asked the grave, silent man who had just taken a seat at one of the tables.

"Bring me," he said, "a Swiss cheese sandwich with rye bread, a couple of doughnuts and some coffee."

"Slab o' Switzerlan' on rye!" she piped shrilly. "Sinkers! Draw one in Java!"

Better Than Making a Note.

"Just before Badmun was sent to prison he bought a set of books to be paid for in instalments."

"What did he do that for?"

"He said it would make the time seem shorter."

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock to-day was large, in fact the largest of any Thursday this season, 71 carloads all told, composed of 1297 cattle, 2000 hogs, 162 sheep and 157 calves.

Trade was fair, and all well-finished exporters and butchers' cattle sold at about the same prices as on Tuesday. But the general run of sales were at lower prices, owing to the fact that the quality was not as good. There were a few lots unsold at the close of the market, as in the case generally on Thursdays.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, April 18.—The receipts of live stock at the East End Abattoir this morning were 350 head of cattle, 100 calves, 30 sheep, 40 lambs. The demand was good at the following prices:

Cattle, choice, sold at from 4½c to 5c per lb.; good sold at from 4c to 4½c per lb.; lower grade from 2½c to 3½c per lb. Calves were sold from $2 to $10 each.

Sheep brought from 3½c to 4½c per lb. Lambs were sold from 4c to 5c per lb. Hogs brought from 6c to 7c per lb.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, April 18.—Cattle—Demand fair and feeling steady. Calves, light demand; choice to extra, $5.50; good to choice, $5 to $5.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Offerings, 500 loads. There was no improvement in the situation, the demand being limited, and only the strictly grades selling. Wool lambs, choice to extra, $5.50 to $5.60; good to choice, $5.25 to $5.50; clipped lambs, choice to extra, handy, $5; heavy clipped lambs, heavy, $4.25 to $4.50. There was no demand for mixed wool sheep, but when running pretty well wethers were quotable $4.50 to $4.75; clipped sheep, $4.25 to $4.50. A large proportion of the offerings were left over.

Putnam's Corn Extractor

MOVING PICTURES.

HOW THE SKETCHES ARE REPRODUCED UPON THE FILMS.

The Amount of Movement That May Be Crowded Into Fifty Seconds. The Greatest Successes Are Often Brought About by Accident.

"A queer thing about moving pictures," said an expert operator in that line to a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "is the illusion they generally produce as to the time they occupy while on the screen. What is known as the 'standard exhibition film' is 50 feet long. It is used almost entirely for comic scenes, trick pictures and other effects that are got up in the studios of the experts who make them a specialty. Every theater goer has seen them, and I will venture the assertion that the average man will declare they take at least three or four minutes in passing before the eye. As a matter of fact the picture is on the screen less than one minute. You can easily figure it out for yourself. The ordinary 50 foot film of the kind to which I refer is put through the reproducing machine at the rate of 16 pictures to the second. Each picture is three-fourths of an inch broad, which makes the 16 measure exactly one foot, edge to edge; in other words, the film travels a foot a second—50 feet, 50 seconds. What gives it the effect of taking up so much more time is the immense lot of action that is usually crowded into the brief period it is in view. Until the moving picture was invented I don't think anybody had the least idea how much could be done in 50 seconds. It seemed hardly time enough to turn around in, yet when the experts began to study its possibilities they found it was ample for hundreds of little pictorial comedies that have since delighted audiences all over the world.

"It is entirely a matter of rehearsal. A subject is selected, generally calling for from three to four people, and every detail of the 'business' or action is carefully worked out in advance. Suppose, for illustration, that a comic burglary is the topic. The business, in skeleton, might run something like this: Old gentleman dozing in parlor; enter burglar; old gentleman awakes; burglar hides; enter policeman, searches the room, collars old gent; they fight and roll on the floor while burglar suddenly emerges and leaps out of the window. That doesn't sound particularly side splitting, but in the hands of intelligent comedians it can be made really very funy. The all essential thing is to crowd it into 50 seconds, and to that end each bit of action is carefully timed and made to fit into each other bit like so many well geared cogwheels. The old gentleman's startled yawn, the burglar's glance around the room and every step, movement and gesture from beginning to end is calculated with the utmost nicety, and at last after dozens of rehearsals the act is attempted before the recording machine. If everybody is lucky, it goes through on schedule time, but the slightest hitch is fatal, and if one occurs the film is spoiled, and they must try all over again. No wonder it seems impossible to future spectators that so much could transpire in 50 secouds.

"But some of the most telling effects in composition pictures," continued the operator, "have been the result of accident and were entirely unpremeditated. That was the case with a film that I had a hand in preparing and that afterward made a tremendous hit and proved to be one of the best sellers ever put on the market. In getting up the picture our principal purpose was to introduce a large and very intelligent bulldog I owned at the time, and we sketched out a simple little scene in which a tramp steals a pie from a kitchen window, is pursued by the dog and is last seen trying to scale the back fence with the animal hanging to his coattails.

"The training of the dog was the main trouble, but I finally taught him to lay hold of anything red, and we sowed a big piece of flannel as a mark to the back of our tramp's coat. Red photographs black, so it couldn't be seen in the pictures, and after a good many rehearsals the dog learned to dash out at exactly the right moment and nail the marauder, whose cue was then to rush for the fence and consume the remaining time in making an apparently desperate effort to scramble over the top. At last we got everything all ready, gave the word and started the record machine to take the picture.

"Immediately the little comedy began. The tramp appeared, looked around stealthily, saw the pie, booked it and was having a feast when out sprang the bulldog and seized him by the coattails. He thereupon sprinted to the fence and was about to carry out the rest of the programme when, to our consternation, the boards gave way, and he came down bang on top of the dog. The film had about ten seconds to run, and it was occupied in recording one of the liveliest scraps that ever happened. There was no hippodrome about it. Both parties were out for blood. When the fence fell, the bulldog had promptly transferred himself from the tramp's coattail to the tramp's calf, while that unfortunate person snatched up a broomstick and tried to pry him loose. They rolled over and put about 50 times as much action and animation in the last ten seconds as had been crowded into the preceding 40. We finally pulled them apart, and it was not until the negative was developed that we realized what a prize we had accidentally secured. That earnest and impromptu wind up has convulsed audiences all over Christendom and made fully as much of a hit in Europe as it did at home."

LAID UP.

A STRONG MAN ON HIS BACK THROUGH KIDNEY TROUBLE.

A Toronto Carpenter who was Never Without pain for years and who had Many Times to Quit Work—Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Him Well.

Toronto, Ont., April 17.—(Special.)—At No. 88, Lippincott street, in this city, resides Mr. W. J. Keane. Mr. Keane is a contractor, and is one of the best known men in his line of business in Toronto.

Like many other successful men, Mr. Keane has suffered during his busy life a great deal from Kidney Disorders. For years he suffered great pain. He was forced at times to quit his work altogether and go to bed. He used Dodd's Kidney Pills and is well. This is what he says about it:

"It gives me great pleasure to write in praise of Dodd's Kidney Pills and the good they have done me. I am never without them.

"I have been a great sufferer with pains in my back in the region of my kidneys. I was very sick and at times could not attend to my work at all.

"I used several medicines but nothing I ever tried seemed to help me in the least, until a friend of mine advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I immediately found relief and was able to do my work.

"I used altogether seven boxes before being completely cured. Since then I have never been sick a day. I have never had the slightest indication of a return of the trouble."

It is hard to understand how anyone will continue to suffer from Lame Back or any other symptom of Kidney Trouble after so many frank and full statements by men well known in all walks of life, that Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured them.

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure. They never fail. They cannot fail. Years of trial have absolutely proven that there is no case of Kidney Complaint, Lame Back, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, Neuralgia, Bladder or Urinary Troubles Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only medicine that ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy.

Thousands of Canadians have tried, and proved, and testified.

The Sword.

There is only one sword factory in the United States, a Massachusetts concern, and that one has ample capacity for supplying the domestic demand for swords. The saber lost its efficiency as a cavalry weapon as far back as the war of the rebellion, and the increased range of rifles has made the sword equally obsolete as an implement of actual combat. It is about as dangerous now as a bandmaster's baton and serves much the same purpose.

The Croup.

It's a terrible thing, isn't it? Somehow, that awful cough, that hard struggle for air, can never be forgotten. Be a little forehanded and prevent it. Keep Vapo-Cresolene in the house, and when the children take cold let them breathe in the vapor during the evening. It goes right to the throat, just where the croup lies. All irritation subsides, the cough quiets down and serious trouble is prevented. It never fails to cure whooping cough. 12

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

AN UNEXPLAINED IMPULSE.

That of Some Persons to Leap When Looking Down From High Places.

"The strange temptation to cast themselves into space which assails so many people when they look down from high places is very hard to account for scientifically," said a well known neurologist of this city. "It has undoubtedly been the cause of hundreds of cases of self destruction, yet it certainly cannot be classed as a suicidal impulse, because those who experience it invariably resist with all their strength and hang back in an agony of dread and repulsion. They don't want to kill themselves, but some power stronger than will, stronger even than love of life, draws them irresistibly over the brink.

"People with this singular infirmity," continued the doctor, "should never expose themselves to danger, because the impulse acts automatically and may at any moment pass beyond control. On one occasion, when I was considerably younger than I am at present, I undertook to cure a patient who couldn't look from a height, and the experience left an everlasting impression on my mind. He was a big, strapping fellow of 35 or so, a cabinet maker by trade and the last man apparently to be bothered by nervous fancies. I had an idea that by making him look persistently into space for a certain length of time each day I could drive away the dread and the impulse. So I took him to the top of a six story building that had a flat roof and told him to lie down on his stomach so only the upper part of his face projected over the edge and look at the street. He was very reluctant to try it. 'I'm afraid to, doctor,' he said earnestly. 'If I do, my legs will fly up in the air, and I'll go over sure.'

"'Oh, nonsense!' I said, laughing. 'How in the world could your legs fly up in the air? How can you possibly fall when your whole body is stretched out flat on the roof?'

"'I don't care,' he insisted doggedly. 'I know my legs will fly up in the air if I try to look over the edge.'

"After a great deal of persuasion I finally induced him to lie down as I had directed, telling him to shut his eyes until he became composed. As soon as he opened them and looked into the street a strong shudder ran through his whole body, and I knew he must be suffering mortal agony, but I was determined to go through the lesson and urged him strongly not to draw back. Possibly a minute elapsed, and then a shocking thing occurred. Suddenly and without the slightest warning he seized the edge of the parapet with both hands, drew his body violently forward, at the same time flinging up his legs, and would undoubtedly have gone over the edge if I had not thrown myself instantly on his back.

"The movement was purely convulsive and involuntary. He could no more help it than he could help breathing, but it made my blood run cold to think what might have happened. How could I have explained myself had he fallen? I might readily have been suspected of murder. I dragged him back, and we went down stairs, a pretty badly agitated couple. Since then I have tried no more experiments along that line."

Where Medical Science Fails

to cure rheumatism, and all the time you suffer dreadfully, why don't you get a bottle of Polson's Nerviline and try that? Rub it into your stiff joints, sore arms, lame back, bent shoulders—wherever the pain is. Nerviline has cured plenty of people in this way, and that ought to be proof enough that it will cure you too. It is an unusually strong liniment that cures rheumatism in unusually quick time. Best household liniment known. 25 cents.

Easy Sawing.

Some of the inmates of a Yorkshire asylum were engaged in sawing wood, and an attendant thought that one old fellow who appeared to be working as hard as anybody had not much to show for his labor.

Approaching him, the attendant soon discovered the cause of this. The old man had turned his saw upside down, with the teeth in the air, and was working away with the back of the tool.

"Here, I say, John," remarked the attendant, "what are you doing? You'll never cut the wood in that fashion. Turn the saw over!"

The old man paused and stared contemptuously at the attendant.

"Did ta iver try a saw this way?" he asked.

"Well, no," replied the attendant. "Of course I haven't."

"Then hod thy noise, mon," was the instant rejoinder. "I've tried both ways, I hev, and," impressively, "this is t' easiest!"—London Answers.

PATTERSON WAS FOUND "GUILTY."

Tried by His Honour Judge Weller This Morning.

SENTENCE WAS RESERVED.

Treating a Dead Human Body With Indignity—Prisoners Have in Some Cases Been Given the Option of a Fine.

The trial of William Paterson, the Queen's University medical student, who is charged with grave robbing opened at 10 o'clock this morning at the Court House in the County Judge's Criminal Court before His Honour Judge Weller. The circumstances of the case are still familiar to readers of the Examiner. At a preliminary hearing before Police Magistrate Dumble, Patterson was committed to stand his trial, and the prisoner elected to be tried before Judge Weller. The case accordingly came up for hearing to-day. There was only a fair-sized crowd in the court room when the proceedings opened. Amongst them were Mr. Dennis Sheehan, husband of the woman, whose body was molested, as well as deceased's three daughters. Patterson and his solicitor, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, arrived in good time, and awaited the arrival of His Honour Judge Weller. County Crown Attorney Wood and Mr. R. F. McWilliams looked after the interests of the Crown. Mr. D. O'Connell watched Mr. Sheehan's interests. Mr. W. F. Johnston acted in the capacity of official stenographer.

The trunk in which the body of Mrs. Sheehan was taken to Belleville, stood in a conspicuous place in the court room.

The charge was "That the said William J. Patterson on or about the 20th day of February, one thousand nine hundred and one, in the cemetery or graveyard belonging to the Roman Catholic Church of the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of the Diocese of Peterborough, in the said County of Peterborough, unlawfully and wilfully did break and enter, and disturb the grave there, in which the body of one Margaret Sheehan, deceased, had lately before there been interred, and there also unlawfully, wilfully and indecently did dig open, and the body of her, the said Margaret Sheehan, out of the grave aforesaid, unlawfully, wilfully and indecently did then take and carry away. And also that the said W. J. Patterson on or about the 20th day of February aforesaid, unlawfully and indecently did interfere with the dead human body of the said Margaret Sheehan, deceased.

"And also that the said W. J. Patterson on or about the 20th day of February aforesaid, unlawfully and improperly did interfere with the dead human body of the said Margaret Sheehan, the deceased."

The first witness was Mr. Dennis Sheehan, the husband of the late Margaret Sheenan. He said that he was a labourer living on Alfred street in the town of Peterborough. His wife died on the 10th day of February, and the remains were placed in a grave in the Roman Catholic Cemetery. On the morning of the 21st of February he was notified that his wife's body was in Mr. Belleghem's undertaking establishment, and on going up to that place he saw this to be true. He had given no authority to anyone to remove the body from the grave.

Mr. Dennistoun did not cross-examine witness.

Frank Brown, caretaker of the Roman Catholic burying ground, described the burying of Mrs. Sheehan's body on February 18th. The next time he was at the grave was on Wednesday, and he went to Mrs. Sheehan's grave for the planks which are used in connection with lowering the coffin, and saw nothing wrong. On the 21st he visited the grave with Mr. Marks a son-in-law of Mr. Sheehan's, and noticed that the grave had been tampered with. The screws of the coffin had been taken out.

Just here the Crown Attorney sprung a little sensation by producing a coffin screw and asking witness if the screws in the coffin lid looked like the one he had in his hand, and which Mr. Wood had just been handed by Chief Rossel.

Mr. Dennistoun contended that there was no evidence to show that any of the screws had been taken. It was leading the witness.

Continuing his story to Mr. Wood, witness related nothing of particular interest.

Mr. D. Belleghem, who took charge of the body when brought back to Peterborough, gave evidence on the same lines as that which he gave before Police Magistrate Dumble.

Mr. Martin McFadden, the undertaker who had charge of the funeral arrangements of deceased, told of having superintended the interment of the same. He identified the coffin screw produced in court as identically the same as the ones which were used in Mrs. Sheehan's coffin.

To Mr. Dennistoun he said that they had different patterns of screws. He had never thought of the coffin screw sensation until to-day. He had seen nothing in the papers about the coffin screw being found. He was certain that the coffin screw produced was of the same pattern as the ones placed in the lid of the coffin.

Mr. John Newton, Chief of Police, Belleville, was the next witness. He arrested the prisoner upon instructions from the Chief of Police of Peterborough. He found a check on the person of Patterson which released the trunk that prisoner had with him.

Chief Newton was then proceeding to tell of how he came into possession of the coffin screw, but Mr. Dennistoun objected. His Honour, however, took no notice of the objection and Chief Newton proceeded with his story. Prisoner and himself took a hack to the police station and the backman returned some time afterwards and gave him a coffin screw, which he found in the hack.

Mr. Burgoyne, the hack driver, told of having found the screw nail on the cushion in the hack. He looked inside the hack every night to see that nothing was left there. There was no screw in the hack that witness saw that morning until Patterson left the same. Patterson and the Chief up until this time were the only persons who had occupied the hack.

Mr. Alex. Reid, the expressman, told the same story as has already been published, concerning the bringing of the trunk from Mr. Shortly's store to the prisoner's house, and thence to the G.T.R. station on the morning of the 20th of February.

Mr. Geo. Clarke, next witness said that the body of Mrs. Sheehan was put in the trunk quite easily. There was no forcing it. From the careful way in which the body was handled it did not strike him that a murder had been committed.

Chief Rossel related what he knew of the case, going over the circumstances leading up to the swearing out of the information. When in Belleville, prisoner admitted to witness that there was the body of a woman in the trunk. They did not open the trunk until they returned to Peterborough. He recognized the coffin screw produced in court, as the one which Chief Newton, of Belleville, had handed him, and which is alleged to have been found in the hack at Belleville.

This closed the case for the Crown.

The Defence.

Allen Bennett was the first witness for the defence. His home is in Ashburnham, and he has been studying medicine in Kingston. He knows Patterson, who has just completed his third year at the University. Patterson and he took meals at the same house in Kingston. He remembered Patterson's arrest and it naturally aroused his attention. The last he saw of Patterson previous to his arrest, was at dinner time on the 19th of February. He could not have reached Peterborough before 8 o'clock on Tuesday night the 19th.

To Mr. Wood, Mr. Bennett said that Patterson never said anything to him about going to Peterborough. He has never heard Patterson talk of how he came into possession of the body. Prisoner told nothing whatever of what took place on Tuesday night.

Mr. Walter Peters, the local weather observer, was then called. He proved from his weather records that there was a light snowfall (about half an inch) on the afternoon of February 19th, between 2 and 5 o'clock p.m., which was the only snow that fell for some days previous or several days afterwards.

This closed the case for the defence, and Mr. Dennistoun proceeded to address the court. He first went on to show that the grave, according to the evidence of Mr Brown, the caretaker of the cemetery, and the evidence of Mr. Peters, as to the fall of snow, must have been robbed on Monday night or at least before Tuesday evening, and up until Tuesday at 3 o'clock, Patterson, according to the evidence of Bennett, was in Kingston. This then, prisoner's counsel contended, disposed of the first charge. As to the second and third charge Mr. Dennistoun contended that there was nothing whatever to show that the prisoner had offered an indignity to the body, or was unlawfully handling the same. There were no marks on the body which would indicate that there had been any violence used. He went on to show that dead bodies were necessary at medical colleges. As to the manner of taking the body to Kingston, he held that it could in no way be construed into an act of indignity. He did the matter openly, and not in a manner of a man who had committed a criminal offence. He felt that there was nothing criminal in having the body in his possession, and the possession of a body is evidence of no offence whatever

OBITUARY.

Death of James S. Sargeant in Michigan.

Many of the older residents of the town will remember Mr. Jas. S. Sargeant, when he resided in Peterborough and conducted a furniture business in a building which stood where J. J. Howden's meat market is now erected. He was an Otonabee boy and a brother of Mr. Samuel Sargeant of that township, and of Mr. Edward Sargeant of Westwood. The Traverse City Herald speaks as follows of his recent death:

Jas. S. Sargent was born in Dublin, Ireland, on Aug. 26, 1823. His parents moved to Canada when he was but a small boy. When he grew up to the age of 16 years his mother apprenticed him to a cabinet maker, where he learned that trade. He served as an apprentice for seven years. Business being dull after that he came over to the States, and went to Utica and New York. In 1830 he was married to Miss Hannah Preston. Four daughters were born to them. One died in infancy, and one other, Mrs. Jennie Dent of Utica, N. Y., died 15 years ago, and his wife died May 14, 1893. He joined the M. E. church when he was 17 years of age, and then later on he left the M. E. church and joined the Baptist church. He left Utica, N. Y. and arrived in the county of Grand Traverse, on March 17th, 1869, where he has lived to the present time. In 1893 he joined the M. E. church at Archie, where he was a good and faithful member up to the time of his death, which occurred on March 27th, 1901, of acute bronchitis, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sarah A. Edmonds. There survive him two daughters, Mrs. Clara A. Langworthy, of Meadow, Thurston county, Wash.; and Mrs. Sarah A. Edmonds, of Archie, and also two brothers and one sister, Mr. Edward Sargeant of Westwood, Canada, Mr. Samuel Sargeant of Otonabee, Canada, and Miss Susan Ervine of Orillia, Canada, besides several other relatives. The funeral was held on March 29th at the Archie, M. E. church, where he was seen every Sunday when able to be there. The funeral was in charge of H. L. Carter of Traverse City and Rev. D. A. Green, minister on the Old Mission Circuit, preached the funeral sermon. He was laid to rest beside his wife in Oakwood Cemetery.

VETERANS WANT LAND.

THREE HUNDRED APPLICATIONS HAVE BEEN MADE.

Location of the Settlements to be Decided Shortly—Those Who are Now Enlisted to Receive Free Farms.

No less than 300 applications have been received by the Department of Crown Lands for the 160-acre farms offered to the veteran of the Fenian troubles and of the South African war. Of these 180 are from the former class and 120 from the latter. The Department has as yet taken no steps to locate the settlers, but it is probable that an Order-in-Council will be passed at an early date, setting apart certain sections for this purpose. It may be recounted here that the bill as finally passed makes the following classes of persons eligible for this grant:—

Persons resident or domiciled in Ontario who here or elsewhere enlisted for active military service in the South African war in 1899 and 1900.

Persons who are next of kin of any person so enrolled, who may be since deceased.

Persons resident in Ontario who went to said war to act as nurse, chaplain, Red Cross commissioner or newspaper correspondent.

Volunteer militiamen who were engaged in active service in the defence of the Ontario frontier in 1865, 1866 or 1870; next of kin of those who lost their lives in that service in 1866 or 1870; residents of Ontario who served in defence of Ontario in 1866 as members of the Chicago Volunteers Company; also members of Imperial service who defended the frontier in 1866.

IN BUFFALO.

Great Lighting Features of the Pan-American Exposition.

People who expect to attend the Pan-American Exposition should remember: First that the number of lights and the quantity of light will exceed that of any other equal area ever artificially illuminated, and it will be evenly distributed; Second, that unusual spectacular effects will be produced by the many combinations of light and water, and these combinations are to be so graded as to climax in keeping with the decorative lights at the electric tower; Third, that the electric tower basin will be the stage of the display of a combination of 1,500,000 gallons of water per hour in fountains with the light of 100 large-sized search lights—a scene which will certainly be impressive.

Realizing that this grand illumination will be a leading feature of the Exposition, the Grand Trunk Railway system are arranging for a series of popular price excursions to Buffalo, twice a week, during May and June, by special trains so timed that passengers will reach the Exposition grounds about 10 a. m. of the day they leave home, and the special trains will leave Buffalo after the illumination is over the same night. This will afford an opportunity of viewing the principal attractions during the day as well as the wonderful night display at the minimum cost, and it is believed a great many persons residing within say 250 miles of Buffalo, will prefer to make frequent visits to the Exposition in this manner rather than incur expense of remaining over in Buffalo several days in succession

GRAND KERMESS IN THE OPERA HOUSE.

Under the Auspices of All Saints' Senior Girls' Guild.

IT WAS AN UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS

The Programme Proved to be a Thoroughly Delightful One and was Fully Appreciated by the Vast Audience—Will be Repeated To-night.

Many and varied have been the entertainments given under the patronage of the different church societies connected with All Saints, but that of last evening under the auspices of the Senior Girls Guild must without hesitancy be awarded the honour of carrying off the palm, as being of a higher standard of excellence than any previous attempts in this direction.

The costumes worn were all rich and most pleasing to the eye, and those assisting in the different numbers took their respective parts in a manner which must certainly have made Prof. Sheets feel proud of his pupils as it was under his direction that the practices for the Kermess was conducted. The audience were unstinted in their expressions of approval and went away thoroughly delighted with the perfect manner in which each and every individual number was produced. The entire programme went off without a single hitch, which is a compliment that cannot always be paid veraciously to amateur entertainments.

Rev. W. L. Armitage is to be congratulated on his enterprise in arranging to place before the public an entertainment calling for the expenditure of so much time and labour, and involving so great a responsibility.

The regular Kermess programme was augmented and varied by vocal solos charmingly given by Mrs. A. G. Parker, Miss Helen Bertram and Mr. G. W. Mulligan, all of whom were in exceptionally good voice for the occasion and were more than deserving of the enthusiastic demands for encore numbers. Mrs. Mowat's piano solo was also fully appreciated.

In the Highland Fling the participants were Misses Gladys Roy, Gladys Crane, Gertrude McClellan, Dorothy Aylmer, Katherine Wallis, Alberta Gooding, Mattie Robertson, Daisy Dutton and Lenore Sanderson, all of whom were in full Highland costume and wore exquititely coloured tartans. Comparisons are always invidious, but with these prettily garbed and graceful children it would be impossible to select one of whom it could be said that she outshone her companions. As they danced daintily out on the stage and went through the various steps with the greatest accuracy the house was fairly carried away.

The Chatauqua Square is a new dance of the square variety and gave opportunity to sixteen young ladies to display rare grace in curtesying. It was reminiscent of the old minuet and yet had in it sufficient of the dash and go of the modern dance to give it an individuality all its own. The different movements were gone through with by these willowly young maidens in a manner that charmed every eye, and called for frequent bursts of applause. The hair was dressed a la poudre, and the costumes were very handsome. Those taking part were Misses Pearl Lundy, Madge Davidson, Sybil Stethem, Mary Sawers, May Donell, Dorothy Bell, Lillian Rush, Mamie Hamilton, Florence Belcher, Annie Hall, Hettie Taylor, Bella Fairweather, Kate Hall, Jessie Fairweather, Ada McBain and Marion Hall. All must be congratulated on their airy gracefulness.

The Sword Dance was participated in by Miss Gertrude McClellan of town, and the Pepper Twins, of Lindsay. It was an exhibition which was well worthy of the hearty reception with which it was received, and expressions of delight were heard on all sides as the different steps were taken with the most marvellous dexterity.

The Skirt Dance was probably the most popular dance of the evening. The costumes worn were marvels of elegance, and the audience applauded as though they would never tire of seeing the dancers gracefully gliding through the various manoeuvres in the beautifully shaded lights thrown on the stage by Mr. F. K. Begbee, of Lindsay, who kindly brought his instrument to town for that purpose. Those in this number were Misses G. McClellan, L. Sanderson, D. Dutton, K. Wallis, D. Aylmer, M. Robertson, G. Roy, Alberta Gooding and Jessie Spence.

The game of Living Whist played between Messrs. Peter Campbell and R.M. Dennistoun, and Messrs. J. E. Belcher and R. E. Wood, introduced sixty young ladies and gentlemen. The costumes worn, especially by the ladies, were most gorgeous, and the manner in which the number was staged will not soon be forgotten by those privileged in witnessing it last evening. The curtain rose on a pretty tableau, the four queens being seated in front with the rest of the "cards" effectively grouped behind them, the brilliant uniforms of the court cards making fine contrast with the filmy laces and exquisite drapery of the ladies' costumes. The curtain was then lowered, but raised again almost immediately, revealing the cards being shuffled, and making, a striking picture as the various shades and colourings of the costumes passed and repassed each other quickly in the movement. The game then commenced, and as each card was called the representative came forward and curtsyed to the audience. When the four cards had come forwards a star was formed by crossing hands and occasion was taken to introduce a few pretty steps. All then curtsyed, and the winner of the trick being announced, he or she, as the case might be, came forward and curtsyed again to the audience. The Queens received the obeisance of all when they were played. As the ladies each bore the insignia of their rank on the fronts of their dresses they could be easily distinguished. The men wore their marks of grade, as a rule, upon their shirt bosoms. Those taking part in this number were as follows:

	Hearts.	Diamonds.	Spades.	Clubs.
Ace	F. Bradburn	J. Lundy	D. Davidson	C. Stapleton
King	R. McWilliams	G. Burnham	Dr. Scott	C. Poussette
Jack	V. McWilliams	F. Roy	L. Hall	R. Stone
Queen	Mrs. E. Brown	Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun	Mrs. J. H. McClellan	Mrs. A.H. Stratton
Ten	Miss M. Donell	Miss D. Bell	Miss S. Stethem	Miss M. Davidson
Nine	Miss Meade	Miss A. Burnham	Miss N. Davies	Miss M. Sawers
Eight	Miss P. Lundy	Miss Belcher	Miss Fairweather	Miss G. Latimer
Seven	Miss H. Stethem	Miss M. Rogers	Miss L. Rush	Miss M. Hamilton
Six	Miss D. Comstock	Miss Taylor	Miss A. McBain	Miss J. Fairweather
Five	Miss Hall	Miss N. Hall	Miss Boucher	Miss G. Meade
Four	Miss M. Rush	Miss M. Hall	Miss Irwin	Miss Hurley
Three	Miss E. White	Miss H. Hall	Miss I. Hay	Miss Whiten
Two	Miss B. Brightman	Miss E. Bradd	Miss F. Hamilton	Miss Quirk
Heralds	W. H. Cluxton	H. Burnham	A.W. McPherson	A. E. Brundrette

The Pepper Twins, of Lindsay, appearing in unique costumes, gave a very clever exhibition of Sand Dancing, after which a Sailor's Hornpipe was given by Misses G. McClellan, D. Aylmer, K. Wallis, D. Dutton, L. Sanderson, G. Crane, G. Roy, J. Spence, M. Robertson, A. Gooding and Masters E. and A. Wood, and the Pepper Twins. The sailor costumes of white and blue trimmings were most appropriate and presented a very attractive appearance.

Little Misses Laidlaw and Begbie, of Lindsay, put on two specialties consisting of a song and dance and a skirt dance Both numbers were most skilfully executed and called for a great deal of applause.

The Highland Fling by tiny Jessie Spence was one of the most popular numbers on the entire programme, as was evidenced by the fact that the applause never ceased while she was performing. The programme was brought to a close by a cakewalk, in which about twenty of the little folk took part. All were decked out in fine array, and it was most amusing to witness the efforts put forth by each small couple to win the prize. The first pair that competed for honours was composed of Miss Dorothy Aylmer and Master Gordon Campbell, and it was apparent from the moment the audience saw them that they were prime favourites. The applause was fairly evenly divided amongst the other contestants until the two smallest pair in the competition appeared in the persons of Misses Jessie Spence and Alberta Gooding, who divided the honours with the first pair. Both couples paraded again but it was impossible to tell which were the favourites and so each will be presented with a cake.

The accompanists during the evening were Mrs. T. Mowat, Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun, Miss Comstock and Mr. J. Crane.

During the evening Miss Alberta Gooding and Miss Jessie Spence were each presented with handsome bouquets, which were very gracefully acknowledged.

The performance is to be repeated this evening and will include specialties by the Pepper Twins, the minuet, solos by Miss Bertram of Toronto, and the rubber in the game of Living Whist.

The piano used was a "Dominion" and was loaned by the Peterborough Music Company.

Miss May Donell was obliged to be absent through illness and Miss Bertram very kindly took her place. Mr. Llewellyn Hall was also too ill to attend and Dr. Stott had to do double duty in the living whist.

Mrs. D. J. Lundy rendered valuable assistance throughout. The mothers of the various children taking part also assisted where practicable.

Rev. Mr. Armitage is desirous of extending his thanks to all who participated.

An umbrella left in the opera house on Wednesday night may be recovered at the G.T.R. ticket office.

Kermess Repeated To-night.

New specialties—The minuet—The Pepper twins—The deciding game of whist, etc. Miss Bertram will sing. Tickets 25c and 50c; Children under 15 years 25c to any part of the house.

SIGHT OR HEARING?

IF YOU HAD TO LOSE EITHER, WHICH WOULD YOU RETAIN?

The Deep Pathos of Beethoven's Great Affliction—How the Great Composer Came to Be Deaf—A Few Remarks About the Ear.

Which would you rather be—deaf or blind? Here is a subject for debate by clubs or by the widespread debating societies known as "breakfast tables."

It seems to us curious that there should be any doubt concerning the question propounded. But investigation shows that such doubt does exist.

Many a man will tell you that he would rather be blind and hear what is said around him than lose his hearing and continue to see.

Presumably the choice would depend on the mental make up of the person choosing.

The man accustomed to look inside of his own mind for resources and for interest would, we should say, not find deafness a hopeless curse.

The deaf man with sight can read and compel the greatest mind of every age to talk to him.

He can concentrate his thoughts at all times and in all places, for there is none of the world's distracting racket to divert him.

The blind man is shut out from the beauties of nature, and, greatest loss of all, he is unable to study the wonders of the universe as spread out in the heavens at night. He finds himself limited to his night. He finds himself limited to his own thoughts and to the idle talk of those around him.

Is there not in the marvels of one sunset more inspiration than in all the talk of a hundred men?

Is there not in the study of a young child's face more to be learned than in much empty conversation?

The greatest curse of deafness is that it shuts us out from the wonderful inspiration of music. But we consider this loss more easily borne than inability to improve the mind with study of the visible universe.

Talk this subject over with your friends. You will find it better worth discussing than the chances of rain or snow, or other of life's trivialities.

The power of the human mind is shown most vividly in the accomplishments of great men whose genius has surmounted the horrible affliction of deafness or blindness.

Homer was blind, Beethoven was stone deaf.

Milton was blind when he wrote "Paradise Lost." What could physical sight have added to his marvelous mental vision?

Of himself he says, "Wisdom at one entrance, quite shut out." But the affliction which would utterly destroy mediocrity adds fire and purpose to Milton's genius:

So much the rather, thou celestial light, shine inward,
And the mind, through all its powers, irradiate.
There plant eyes that I may see and tell
Of things invisible to mortal sight.

All history of pathos since the world began fails to match the story of Beethoven's affliction. One of the three greatest beings born on earth, he was fated never to hear except within his brain, and through his inward sense of harmony, the greatest works of his genius.

For earth's greatest picture of pathos, study this scene.

Beethoven's genius had culminated in the production of his two greatest works. A magnificent ovation was prepared for the master who has given such happiness to the mind.

A vast assemblage was gathered together. Beethoven, the deaf genius, was to conduct.

The moving baton in his hands does not guide the musicians. His noble forehead is wrinkled deeply, his gaze fixed on the leading violinist before him. The "leader" hears not a sound of his own marvelous music, and he "leads" by watching the bowing of the violinist who interprets his work.

Applause shakes the building. The thousands of spectators stand in their seats, waving their arms, shouting, cheering. Not a sound is heard by the author of all the excitement. He looks straight ahead, unconscious that frantic admiration has drowned the sound of the music. A woman advances, turns Beethoven gently round, that his eyes may behold the tribute of admiration to his genius.

He beholds thousands of men and women in tears, called forth by sympathy for his affliction.

Let that scene move your sympathy, but let it also save you from possible affliction.

One piece of carelessness made Beethoven deaf and filled his life with sorrow.

After violent exercise he sat with his ear near an open window. Cold and inflammation resulted, and he was soon hopelessly deaf.

Bear in mind that similar danger threatens all of us at all times under similar conditions.

You may see some foolish young man racing to catch his ferryboat.

He catches it and stands in a cold wind on the front deck. His coat collar is turned up, and he thinks he is safe from cold. But his ears are wide open, and the icy draft strikes full upon the delicate membrane of the drum.

He thinks he is safe from cold in his ears as from cold in his hair. He is foolish.

We ask you to remember that after hard exercise your weakest spot is the inside of your ear.

It is a good thing to get fresh air. But if you are warm from running or from sitting in a hot office keep your hands over your ears for a few minutes. Let yourself cool off before exposing the ear passages to sudden cold.

A Funny Misunderstanding.

Dean Alford, in his "Queen's English," tells of a somewhat curious misunderstanding that resulted from the cockney aspirate.

A Scotch lad in a military school went up with a drawing of Venice which he had just finished to show it to the master. Observing that he had printed the name under it with two "n's" ("Vennice"), the master said:

"Don't you know there's only one 'hen' in Venice?"

"Only one 'hen' in Venice!" exclaimed young Sandy, with astonishment. "I'm thinking the' no hae mony eggs, then!"

THE PILOTBOAT.

From out my window I can see
The great ships sailing, proud and free,
As to and fro they grandly go.
Across the singing, trackless main,
Their forms majestic bear a chain
Whose golden links will bind in one
All lands and peoples 'neath the sun.
Far out on the wide and open sea
They bound along so fearlessly
'Twould seem that when they shoreward come
Their compass true would guide them home,
But near the land they need a hand
To lead them through the dang'rous way;
At harbor gate they lie and wait
For trusty pilot to appear
And into port their course to steer.

A little boat that seems a mote
Glides swiftly down the narrow bay.
The tiny thing on steam fleeced wing
Flies gayly out with busy speed.
It looks so wee, it seems to me,
Too weak the vessel huge to lead.
With seeming pride it hies alongside
Of the giant that looms abaft,
Whose greatness now, with shore set prow,
In meekness follows the little craft.

In the voyage of life
Mid its strain and strife
The weak may aye help the strong,
And none so great or high in state
But he may need helping along.
—Margaret May in Boston Transcript.

JUDGING CUSTOMERS.

The China Salesman Tells Why He Makes No More Mistakes.

"I don't make any more mistakes in judging customers," said the china salesman, "because I've given up judging them. I've had my lesson.

"An old gentleman came into the store one day and asked to look at dinner sets. He was one of the plain, old fashioned, frock coat, white shirt, black bow tie kind, and I sized him up as about a $30 man. I wasn't sure that he'd stand even that much, but I thought I'd risk it, and so I showed him one of the $30 sets.

"He looked it over politely for a minute or two and then said, 'Yes, that is pleasing, but it isn't—er—just what I had in mind.'

"I took him over to the $40 table then, and he examined the things in the same quiet, polite way, but I could see that they were not what he wanted. 'This is an attractive design,' he said, 'and I rather like the color of that, but—er—my thought was something a little different from either.'

"Well, that brought us to the $50 and $60 goods, and it was the same with them. They were all very pretty and very nice, and he was sorry to make me so much trouble, but would I mind showing him something a little better?

"I had made up my mind by this time that he was bluffing, that he wasn't going to buy anything anyway, so I thought I'd bluff too. I took him down the store to a set marked $250. He looked it over more carefully and didn't turn a hair when I told him the price, but said in a hesitating way, as if he was afraid of hurting my feelings: 'Perhaps you have some special sets? Something—er—a little better even than this?'

"'There is one better one,' I said, 'but it is something quite out of the ordinary and rather expensive. If you care to look at it'—

"'Yes, he thought he would look at it, if I would be so kind, and I took him up stairs and showed it to him. He took up one or two of the pieces and examined them. Then he said: 'Yes, that is good. That pleases me. What is the price?'

"'Four hundred and fifty dollars,' I told him.

"'You may send it to my house,' he said quietly and gave me his card. I knew the name at once. He was a millionaire several times over. He took out his pocketbook and counted out $450 in cash, thanked me for showing him the goods and went out.

"I think he knew how I had sized him up, but he didn't get mad when I showed him the cheap goods. He just led me along in his own way till he got what he wanted, and then he let me down as easy as he could. No, sir, I don't judge customers by their looks or their clothes any more."

Assist Nature.

You have been told to "hitch your wagon to a star"—that Nature will assist you. That's all right. There are times, however, when you should assist Nature, and the spring is one of these times.

Nature is now undertaking to cleanse your system—if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla the undertaking will be successful, and your complexion bright and clear,

THE ZEBRA'S STRIPES.

They Serve Two Purposes, to Make Him Visible and Invisible.

Firstly, the zebra is striped because it is to his interest to be conspicuous. Secondly, he is striped because it is to his interest to be invisible.

Strangely enough, not only are both these statements strictly true, but one may further say that no other kind of coloration would protect the zebra so well. During the daytime zebras usually graze in small herds among the stunted trees and bushes of the African uplands. They do not place sentinels to watch against their foes, like the wild sheep and the chamois, because usually there is no commanding spot available where a sentinel could overlook the surrounding country.

Their method consists in each member of the band keeping an eye upon the movements of his fellows as well as keeping a sharp lookout for himself. If a prowling leopard approaches the herd, one or other of the zebras is pretty sure to perceive the danger, and the others take warning by observing his start of alarm. Hence it will be seen that the more conspicuous each member of the band is the more readily do his warning movements catch the eyes of his fellows, who at once take the hint and save themselves from being eaten by a good use of their legs.

It is at night that the zebra specially desires to be invisible. Most African beasts have to travel far for water and are obliged to slake their thirst during the darkness at spots where lions and other enemies are in the habit of lying in ambush. Now it has been found that in the twilight the dark and light bands upon the zebra become indistinguishable, being blurred into a neutral tint, which blends wonderfully with that of surrounding objects.

This is so markedly the case that a hunter has stated that he has been so near a zebra in the twilight as actually to feel his breath, yet was quite unable to perceive his form. If the zebra were piebald, like a circus horse, instead of being covered with narrow stripes, he would be sufficiently conspicuous to his friends in the daytime, yet obviously such markings would not protect him at night, for the contrasted colors would still be plainly visible to his foes.

Hence we see that it is literally true that the zebra is striped, not only because he wants to be seen, but also because he does not want to be seen.—Pearson's Magazine.

A Newspaper Man Speaks.

Mr. E. C. Dean, City Editor of the Daily British Whig, Kingston, Ont., was a sufferer for thirteen years from neuralgia in the head. Hearken to his unsolicited testimony: I take much pleasure in testifying to the efficacy of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure for the treatment of neuralgia. I suffered for thirteen years with neuralgia in my head, immediately above the eyes. For one whole year before trying Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure, I was scarcely ever free from pain, and for five weeks at a stretch I was confined to my room unable to eat or sleep and during this time six physicians treated me declaring that they had given me every remedy known to the medical profession, but without affording me even temporary relief, except when they administered morphine hypodermically. A friend, Henry Wade, the well known druggist, recommended to me a trial of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. Less than half a bottle gave me relief, and after taking the contents of three bottles I am able to declare myself completely cured.

MR. E. C. DEAN.

SYMPTOMS OF

KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Backache, Sideache, Swelling of Feet and Ankles, Puffing under the Eyes, Frequent Thirst, Scanty, Cloudy, Thick and Highly Colored Urine. Frequent Urination, Burning Sensation when Urinating.

These symptoms indicate a deranged condition of the kidneys, and some of them are caused by uric acid in the blood, and unless attended to immediately may eventually cause Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Dropsy, etc., which very often result in life-long misery. Doan's Pills not only relieve but cure all the above complaints.

Here is what Mr. Young, of Harcourt, N.B., writes:

THE DOAN KIDNEY PILL CO.,
Toronto, Ont.

DEAR SIRS,—Some time ago I was greatly troubled with pains in my back, hips and legs. My water was very scanty and was the color of strong tea and very thick, containing a sediment very much like fine sand and had a very offensive odor. I am very glad to say that after I had taken one box of Doan's Pills all of the above troubles have disappeared and I am perfectly cured and feel like a different person. I might also say my brother was troubled with his kidneys and used Doan's Pills and was completely cured.

THE OLD SCHOOLHOUSE.

Why the West Side of It Lacks a Coat of Whitewash.

It was in the days when the public schools were not located on every square in New Jersey and, in fact, when almost every square embraced a few cornfields. Martin Miller was the schoolmaster, and he had ideas of his own about punishing derelicts.

His place of business was the little one story, partly whitewashed frame building which stands near the handsome city hospital buildings and which attracts the attention of the Princeton and Lawrenceville students while trolleying from Trenton to their studies, because the schoolhouse still shows that the whitewashing was never completed.

"Miller's school" was the only name the boys knew, and not until manhood dawned did any of his scholars ever care to inquire as to the frontispiece to his family name.

"Percy Williams!" shouted Schoolmaster Miller one day through his toothless gums to the present brick manufacturer, "you've missed yer g'ografy!"

"Yes, sir," said Williams meekly.

"Why?"

"Didn't know it, sir."

"You'll whitewash the north side o' this schoolhouse fer punishment. Yere's th' line an th' bucket. Thar, git to work!"

"Lou Snyder, stand up!" next said Schoolmaster Miller to the man who is now building trolley lines. "You've missed yer 'rithmatic!"

"Yes, sir."

"Why?"

"Got a mistake in the first sample. You'll whitewash the hull o' the south side o' this schoolhouse fer punishment. Thar's the bucket and brush. Thar—no back talk—git to work!"

"John Seaman, come yere," thundered Master Miller next to his then pupil, now a well known cigar manufacturer. "You knowed nothin 'bout yer spellin lessin an yer father hain't sent me them two bushels o' onions fer yer teachin fer last month. Why did you miss it, eh?"

"Thet air page's tored out o' my speller where th' lessins is!"

"You'll whitewash th' east side o' this yere schoolhouse. Thar's th' brush an th' lime an th' bucket. Git to work!"

Then Schoolmaster Miller called Cliff Bailey, the remaining scholar.

"Bailey," he shouted, "I hain't looked yer papers over today yit! What in thunderation did you miss? I know you missed somethin. You always miss, you chucklehead!"

"I missed whitewashin the west side o' the schoolhouse, I guess, Master Miller, 'cause father told me today to tell yer when yer come to school thet yer was an ass an thet I'd learn more tendin the hogs. So I'm leavin right now, an I miss the whitewashin."

Then young Bailey jumped through the barnlike door. Bailey is now an officer in the United States army, and the old schoolhouse still stands, but the west side of it has never had a coat of whitewash.

LIBEL IN ENGLAND.

Not Hard There to Give Cause For Actions at Law.

England's libel law is a terror to the defendants. A short time ago a young playwright sold a piece to a London manager and drew a small royalty each week, which was paid by check. One week when the playwright presented the check to the bank for cashing it was returned to him marked "No funds." The playwright had the check framed and hung conspicuously in his study. He took pleasure in pointing it out to visitors and making biting comments until one day the manager's lawyer called and told the young man that he was committing a serious libel on the manager, whereupon the check was taken down at once.

Over in England the railway companies, or at least one of them, put up in the station placards bearing the names of passengers who had violated rules of the road, with addresses, the nature of the offense and fines imposed. The offenders took the matter into court, and now the placards show only the words opposite the offense, "A passenger."

It frequently happens that names given to villains and ridiculous characters in fiction will duplicate in real life. A certain English novel had its scene laid on the west coast of Africa, and the villain of the book was a major in the army, supposed to be stationed there. To the novelist's dismay there appeared one day out of the unknown a real major, bearing the name of the villain of the novel, who also had been stationed on the west coast of Africa In vain the unhappy author protested in the consequent action that he had never seen or heard of the plaintiff. A verdict for the latter was given, with substantial damages.

A Birmingham lawyer held that one could libel a man effectually enough by leaving out his name. He brought an action against a local paper for persistently omitting his name from its reports of cases in which he professionally was engaged. Presumably he imagined that the loss of the advertisement he would have obtained by his name repeatedly appearing was damage enough. He was nonsuited, however.

THE INDIANS PAID.

What the White Men Charged Them For Killing One Donkey.

In "Reminiscences of Old Times In Tennessee" a story is told of the good faith and honor of a party of Chickasaw Indians. While hunting one fall they shot a donkey, mistaking the creature for a wild animal. They sold the hide, and it finally came to the hands of John Barnes in Lipton.

When the Chickasaws returned to the region of Lipton for their annual hunt the next fall, Barnes invited them to a shooting match, the prize to be the skin of a very rare animal.

Thirty braves appeared at the contest, and one of them won the prize. When he saw the skin, he turned it over and said: "Ha, ha, me kill him! Me shoot him! See!" And he pointed to the fatal bullet hole.

Then Barnes told them that they had killed a donkey, a very useful animal, but he was sure that they had done it by mistake, believing it to be a wild animal.

The Indians listened attentively to the white man's words and then consulted together a few minutes. Finally they separated, each brave going to his pony, unhitching him and leading him to the spot where a gang of white men stood, Barnes in the midst of them. Then one of the Indians spoke:

"We sorry we kill donkey. We think he belong to the woods. We find him in cane. We think him wild. We sorry; now we pay. We take no white man's boss, pony, nothing of white man. We honest. We have ponies, that's all. Take pay." And he motioned to the long line of ponies, held by their owners.

"How many?" asked Barnes.

"White man say," returned the Indian, "take plenty."

The honor of the red men was not equaled by the white men, for, be it recorded to their shame, they took from the Chickasaws 35 ponies to pay for the accidental killing of one donkey.

Your Canary.

Don't forget to give your canary the best of water and seed every day. See that he has a good fish bone. Clean his cage every day. Keep him out of the hot sun and the glare of night lights and yet let him have sunshine. Talk to him; talk to him with a kind voice. Let him out of the cage occasionally. We give crumbs of bread soaked in milk, lettuce, chickweed, a little piece of egg, sometimes a little fruit, a nut and lots of good things and let him eat or reject as he pleases.

Remember he is a prisoner in confinement, dependent on you every day for health and life, and constantly strive to make him happy. A little 10 cent looking glass will add greatly to his happiness. Take care that neither sun nor other light reflected shall dazzle him.

The Height of Clouds.

To determine the height of clouds an observer at each of two stations a mile or more apart measures the angle and altitude of some point of a cloud, the identity of which is ascertained from conversation by telephone, while synchronism in the observation is secured by the beating of electric pendulums. This is the method used at the celebrated observatories at Upsala, in Sweden.

UNIVERSAL PEACE.

With the improved arms numbers may at times be an incumbrance and individually becomes a most important factor. For this reason the war in South Africa is a more striking object lesson for peace than The Hague conference.—Baltimore American.

That permanent court of arbitration that grew out of the peace conference at The Hague is now sitting and ready for business. International disputes are to be settled in short order; diplomatic grievances adjusted while you wait. And yet it is doubtful if the court will be overrun with business.

The Happy Medium.

A clergyman relates that a worthy Irishman with an impediment in his speech brought him a child to be baptized. While making a record of it he was in some doubt as to the correct spelling of the family name given to him and asked the man how he wrote it.

"Indeed and I don't write at all," was the reply.

"I just want to know," said Father Boyle, "whether the name is 'McGrath' or 'Magrath'—whether the second part of it is spelled with a big 'G' or a little 'g.'"

After scratching his head hopelessly the puzzled parent saw his way out of the difficulty. "Well, father, just spell it wid a middlin sized 'g.'"

It Won't Roll Off.

The egg of the guillemot is one of the most peculiar and furnishes an admirable example of the way in which nature provides for the conditions of life.

This bird is found on the coast, and the eggs are usually laid on the bare edges of high rocks, from which position any ordinary specimen of the egg would probably roll off.

But the guillemot's egg won't do this. It has been fashioned by nature to stop on. The egg is nearly conical in shape, broad at the base and sharp at the point, so that it will only roll in a circle.

Magnanimous Infant.

He is the cousin of a chubby 4-year-old whose home is in New York. This little man has also been started up in the way he should go. One day he visited some relative of the name of Jones. He was not treated just as his highness considered fitting, and he resented it for a time. But when prayer time came he relented enough to frame this petition, which he tacked on to the end of the second prayer:

"Please, God, bless papa and mamma and grandpa and grandma and even the Joneses."

CRICKET.

The Colts are out with a challenge for a game with the Veterans on May 24th. Let the Veterans speak up and say whether or not they care to accept.

The secretary of the Peterborough Club has received the following communication from Secretary John E. Hall of the Canadian Cricket Association:

"At the annual meeting of the Canadian Cricket Association, held in Toronto on the 1st instant, a resolution was adopted, having for its object the renewal of the old plan of district matches wherever groups can be conveniently arranged. It was thought that a stimulus would be given to the game by adopting this method, and public interest in the game increased throughout the country. Your club is requested to give this proposition its earnest consideration and if possible its hearty support, so that it may have a fair trial. If a sufficiently large number of clubs will agree to make arrangements to carry out the above suggestion the Canadian Cricket Association will provide a trophy to be held for the year by the winning club.

"It was understood at the meeting above referred to that the majority of the clubs in Toronto would not participate in these matches, so as to give the county clubs a better chance of winning the distinction of becoming the champion club of the association series of games.

"It is proposed that each group shall appoint its own secretary, and arrange its own matches, the winning club in each group to play off for the trophy.

"The final games to be arranged by the committee of the C.C.A., and all matches played in accordance with the rules of the M. C. C."

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETICS.

At a meeting of those interested in Association football held last night in the Y.M.C.A., Messrs. Harley Goldey and Hal. Burnham were elected representatives on the Y. M. C. A. Athletic Club. From the enthusiasm shown, there is no doubt that football will boom this year. Mr. A. W. McPherson, last year's popular captain, received a letter from the Norwood team, asking the Y.M.C.A. for a game there on the 24th of May, but as there is a likelihood of the 57th holding a field day in town on that date, it was thought advisable to arrange a game here with a good outside team. While in Toronto last week he was interviewed in regard to an Association being formed in Ontario on something the same plan as the Ontario Hockey Association, and was requested to try and arrange a league in Peterborough district.

TRACK ATHLETICS.

All those interested are requested to meet at the Y.M.C.A. at 7.30 on Saturday evening to elect representatives of the above outdoor sport on the Y. M.C.A. Athletic Club. Outdoor work is going to take a very important part in the Physical Department this year.

PATTERSON WAS FOUND GUILTY.

known to our law. As to the first charge there was no evidence at all to substantiate it, and regarding the second and third charges he asked his Honour to find that the placing of the body in the trunk in the manner it was, was not an indignity, and that it was not therefore improperly interfered with.

Mr. Wood reviewed the evidence of the Crown very carefully and quoted many articles of law to prove the charges specified in the indictment. He touched on the matter of the screw which was found in the hack as being strong evidence agains the prisoner.

His Honour.

His Honour, Judge Weller, in summing up the evidence, held that the fact that a person had a dead body in his possession, unless accounted for, is evidence that he took that body from the grave, However, in this case it was admitted by the Crown that the prisoner could not have assisted in the work of robbing the grave, being in Kingston when the act was undoubtedly committed. The first charge therefore was disposed of in this way.

Regarding the second and third charges the facts appeared to be that the body was taken from the premises of the prisoner's father-in-law, by the prisoner, that they were forced into a trunk and carted away. Prisoner's counsel had said that a trunk was a better looking article in which to convey a corpse to a medical school than a rough box such as Mr. Belleghem uses, but it must be remembered that in one case the act is lawfully committed and in the other it is not. This young man knew that he was not doing what was entirely proper. It was wrong and contrary to law unless under very particular circumstances, and he would not like to think that such traffic could be carried on inside the county. It was impossible to find anything else than that the prisoner was guilty of the 2nd and 3rd charges.

Mr. Wood asked that the sentence of the court be pronounced, but Mr. Dennistoun arose and made a strong plea for mercy for his client. He reminded the court that perhaps never before in the Canadian courts had a like case been tried, and much valuable information had been brought out. He himself had great difficulty in looking up the law regarding such an offence, and is it any wonder that a medical student should be ignorant of the law. Mr. Dennistoun continuing, spoke of the prisoner having grown up in the town, and was known as a keen, sharp, clever, and in fact, brilliant student. He was in every respect a fine young man. He had committed the act unthinkingly, and had nothing whatever to do with robbing the grave. He was told that there would be a corpse at his house at a certain time. He came and got it, without knowing whose it was, and took it away. In view of this fact, would it not be well to temper justice with mercy and not blight a young life forever? How could he hold a place in society if his name could be held up as having served a term in jail? Allow him to go on suspended sentence on his own bail that if he ever should make a slip again, he could be brought up for sentence.

Mr. Wood pointed out the fact that a fine could be imposed if the court saw fit, but His Honour reserved judgment until Monday. The bail in the meantime was increased,

ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE

Sir Louis Davies Replies to Mr. Bickerdike in the Commons.

QUEBEC VS. MONTREAL AGAIN.

The Claims of These Rival Quebec Cities Made Plain by their Spokesmen—Aids to the Navigation of the River Between Them Liberally Provided—Mr. Tarte's Statement.

Ottawa, April 19.—The transportation question again occupied the attention of the House during the whole sitting yesterday. Sir Louis Davies announced that an appropriation of $400,000, asked for the improvements of the aids to navigation between Montreal and the sea, including a new light at Belle Isle, will be spent in improving existing lights, erecting new ones and providing additional buoys. Mr. Tarte justified the policy of the Government in improving the canals, and spoke of the advantage of the proposed French River and Lake Nipissing route, which, he calculated, would be some 900 miles shorter than the New York route. Mr. Fitzpatrick pointed out the disadvantages under which Montreal labored, and enumerated the natural advantages which Quebec possessed as a port which is open all the year round. After a debate, during which the whole question was thoroughly discussed, the amendment to the motion to go into supply, having served its purpose, was withdrawn, and the House adjourned at midnight.

The Transportation Debate.

Sir Louis Davies resumed the debate on the transportation question. He challenged the correctness of the statement of Mr. Bickerdike that not a dollar of public money had been spent on the harbor of Montreal. It was a fact that nearly $6,000,000 had been spent on the channel between Quebec and Montreal. Respecting the lighthouse and buoy service of the St. Lawrence and Gulf, they had been only last season added to and generally fixed up, to suit the shippers and insurance men themselves. In fact, in the past 10 years, not one wreck had occurred through the fault of the lighthouse or buoy service.

Mr. Bickerdike asked what about the loss of the Scotsman, which Mr. Dobell attributed to the lack of proper light on Belle Isle.

Sir Louis Davies answered that the loss of the Scotsman was attributable to the gross negligence of the officers of the ship. In 48 hours they had not seen the sun, yet they went on at full speed, without once throwing the lead, till the vessel crashed on the rocks.

A most disgraceful instance of neglect also was the loss of the new Allan steamer Castillian on the Nova Scotia coast. Yet these disasters, and even the loss of a steamer on the coast of Scotland, had been charged against the St. Lawrence route.

Mr. Haggart, who followed, spoke earnestly in favor of Montreal as the national summer port, and warmly advocated the Georgian Bay Canal, eliciting frequent cheers from both sides of the House. He concluded with the following sentence: "I venture to say that the day will come when up in the Gatineau region an acre of that land, which is now regarded so contemptuously, will be of more value to the people of this country than an acre of the best farming land."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—Mr. Haggart said this fact should be borne in mind now that we are starting out on our career as a nation for our young men were full of faith in the future. He himself believed in the Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal, and had looked thoroughly into the subject. The scheme was quite feasible, it was shorter by 370 miles than the present St. Lawrence route from Lake Superior to Liverpool. Since the present Government had been in power, it had spent about eighteen million dollars on capital account, chiefly on the Intercolonial Railway—useless expenditure. That money would have built the Georgian Bay Canal. The Government should, he said, fix upon one place for a summer port and another for a winter port, and by building these would make Canada the leading country on the continent.

Mr. Fitzpatrick said the debate had served two useful purposes; it showed that when the interests of Canada were concerned, members could rise above political considerations, and it had given Sir Louis Davies an opportunity to correct erroneous impressions about the St. Lawrence route. He was disposed to go a long way on the line of policy advocated by Mr. Haggart, whose speech breathed the true spirit of patriotism and was replete with genuine enlightenment. (Cheers.)

The Solicitor-General spoke strongly in favor of Quebec. He said that the tendency was towards the construction of larger vessels. There had recently been launched one of 20,000 tons.

"Could a vessel like that be got to Montreal?"

"The fact was that millions had been spent on the channel between Quebec and Montreal, while Quebec was neglected and jeered at for want of progress."

"But," said the Solicitor-General, "after having filched our purse, do not jeer at us because you find no money in it."

Mr. Fitzpatrick made a strong plea for the port of Quebec, which, he said, would soon be open to navigation at all seasons.

Mr. Maclean said Canada should develop her transportation facilities along the lines of public ownership of railways, as we already own improved waterways. To acquire the Canadian Pacific Railway, which was capitalized at 65 millions, would cost about 2½ millions a year for interest. It would be a splendid asset, a railway across the continent, touching every province and every large city in Canada, for he would advocate also the acquisition of the Booth and Ross lines. Besides, the Government, by acquiring the C.P.R., would come again into possession of the immense land grant in the Northwest, and would stop the process going on in London, as Mr. Sifton knew, if he dared to tell, namely, that the C. P. R. was keeping other interests out of Canada through jealousy. If the Government would take over the Booth line from the lakes to Quebec, and improve the Intercolonial, the country would have made a good start in solving the transportation question. He believed the Government should ascertain the probable effect upon transportation—cost of the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal. If it cheapened transportation the people of Canada would not cavil at the expense. He also urged that this country should have steel ship building establishments for the construction of both inland and ocean-going vessels, and advocated the immediate construction by the Government of a small fast Atlantic service, owned and controlled by the country. We should also be independent of the United States for everything in regard to transportation.

Mr. German of Welland thought that before commencing the Georgian Bay Canal the existing routes should be thoroughly tested.

Mr. Tarte denied that Montreal felt any jealousy towards Quebec. He could inform the Solicitor-General that the reason Montreal had not become a national harbor was because it had not been adequately equipped. He believed that we should have free canals and that Montreal should be a free port; but to have the latter the Government would have to assume the debt of the port as had been done in the case of Quebec. The canals yielded $300,000 a year and the debt of Montreal was about $4,000,000.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Kemp (Toronto), Bureau (Three Rivers), Talbot, Kendall and Murray of Pontiac.

The House adjourned shortly after midnight.

A VERDICT OF MURDER.

Arthur Noble Bioletta of Innisfail, N. W. T., Will Have to Stand Trial For His Life.

Innisfail, N. W. T., April 19.—The inquest on the body of David Karr took place here Wednesday night.

Mrs. Annie Letitia Karr, wife of Karr, said: "We lived in a house belonging to Mr. Wade. I went to bed about 10 p.m.; the baby was crying and my husband went downstairs quietly, and half-way down he stopped, and I heard a rap on the door. He asked who was there, and no answer came. He said, 'Is that you, Pete?' meaning a neighbor. There was an answer, but I did not catch it. He went to the door and opened it. I heard my brother, whose voice I knew, ask my husband what he wanted him for. I heard them talking, but could not distinguish what they said. My brother asked to see me. I did not hear what they said before that. My brother said, 'Let me see the girl.' My husband said, 'No, you can't see her.' He said then, 'Wait till I get on my clothes.' He came up and put them on, and while he was dressing I begged him to tell me what was wrong, or what was wanted, but he would not tell me. I thought he acted very strange. I asked him to let me see my brother, but he said, 'No, you cannot see him,' and said there was going to be trouble. He then went out, closing the storm and house doors. I heard them talking, and then I heard two shots fired, and directly after my brother came right in and said, 'Annie, I have killed Dave, but it was in self-defence. I could not help it.' He then said Dave had taken after him with an ax, and that there was no help for it. He said he was going away quietly, and he had to protect himself. Next morning my brother went to Mr. Wade's. He stayed in our house all night."

Mr. Donovan made the post-mortem, and testified to the cause of death. The shot through the head was fired so close that the hair on the temple was singed.

The jury, after a short deliberation, returned a verdict of wilful murder against Arthur Noble Bioletta. The preliminary hearing took place yesterday, Bioletta showed the utmost sang froid.

ON THE CANADA SIDE.

Proposed New Iron and Steel Plant at Sault Ste. Marie.

WILL GIVE 10,000 MEN WORK.

Mr. Harvey's Statement of the Arrangements Made at Detroit for a $50,000,000 Enterprise—Mr. Clergue Has Promised That All the Raw Ore Necessary Will Be Supplied.

Detroit, April 19.—The Evening News says: Final arrangements were made at noon today at the Russell House for the building of a steel and iron plant at the "Soo" which will employ ten thousand men and be capitalized at fifty million dollars. It will be one of the most extensive in America and second only to the Carnegie plant in Pennsylvania. It is a project of more magnitude than anything which has been mentioned in connection with the power canal, and if the hopes of the investors are realized it will have a marked effect on the steel and iron market of the United States and Canada. Alfred E. Harvey of Liverpool, Eng., accompanied by his secretary, J. Frank Gray of New York, arrived here Thursday. They have been very busy since then sending telegrams. The gentlemen immediately went into conference, and this afternoon Mr. Harvey said: Everything is practically settled, and there is no question about the building of the plant. The financing of the project has rested with Mr. Harvey, who has enlisted American, Canadian and English capital of the desired amount. It all rested with the ability of Mr. Clergue to secure the ore, and that gentleman reported that they could get all the raw material they wanted.

"We have the advantage of the latest patents, and much of our best machinery has been ordered, and is either building or ready for shipment in England," said Mr. Harvey. "We will have the most complete plant in the world, and from the ore which comes to us from the Lake Superior mines we will turn out castings, rails, structural and bridge iron and everything finished and ready for use. The power which we will get from the canal will make a great saving in the cost of the product, and we will also save materially in shipping the ore, as the haul by water is very short. For this we will build all of our own docks and unloading derricks and apparatus for the speedy and economical handling of the ore. To show you the cost of iron now, I need only say that pipes bringing $22 a ton we can turn out for $12. There is a proportional saving in all the work we shall do, and I have shown to the men who have advanced the money that the profits will be very great. An enormous project like this takes much time. However, we are so far advanced that part of the mill will be running inside of six months and the entire plant within the year and a half. Then we shall employ ten thousand men at least. It is our intention to have mills both in the States and Canada. By this means we receive a bonus of $7 a ton from the Canadian Government for all steel manufactured in the Dominion, and this alone will pay a dividend on the capitalization. There are few mills in Canada, nearly all the iron and steel coming from the States."

EMIGRANTS OF GOOD SORT.

Parisian and Cambroman on the Way With Settlers For Canada.

Montreal, April 20.—A Star special cable from London says:

Sir Robert Gillies' death, which occurred at Brighton on Monday, at the age of 82, is received with widespread regret among Anglo-Canadians. He was the father of the Canada Club, and the figurehead of many Canadian social and financial gatherings.

The Canadian emigration season opened properly on Thursday, with the sailing of the Parisian and Cambroman from Liverpool for Scotland. Among the Cambroman's emigrants are 65 people belonging to the Self-Help Emigration Society, under the conduct of Rev. G. Thorne. These emigrants paid an average of £5 out of £7 passage money. The youngest is three months old and the eldest 43.

MENACE FOR CHINA.

8,000 German and French Troops Occupy Mountain Pass Into Shan-Si—Russia Will Reduce Her Indemnity.

New York, April 19.—The Herald's correspondent at Pekin says:

Gen. Loessel, commanding the German troops in China, started this morning for Pao Ting Fu, with 1000 additional men. He was accompanied by the French commander, Gen. Bailloud. The Franco-German forces available for the expedition number 8000 men.

The greatest secrecy is maintained as to the object of these military preparations, but I am confirmed in the belief that it is proposed to take possession of another of the Ansoling passes into Shan Si, where Chinese troops are reported. Members of the diplomatic corps without exception are mystified, and manifest considerable apprehension at this revival of military activity.

Order to Get Out.

Pekin, Thursday, April 18.—In consequence of strong representations to the Chinese Government, an Imperial decree, dated Tuesday, April 16, has been issued, ordering the Chinese troops at Howai Lu to remove immediately outside the great wall.

France to Withdraw.

London, April 19.—A despatch from Paris says that in consequence of the Imperial decree ordering the Chinese troops to leave the territory considered under the protection of the allied forces, the Franco-German expedition has been abandoned.

France will withdraw 10,000 troops from China.

Russia Will Reduce.

London, April 19.—Some of the London papers publish a statement that Russia has offered to reduce her indemnity claim to £10,000,000, on condition that China sign the Manchurian convention and grant further concessions in connection with the Siberian railway.

Very Strong Indications.

London, April 20.—"There are very strong indications," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Morning Post, "that the Japanese Government proposes to put itself at the head of the reform movement in China in order to overthrow the Manchu dynasty, which it considers bound hand and foot by Russia."

THEIR AX OUT FOR TAMMANY.

New Party Formed to Be Called "Greater New York Democracy."

New York, April 19.—A mass meeting was held in Carnegie Hall last night to form a new political party, to be called the "Greater New York Democracy." The new party is formed to fight Tammany Hall. John C. Sheehan, E. Ellery Anderson, Peter B. Olney and Joseph P. Daly were among the many persons who signed the call for the meeting. Two thousand people were present. The following resolutions were adopted by the meeting:

Whereas Tammany Hall is responsible for existing abuses in the administration of city affairs, and its permanent overthrow is an essential pre-requisite to the success of any attempt to secure better local government, therefore,

Resolved, that this organization be and hereby is irrevocably pledged to oppose the election of any candidates at the coming municipal election nominated by the so-called Democratic city and county convention, to be held under the auspices of Tammany Hall.

Foreign Beef Excluded Now.

London, April 20.—Answering a question in the House of Commons yesterday, the Financial Secretary of the War Office, Lord Stanley, confirmed the report that all the contracts now made excluded the supplying of foreign meats in the case of all troops in the United Kingdom.

Baby Fell Into Well and Was Killed.

Burk's Falls, April 20.—On Saturday last, 13th, the 17-months-old baby of Mr. John Crozier of Horn Lake, followed her grandfather out of the house to the well, where a pail of water was drawn. The baby remained outside playing and in a short time went over to the well and looked down into it. The child slipped and fell and her head striking on the rocks on the side of the well, she was killed before she touched the water.

AMBUSHED LANCERS.

Lieutenant A. Macdonald and Three Men Were Killed.

HONORS OF THE WAR LISTED.

These Rewards Were Given for Services Before the Return of Lord Roberts—Lord Kitchener and Gen. Buller Take a Step Up—More Canadian Soldiers Arrive at Halifax.

London, April 20.—Lord Kitchener, in a despatch from Pretoria, under date of the 18th, says:

"I regret to report that a party of the Ninth Lancers have been ambushed and Lieut. A. Macdonald and three men killed and five wounded."

One Year for Libel.

Cape Town, April 19.—R. H. Malan, editor of Our Land, who had been found guilty of libel in having cast reflections upon the conduct of Gen. French and his troops, has been sentenced to one year's imprisonment.

Mrs. Botha Negotiating.

London, April 20.—The Sun yesterday, confirming the report that the peace negotiations between Lord Kitchener and the Boer generals have been renewed, suggests that something is likely to be effected during Sir Alfred Milner's absence. The paper also says the Government is divided as to who will fill Sir Alfred Milner's place. Mrs. Botha is again acting as a go-between.

Gen. Macdonald to Leave Africa.

Aliwal North, Cape Colony, April 19.—Gen. Hector Macdonald has been appointed to an important command on the Afghan frontier.

WAR HONORS.

Lord Kitchener, Gen. Buller and Other Officers Have Their Distinguished Services to the Country Recognized.

London, April 19.—The list of officers accorded promotions and honors for their services in South Africa prior to Nov. 29, 1900, when Lord Roberts gave up the command of the British forces in South Africa, fills 16 pages of The Gazette.

Lord Kitchener, Gen. Buller, Gen. Forestier-Walker and Gen. White are made Knights of the Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George.

Gen. Kitchener (brother of Lord Kitchener), Gen. Kelly-Kenny, Gen. Sir Archibald Hunter and Gen. Lyttelton are made lieutenant-generals.

Gen. Pole-Carew, Gen. French, Gen. Ian Hamilton, Gen. Charles F. Knox, Gen. Sir William Nicholson, Gen. Arthur S. Wynne, Gen. Charles W. H. Douglass, Gen. Smith-Dorrien, Gen. F. W. Kitchener, the Earl of Dundonald; Gen. Arthur Paget and Gen. Bruce Hamilton are made major-generals. Col. Robert G. Broadwood and Lieut.-Cols. Hebert, Plumer and Thomas Pilcher are among those created extra aides-de-camp to King Edward. The officers thus promoted have been holding the acting ranks to which they are now appointed.

THE WASSAU AT HALIFAX.

Brought Nearly Five Hundred Passengers Including Some Canadian Soldiers.

Halifax, April 19.—The Wassau, the last of the weekly mail steamers of the season to this port from Liverpool, arrived here this afternoon. She brought nearly 500 passengers, including the following Canadian soldiers:

Ptes. Randall L. Smith, F. Patterson, of the R.C.A.; Sgts, J. Barrett and A. Dugwell, of Strathcona's Horse, and Ptes. W. Nourey, J. Parker, H. Parker, P. Shillworth, R. M. Andrews, A. P. Linsey, of Strathcona's Horse; Ptes. C. M. O'Grady, Thomas King, A. D. Sharp and H. Greslock of the C.M.R.

In the steerage there was the most interesting-looking lot of people that has landed here this season. There were Italians, Finlanders, Australians, Irish, Americans, Englishmen Swedes, Russians, Poles, Frenchmen, Assyrians and Greeks.

Among the Royal Canadians was Pte. L. Smith of St. John, who lost both of his legs in a railway accident at De Aar in September last.

A STRIKE OF CIGARMAKERS.

Montreal Proprietors Would Not Accept the Men's Wage Scale.

Montreal, (April 19.—(Special.)—Several hundred cigarmakers went out on strike at noon to-day. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the rest will be locked out. A scale of pay submitted to the manufacturers did not prove satisfactory. Mr. P. F. Tracy, fourth vice-president of the International Cigarmakers' Union, arrived in the city yesterday to represent the International Union, which is supporting the aims of the local workers. The International Union has a membership of over 40,000. The strike followed at once upon his arrival. At noon the men, to the number of about 200, paraded the streets singing sentiments about non-union cigars.

Of the 36 cigar factories in the city, 14 are now and have been for some years paying the price list demanded, and are complying with the other conditions of the union. Some of the others have agreed to pay the price, tho it is said the majority object to different conditions in regard to the recognition of the union.

Petrel at Port Stanley.

Port Stanley, Ont., April 20. — The Government cruiser Petrel, Capt. E. Dunn, arrived here last evening, and will make her headquarters here for the season. On the cruise down Lake Erie Capt. Dunn captured 80 American gill nets and a quantity of fish, which were in Canadian waters.

Herskovitz a Free Man.

Windsor, Ont., April 20.—"I find the prisoner not guilty, and he is herewith discharged." Such was Judge Horne's decision rendered at Sandwich yesterday in the case of George W. Herskovitz of Toledo, charged with perjury in giving the age of his wife, when the marriage license was secured.

AN OPPOSITION TAKEN CAPTIVE.

(Toronto Globe.

The session of the Legislature that has just closed was somewhat distinguished by the fact that the Opposition as a whole on two or three occasions supported important Government measures, while on two votes one of the most prominent members broke temporarily from his party and voted with the Government. It is also significant that the party which when it returned from the country was described by its opponents to be hopelessly weakened, was able to muster a steady majority of ten, and a majority of twelve more than once when challenged by the Opposition leader.

The rapid change of front effected by the Opposition on the central feature of the Government's policy was one of the notable developments of the session. In the initial stages Mr. Whitney employed decidedly depreciatory language towards the Government's new Ontario policy. He was inclined to be scornful with respect to the reports of the Government's exploratory parties. Mr. Beatty, of Leeds, he said, knew more of the country in question than all the Government's explorers put together. What use Mr. Beatty's knowledge was, seeing that he neither imbued his leader with it nor imparted it to the country, is not very clear. The Premier and his colleagues could not be deprived in this way of the credit of drawing the attention of the people of the province to the value of the areas that the explorations of last summer more fully made known to us. The session had not advanced far before Mr. Whitney dropped his depreciatory tone, and when the Government brought its proposals down he ventured to challenge but one of them. He and his followers were found to be in accord with the suggested policy of building the railway to Lake Temiscaming out of public funds. They were found to be in accord with the policy of granting a land aid to the Manitoulin & North Shore Railway. They were found to be in accord with the policy of aiding a railway intended to open up the country north of Port Arthur.

The member of North Toronto went further, and voted twice with the Government when his fellow-Oppositionists had challenged the Government policy. Mr. Marter, who, it will be remembered, formerly represented Muskoka and has always had high faith in that north country, gained, no doubt, by his intimate knowledge of business life there, is largely in accord with the Government on that particular part of its programme, and, of course, does not sympathize with those whose faith in it is new-found and somewhat diluted. His views, even his colleagues confess, were pressed during the season of 1900, but, it appears, found but little support in caucus. As a member of caucus he bowed to its decisions and did not urge his opinions in the House. During the session just closed, however, he abstained from any meetings by which his liberty of action would be compromised, and steadily supported the Government in that branch of its legislation. He must have been gratified, and it was certainly a tribute to his sounder judgment, to find his friends practically confessing, by the modification of their references to the Government policy in this respect and by their support of important measures, that he was right and that formerly they were wrong.

There were other important questions, such as that of granting aid to the Provincial University, the grant in aid of the improvement of country roads and the beet sugar policy, in which the Opposition was constrained to adopt the Government view, and the Premier may fairly congratulate himself on presenting so many important measures which not only commanded almost unanimous public support, but which put his opponents in a position to find no excuse for disagreeing with him. We doubt if any previous session can show quite the same record in this respect.

CHOSE THE WISER COURSE.

Aguinaldo Addresses the Filipino People Upon His "Unhappy Fate" and Counsels Peace.

Manila, April 19.—The following is Aguinaldo's address to the Filipino people, made public this evening:

"I believe I am not in error in presuming that the unhappy fate to which my adverse fortune hastened me is not a surprise to those who have been familiar with the progress of the war. The lessons fraught with a full meaning, and which have recently come to my knowledge, suggest with irresistible force that a complete termination of hostilities and lasting peace are not only desirable, but absolutely essential to the welfare of the Philippine Islands.

"The Filipinos have never been dismayed at their weakness, nor have they faltered in following the path pointed out by their fortitude and courage. The time has come, however, in which they find their advance along this path to be impeded by an irresistible force, which, while it restrains them, yet enlightens their minds and opens to them another course, presenting them the cause of peace. This cause has been joyfully embraced by the majority of my fellow countrymen, who have already united around the glorious sovereign banner of the United States. In this banner they repose their trust, and believe that under its protection the Filipino people will attain all those promised liberties which they are beginning to enjoy. The country has declared unmistakably in favor of peace. So be it. There has been enough blood, enough tears and enough desolation. This wish cannot be ignored by the men still in arms if they are animated by a desire to serve our noble people, which has thus clearly manifested its will. So do I respect this will, now that it is known to me.

"After mature deliberation, I resolutely proclaim to the world that I cannot refuse to heed the voice of a people longing for peace, nor the lamentations of thousands of families yearning to see their dear ones enjoying the liberty and the promised generosity of the great American nation.

"By acknowledging and accepting the sovereignty of the United States thruout the Philippine archipelago, as I now do, and without any reservation whatsoever, I believe that I am serving thee, my beloved country. May happiness be thine."

To signalize this important step in the pacification of the country, Gen. MacArthur orders the release on swearing allegiance to the United States of 1080 insurgent prisoners.

DOES NOT DISAPPOINT.

The New Discovery for Catarrh Seems to Possess Remarkable Merit.

A new catarrh cure has recently appeared which so far as tested has been remarkably successful in curing all forms of catarrh, whether in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, or in stomach and liver.

The remedy is in tablet form, pleasant and convenient to take and no special secrecy is maintained as to what it contains, the tablet being a scientific combination of Guaiacol, Encalyptol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar valuable and harmless antiseptics.

This safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Whether the catarrh is located in the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and trachea from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, coughing, hawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer.

Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration in some cases to such an extent as to destroy the nose entirely, and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. Nasal catarrh gradually extends to the throat and bronchial tubes, and very often to the stomach, causing that very obstinate trouble, catarrh of the stomach.

Catarrh is a systematic poison, inherent in the blood, and local washes, douches, salves, inhalers and sprays can have no effect on the real cause of the disease. An internal remedy which acts upon the blood is the only rational treatment, and Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the safest of all internal remedies, as well as the most convenient and satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

Dr. Eaton recently stated that he had successfully used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in old chronic cases, even where ulceration had extended so far as to destroy the septum of the nose. He says: "I am pleasantly surprised almost every day by the excellent results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. It is remarkable how effectually they remove the excessive secretion and bring about a healthy condition of the mucous membranes of the nose, throat and stomach."

All druggists sell complete treatment of the Tablets at 50 cents, and and a little book giving the symptoms and causes of the various forms of cattarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart & Co., Marshall, Mich.

NIPISSING ELECTION CASE.

Mr. Northrup Proposes an Investigation by Elections Committee.

Ottawa, April 19.—(Special.)—Mr. Northrup has a motion before the House in connection with the Nipissing election case, where the returning officer, after communicating with R. W. Scott, Secretary of State, put off the date of the election and got a new writ. After setting forth the details of the case Mr. Northrup moves that the question of the validity of the election writ of Nov. 10, 1900, and the conduct of the returning officer, be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, and that the clerk of the Crown in Chancery be ordered to attend the committee with all writs and documents relating to the said election.

Scrofula

Is a disease as old as antiquity, and as young as the newest born infant.

It has infested the blood of humanity from ancient times down to the present minute.

It is hereditary or may be acquired.

It appears in swollen glands, scrofulous sores, hip disease, boils, pimples, eruptions, and, as believed by high authorities, even in the forms of catarrh and rheumatism.

It can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and persistently.

We know this, because Hood's Sarsaparilla has done it.

It will cure you if you give it a trial. You should begin to take it today.

Hip Disease—"I suffered from hip disease; had 5 running sores; used crutches and each winter I was confined to my bed for weeks at a time. Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished a perfect cure—saved my life. I have a good appetite and feel strong and well." ANNIE ROBERT, 49 Fourth St., Fall River, Mass.

In Her Eyes—"My little girl had scrofula and sores appeared in her eyes. A few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla entirely cured her and she has never had scrofula since." MRS. HOWARD POPE, Alpha, Oregon.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock at the Cattle Market was again large, 79 carloads all told, composed of 1207 cattle, 1500 hogs, 100 sheep and 25 calves. This makes a total of 259 carloads of stock for the present week, of all kinds, of which there were about 4500 cattle and 5500 hogs. The total run for the same week last year was 165 carloads, which shows an increase of 94 loads in favor of this year's receipts.

While there was a fair trade for the best classes of shipping and butchers' cattle at about the same prices as on Tuesday and Thursday, the market was not nearly as brisk. And the poorer qualities in both classes were easier. Considering the heavy deliveries of the week, the wonder is that the market kept as steady as it did.

The Croup.

It's a terrible thing, isn't it? Somehow, that awful cough, that hard struggle for air, can never be forgotten. Be a little forehanded and prevent it. Keep Vapo-Cresolene in the house, and when the children take cold let them breathe-in the vapor during the evening. It goes right to the throat, just where the croup lies. All irritation subsides, the cough quiets down and serious trouble is prevented. It never fails to cure whooping cough. 12

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

THE CANADA MILITIA

Has Many Friends to Speak For It in House of Commons.

A SPEECH BY COL. THOMPSON.

Better Pay of the Men Advocated as a Necessity—More Comforts for the Men at the Camps—The Proposed Musketry School—Relatives of Men Killed in War.

Ottawa, April 20. — The House spent the day yesterday in supply, making good progress with militia, mounted police and miscellaneous estimates.

On the motion to go into supply, Lieut.-Col. Thompson, member for Haldimand and Monk, advocated an increase in the pay of the militia, declaring that 50 cents a day was entirely inadequate. The result, he contended, was that men of inferior physique joined the militia force. He said that, for instance, the regimental chaplain was the only man who drew not a cent of pay, yet he had to supply his own mess and uniform. Col. Thompson considered this a disgrace to Canada. In the course of a lengthy speech the member for Haldimand and Monk dwelt upon the needs of the militia, and the scant manner in which the volunteers were treated by the Government. He advocated a rifle manufactory for Canada, and paid a tribute to both the army and medical corps and the engineering corps, which were to be established in connection with Toronto and McGill Universities.

Then the House went into committee of supply, and Dr. Borden, on the item of $389,609 for pay and allowances, explained the provisions for a Royal Canadian Musketry School, which would be established at Ottawa, having a commandant and two sergeant instructors. There would be three teams per year, exercising for two months each. At other times the commandant would go through the Dominion and inspect the musketry of all the regiments and rifle clubs. The classes would consist of 30 officers, and the commanding officer would have to certify that each officer was thoroughly acquainted with the mechanism of the Lee-Metford rifle. Accommodation for the classes would be provided at Rockliffe ranges, and a lecture room as well as office and sleeping accommodation for 20 men would be furnished. The allowance to each officer would be $1 per day.

Lieut.-Col. Prior criticized this project, contending that such a scientific institution was unnecessary, and that a better method would be to give the militia men increased incentives to perfect their rifle practice.

Mr. Fowler impressed on the Minister the advisability of doing away with the necessity of recruits providing themselves with plumes and feathers. He claimed that less expense should be attached to the conditions under which commissions are accepted. His plea was for the poor man who would often make a good officer. These views were endorsed by Mr. Prior, who suggested a uniform like that served out to the Strathcona Horse.

Temporary schools in all military districts were advocated by Mr. Kaulbach.

Mr. Borden (Halifax) asked the Government to announce its intention in regard to cases of men killed in South Africa, who leave relatives that were dependent upon them.

The Minister of Militia said that relief would be granted from three sources: Imperial pension, payments from the Patriotic Fund, which will be divided equitably in deserving cases, and from the Dominion Government, who would make liberal provision for such cases.

Mr. Clarke advocated an increase of pay to the first contingent to make it equal that of the second contingent.

The Minister of Militia stated that this change could not be made under the law. After July 1 an army medical service corps would be organized in each military camp.

A proposal was made to open canteens in militia camps, and this called from Mr. Gourley and others vigorous protests. Hon. Dr. Borden refused to entertain the proposal.

The Minister of Militia promised to consider the proposal to increase the pay of the men in proportion to the number of years service.

A number of appeals were made for an increase of pay to the first contingent.

Private bills were considered after dinner, and the Crow's Nest Railway Company bill went through committee.

After several items had passed, miscellaneous and mounted police estimates were taken up.

The House adjourned at 11.15.

A Prominent Canadian Dead.

New York, April 19.—Richard Pennefather Rothwell is dead at his home in this city. He was a mining engineer and journalist of distinction. He was born in Ingersoll, Ont., in 1837. His education was gained at private schools, Trinity College, Toronto, the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, from which he graduated in 1858, at the Imperial School of Mines at Paris, and at the Mining Academy at Freiberg, Saxony. For the Hazard Manufacturing Company he designed and built what is still probably the largest wire rope plant in the world. He made many notable inventions.

Help For The Suffering and Crippled.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

A Positive Cure For Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

THE UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY OF A PROMINENT NOVA SCOTIA GENTLEMAN.

No Other Remedy so Generally Prescribed by Eminent Practitioners as Paine's Celery Compound

Heaven help the thousands of victims crippled and suffering from rheumatism or tortured by the terrible agonies of neuralgia to lay hold of Paine's Celery Compound, the only remedy that can bring relief and speedy cure.

To those who long for release from the diseases mentioned above, we can give the strong and honest assurance that Paine's Celery Compound has succeeded again and again when other medicines failed, and when even the best medical skill could not check the ravages of pain and disease.

Carefully kept records show that Paine's Celery Compound has made complete and permanent cures in ninety-five per cent. of the cases of rheumatism and neuralgia where it has been used.

Mr. R. G. Irwin, Registrar of Probate and Registrar of Deeds, Shelburne, N.S., writes as follows:

"Having been largely benefitted by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, I gladly and voluntarily add my testimony to its value.

"During six months of the year, 1898, I was disabled and crippled with rheumatism in my right leg, hip and shoulder. Getting up and down stairs was a very painful and tardy exercise, and for months I could do but little more than drag my leg. Paine's Celery Compound was recommended to me, and I used six bottles, and am now clear of the pain. I firmly believe that the above medicine cured me of rheumatism."

KITCHENER REPORTS.

Plumer Occupies Bathfont and Has Captured Prisoners and Ammunition.

London, April 19.—A despatch from General Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Wednesday, April 17, says:

"Plumer has occupied Bathfont, capturing 18 prisoners and a number of rifles and ammunition.

"Douglas' column has occupied Dullstroom. Six Boers were killed.

"On General Kitchener's advance from Lydenburg the Boers blew up a "Long Tom." Thirteen prisoners were captured.

"Elliott's division has brought in a large number of cattle."

She Won't Give Up.

"Which sex is the more persistent, Mr. Smithers?"

"I thought every one knew that. Thirty years ago, when we married, my wife and I started in to make each other over. I gave up the job at the end of five weeks, and my wife is working at it yet."—Exchange.

Your Footing for Spring

Fine Weather and its Shoe Possibilities.

We're done with Winter—six months, and enough. Spring and summer are now before us. This opens the possibility of shedding our heavy garments and footwear that have done us good service, and donning something lighter and easier. It's these climatic facts and their application that makes us keep two stocks of Shoes, that we may suit the needs of customers for the two seasons.

Just now we are putting before you Summer Shoes. The heavier goods are sent aloft—not so far up that they cannot be reached if needed, but crowded out by their timely successors. So now for summer.

Here's a few seasonable lines—and the prices tell their cost, the cost well represents good value.

THE NEW TAXES.

Coal Owners Greatly Agitated at the Changes—The Export Business at Cardiff Now at a Standstill.

London, April 19.—Taken as a whole, the comments of the country on the proposals of the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the budget statement presented yesterday cannot be regarded as unfavorable. The outstanding feature of the public's reception of the budget is the outcry from the coal districts, and in a lesser degree from the businesses affected by the sugar taxes. In coal taxes the export duty is regarded as confirming the idea in some radical quarters that the Government is riding for a fall, but the well informed consider it possible that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will be induced to exempt from the new duty all contracts made prior to to-day, thus relieving the pressure on the middle-men who have bought or sold coal for future delivery. This, it is believed, will go far to reconcile the coal trade generally to the new imposition.

In the meantime, however, the opposition of the coal owners is augmenting hourly. The Chambers of Commerce in the coal districts are protesting in vigorous terms. The Cardiff exporters scent ruin and their markets being captured by American and German coal. The manufacturers, on the other hand, flatter themselves that the effect of the tax will be to lower prices and lessen competition in iron and steel.

The export coal business at Cardiff docks was at a standstill to-day. Merchants refused to ship and take the responsibility of the new tax, while the colliery owners repudiate any liability.

The grocers advanced sugar a halfpenny per pound this morning in London. British refined sugars were very strong and jumped two shillings to two shillings and sixpence.

The president of the Refiners' Association expresses the opinion that the tax will work out beneficially.

Cobdenites Will Fight It.

London, April 19.—A committee of the Cobden Club met to-night and resolved to open agitation against the sugar and coal taxes.

Replying to a deputation of members of the House of Commons representing the coal interests to-night, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach consented to an arrangement enabling the coal exporters to execute contracts, pending a decision as to what amount of the duties would be refunded.

Mud as a Life Saver.

In London it was noticed that when the streets were muddy there was a marked diminution of diseases that were prevalent when dust is blowing. Catarrhal troubles are plentiful when people are compelled to inhale dust. Consumption, too, often gets its start from the breathing of flying particles of filth. Add sufficient water to transform the dust into mud, and the power for harm is gone, for mud is not inhaled. The germs that infest dry dust become inert in mud, because these germs, vicious as they are, are too lazy to go anywhere unless they are carried. Moreover, mud is very likely to get ultimately into the drain pipe, and the germs are carried off where they can do no harm. Even when mud dries on the clothing and is brushed off the dust that arises therefrom does not appear to be as dangerous as that which has not been recently wet.

The Seam in the Towel.

"Talk against the seamy side of things!" said the girl in the bedraggled blue hat to the girl in the shabby black satin skirt on the elevated yesterday. "I don't know what we typewriters would do without the seamy side of an office roller towel. It's the one spot likely to be clean at the end of a hard day's handwashing. I admit that there are more satisfying things to wipe one's hands on than seams, but I'd rather have a clean seam than a soiled no seam any day. To use the seam, too, is almost like having a private individual towel all of your own. Everybody save the initiated few avoids the seam of a towel."

"Straight Front."

Low bust, long waist, cut away hips — that is fashion's latest corset decree.

The "N.C. TAILOR-KUT" corset with the straight front is a genuine straight front corset.

It gives a graceful curve to the back and hips; it supports, but does not press the abdomen. Correct in every line. See that it is branded:

Bronchitis

Powley's Liquified Ozone Cured Thos. Bawden, Berlin, of this Trouble.

"BERLIN, ONT.

"THE OZONE CO., Limited:

Dear Sirs,—It gives me great pleasure to give you my testimonial of the really great merits of Ozone. Our little boy two months old had bronchitis very bad. I met your agent and he gave me a bottle to try on him, and before he had finished it, we perceived a great benefit and in three days he was cured. In the same week our little two-year-old girl took the measles. She recovered in a speedy and most satisfactory manner. I consider your medicine a Godsend, for I have never seen anything like it, and I am using it now myself with the best results, and though I have spent $5.00 on inhalers and catarrh remedies, yet I have never met with the same results as I have with the two bottles of Ozone I have used. (Sgd.) Thos. Bawden, Berlin, formerly 355 Berkley St., Toronto."

Throat trouble, colds and bronchitis are prevalent disorders this time of the year. In themselves they amount to very little—maybe a passing discomfort. It's the after effects that are alarming. We have given testimonials where patients have been cured of the after effects—lung trouble and consumption—by Powley's Liquified Ozone, the condensed oxygen treatment. This case shows its effect on the other or milder types. The best thing you can do is to get a bottle and use it as a preventive.

It only costs a dollar, and it's surer than medicine a good deal. Ozone is Life.

50c and $1.00, at all drug stores. Write the Ozone Co. of Toronto, Limited, 48 Colborne St., Toronto.

All Saints' Church.

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Part of the Easter music will be repeated in the evening. Rev. W. L. Armitage will officiate at both services.

Mark Street Church.

At Mark Street Church, Ashburnham, to-morrow morning the service will be of a missionary character and will be conducted by Mrs. Kendry and Mrs. (Rev.) Campbell. There will be an Easter offering.

Inspecting Bridges.

The Warden and County Engineer Belcher have been spending the greater part of the week inspecting the Chemong, Pigeon Creek and other county bridges. The Town and County Joint Committee inspected the Hunter street and Locks bridges yesterday.

The Story of Naaman.

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy, who has just returned from a successful revival campaign, will speak at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday at 4.15 p.m. His subject will be the Story of Naaman. All men are cordially invited.

St. Luke's Easter Concert.

The Annual Easter Concert under the auspices of the Girl's Chapter of the Guild will be held in the town hall, Ashburnham, on Tuesday, 23rd of April next. Admission 15 cents. An excellent and entertaining programme is being arranged for. See daily papers and programme for further particulars. 4d90

Artistic Photography.

One reason why you should patronize G. E. Whiten, the photographer. Our lighting is of that character which bespeaks artistic results. There is no feature in photography of more importance. Its proper employment gives natural and pleasing pictures, while its misuse will render the most beautiful face unattractive. Sign of the golden camera.

Talk to Boys.

Mr. E. Elcome gave another of his interesting Gospel talks to boys at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. His subject was, "The Reptiles of the Bible," and it was illustrated by several natural history subjects. Mr. Elcome has been asked to prepare a series of nature studies of the Bible for boys' camp up the lakes next summer and he has kindly consented.

Stony Lake Cottagers.

The annual meeting of the Stony Lake Cottagers Association will be held on Thursday, the 25th inst., at 8 p. m., in the Board Room of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Co. The annual reports will be presented and officers elected for the coming season, and arrangements made for the regatta, concerts, excursions, etc. It is important that every cottager should be present and help to revive the sports of the lakes. 2t

Price of Timber.

Bobcaygeon Independent.—There is a decided difference in the price of pine logs to-day, and say thirty years ago. Mr. Chas. Austin delivered eleven pine logs on the river bank this winter and was paid by the Rathbun Co. $49.40 for the lot. It was about eleven dollars a thousand. Thirty-five years ago Mr. Stevenson lumbered on what is now Mr. J. L. Read's farm, and drew the logs with a yoke of oxen on a truck he made himself, with solid wooden wheels. He delivered those logs, fine large clear cork pine at the old mill on the canal, at 60 cents a standard, or $2.40 a thousand.

The ladies of St. Andrew's will give a high tea on Tuesday, May 7, on the occasion of their anniversary. Keep it in in mind and tell your friends. Tickets 25 cents.

AT THE KERMESS.

Last Night's Performance was Almost as Well Attended as That of Thursday Evening.

The Opera House contained another large audience last night when the Kermess, that took so well on the preceding evening was repeated with a few changes and with the addition of the Minuet and several specialties. The performance throughout was quite up to the first night's entertainment, and the Senior Girl's Guild of All Saints, under whose auspices the affair was given, are deserving of the thanks of the public for their grand efforts.

The Minuet which was put on by the little folk as well as by the young ladies and gentlemen was quite pretty and produced much applause. A feature of the evening was the vocal selections by Miss Nellie Bertram of Toronto. Miss Bertram possesses a strong rich voice, and last night was compelled to respond to repeated encores. The Pepper Twins repented their sand and clog dancing specialties, and also created a favourable impression with their vocal duets. The Highland Fling was danced to perfection by Miss Alberta Gooding, who was the recipient of numerous boquets throughout the evening for her generally cute performance, and little Miss Jessie Spence, the brilliant juvenile artist, also made a great hit with a sweet little song and her dancing of the Highland Fling.

The entertainment concluded with a cake walk by the youngsters. The prizes were carried off by Miss Alberta Gooding and Miss Jessie Spence, and Master Gordon Campbell and Miss Dorothy Aylmer.

Miss Kate Hurley assisted materially at both entertainments as an accompanist, performing in her usually clever manner.

NAVIGATION NOTES.

The Steamer North Ster Reached the Locks Last Night.

Navigation opened on the Otonabee River and Rice Lake waters yesterday, when the steamer North Star made the first trip of the season from Harwood to Peterborough, bringing up a scow load of hogs from the George Matthews Company, Limited. She arrived at the locks last night. However, Capt. Harris was unable to reach town, as the G.T.R. railway bridge, for some reason or other, was not opened for the season, and the Star was compelled to tie up just below the locks. Capt. Harris this morning paid a visit to the T.V.C. office in order to ascertain wherein the difficulty lay.

The Star will commence her regular Saturday trips to Peterborough next week, and will take the place of the Beaver until about the middle of May, as it will be about that time before the Beaver is through with the repairs she is now undergoing, The Star will be touched up a little herself. She will have the same crew as last year. Capt. Wilbert Harris at the wheel, with Mr. Jim Tobin as mate and Mr. Geo. Johnston, engineer.

Work on the new steamship "Alert" owned by Messrs. Whyte & Grylls, is going on rapidly at Lakefield. She will be ready to launch by May 15th, and ready for regular trips by June 15th.

The steamer Empress made her first trip of the season on Monday, going as far as Young's Point. Captain Reynolds reports that the ice is not yet out of Clear Lake.

The steamer Sunbeam made her first trip on Thursday, towing a scow load of wood to Young's Point for the Lakefield Cement Company.

14th FIELD BATTERY.

Two Guns Will be Stored in Peterborough—Lieut. Bradburn in Command.

It will be good news to the military people of Peterborough to know that through the efforts of Lieut. E. O. Bradburn and Lieut. W. C. Ackerman, two guns of the Durham Field Battery will be stored in Peterborough. They will be brought out from Port Hope next week, and placed in the drill shed through the kindness of Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards.

Peterborough is now the headquarters for two out of the three sections of the Durham Field Battery, with a strength of about 50 men and horses. The men will commence drill in the course of a few weeks.

HARRY RUTHERFORD DYING.

He is Too Weak to Stand Having His Arm Amputated.

Mr. Harry Rutherford, of Otonabee, lies dying in the Nicholls Hospital, as a result of the injuries recently received through having his arm caught in the machinery connected with the driving power of a grain chopper, which he was operating on the farm of Mr. John Lancashire.

When the arm was caught and drawn into the machinery it clogged the wheels to such an extent as to bring three teams of horses to a standstill. The pain must have been something excruciating, yet young Rutherford was the one man of the crowd who kept his head, and while the others were sick and fainting, shouted to the horses to quiet them, and then issued directions as to the quickest manner in which to remove the shafting and liberate the arm, thereby showing himself to be possessed of great presence of mind, as well as the strongest kind of nerve.

When freed from the machinery he was driven direct to the Nicholls Hospital, where great efforts were made to save the arm by flesh grafting, but as the flesh and sinews had been stripped from the bone in places, this plan had to be abandoned and amputation was decided upon a day or so ago. The patient however, unexpectedly developed heart weakness rendering an operation out of the question, and he is battling desperately but hopelessly for life, as the arm is beginning to mortify.

[LATER.—Word was received this afternoon that Mr. Rutherford had yielded up his life shortly before dinner. His death will come as a great shock to his hosts of friends. The deceased was the youngest son of Mr. William Rutherford of Zion, and was only 27 years of age.

The funeral will take place on Monday at two o'clock, from the family residence, Zion, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

MIDNIGHT VANDALISM.

A Valuable Sign Board Torn Down and Badly Damaged.

The large sign board placed in one of the panels on the south wall of J. D. Tully's drug store, was torn down last night by some midnight vandals, and found this morning on the pavement in a badly damaged condition.

The sign was a valuable one and was 10 x 12 feet in size. It was owned by the Northrop & Lyman Company, and Mr. Tully offers $10.00 reward for any information which will lead to the detection and conviction of the perpetrator of the act.

MISS HILL'S LECTURE.

It Was Well Attended in St. Paul's Last Evening.

The school room of St. Paul's church was comfortably filled last evening with an audience which followed Miss Hill through a pleasing trip amongst the Royal abodes in England, which was made doubly interesting by reason of the personal reminiscences with which the narrative was enlivened, and the illustrations which were thrown on a canvas by Mr. R. M. Roy.

The lecture was given under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Paul's, and the chair during the evening was occupied by Sheriff Hall. Previous to the address being given, Mme. Decrey delighted the audience with a charmingly played piano solo.

RATHBUN AGENCY SOLD.

Was Established Here About Eighteen Years Ago—Local Men Buy.

It is stated to-day that the Rathbun Company, of Deseronto, have disposed of their Peterborough agency to two local men, and that the transfer of the business will take place about the first of next month. Mr. Clark Allan, the local manager, and Mr. Tobias Fredenburg, foreman of the yard, have been asked to report at the head office of the company. The Rathbun Company have conducted an agency in Peterborough for about eighteen years.

CEREAL COMPANY NOTES.

Permanent Appointments on the Staff Being Made.

On Monday men will begin work testing the depth at which rock can be found on which to lay the foundations for the elevators and mills of the Company.

Mr. Geo. A. Cox, Jr., who for some years has been residing in Texas, but who has been visiting in town for the last few months has been notified of his appointment to a position on the office staff, and will move his family to town at once.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum will supervise the purchasing department. He has sold out his mills and other interests in Paris.

The directorate of the Cereal Company are evidently firm believers in advertising, as each package of Quaker Oats which is sold has had half a cent spent in advertising it.

Engineer Keefer took a cold bath yesterday morning through the breakage of a board on which he was standing and which overhung the river.

PERSONAL.

Miss May Needham, of Millbrook, is visiting friends in town.

Miss Ethel Walton has returned home after spending the winter in Toronto.

Miss Nellie Bertram, Toronto, will sing at to-morrow morning's services in St. Andrew's.

Miss Bertram will sing the solo "Seek ye the Lord," by Roberts, at St. Pauls church to-morrow evening.

Mr. E. G. Flood, General Manager of the Dominion Trading Stamp Co., was in town on business yesterday.

Rev. W. J. Kelly was in Montreal last week. The reverend gentleman had a pleasant visit with Mr. Wm. Stephens, Lord Mountstephens' brother.

Mr. J. B. Oke leaves New York on Wednesday, 24th next, by the White Star Line, for Glasgow, to resume his duties. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Oke.

Yesterday despatches contained news of the death of Mr. R. P. Rockwell, Editor-in-chief of the Engineering and Mining Journal of New York. Mr. Rockwell had many friends in this district, having been interested in local mining. He was head of the syndicate which purchased the old Gatling and Tuttle Mines.

The Merchant of Venice.

The reserved seat plan for the Merchant of Venice is rapidly filling up at Lynch's drug store and indications point to a crowded house on Thursday evening, 25th April. The young people have been rehearsing regularly of late, and will be assisted that evening by the Philharmonic Orchestra of Mr. Gliddon, Miss Lottie Bell, violiniste, and Mr. A. F. Saunders, baritone. Tickets, 25c.; reserved seats, 35c. 1d

MARRIED IN TORONTO.

Wedding of Mr. Fred J. Cocks and Miss Essie Wright.

Mr. John J. Cocks has just returned from Toronto, where he was attending the wedding of his brother, Mr. Fred J. Cocks, who was united in marriage to Miss Essie Wright, of Penetanguishene.

The ceremony took place on Wednesday and was performed in the Bloor st. Presbyterian church, the bride being assisted by her sister, Miss Ida Wright, and the groom by his brother Mr. J. J. Cocks.

A large number of very handsome gifts were received including a great many from the groom's Peterborough friends, as well as from his relatives in the Old Country.

Mr. Cocks' many friends in Peterborough will join in extending congratulations, and wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

ST. JOHN'S W. A.

Two very interesting meetings were held by the St. John's Woman's Auxiliary in the guild room this week. One, the monthly meeting, when the recently elected officers presided; the other, when the bale was packed to be sent to the Indian hospital at Lytton, B.C. A most interesting account of the financial side of the work done during the past year is the following condensed statement taken from the audited report of the treasurer,—

Receipts for the year	$453 91
This amount expended as follows:—
Diocesan Missions	$249 98
Zenanas in India	50 00
Mission in Temiscamingue	18 00
Blackfoot Home	12 00
Japan Mission	10 00
Chinese in B.C., and other foreign work	10 25
Northwest Mission	8 25
Algoma	4 00
Education of Missionaries children's fund	5 00
Total	$367 46

On the bale for Lytton Hospital, B.C., and general expenses, $79.95, has been spent, leaving a balance of $6.50.

DISTRIBUTION OF SEEDS.

Mr. Wm. Collins has received the following letter from Prof. Shuttleworth:—

Wm. Collins, Esq., Secretary West Peterborough Farmers' Institute, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—Your list of names of farmers received; also your letter to Hon. John Dryden has been forwarded. Accept my thanks for this list. I should take pains to place this seed with your most successful men, consistent with proper distribution. It will probably be within ten days that we will be able to begin distribution, at which time I may have the opportunity of talking the matter over with you.

Yours very truly,

A. O. SHUTTLEWORTH.

"P. D." CORSET DEMONSTRATION.

Miss Helen M. Lyman of New York City, will be in daily attendance at the Golden Lion from April 15th to 20th for the purpose of exemplifying perfect corset fitting. There is no other corset that begins to compare with the "P.D.," in style, comfort and fit at the price. 5d87

ROBERT FAIR & CO.

COUNTY WEDDINGS.

STUBBS—NUGENT.

The residence of Mrs. Stubbs, Lakefield, was the scene of a very happy event on Wednesday evening, April 17th, when her eldest daughter, Lena was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Nugent, of Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. McCamus, in the presence of about sixty guests. The bride, handsomely attired in white organdie, and carrying a bouquet of white roses and carnations, appeared leaning on the arm of her brother, as the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Myrtal Hendren, were heard. She was assisted by Miss Ethel Nugent, gowned in a dainty dress of white organdie over blue, who carried a bouquet of carnations and cream roses. Mr. W. F. Stubbs ably assisted the groom, while little Miss Lottie Nugent, prettily dressed in white organdie over pink, made a charming maid of honour. The esteem in which the bride was held was shown by the number of handsome and costly presents which she received. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful gold watch and chain, and to the bridesmaid an elegant gold bracelet.

WILSON—DRAIN.

One of the quietest and prettiest weddings took place in Norwood on Tuesday evening, April 16, when Miss Ammie Florence, eldest daughter of Mrs. J. Wilson, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Wellington Drain of Dummer by Rev. J. F. Somerville, assisted by Rev. A. W. Torrie.

The bride entered leaning on the arm of her brother, Arthur Wilson. She was attired in pearl gray albretioss cloth with white silk trimmings, and applique and baby ribbon, and carried a shower bouquet of roses.

After the ceremony was performed the party proceeded to the dining hall, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of.

The presents were numerous showing the esteem in which the couple were held.

IN OMEMEE.

A large number of the friends of Mrs. Jeffrey Dinsdale, assembled at her residence in Omemee on the evening of Friday last to congratulate her on her recent marriage to Mr. Dinsdale, one of the most prosperous and popular residents of Lang. About fifty were present and had a most delightful evening's entertainment. A bountiful supper was served by the hostess. Mrs. Dinsdale was a resident of Omemee for over forty years, twenty-six of which she has devoted to nursing the sick of the community, and many times patients have recovered through her faithful attendance, when hope had been almost given up by friends. She will be greatly missed, having used her ability and means in comforting those in distress. Mrs. Dinsdale was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents as an evidence of the high esteem in which she is held by a host of friends.

"Red Bird" Headquarters.

The famous "Red Bird" bicycle will have its headquarters in Peterborough this year with Mr. J. W. Young, who has leased the commodious premises centrally situated at No. 144 Hunter street, next to McDonald's drug store. Mr. Young knows the wheel business from the ground up, and stakes his reputation on the "Red Bird" first, last and all the time. Mr. Young will keep fully equipped with the new 20th century "Red Birds," built for ladies, gentlemen and youths. Full lines of bicycle supplies and repairs always on deck. Repair shop and livery in connection. Wheels rented by the day or week. Everybody welcome to inspect and criticize the new 1901 mounts. dtf

A PROGRESSIVE PROGRAMME.

Hon. J. R. Stratton Interviewed in Hamilton.

WHAT HE TOLD THE "TIMES."

The Work of the Legislature During the Past Session—The Policies of the Two Parties Compared.

(From the Hamilton "Times.")

Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, arrived in Hamilton yesterday on private business. He was seen by a representative of the Times, and in answer to a request for information, said that the session of the Ontario Legislature which came to a close on Monday, had been a very successful one, and that much useful and progressive legislation had been enacted, while some questions that had given rise to considerable controversy and feelings have been satisfactorily grappled with.

The session just closed was the second held under the leadership of Hon. G. W. Ross, and the policy and course that he and his new Government had pursued seemed to meet with the hearty and general approval of the people of the Province, who had expected practical results from the progressive programme of administration outlined by Mr. Ross on assuming the leadership, and who had not been disappointed.

A Promise Kept.

Speaking at Whitby in the fall of 1899, Hon. Mr. Ross outlined a programme of action to which his government would be committed. This included an active campaign of development of the resources of New Ontario; investigation as to the extent of these resources; improvement of transportation facilities, both rail and highway; the promotion of mining industries; the encouragement and advancement of educational interests—giving education a more practical trend; helping the farmer to better markets by cold storage; procuring the home manufacture of pulpwoods; placing our splendid financial position upon an indisputable basis, etc. In the short space of less than two years this policy has been almost literally carried out, with the result of imparting an immense stimulus to private and corporate enterprise, involving very large employment of capital and labor and profitable industrial and commercial activity, and at the same time vindicating the foresight of Hon. Premier Ross, and strengthening public confidence in his administrative ability.

Opening New Territory.

Mr. Stratton went on to say that throughout the Province of Ontario a great stimulus to development had been given in connection with the construction of the Algoma Central Railroad, which had been aided in the session of 1900 by the Ross Government. Millions of money had been expended already and millions more would be called for before the works contemplated in connection with this great enterprise were completed. Not only had this work had great results in developing the resources of a hitherto unbroken wilderness, but older Ontario had incidentally been benefited. Last year a million dollars was sent into Ontario for various forms of supplies, and that amount for this purpose would be doubled this year. The Manitoulin & North Shore Railway, which had been aided this session by a land grant, was a complement to, and practically a continuation of, the Algoma Central scheme of development. The line would run from Meaford, in Grey county, through Owen Sound and Wiarton, and thence across Manitoulin Island into Algoma, and northward and westward, connecting easterly with the nickle deposits of Sudbury district. This line would, Mr. Stratton said, open up millions of acres of mineral, timber and agricultural lands heretofore unproductive, bringing them into direct connection with the industrial and commercial centres of older Ontario. It is expected that work will be begun at once, and carried on with the extraordinary energy that has marked the work on the Algoma Central.

A Government Work.

The Government's proposition to build a railway from Sudbury to the Temiscamingue district meets with popular approval, and is somewhat of a new departure, and may be operated when constructed by the Government, or leased on proper terms and restrictions so as to protect the best interests of the Province. The construction of this railway will open up a splendid agricultural region for settlement, and secure to Ontario the trade that rightly belongs to this province, which now only partially finds its way by existing lines of transportation.

A Glance Ahead.

"Then," continued Mr. Stratton, "the impetus given to the manufacture of pulp and paper in Ontario by the concession granted the Sault Ste. Marie Pulp & Paper Company, has been followed by other concessions, and instantly stimulated other industries. At Sturgeon Falls there would have been greater development had it not been for unfortunate litigation. Contracts have been let by the Spanish River Company for machinery amounting to three-quarters of a million, most of which will be manufactured in Ontario, and the concession granted this last session to the Keewatin Pulp Company involves an initial expenditure of one and a half million of dollars.

Aiding the University.

"Then, during the session the university question was satisfactorily grappled with. In addition to the increased grant given to the Toronto University, the Government proposes to erect a new building for the School of Practical Science at a cost of about $200,000, and has assisted the School of Mining at Kingston with a grant of $100,000. This will help young Canadians to better equip themselves with scientific knowledge, which is necessitated by the increased demand for special training to carry on the increased mineral development of our country.

A Popular Measure.

The Good Roads Bill of Premier Ross is popular. By this a million dollars is devoted to the improvement of the Provincial highways. While railway transportation is not overlooked by the Government, it is realized that to the farmer of the Province the improvement of highways is a vital matter, to the mass of whom good macadam roads are of as much importance as railways, and more in a sense, for without good roads many of the advantages of railway facilities would not be enjoyed. The action of the Ross Government in setting apart $225,000 for the encouragement of the Sugar Beet Industry will be to the farmer's interest, and will, it is hoped, furnish a good market for a new crop, and the indications are that before long, within perhaps a year, Ontario will be consuming sugar manufactured in this Province.

The Policies Contrasted.

"Altogether the session has been an important one, and distinctly progressive in its character, one to strengthen the Government in popular favour, while the hesitating and destructive policy of Mr. Whitney as contrasted with the constructive policy of the Government has not even commended itself to some of its followers, Mr. Marter, the former leader of the Opposition, breaking away from the present Opposition leader and party and supporting the development policy of the the Government. Perhaps no better indication of what must be the popular attitude towards Mr. Whitney's retrograde policy can be afforded than the action of the most prominent member of his political following, in breaking the political affiliations of years to support a policy of development he believes to be in the interests of the country."

Government not Worrying.

When asked as to when the election would take place, Mr. Stratton said that it was expected that there would be another session of the Legislature, and added that the Government were not worrying as to the result of the next Provincial election. There was no question as to how it would result.

"Premier Ross," Mr. Stratton concluded, "is a great leader, and has the unbounded confidence of the people of the Province and his policy leaves no doubt as to where the young men and the progressive men are standing."

NEW BICYCLE AGENCY

Which has been Opened by Mr. F. W Vanderwater.

Mr. F. W. Vanderwater has opened out a bicycle wareroom and general repair shop at 339 George street, just opposite the opera house, Mr. Vanderwater is well known to the people of Peterborough, having for several years been in charge of the bicycle department of Messrs. J. W. T. Fairweather & Co., and later that of Mr. Thos. Barrie, where he gained a thorough knowledge of the construction of the best grades of wheels. He is therefore well able to manage successfully a establishment such as he has just opened. Mr. Vanderwater has his store neatly dressed, and has in stock a full supply of Crescent, E. & D., Tribune, 20th Century, Columbia and Scotsman wheels. Bicycle sundries and a general repair shop form a leading feature of the establishment.

As a side line Mr. Vanderwater carries a stock of the very latest sheet music, and has made arrangements to be supplied with the very latest publications, immediately upon their being issued. His many friends will wish him success in his enterprise.

STARTLED THE CAMP

A PRANK THAT ENLIVENED A SNOW BOUND MINING TOWN.

The Resurrection of a Supposed Dead Lawyer Was a Mutual Surprise to the Community and to the Victim of the Tricksters.

"Life in a mining camp when it is snow bound," said a prominent mining man of Chicago the other day, "is a dreary time, and men will do anything for the sake of a little amusement. The story I am going to tell you actually did occur, and at that time we all welcomed the joke as a godsend and made a hero of its perpetrator.

"The winter of 1893 rested an appallingly heavy hand on the Cœur d'Alene. Buried many feet deep under a mass of fleecy snow, the country lay prostrate. So intense was the cold and so heavy the weight of the snow that it was possible to work none but the richest claims. Ingress to and egress from that bountifully rich territory was a feat that none but the hardiest man dared essay, for it was an even chance that death from exposure might be the lot of the one who attempted it.

"Wallace at this time was a thriving, busy, prosperous town where the artificial excitement of a mining boom everywhere betrayed itself. The shutting down of many of the mines had left a large number of men living in Wallace with nothing to do. Time hung heavily on their hands, and nothing was of too small importance to attract interest provided it held out the hope of killing a few hours of the dreary time of waiting.

"Just at this period the most prominent young lawyer of the town fell ill. There wasn't anything particular the matter with him except a heavy cold and impending fever; but, being somewhat of a hypochondriac, he at once believed himself to be in a dangerous condition. He promptly took himself to his bed in the rear of his office, denied himself to all but two or three of his intimate friends, installed a nurse to look after his wants and promptly gave himself over to that luxury of believing himself to be really ill which is so dear to the hypochondriac's heart.

"The three men who were his friends and who were admitted to his apartment took advantage of the conditions surrounding him to perpetrate a practical joke that has since become famous in the northwest. They gave out the news that the lawyer, one Jack Greene, had died, and as his mourning friends they received the camp, which called in a body to express its regret.

"In the meantime Greene, in the next room, heard nothing, the visitors being naturally quiet in the presence of death. One of his friends went to the local undertaker and, informing him that Jack was dead, purchased a coffin. Alleging the hard winter and consequent hard times, he beat the undertaker down one-half in his price. The undertaker, however, got even by supplying a plain pine box painted a deep black. This was placed in Jack's office, and in the dead of night lumber carefully weighted to the weight of Greene's body was packed inside it by the three conspirators. The lid was then screwed down, and the following day John Greene, followed by the entire population of the town of Wallace, Ida., was laid away in the cold, cold ground.

"About ten days later Jack, having entirely recovered his pristine health, appeared upon the street. To say that his advent created a sensation is to put it mildly. Three or four superstitious miners, thinking it was his 'ha'nt,' straightway took to their cabins on the hillside and to prayer and fasting. The only woman in the camp had a fit of hysterics and fainted dead away. Greene, however, stopped the general panic that his appearance was precipitating by stepping into the Crystal Palace saloon and there absorbing his four fingers of 'red eye' in a perfectly natural and earthlike manner.

"It was hard to tell whether the town of Wallace or Jack Greene was the more astonished by the explanations that there ensued. At length, when those present had become convinced beyond cavil or doubt that it was Greene in the flesh and not Greene in the spirit—although by this time it must be confessed that spirit in great plenty was in Greene—they sent for the three conspirators.

"'What did you do it for?' was the question addressed in blunt and simple terms to the ringleader.

"'Well, I'll tell you. You see we wanted to run Jack for a town office and we thought in this way we could get a line on how he stood with the community. But'—and here he slapped a wad of newspaper clippings down on the bar in front of the astonished and aggrieved Greene, 'Jack, you won't do. Just read those obituaries and see what the people think of you. Why, after such a send off as that we wouldn't dare to run you for the office of picking fleas off a yellow dog that was locked up on the town farm.'"

BATTLES OF NATURE.

Unceasing Struggles Which End in Survival of Fittest.

We read the tablets of long ago which the geologist has deciphered for us, and we find them an endless story of battles. The successful species which occupy the great geological horizons have come out of great tribulation. The trilobites and stone lilies of the silurian period, the gigantic club moss and fluted sigillarians of the coal age, the enormous ammonites of the jurassic and chalk epochs, the mighty elephants and majestic deer forms of the tertiary era are magnates of the times and masterpieces of the struggle. They have been redeemed at great price, even of a thousand species and tens of thousands of individuals who fell short of the typical fitness and were killed out. These magnates, each in its turn, were pioneers of progress, like the scouts of a great army and were caught in a physiological ambush.

The pedigree of the horse in the most recent past has been made out, traced shall we say, for a hundred thousand years before man came on the scene (for Lord Kelvin asked the geologist to hurry up and not be too lavish with time or we should have said 250,000 years before man). The fleetness, grace and strength of the horse are owing to his ability to walk on one toe, to which have been correlated the wonderful instincts by which he has become the partner of man in his industries and struggles. He has been derived in almost a strict gradation from the two toed, three toed, four toed and five toed ancestors which flourished in the ages which preceded man. Myriads of individuals and all the species and varieties died out to make room for the one toed selection to enable this favorite to occupy the ground unthwarted by crossing or by recurrence to average forms. He was redeemed at a great price and has come through a great tribulation.

Permanently Cured.

AFTER SEVEN YEARS OF GREAT SUFFERING.

Mr. Hamilton Waters, of Ridgeville, Tells of His Relief from Neuralgia, Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble Through the Agency of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

For years Mr. Hamilton Waters, the well-known cattle buyer of Ridgeville, Ont., was an acute sufferer from neuralgia, which was later complicated with rheumatism and stomach trouble. But now, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, he is enjoying the best of health. Speaking of his illness and subsequent cure, Mr. Waters said:—"For seven years I suffered great agony from neuralgia, the pains were of a darting, excruciating nature, and for days at a time would be so great that I feared I would lose my reason. To increase my misery, I was attacked with rheumatism, and this was closely followed by stomach trouble. My joints and limbs became swollen and I was almost helpless. I suffered from nausea and a decided loathing for food. I became very thin, and was constantly troubled with cold sweats. At different times I was treated by three physicians without receiving anything in the way of permanent benefit. I grew despondent and began to think that I would always be a sufferer, when one day my druggist advised me to try Dr. William's Pink Pills. He said that within his knowledge there was not a case where the pills had been used but what benefit had followed, and he added: "That is saying a lot in their favour, for I have sold over five thousand boxes, and have not had a complaint from anyone." Following his advice, I procured a supply of the pills, and after a few weeks I could note an improvement in my condition. By the time I had taken eight boxes of the pills the neuralgia and rheumatism had entirely disappeared, and my stomach was once more in a healthy condition. My appetite improved, and I gained in weight and strength daily. It is now over two years since I discontinued the use of the pills, and all that time I have enjoyed the best of health and haven't felt an ache or pain, so that I think that I am safe in saying that my cure is permanent. In fact, eight boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills accomplished what three doctors had failed to do, and I feel I am justified in warmly recommending them to others."

A very high medical authority has said that neuralgia is a cry of the nerves for better blood. Rheumatism is also recognized as a disease of the blood, and it is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are above all things a blood-making and blood-enriching medicine, that they so speedily cure those troubles. But you must get the genuine, with the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People printed on the wrapper around the box. If in doubt, send direct to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be sent postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

H. W. Chisholm, who died recently at the age of 93, was the father of the English civil service. He was appointed in 1824 by Lord Grenville to a junior clerkship in the bill department of the exchequer, in which his father was senior clerk before him. The office hours in Mr. Chisholm's early days were 11 to 2, a bright outlook compared with the 10 to 5 through which the civil servant has now to suffer ennui. Mr. Chisholm retired in 1877, after 53 years of service. He was the father of Hugh Chisholm, for some time editor of The St. James Gazette and well known in London journalism.

An interesting story is told of Queen Alexandra which is typical of the woman. Some one at Osborne addressed her as "your majesty" the day after Queen Victoria passed away. "There cannot be two queens," she remarked, adding that she wished to be called "her royal highness" until after the funeral of Queen Victoria.

The officer threw open the door and called out loudly to the justice:

"Shudge! Two shentlemans und a lawyer vants to speak mit you."

The three gentlemen laughed.

"Vor vhat you laff, eh?"

"Don't you count me a gentleman?" asked the lawyer.

"Ach, you're a lawyer only; dat's different."

A Crownless Coronation.

A coronation without a crown sounds distinctly Irish, yet such was in effect the ceremony in which Henry III took the most prominent part at Gloucester on Oct. 28, 1216. On this occasion a plain circle was used instead of a crown, which had been lost with the jewels and other baggage of King John in passing the marshes of Lynn or the Wash near Wisbeach.—London Telegraph.

"Newspaper English."

It is sweet to hear Professor Lounsbury, the head of the English department at Yale, saying a word in behalf of what some of his more pedantic brethren are pleased to call newspaper English. It is Professor Lounsbury's opinion that while newspaper writing is subject to conditions which tend to impair its excellence, inasmuch as little or no time can be allowed for examination or revision, it is generally marked by greater perspicuity and energy of expression than more labored literary work, and those who write it are as a class far superior to those who set out to be their critics and censors.

Pimples

THEIR CAUSE AND CURE

When the skin breaks out in boils, pimples, and eruptive sores it is due entirely to an impure condition of the blood. In all such cases BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS should be used as soon as possible. If your blood is out of order, you require B.B.B. to neutralize the poisons and build up the system. B.B.B. has stood the test of time, and is unquestionably the most marvelous remedy for purifying the blood in existence to-day.

HERE IS PROOF:

Feb. 19, 1900.
MRS. JAS. MACKMULLEN, Norwich, Ont., writes: "I was terribly troubled with pimples on my face, and was advised to try B.B.B. After using it the pimples disappeared and I can highly recommend it as a blood purifier."

May 30, 1900.
IDA LANGHILL, Brule Shore, N.S.: "My face was covered with pimples, and I was so weak I could not walk across the floor. I tried two doctors but found little or no relief, but after using BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS I was completely cured, and have not been sick a day since. I can say from my heart that B.B.B. has done me good."

Jan. 28, 1900.
HERBERT J. DUDLEY, Ludlow, N.B.: "I was troubled with pimples on my face, and after using B.B.B. they disappeared, and I am completely cured."

CHOOSING A CAPTAIN.

A Curious Custom of Japanese Fishermen In Hawaii.

Where several years ago the fishing for the supplying of the Honolulu market was done almost exclusively by the natives in their canoes and a few Chinamen now the bulk of the work is done by the Japanese, who are at it in great numbers.

The boats which they use are built here after patterns used in Japan, and once in awhile an oriental steamer arriving from the west brings an imported fishing boat, which the fishermen think is superior to those of local manufacture. The boats are of a peculiar shape and are of different sizes, some able to accommodate but three men, which is an ordinary crew, and others are large enough for seven or eight men.

Notwithstanding the frail appearance of the boats they are strongly constructed and good sea boats and as a usual thing are fast sailers.

On Punchbowl street, in Kakaako, a great many of the boats are built, and the launching of one of the larger kind is always an event of a great deal of interest to an onlooker and of great importance to the men who are to operate the boat. When the boat is completed, the owners and builders and their friends decorate her with Japanese flags, lanterns and flowers. Then they take her to the water, into which she glides amid a great shouting and halloing by the crowd.

Up to the time that the vessel is launched there is no captain selected for the boat. The choosing of this important factor in every case is left until the boat is in the water. It is known who the members of the crew are, and from them the captain is selected. A knowledge of seafaring is not apparently necessary for a man to be a captain of a Japanese fishing boat, as the following will show:

When the boat is in the water and moored securely, the members of the crew, who are generally the owners of the boat, strip themselves and get into the boat. Then the fun of making the selection of the commander begins. There is no voting or drawing of lots to settle the matter. At a given signal from one of the crowd on shore, who are watching, the men in the boat begin with all their might to try to throw each other out into the water. Each man is against the other, and so the struggle, as a usual thing, lasts a long time and is remarkably exciting. All the time the play goes on the friends of the contestants yell words of cheer to the struggling men in the boat and throw buckets of water on them and into the boat, seemingly with the idea of making the battleground more slippery as well as refreshing to the men at work. As soon as a man is thrown out of the boat he must stay out, but may assist with water if he so desires. The man who stays in the boat longest, or, rather, who is able to put all the others out of the boat, has by his prowess shown himself competent to be captain, and so he is greeted with much applause and showered with congratulations at the termination of the scuffle. There is no appeal from the selection so made, and the man so chosen continues to be captain until he voluntarily retires or sells out his share in the boat.

The novel way of getting a skipper seems very satisfactory to the fishermen, and it certainly affords a great deal of amusement to strangers who happen to be about during the selection of a commander.

LAID UP.

A STRONG MAN ON HIS BACK THROUGH KIDNEY TROUBLE.

A Toronto Carpenter who was Never Without pain for years and who had Many Times to Quit Work—Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Him Well.

Toronto, Ont., April 17.—(Special.)—At No. 86, Lippincott street, in this city, resides Mr. W. J. Keane. Mr. Keane is a contractor, and is one of the best known men in his line of business in Toronto.

Like many other successful men, Mr. Keane has suffered during his busy life a great deal from Kidney Disorders. For years he suffered great pain. He was forced at times to quit his work altogether and go to bed. He used Dodd's Kidney Pills and is well. This is what he says about it:

"It gives me great pleasure to write in praise of Dodd's Kidney Pills and the good they have done me. I am never without them.

"I have been a great sufferer with pains in my back in the region of my kidneys. I was very sick and at times could not attend to my work at all.

"I used several medcines but nothing I ever tried seemed to help me in the least, until a friend of mine advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I immediately found relief and was able to do my work.

"I used altogether seven boxes before being completely cured. Since then I have never been sick a day. I have never had the slightest indication of a return of the trouble."

It is hard to understand how anyone will continue to suffer from Lame Back or any other symptom of Kidney Trouble after so many frank and full statements by men well known in all walks of life, that Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured them.

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure. They never fail. They cannot fail. Years of trial have absolutely proven that there is no case of Kidney Complaint, Lame Back, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, Neuralgia, Bladder or Urinary Troubles Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only medicine that ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy.

Thousands of Canadians have tried, and proved, and testified.

Have You Talent?

"One good way, I think, to judge whether we have a talent for anything or not is to watch the motive that draws us toward doing a thing," writes Helen Watterson Moody in The Ladies' Home Journal. "If we do it because it is the fashion, or because other girls are doing it, or because we have to do it for some useful purpose, it is not probable that we have a real talent for it. But if we find ourselves doing it just because we really love it and would rather do it than not, if it is doing the thing itself that attracts us and not the eclat it is going to give us in the eyes of others—why then I think we may reasonably conclude that God has given us a real talent for that particular sort of thing."

Wu Ting Fang should understand that Chinamen must not criticise Americans as Americans criticise Chinamen.—Philadelphia Ledger.

For a diplomat Minister Wu certainly does talk about as rapidly and say as much without getting into serious trouble as any man now on the international pay rolls.

Having duly apologized to General Otis and everybody else concerned, Minister Wu should sit down somewhere and try to realize that the best Chinaman nowadays is a quiet one.

MARK TWAIN.

Mark Twain seems to be trying to take a fall out of the theory that a humorist can't be a statesman.—Atlanta Journal.

Mark Twain as a comic force is rapidly being replaced by Mark Twain as a serious critic of national affairs.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Mark Twain, according to the New York Post, has stood before kings. In that case he must have held four aces.—Boston Transcript.

He Was It.

Augustus Hare told an amusing story of one of his charming peripatetic lectures in Rome. He had convoyed his little flock, which included at least one live prince, through the palace of the Cæsars and had gathered them near the Forum, when he observed a mysterious stranger who had attached himself to the party "looking more and more angry every minute." At length this interloper could stand Mr. Hare no longer. He burst forth in denunciations. "All that this person has been telling you," he informed the party in a loud voice, "about the palace of the Cæsars he has had the effrontery to relate to you as if it were his own. You will be astonished, gentlemen and ladies, to hear that it is taken word for word—word for word, without the slightest acknowledgment—from Mr. Hare's 'Walks In Rome.'" "All I said," says Mr. Hare, "was: 'Oh, I am so much obliged to you. I did not know there was anybody in the world who would defend my interests so kindly. I am Augustus Hare.'" It was a magnificent moment.

Cinders In the Eye.

Persons traveling by railway are subject to continued annoyance from the flying cinders. On getting into the eyes, they are not only painful for the moment, but are often the cause of long suffering that ends in a total loss of sight. A very simple and effective cure is within the reach of every one and would prevent much suffering and expense were it generally known. It is simply one or two grains of flaxseed. These may be placed in the eye without injury or pain to that delicate organ, and shortly they begin to swell and dissolve a glutinous substance that covers the ball of the eye, enveloping any foreign substance that may be in it. The irritation of cutting the membrane is thus prevented, and the annoyance may soon be washed out. A dozen of these grains stowed away in the vest pocket may prove in an emergency worth their number in gold.

Beecher Luck.

One day in a town where he was to lecture Rev. Henry Ward Beecher went into a barber shop to be shaved. The barber, not knowing him, asked him if he was going to hear Beecher lecture.

"I guess so," was the reply.

"Well," continued the barber, "if you haven't got a ticket you can't get one. They're all sold, and you'll have to stand."

"That's just my luck," said Mr. Beecher. "I always did have to stand when ever I've heard that man talk."—Ladies Home Journal.

Subscribed, of Course.

"I suppose you subscribe to the doctrine that honesty is the best policy?"

"I suppose so," answered Senator Sorghum. "Everybody that starts anything tries to get me on the list. I subscribe to a whole lot of things, but I don't pay any attention to them."

Tommy Knew.

Teacher—Thomas, what are "parts of speech?"

Tommy Tucker (after an exhaustive mental effort)—It's the way a man talks when he stutters.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lisbon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew wore daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha, said I had Consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles." Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by Jas. Lynch. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

THE WRITERS.

Max O'Rell, true to the inevitable French bias, is writing a book on "The Eternal Feminine."

The life of William Black, the novelist, is to be written by one of his oldest friends, Sir Wemyss-Reid.

"Joaquin Miller, fruit farmer," is the way the San Francisco directory lists the famous poet of the Sierras.

George Egerton, who, owing to illness, has not brought out anything for two years, is at work on a novel to be entitled "Rosa Amorosa."

Edwin A. Abbey, whom the London Athenæum club has honored with membership, is a Philadelphian. The finest product of his brush is "The Quest of the Holy Grail," in the Boston Public library.

Winston Churchill, the author of "Richard Carvel," is, with Mrs. Churchill, making his home in Cambridge, Mass., this winter. Mrs. Churchill is one of Boston's most promising amateur artists and a member of the Arts and Crafts society of that city.

THE JEWEL CASKET.

The long handle is now the grand vogue for mother of pearl and gold opera glasses.

Bracelets in odd and original variations of the curb chain pattern have turquoises set in the large open links.

Shades now achieved in gold are so many and various as to outrun description. A remarkable instance noted is a buckle in gold of a dull orange tint, and this is adorned with a large yellow topaz.

Among the "new art" novelties is the use of jasper in brooches of Egyptian design. A center stone of dull red jasper, which is about identical in color with the rust of iron, is engraved as a scarab and set in dull gold.

A handsome attachment for the chatelaine is an arrangement almost in the shape of an English walnut, which opens midway and discloses in one half a pair of folding scissors and in the other a thimble and other trifles.—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

"Better out than in" that humor that you notice. To be sure it's out, and all out, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Sir Henry Irving's Hint.

During Sir Henry Irving's recent performance of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Theater Royal, Belfast, much annoyance was caused to frequenters of the stalls and circles by ladies who did not remove their hats, with the result that the management at last decided to give the fair ones a gentle hint. Prior to the commencement of the first act a curtain was displayed on which was painted in large letters the following: "Madam, will you kindly take off your hat, as I am sitting immediately behind you and cannot see the stage?" The hint was sufficient, for all hats and bonnets disappeared.—Pall Mall Gazette.

MANY CONVERTS TO FAITH HEALING

Members of English Aristocracy Christian Scientists.

GETS CLOSE TO THE THRONE.

Rapid Progress in London—Lady-in-Waiting to Queen one of Mrs. Eddy's Disciples.

(Mail and Empire.)

London, April 17—Christian Science, like the majority of American importations, is winning its way in Great Britain in the face of fierce local hostility. Its adherents number lords and ladies, and a number of commoners, including several dignitaries close to the throne.

Within four years from the time that Mrs. Eddy's disciples began to hold organized meetings, the London cult has increased in popularity until the commodious church in the fashionable precincts of Hyde Park is now found to be too small to accommodate the proselytes from Anglicanism and the nonconformist faiths of the Kingdom.

Radiating from the flourishing mother church of the metropolis, vigourous branches have been established at such points as Edinburgh, Dublin, Manchester, Cambridge and Leamington.

In communities were no organized congregations exist Mrs. Eddy's missionaries labour, through the medium of meetings at private houses and public lectures in town halls. Her lieutenants predict that another decade will witness in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales such a landslide to Christian Science as that to which the depleted rolls of established churches in the United States have borne witness in recent years.

The Earl of Dunmore and the Earl of Tankerville are aristocratic pillars of the Eddy church. Mrs. Henry Montague Buller, wife of the Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, is another distinguished patroness. She and Mrs. Charless Smith, the wife of the headmaster of the Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, are waging an active propaganda among the cultured population of the university. Mrs. Eddy's English believers entertain mild hopes of interesting Royalty in Christian Science. They assert that Queen Victoria was a regul reader of Science and Health. and that one of her maids in waiting was a Scientist. One of the maids in waiting to the present Queen is also a recruit.

Mr. Miller, a prominent adherent of the new faith, in London, said last night that practising healers are at work all over the United Kingdom, and their success in a number of notable instances has done much to stop the howl which large sections of the press are ever ready to indulge in. Under instructions from Mrs. Eddy, one of her loyal students came to London in 1800 to reveal her discovery. This student remained here about a year, effecting some excellent healing.

Mr. Miller continued:—"In 1804 meeting began to be held regularly in private residences, and in 1806 they were transferred to a public hall. Owing to growing requirements of the work, the church we now occupy in Bryanston street, near Marble Arch, was leased and within ten months our progress warranted the purchase of the building, which, together with improvements since made, represent an investment of $30,000, all of which has been paid. Wa are looking for still larger quarters. We are conscious of the great popular interest in our cause, because, while our active London membership does not exceed three hundred, our congregations frequently are five times that number. In the year 1900 Christian Science literature circulated represented a sale of £1,500 ($7,500)."

MRS. JAMSS LITTLE DEAD.

A Well-known Lady Expires after a Brief Illness.

The many friends in town of Mr. James Little, photographer, formerly of Peterborough, will regret to hear of the death of his wife yesterday in Belleville. An exchange from which place speaks as follows of the sad event:

"General regret was expressed this morning when it became known that Mrs. James Little, residing on George street, had died. She had been ill but a few days having on Sunday last attended divine service.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss Jessie Jack, was the second daughter of the late Mr. Henry Jack, and was born in this city. For some years she was engaged as a school teacher, in which profession she was successful. Previous to her marriage she was head teacher at No. 2 school and upon retirement was the recipient of a handsome present from the Board of Education,

Mrs. Little is survived by her husband but no family. Two brothers, Henry and Dr. John Jack, of Chicago, and three sisters, Mrs. Dr. Fenwick, of Kingston; Miss Martha and Miss Ida, at home, are left to mourn the demise of a devoted wife and loving sister. Deceased was a member of the John St. Presbyterian church."

A Scientific Product That Millions are Thankful For.

Malt Breakfast Food

Strengthening, Energizing and Healthful.

As far as food product is concerned, the best authorities assert that Malt Breakfast Food is the only grain breakfast food that contains all the necessary elements in the proportion needed for perfect nutrition. A few words suffice to explain what the world's best "health food" really is. Malt Breakfast Food combines the health-giving properties of pure MALT with the strength-yielding virtues of the choicest WHEAT.

Millions in Canada and the United States use Malt Breakfast Food instead of oatmeal porridge, because it is more favorable to digestive vigor; it is richer and more delicious; it is more satisfying and healthful and quite as economical to use in a large family as the cheapest oatmeal. All Grocers delight to recommend Malt Breakfast Food

WON'T GIVE THEM AN ARMORY.

St. Catharines People Think the Government Is Now "Getting Even."

St. Catharines, April 20.—Capt. J. T. Groves, quartermaster of the 19th Regiment (St. Catharines), has resigned as a protest against the Government's want of action in providing an armory for that corps. There are three branches of the militia stationed in St. Catharines, the 19th, 7th Field Battery and 2nd Dragoons, and the officers find it impossible to maintain a proper standard of efficiency owing to the fact that the drilling has to be done in the open air. The old ramshackle drill shed was blown down by the cyclone three years ago, and the Government promised an armory. Last fall the contract was let at $57,000, and the work begun, but on Nov. 7 something happened in Lincoln that hurt the feelings of the Government and "Wullie" Gibson. On that evening a good Tory member of the regiment, in the exuberance of his joy, exploded a fire-cracker from the window of the temporary regimental shelter, and the "incident" was reported to Ottawa. The late M. P. gets the credit for saying he would get even with the "Tory Nineteenth." At any rate, the contractor was ordered to stop the work, and the amount was not re-voted in the estimates. It is almost impossible to get recruits, and other officers are expected to quit in disgust.

YOU CANNOT CURE PILES

By Internal Remedies.

The only sure way to cure every form of piles is to use a remedy like the Pyramid Pile Cure, which is applied directly to the parts affected and its wonderful healing effects are apparent from the first application, because the medicinal properties are rapidly absorbed by tissues and sensitive membranes of the rectum, and the cure is made speedily and almost before the patient is aware of it every trace of piles has left him.

This is one of the reasons why the Pyramid Pile Cure has been so uniformly successful. It is applied directly just where it is needed and where it will do the most good—not by the roundabout way of the stomach, nor by the harsh, barbarous methods of various surgical operations and so-called systems.

Direct applications to the seat of disease is the only rational way, and this is fully accomplished by the Pyramid Pile Cure.

If the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried this remedy is worth anything, then no sufferer has any excuse for longer delaying in giving it a fair trial, knowing that when you do so The Pyramid Pile cure will have made one more friend, the best possible advertisement we can have. The chief advantages of the remedy are: It cures without pain, the cure is lasting, it contains no poison, and lastly, it is the cheapest and quickest cure yet found. Your druggist can tell you what it has done for others.

Testimonials of cures from all parts of the United States will be sent on application to the Pyramid Drug Co., of Marshall, Mich.

SERIOUS FIRE AT MAGOG, QUE.

The Town Hall and the Fire Station Were Burned.

Magog, Que., April 20.—About 3 o'clock yesterday morning the alarm of fire awoke the inhabitants of Magog. The Town Hall was in flames. The fire had made such headway that none of the fire appliances could be got out of the fire station, which is in the Town Hall. The fire quickly spread, and in a few moments the boot and shoe store of N. Normandin was in flames. The fire spread rapidly eastward, burning The Courier building, Dr. Bieque's house and E. E. Gauvin & Co.'s hardware store. By this time assistance arrived from Sherbrooke, and stayed the flames on the east. On the west of the Town Hall only one building was burned. Dr. Goyette's barn. The tremendous efforts of the citizens prevented the fire from spreading west. At 7 o'clock the fire was well under control. Buildings burned:

Town Hall and fire station and fire appliances and fire station barn, warehouse; Currier's store and barn; E. E. Gauvin & Co.'s hardware store and warehouse; Charles Renaud's harness shop; Dr. Bieque's house; Dr. Goyette's barn. Dr. Chalmer's house, occupied by Dr. West, was badly damaged; no casualties.

Col. Leys' Resignation.

London, Ont., April 20.—Col. F. B. Leys, M.P.P., states that he has mailed to Premier Ross his resignation as member for this constituency, on account of the action taken by the Government regarding the issuing of licenses for net fishing in the Thames, especially in reference to that part of the river below Cashmere Dam. The Colonel claims that he had secured a considerable reduction in the number of these licenses, but that afterwards a number of new ones had been issued by the Government.

Collateral.

On a recent early morning trip of the Hyde Park night owl car a party of colored people took seats with becoming gravity and dignity. Evidently they had been participants in what had seemed an important event, and the occasion was soon revealed to the occupants of the car. They had been to a wedding. Various features were being discussed, when one matron broke in with:

"I'se dunno, but dar's sumfin awful 'sterious 'bout dis heah mahiage. Di'n you see how de preacher done fold up dat 'stificate and put it in his pocket? Never did dat w'en you an me was done m'ah'ed, did 'e, honey?"

"Huh, de preacher he don do dat dis ebenin cause dey stood 'im off," said her honey.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

STRICKEN BY STORM.

Around Pittsburg, Pa., Rain Fell Incessantly For 60 Hours.

SOME RESULTS OF THE STORM.

Thousands of People Are in Distress, Discomfort Reigns Everywhere, and the Railways and the Big Manufacturing Plants Have Suffered Appalling Losses—Rivers on a Rampage.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 22.—One of the most widespread and disastrous floods has inundated all the lowlands in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern Virginia. Streams both great and small have passed the flood line and are still rising. Pittsburg is in the centre of the storm-stricken district, and the effects of the flood are probably worst in its immediate vicinity. Rain has been falling incessantly in and for many miles around Pittsburg for 60 hours, and all precipitation records are broken. West and north of Pittsburg heavy falls of wet snow are reported. Up the Alleghany Valley reports come of two feet of snow on the level at many places. This had the effect of breaking down telegraph wires and crippling railroad service. Mails are either delayed for hours or not arriving at all. Railroad officials cannot estimate the cost of repairs, but say it will be heavier than ever before in the history of railroads running into Pittsburg. Tracks are torn up, bridges weakened and telegraph wires and poles down in all directions. Six landslides have occurred on the Pan Handle between this city and Steubenville.

Saturday night thousands of people were lying in the upper rooms of their water-soaked houses, without heat, light or food. Where gas fuel is used, the pipes are flooded and cut off, and what coal there may be is under five or ten feet of water.

Schoenville is the home of the Pressed Steel Car Company. The town is comparatively surrounded by water. The workers and their families constitute a community of several thousand people. If the flood does not quickly subside the company store will be unable to meet the demand for food of a multitude after food.

The big manufacturing plants in this industrial centre have suffered severely. The cost of the repairs is a small matter in comparison to the delay in filling the orders. What appeared to be reasonable guesses at the losses are appalling in their immensity. The workers will lose their wages for a week or more.

Cleveland Befogged.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 22.—The fierce storm of wind and snow that swept over this city and Northern Ohio throughout on Saturday gradually subsided yesterday. It was followed last night by a fog so dense that it was almost impossible to see from one side of the street to the other. Not a single wire was working on any direct route between this city and Buffalo or Pittsburg last night. Trains on practically all roads entering the city continue to arrive from one to three hours behind schedule time. Traffic on the city street car lines continues to be badly crippled.

Steady Rain For 15 Hours.

Hamilton, April 22.—Rain has been falling steadily for the past 15 hours, and most of the snow which fell Saturday has disappeared. The rain, while of great benefit to the farmers in the vicinity, has done considerable damage in the city. Owing to the overtaxing of sewers, cellars have been flooded, and large washouts occurred in many streets.

Lost Lifeboat and Bulwarks.

Port Dalhousie, April 22.—Capt. William Griffin of the steamer Monteagle, arrived yesterday from Oswego and reports Saturday night's storm as being the worst he ever encountered on Lake Ontario. He lost his lifeboat and bulwarks and everything on his decks was washed overboard.

Chemung River at Flood Point.

Elmira, N. Y., April 22.—The Chemung River was bank full last night, and the basements of the stores in Water street are filled with water, which is being lowered by means of steam pumps and the fire engines. The railroad trains are many hours behind schedule time. Rain continued to fall all day until 6 o'clock last evening.

Washout on the Intercolonial.

Moncton, N. B., April 22.—Tides in the Petitcodiac River during the past few days have been very high, and have done a lot of damage to the marshes. Dykes were broken along the river, and the bank overflooded. There is a 280-foot washout on the I. C. R., just below Sackville. The trains are delayed slightly.

THE LATEST REPORTS.

Water Receding at Pittsburg, But Millions Have Been Lost—Reports From Elsewhere.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 22. — Pittsburg and Alleghany are slowly emerging from the murky flood. At 8 p. m. the rivers were receding nearly a foot an hour. The highest point reached at Davis Island dam was 25.8 feet at 8 a. m., which means 28 feet at the junction of the Alleghany and Monongahela Rivers. The water remained stationary until about 3 a. am., when it began to fall.

Conservative estimates of the total damage in this district are between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. Fifty thousand workers are suffering from enforced idleness.

The Loss to Railroads.

The loss to the railroads entering Pittsburg from flood, landslides, wreck, bridges, heavy snow and the interference with traffic is roughly estimated at $1,000,000.

Big landslides occurred on the Pittsburg and Lake Erie, the Baltimore and Ohio, at Soho, on the Pan Handle, on the South Side, the Bessemer at several points, and the Alleghany Valley near Franklin, Pa. The slide at Soho was 150 feet long and it required 14 hours' work to clear one track.

The submerged districts in Pittsburg and Alleghany are to-day a scene of abject misery. Cellars and in some instances the first floors of stores and dwellings are covered with water. Where the flood has subsided it has left behind a greasy yellow scum of two or three inches deep. The residents spent all day trying to restore their homes to some degree of decency and comfort. The damage to furniture and buildings in Alleghany is estimated at about $100,000. It will take two months of hot summer weather to thoroughly dry out these houses. In Pittsburg the loss to residences and stores and goods, and the cost of cleaning up, will amount to about $250,000.

Material For Toronto Damaged.

The Westinghouse Electric Company had two carloads of finished material for Toronto, Canada, on the tracks near Turtle Creek. They were caught in the flood and water got into the cars. The loss may reach $50,000.

People Driven to the Hills.

Springfield, Mass., April 22.—The dam at Middlefield, 30 miles west of here, gave way yesterday afternoon. Several small houses were washed away and the people driven to the hills. No lives were lost.

PAN-AMERICAN HIT HARD.

Storm King Has Stepped Into the Way of the Management.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 22. — The gates of the Pan-American Exposition grounds were closed yesterday, and every available man was put to work to offset the effect of the great April snowstorm of last week. The damage to the buildings is slight and can be quickly repaired, but the delay in the landscape work and the building of railways is a severe block to those who have been bending every energy to have the grounds in a thoroughly finished condition by May 1. It was intended to have this part of the work so complete that it would be possible to have a ceremonial marking the opening of the Exposition gates. Up to last Thursday everything pointed to the working out of this program. The storm, however, has put a different aspect on matters.

Great Distress at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 22. — The Ohio River reached 45 feet last night, and passed the danger line of 50 feet before midnight. Reports from up the river are of great distress, owing to the snow, flood and cold weather. Rain and snow alternated here all day yesterday. The worst condition in the Ohio valley is now impending.

Buffalo Creek Overflowed.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 22.—Buffalo Creek overflowed its banks last night and several streets in the lower part of South Buffalo are under water, Affairs Bad at Wheeling.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 22. — At 9 o'clock last night the river was 41 feet 4 inches and rising 2 inches an hour. The top notch was expected in an hour or two, with less than 43 feet. This stage shuts Wheeling entirely out of outside communication by rail, and only the big Cincinnati liners are able to run now, and irate residents along the river banks are firing frequently at the boats because the swell from them is washing foundations away from their houses. In Wheeling, Bellaire, Bridgeport, Benwood and Martin's Ferry about 500 houses have been entered by the water, most of the families moving to upper floors. Nearly every manufacturing establishment in the Wheeling district is shut down, and cannot resume until Tuesday.

A report from Marietta, Ohio, that a number of people have been drowned near that place is without confirmation.

C. P. R. SHUFFLE.

Changes Made in Respect of Some Executive Officers.

Montreal, April 22.—The changes in the Canadian Pacific have been accomplished. The offices heretofore held by Messrs. William Whyte and Thomas Tait, as managers, respectively, of western and eastern lines, with headquarters at Winnipeg and Montreal, have been abolished. Mr. Whyte will hereafter be known as assistant to the president of the Canadian Pacific, and Mr. Tait will be first manager of transportation.

There have also been changes amongst the general superintendents. Mr. James O'Borne will leave Winnipeg and become general superintendent at St. John, N.B., replacing Mr. H. P. Timmerman, who goes to Toronto as general superintendent of the Ontario and Quebec division.

Mr. Leonard will replace Mr. O'Borne at Winnipeg, and Mr. C. W. Spencer, general superintendent of the eastern division, will have his jurisdiction enlarged, practically taking in all lines south of the river.

Provincial Appointments.

Toronto, April 22.—These provincial appointments are gazetted: W. M. Dack, Kincardine, to be registrar for Bruce County; W. H. Harris, of Port Perry, John Knox of Attwood and J. D. Falconbridge of Toronto, to be notarys public; H. Prast, Hanover, to be bailiff for Grey County, and J. G. Watson of Ayr, to be bailiff for Waterloo County.

Half of the British Loan Placed.

New York, April 22.—The London correspondent of The Times says: The Bank of England has been authorized to receive applications for £80,000,000 of the £60,000,000 issue of British consols, the balance having already been placed. The price of issue has been fixed by the British Treasury at 94¼ per cent.

Bartender Dropped Dead.

Stratford, Ont., April 22.—Thomas Maughan, bartender in the Hotel Albion, dropped dead while serving a customer Saturday afternoon. The cause of death was heart failure. Deceased was about 20 years of age, and recently came to the city from Toronto, where he worked in the Bodega.

HER OWN VICTIM.

A Dresden, Ont., Woman Performs a Fatal Operation on Herself.

Windsor, April 22.—Mrs. Robert Tiffin died in Detroit as the result of an operation which she performed upon herself, according to a statement which she made to two doctors. Mrs. Tiffin was formerly Miss Annie Leatherdale, and her home was in Dresden, Ont. Some time ago she married Robert Tiffin, and they lived on St. Antoine street, near Montcalm. A week ago to-day Dr. W. E. Tiffin was summoned. He found her in a dangerous condition, and in the presence of witnesses she made a statement as to the cause of her condition. He then took hold of the case, and finally called Dr. G. S. Field, and the two physicians attempted to save her life. Septic peritonitis had set in, however, and it was useless.

Serious Fire at Stratford.

Stratford, Ont., April 22.—About 8 o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in the mill of the Hodd & Cullen Milling Co., this city, and before it could be subdued the main building was completely consumed and the elevator adjoining badly damaged. The engine and boiler rooms were preserved intact. The total loss is estimated at between $35,000 and $40,000.

200 Miners Met a Frozen Death.

Victoria, B.C., April 22.—The Daily Alaskan of Skaguay publishes a despatch from Dawson, which, on the authority of Clerk Reed of Judge Noye's court of Cape Nome, tells of a terrible storm which wrought havoc at the mouth of the Yukon early in the year, resulting in the death of 200 persons. Other Skaguay papers discredit the story.

COL. LEYS' POSITION.

The Member For London Was Wrongly Informed.

A STATEMENT BY PREMIER ROSS

Col. Leys Forwarded His Resignation Under a Misapprehension—The Question of Seine Fishing in the River Thames the Cause of His Recent Action—A Useful Member of Parliament.

Toronto, April 22.—The resignation of Lieut.-Col. F. B. Leys, M. P. P. for London, was the principal topic of conversation at the Parliament Buildings on Saturday. Premier Ross on Saturday handed out a statement regarding the resignation, which shows that the member for London is under a misapprehension in regard to the matter he complains of. The Premier said:

"I understand that Mr. Leys was exceedingly anxious that seine fishing on the Thames should be stopped, as he desired that the fish might not be interrupted in ascending the river. It appears that a dam at Cashmere that was placed there some 50 years ago obstructed the running of the fish, and that many fish were caught at the foot of the dam by persons holding licenses. Correspondence had been held with the Ottawa Government to have a fishway put in the dam, in order that fish might ascend the river, and recently an agreement was entered into, I understand, with some of the fishermen that a fishway should be put in the dam during the low water next summer. In the meantime, however, no licenses were issued at Cashmere, or for many miles below, for seine fishing, pending the removal of the dam or the construction of a fishway.

"Mr. Leys seems to have been under the impression that, since the House rose, a license was issued to one Charles Allen of Cashmere. This is untrue. To meet the request of the farmers for a supply of fish for domestic use, however, licenses for dip-net fishing were issued to 19 persons. Mr. Leys had no objection to dip-net fishing for farmers. What he did object to was that seine fishing should be allowed for a foreign market, and in this respect faith was kept with him. He has, I have no doubt, been misinformed with regard to the action of the Fisheries Department. Mr. Leys has been a useful member of Parliament, and his retirement from the House will be regretted, should he press his resignation, particularly as it is entirely based on incorrect information."

FIVE THOUSAND MINERS STRIKE.

Ohio and Virginia Coalers Fail to Reach an Agreement.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 22.—The coal miners of Belmont, Harrison and Jefferson Counties, Ohio, and of Marshall, Brooke and Hancock Counties, W. Va., forming the Ohio sub-division, have been ordered to strike, owing to the failure of the Committee of Miners and Operators' Committee to reach a settlement at their conference in Bridgeport, which occurred at midnight Saturday. It is estimated that 5,000 miners are affected by the strike order.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

GIVE PERFECT DIGESTION, SOUND SLEEP, STRONG NERVES.

A Popular Remedy for Dyspepsia, which has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of act there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood and that is through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly, the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gasses, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas, and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers" because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tabets are prepared by the F. A Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

Scrofula

Is a disease as old as antiquity, and as young as the newest born infant.

It has infested the blood of humanity from ancient times down to the present minute.

It is hereditary or may be acquired.

It appears in swollen glands, scrofulous sores, hip disease, boils, pimples, eruptions, and, as believed by high authorities, even in the forms of catarrh and rheumatism.

It can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and persistently.

We know this, because Hood's Sarsaparilla has done it.

It will cure you if you give it a trial.

You should begin to take it today.

Hip Disease—"I suffered from hip disease; had 5 running sores; used crutches and each winter I was confined to my bed for weeks at a time. Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished a perfect cure—saved my life. I have a good appetite and feel strong and well." ANNIE ROBERT, 49 Fourth St., Fall River, Mass.

In Her Eyes—"My little girl had scrofula and sores appeared in her eyes. A few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla entirely cured her and she has never had scrofula since." MRS. HOWARD POPE, Alpha, Oregon.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

The Grand Trunk Report.

Montreal, April 22.—A Star special cable from London says: The Grand Trunk report was issued Saturday, and shows that the enhanced cost of fuel and other materials have advanced working expenses by 6.4 per cent. The gross receipts have decreased 0.19 per cent., working expenses have increased 2.37 per cent., and train mileage has decreased 5.44 per cent. The new agreement for 99 years' rental of the Cincinnati, Saginaw and Mackinaw line, at an annual rental of $43,225, will be a saving of $12,000. The agreement will be submitted at the annual meeting, April 30. The only other extra item of the report concerns the additional wharf at Portland in connection with the 1,500,000-bushel elevator.

Hon. Dr. Borden in London.

London, Ont., April 22.—Hon. F. W. Borden, Minister of Militia, arrived from Ottawa at noon on Saturday, accompanied by Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P. The purpose of the Minister's visit is to inspect the site for the Armoury. During the afternoon, at the London Club, a dinner was tendered Mr. Borden by the member for London, and those invited included Sir John Carling, Col. Leys, Col. Smith, Major Beattie, Major J. W. Little, Major Hume Cronyn, Col. Peters, D.O.C., Mayor Rumball, Col. Buchan and Col. Hemming. The 7th Band was also in attendance, and furnished a program of music.

AN ABANDONED FARM.

It Surely Was Hard and Stony Land, and No Exaggeration.

She was on the witness stand in her own behalf, being also defendant in the action. She was a sturdy widow, hard working, shrewd in a deal and garrulous. A landlord was suing for back rent on a little farm she had abandoned.

"You say that the land was hard and sour and sterile?" suggested the attorney for the plaintiff.

"That's what I said, only I wasn't so persniffity about it, and I'll say more"—

"Just a moment, please. We want evidence, not opinions. Did you raise anything on this land of ours?"

"Land of ours!" with a sniff. "You never owned a thimbleful of it. Yes, I did raise things on it. It took two hills to raise a bean and a whole row of corn to raise a nubbin. I raised a cabin, I raised a pigpen, and I tried to raise a goat, but it starved to death, poor thing! That ground wouldn't raise dog fennel or even Canada thistles."

"Don't exaggerate, please. You say the soil was sour?"

"I couldn't exaggerate about that ground if I was a lawyer. In the morning when the dew was steaming off in the sunshine you'd think you was living next door to a pickle factory. I kept my sugar in an airtight jar."

"Pshaw! That's ridiculous. I suppose the ground was so hard you could not blast it?"

"Nuthing of the kind. I'm here to tell the truth. But I'll tell you how hard that ground was. I had to crop my set onions out with a hatchet, and a big gander I bought broke his neck trying to pull a tuft of spear grass." The landlord did not recover.

Bedrooms and Breathing.

While no scientist, I think, will recommend less than seven cubic feet of air each minute for an adult, Dr. Reed gives ten as the smallest amount that will meet the wants of the body. All of this, of course, is not absolutely used, only needed that purity may be secured. The average room—12 by 10 and 8 feet high—even if the room is empty, will consume only 800 cubic feet, or enough to supply air for one person for about two hours. Now, when two or even four persons occupy such a room, the doors and windows closed to keep out the supposed "poisonous night air," it is not strange that the stench of vitiated air is overpowering to one who enters the room after breathing the pure air of heaven, such as the good Father intended for use.—Weekly Bouquet.

Juvenile Discouragement.

Elsie—Mamma, there's a funny old man in this Pickwick book that's always telling his son to beware of the widows. Why is that?

Mamma—Well, a widow is supposed to be skillful in catching a husband.

Elsie—Gracious! I wonder if I'll have to be a widow before I can get married.

Fined For Death on Board.

"The only place, as far as law is concerned, where it costs money to die from natural causes is aboard a steamship," remarked a vessel owner. "The purpose of the law was excellent enough. There was a time when emigrants were being brought to this country in very large numbers, or 'by the shipload,' as it was termed. There is no doubt that there was crowding in the ships that brought them, and to prevent this a law was passed imposing upon the ship a fine of $10 for every death that occurred during the passage from natural causes of persons over 8 years of age. This put a stop to overcrowding, or, at least, it is supposed that it did, which is about the same thing. Ships do not fancy having to pay fines of this kind.

"Of course, in comparison with the great army of persons who are brought across the ocean from month to month, there are very few deaths, for the statisticians have been kind enough to show beyond a doubt that the steamship is the safest means of transportation in existence, but, just the same, there are a considerable number in the course of a year."

Epigrams In Fiction.

Putnam's Corn Extractor

Doesn't lay a man up for a week, but quietly and surely goes on doing its work, and nothing is known of the operation till the corn is shelled. Plenty of substitutes do this. Some of them are dangerous—no danger from Putnam's except to the corn.

Gates of the Land of Promise.

No one can watch a load of immigrants land without being struck by the astonishing signs of hope and confidence about them all. There has never been any exaggeration of this. Incredible as it may seem to one who knows how grim is the struggle for life among the masses in America, it is evident that this is still the land of promise to the poor of Europe.—Scribner's.

For Consumption.

The successful treatment for consumption is that which enables your lungs to get all the fresh air or ozone possible. Some people think it advisable to go North for this, which is good, but a surer and less costly way to get pure condensed oxygen or ozone is to take Powley's Liquified Ozone. It makes the system healthy, and its antiseptic power stops the germ attack quickly. This gives nature a chance. Write for our booklet on "The Great White Plague." A CULINARY GENIUS.

Cooked Dinner In His Home While at Business In His Office.

The ordinary man is nowhere more out of place than in the kitchen. All rules have their exceptions, however, and a correspondent sends a story of a man who might have led armies perhaps, but was certainly equal to culinary emergencies.

In the absence of his wife and family it became necessary, as he thought, for him to cook his own dinner, and in view of the fact that he was a man of business his presence was also needed down town at his office.

Now, the same body cannot be in two places at once, and this well known consideration would have settled the question for an average man. He would have either spent his forenoon in the kitchen or gone to his office and lunched out. This, however, was a man to whom physical laws do not courtesy even as custom to great kings. The case stood thus:

He was to have a boiled dinner and would have it done to a turn, piping hot and ready to serve at his home coming. The meat, turnips and beets, therefore, which require a longer time, he put on before leaving the house. The potatoes and cabbage, needing less time for cooking, were put on the cover of the pot.

Then he dropped a string through a hole in the edge of the cover, ran it through a loop suspended from the ceiling and thence down to the sink. In the sink hole he firmly stuck a candle, to which, two inches below the top, he tied the string.

Last of all he lighted the candle and went to his business. In two hours, or about half an hour before he was to return, when it was time for the vegetables on the cover to go to their appointed place, the slowly descending flame burned the string, which released the otherwise unsupported edge of the cover, which dropped its burden into the pot and fell back where it belonged.

When the genius reached home, his dinner was ready.

PLEASE TELL THE PEOPLE.

Mr. Coderre Wants Everyone to Know His Story.—He Had a Very Bad Case of Dyspepsia, and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cured Him.—After Everything else had failed.—His Testimonial Letter.

Everybody in St. Jacques, Que., knows Ademard Coderre. He has given for publication the following letter:—

"I certify that for over two years, I suffered with Dyspepsia and Inflammation of the Stomach. I have taken several medicines, but have secured no relief. I was very discouraged.

"One day, I read an account of the cure of a similar case by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, so I determined to try again. I bought two boxes of them. From the very first, they relieved me, and now I am completely cured.

"I desire to make my case known to the public, so that all who suffer from that malady may find the only remedy that will cure it. Please tell all the people that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured me."

It is not often that any remedy receives such very high and unqualified commendation as Mr. Coderre gives to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. There can be nothing plainer than his straightforward statement of the facts of his case and its cure. No one in St. Jacques doubts Mr. Coderre's truthfulness, and no one who hears him speak of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets can doubt his sincerity.

The earnestness of the statements made by the friends of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, is the distinguishing feature of their testimonials.

Almost everyone refers to the fact that they have tried other treatments without success, and all manifest a desire to impress upon other sufferers, the fact that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are not as other medicines are, but will instantly relieve and permanently cure all stomach trouble.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets is an honest remedy, endorsed heartily by honest people.

They are no experiment, but a tried and proven remedy. Thousands have used them, and everyone tells the same thankful story of restoration to health.

Better not delay longer. Try them. You'll not be disappointed.

Poison Proof Animals.

Neither differences of organization in animals nor in the constitution of the poisonous substance generally afford any clew for interpreting an exceptional want of effect. Unaccountable is the immunity of rabbits against belladonna leaves (Atropa belladonna, deadly nightshade). You may feed them with belladonna for weeks without observing the least toxic symptoms. The meat of such animals, however, proves poisonous to any one who eats it, producing the same symptoms as the plant.

Pigeons and various other herbivora are also to some degree safe from the effects of this poison, while in warm blooded carnivora it causes paralysis and asphyxia. In frogs the effect is a different one, consisting of spasms. The meat of goats which had fed on hemlock has sometimes occasioned poisonous effects. Chickens are nearly hardy against nux vomica and the extremely dangerous alkaloid, strychnine, contained in it, while in the smallest amount it is a fatal poison to rodents.

More remarkable yet in this respect is the immunity of Cholœpus hoffmanni, a kind of sloth living on the island of Ceylon, which, when given ten grains of strychnine, was not much affected. Pigeons are possessed of high immunity from morphine, the chief alkaloid of opium, as well as from belladonna. Eight grains were required to kill a pigeon, not much less than the mortal dose for a man. Cats are extremely sensitive to foxglove (Digitalis purpurea), which on the contrary may be given to rabbits and various birds

Fine Weather and its Shoe Possibilities.

We're done with Winter—six months, and enough. Spring and summer are now before us. This opens the possibility of shedding our heavy garments and footwear that have done us good service, and donning something lighter and easier. It's these climatic facts and their application that makes us keep two stocks of Shoes, that we may suit the needs of customers for the two seasons.

Just now we are putting before you Summer Shoes. The heavier goods are sent aloft—not so far up that they cannot be reached if needed, but crowded out by their timely successors. So now for summer.

Here's a few seasonable lines—and the prices tell their cost, the cost well represents good value.

VISITORS NOT WANTED.

People Who Want to See Greenland Must Get a Royal Permit.

Greenland is governed in a grandmotherly way by Denmark; but, as it consists of a group of colonies which would not under any circumstances attract many tourists or traders, no outsider complains of the exclusiveness of the Danish authorities. Trade always has been and still is monopolized by the state, and only government vessels are allowed to sail in Greenland waters. For foreign travelers also Greenland is a closed country unless the traveler in question has beforehand obtained the rare distinction of gaining the permission of the Danish government.

The monopoly of the trade is said to protect the Greenlander from being deceived by unscrupulous merchants. The administration settles a fixed price both for the goods the Greenlanders purchase and for the products they sell. In this way all are treated in the same manner, and the business being carried on by the state is a guarantee that the natives are not imposed upon.

Furthermore, the members of the administration are enjoined to take care that the natives do not leave themselves short of produce by selling more than they can dispense with, so that they are destitute of needful food and clothing when the slack time arrives. The native Greenlander never has been, neither is he now, able to purchase a single drop of spirits from the administration.

The exchange of goods between Greenland and Denmark is, as a rule, carried on exclusively by means of the nine vessels belonging to the Greenland company—viz, five brigs, three barks and a small steamer having a total register of about 2,000 tons net. Several of these vessels, which are suitable for sailing through the drift ice, make two voyages a year and the steamer, as a rule, three voyages

Womanly "Tenderness."

"Don't talk to me of the tenderness of woman's heart," said the man who hates women, though he has never been married. "She hasn't any. I was traveling recently on a through train to New York from the west, and in the morning, just after most of us had dressed and were sitting in the end of the car, the conductor came and called two men away. One of them belonged to an intelligent and well dressed woman sitting opposite me, and when he came back she asked him what the conductor wanted.

"'[illegible]y,' said the man seriously, 'the man in lower 8 has been found dead.'

"The woman's eyes widened, and I thought she was going to say something sweet and sympathetic, but she didn't. What she said was:

"'Why, how thoughtless of him, in a car with all these women too!'

"Don't talk to me about women."

"Better out than in" that humor that you notice. To be sure it's out, and all out, take Hoods' Sarsaparilla.

A MONSTER CELEBRATION.

MAYOR DENNE HAS A GREAT PROPOSITION.

He Wants to see a Monster Celebration on May 24—A Public Meeting.

Mayor Denne is determined that Peterborough will have a monster holiday celebration on May 24th. When seen this morning concerning the matter, His Worship spoke most enthusiastically as to the idea of having a celebration that would outdo anything of the kind ever held in Peterborough. He is taking advantage of the meeting which will be held on Friday evening next, for the purpose of discussing the 3 and 4 inch wide tire by-law, to receive an expression of opinion from the citizens. The day will consist of various kinds of games and a grand military, trades and calithumpian procession.

The Mayor asks the citizens to back him up in his proposition and make the 24th of May 1901, in Peterborough, one to be long remembered. Let there be a big turn out at Friday night's meeting in the Council Chamber.

DAN WRIGHT'S EXPERIENCE.

He Tried to Catch the Belleville Train, but Failed to Do So.

Mr. Dan Wright, Hasting's popular village constable, had an exciting experience at the local G.T.R. station at noon to-day. Mr. Wright as a consequence, will remain a guest in Peterborough until to-morrow morning, much to his disappointment.

The Hastings officer of the law intended returning to the village on the Trent on the noon train, but arrived at the station only to see the space between the end of the rear coach and himself becoming greater. He determined to outrun the train, which at this time was striking up a very respectable speed. There were quite a few spectators on the station platform who enjoyed the performance. Dan made a spurt that surprised not a few, and was encouraged by the shouts of his friends, who by this time were wagering all kinds of coin as to the outcome. After keeping the pace up for about 100 yards, the young driver in Mr. Alex. Reid's express wagon who was going down Bethune street parallel with the track, noticing the urgency of the affair volunteered to land Mr. Wright on the last coach if at all within the range of possibilities. The excited constable thereupon threw himself into the wagon and looked encouragingly at the interested crowd on the platform, but the noble white steed missed his footing, tumbled on the cinder path, and Dan watched the train pull swiftly out of sight around the bend.

On returning to the station platform and wiping the big beads of prespiration from his forehead, it is said that assistant station agent Wallace refused him a permit to go down on a freight, having felt so disappointed over losing a $2 bet that Dan would out strip the train.

WM. PATTERSON'S SENTENCE

HE WAS FINED $200 OR ONE YEAR IN JAIL.

His Honour Judge Weller's Remarks—Could Have Sent Him to the Penitentiary.

William Patterson, the Queen's University medical student who has come into so much prominence of late over the Mrs. Sheehan grave robbing case was this morning, sentenced by His Honour Judge Weller, to a fine of $200 or a term of one year in jail.

No case of recent date has aroused so much interest as the Sheehan grave robbery, the circumstances of which are all familiar to readers of the Examiner, and it is needles to say that many are yet, in a sense, disappointed over the proceedings, in as much that the real manner in which the body of Mrs. Sheehan was taken from the grave in the Roman Catholic Cemetery in February last still lies enshrouded in a cloud of mystery as far as the inquisitive public are concerned.

Patterson appeared in Court at 11 o'clock this morning to receive his sentence. He was accompanied by his solicitor Mr. R. M. Dennistoun. Mr. Wood, County Crown Attorney and Mr. F. D. Kerr, representing Mr. Dennis Sheehan, were also present besides a number of spectators.

"Have you anything further to say to me before I proceed to pass sentence upon the prisoner?" Said His Honour Judge Weller.

Mr. Dennistoun replied that he had. He believed that one of the members of the family of the late Mrs. Sheehan had understood him (Mr. Dennistoun) to say that the body of deceased had been delivered by one of the family. He had said no such thing nor did he insinuate anything of the sort, and so far as he knew no member of the deceased's family had anything to do with the matter. The family had suffered enough without any unjust imputations of this kind. In conclusion Mr. Dennistoun asked His Honour ts remember all the circumstances and to deal as gently with the prisoner as possible.

His Honour Judge Weller said that he was very glad that Mr. Dennistoun had seen fit to make such a statement as he had, and if any such view had been entertained in this regard so far as he was able to say there was not the slightest evidence for such a suspicion that any of the family had anything to do with the affair. Should anyone of any financial responsibility make a statement of this kind they would subject themselves to a civil action, and be required to pay heavy damages.

Proreeding with his sentence, His Honour said that he had considered the evidence since Friday and he was fully convinced that he was correct in finding the prisoner guilty of the charge. A strong appeal had been made by prisoner's counsel, and he was quite right in making the same, that no sentence be passed on the prisoner. This can be done only under certain fixed reasons, and unless these reasons exist he has no right to suspend the judgment of the Court. In reciting these reasons, His Honour recited the matter of age, character and antecedents. There was no evidence as to his character being at all bad, as Mr. Dennistoun had said he was a young man of ability and possessing a great future. If this were all it might avail, but in addition to this we must consider whether the nature of the offence is of a trivial nature or not. He considered that it was an offence of a very serious kind and of considerable importance to the public at large. It was a most serious matter and should be stopped, as far as the law can stop it. Further, the prisoner has refrained from giving any information of an extenuating nature. In this he has perhaps been very wise. Therefore it becomes a matter of fact. There were no circumstances to mitigate the offence. Having refused to suspend the sentence of the court, His Honour had to consider what the judgment should be. The law says five years imprisonment, but gives the Court power to inflict a fine, if the circumstances are such as to warant it. The question is whether he should be sent to the penitentiary or subjected to pay a fine. Imprisonment is generally imposed upon those who have made a business of crime, a place for confirmed criminals. He had no reason to suppose that the prisoner adopted this sort of business of dealing in dead bodies, and started out with the intention of carrying on such, although it would appear that there was something of the kind going on in the community. The man who robbed the grave must have been in the practice of doing such acts, and if the Courts get hold of him, or any one who is engaged in such work he would spend the greater part of his life in penitentiary. In this particular case, it was either penitentiary or a fine. The object is not to compensate the people agrieved but to show the guilty persons that crime of this kind must not go unpunished. To prevent a recurrence of the affair he thought that he would not destroy the life of the young man by sending him to penitentiary but he had come to the conclusion to fine him, and it would not be a fine of a few dollars. It must be something that he and his friends will feel. He therefore would impose a fine of $200.

Mr. Kerr at this point interupted His Honour to ask if the costs of the second interment of the remains of the deceased could not be imposed upon the prisoner also. Mr. Sheehan, Mr. Kerr contended was a man of limited means.

His Honour—I do not see how this could come. If I could make him pay it, I would, and a good deal more too, but I have not the power.

His Honour closed his remarks by stating that the fine would be $200 or one year in jail and the prisoner should remain in the custody of the sheriff until the amount is paid.

The fine was paid during the morning.

THE ATHLETIC CLUB.

The Representatives of the Various Lines of Sport—Meeting Thursday Night.

The work of organizing the various departments of sports in connection with the Y.M.C.A. has now been accomplished, the last of the series of meetings having been held on Saturday evening, when representatives from those interested in track athletics were elected to the board of the Athletic Club. The representatives from this department are Messrs. R. Merrill and G. Robertson.

Track athletics promise to form a leading feature in connection with the "Y" this year, and will include besides the regular track work, cross country runs, team and relay races and other outdoor athletics.

With one exception the list of officers for the Athletic Club is complete. Mr. H. Dunford cannot act as representative of the lacrosse enthusiasts as he is connected with another lacrosse club in town, and another representative will be elected to take his place.

The officers of the athletic club are:
Pres.—R. McWilliams.
1st Vice.-Pres.—J. M. Macleod.
2nd Vice.-Pres.—A. W. McPherson.
Sec.-Treas.—S. Hall.
Committee—F. D. Kerr, A. Scott, H. Goldey, H. Burnham, H. Ayres, R. Merrill and G. Robertson.

The above will meet on Thursday evening at 7.30 to arrange further for the year's work.

"Red Bird" Headquarters.

The famous "Red Bird" bicycle will have its headquarters in Peterborough this year with Mr. J. W. Young, who has leased the commodious premises centrally situated at No. 144 Hunter street, next to McDonald's drug store. Mr. Young knows the wheel business from the ground up, and stakes his reputation on the "Red Bird" first, last and all the time. Mr. Young will keep fully equipped with the new 20th century "Red Birds," built for ladies, gentlemen and youths. Full lines of bicycle supplies and repairs always on deck. Repair shop and livery in connection. Wheels rented by the day or week. Everybody welcome to inspect and criticise the new 1901 mounts. dtf

LADIES' AID MEETING.

Regular Monthly Meeting of George Street Ladies' Aid.

The regular meeting of the Ladies, Aid of George street Methodist church was held in the church parlour on Tuesday last, and was very well attended. More would have been present if it had been better understood what was to make up the principal part of the programme. It has been know with regret for a few weeks that Mrs. Glass was soon to move to Toronto, severing her connection with this church, and it was a general feeling that she could not be permitted to go without some expression of affection and appreciation of her valuable services in the church, of which she has been a faithful member for thirty years, and an energetic worker in many of its departments, social and otherwise, for twenty-seven years, and it was with much pleasure that the president, Mrs. H. B. Meharry, in behalf of the society, presented her with a Bible, adding tender, touching words as to her usefulness and faithfulness in the different departments of the church work. The meeting was interspersed with short programme and a social cup of tea. All went away feeling that a very useful member of the church societies was taking her departure. Mrs. Glass leaves, carrying with her the affection and kind wishes of the ladies of the various organizations of church work with which she has been identified.

MRS. (REV.) CAMPBELL'S ADDRESS.

She Conducted the Service at Mark Street Methodist Church.

A rather unique service was held in Mark street Methodist church, Ashburnham, yesterday morning, when the regular discourse was delivered by Mrs. (Rev.) Campbell. The service was held under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, of which Mrs. Campbell is a most valued worker. Rev. Mr. Campbell conducted the opening exercises, and then Mrs. Campbell spoke for half an hour on the subject of why we are under obligations to engage in missionary work. Her address was most interesting, and delivered in a fluent and earnest manner, during the course of which she made a strong appeal for assistance in spreading the Gospel in unchristian lands. She endeavoured to show to her hearers the duty that rested upon each one of them in this regard, and a dark and gloomy picture was drawn of the inhabitants of the uncivilized countries of the world.

A DISTRESSING CASE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Will you kindly call attention through the columns of your paper to the following distressing case? A young woman, the bread-winner of her family, who has just finished her course as a trained nurse in the Montreal Hospital, has been advised by the physicians that her lungs are badly affected with consumption. She is also suffering from a serious complication. Her only hope lies in a course of proper treatment. She is at present in the Muskoka Cottage Sanitarium, Gravenhurst, but her means, as well as those of her family, are exhausted. She has a good chance for life if provision could be made for a few months' treatment at that institution. I have already received $5 for this purpose from Mr. E. Gunn, and shall be pleased to acknowledge further contributions.

General Secretary, National Sanitarium Association.

AUDITORS AT WORK.

Messrs. W. E. Roxborough, of Norwood, and Wesley Sherin, of Lakefield.

Messrs. W. E. Roxborough, of Norwood, and Wesley Sherin, of Lakefield, are at present engaged in auditing the books of the County treasurer's office. The auditors were employed all last week at their duties, and will finish the audit this week. There is considerably more work on this occasion than that which was generally required. A new system from this time forward is being instituted whereby the books of the County treasurer's office will be audited quarterly instead of yearly as heretofore. The auditors at the present time are, then, auditing the accounts for the past year and for the first quarter of the present year.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

From Rev. W. E. Smith, M. D., Representative of Cobourg and Peterborough District Leagues.

The following letter has been received from Rev. W. E. Smith, M. D., representative of Cobourg and Peterborough District Leagues in Chentu, China. After the outbreak of hostilities in China Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Smith were forced to leave Chentu and this letter was written from Japan, where they have spent some months:

18 Ryndo-cho Azabu, Tokyo, Japan,
March 15, 1901.

Dear friends,—We have been here for six months and are off now for our own beloved field of labour. In the future, until further notice, address all mail matter to Kiating, via Chungking, Szehuan, Canadian Methodist Mission, China.

We have been kept busy all the time in Japan, taking services every Sunday and two and three nights in the week. Then we have studied hard at Chinese all our spare time from other duties, thus we hope to be able to use the Chinese language better than when we left China. We have also learned much about the mission work here which will be a help to us in our future work in China. Thus the cloud which seemed so very dark when we were torn away from our favourite work, may also have a silver lining, like most troubles in life. But it is only those who have passed through the deep waters, who understand the Psalmist,s words on that subject. The twenty-third psalm has more meaning for us now than a few years ago. Also the thirty-fourth psalm: "This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles. The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them!" You ask me "are you not sorry for having chosen the foreign mission field as your life work?" I answer emphatically no. We are great admirers of Canada, and would love to be taking part in the direct salvation of her people; but that privilege is a thing of the past. And now we believe under God we are called to be Canadian representatives, of the church of Christ upon earth, to the down-trodden superstitious, Satan deluded Chinese. In my college days, we had Africa on our minds, as the most needy and neglected people on earth, now we have changed our mind and think they could not be in a worse state than the Chinese at present. We have learned many things from experience, which we could not get from books. So we feel that China needs us and we are glad to be the first Canadian Epworth League representatives in the foreign field. We trust you will keep us constantly at the mercy seat in prayer, as we return to China to take up the thread of our work which is your work and God's work. We hope you all feel you are co-laborers, and partners, in this work with us. Indeed, if we did not feel that, we would be discouraged many times. We have no word of complaint to offer, but ask you just to keep in mind that we are trying to teach a people about Christ, who never heard about Him, and are not acquainted with any of the language of Christianity. Therefore they cannot understand the message at first.

Yours truly,
W. E. SMITH AND WIFE.

MORE ENTERPRISE.

The Imperial Corundum Company, Limited.

The first general meeting of the shareholders for the organization of the Imperial Corundum Company, was held in Toronto on the 15th instant.

Purchases were completed of a fine corundum and mica property in Burleigh Township, near the head of Stony Lake in in Peterborough County, of an extensive property on the Labrador Coast, reported rich in mica, corundum, fluor, spar and other minerals, of still another group in astings County, showing large deposits of corundum, sodalite and lapis-lazuli, and of an excellently located manufacturing site, having 506 feet frontage on the railway at North Tonawanda, N.Y., situated on the electric power line between Niagara Falls and Buffalo, upon which the company intends to erect a model, modern mill for the grinding and grading of corundum, mica and spar, and a smelting works for the manufacture of albuminum.

Toronto Star's Portrait of King Edward.

The Toronto Star has published a portrait of King Edward VII., which reaches we believe the highest standard of lithography obtainable on this continent. That this statement is not too strong will be admitted, we think, by those who see the work. The picture shows His Majesty in official uniform, with his decorations in their proper colours. As a piece of portraiture it is the best obtainable—better than a photograph, as all oil paintings by competent artists must be. The artistic value is heightened by a rich background, which increases in the print the effect of an oil painting. The gold of the uniform stands out upon the picture with striking richness. The picture is 18 inches by 24 inches, a convenient size for framing. The paper is of the finest and heaviest quality. No expense has been spared in the work. The only cheap thing about it is the price. According to the price charged for some other pictures of King Edward which have been displayed in the shop windows this one is easily worth $1, but the Star will send it in a strong tube upon receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

An Interesting Account of the Experiences of Mr. Traill, Formerly with the Strathcona Horse, in South Africa.

Mr. Traill, who was one of the members of the Strathcona Horse in South Africa, and who has been visiting at the residence of Mr. J. D. Collins, has given the following account of his experiences:

The sea voyage to Cape Town was greatly enjoyed by the men but there was great mortality among the horses, 163 dying from various causes during the long journey. It will be interesting news to the Red Cross Society to be informed that the men on their voyage to Cape Town were obliged on account of the indifferent fare provided for them by the steamship authorities to purchase delicacies from the canteen steward. It was alleged afterwards that the comforts for which they had paid had been expressly sent out for their benefit by the Red Cross Society. On arriving at Cape Town their mounts were quarantined for six weeks on account of an outbreak of glanders. From Cape Town the regiment reembarked for Durban and seems to have had a lively time of it marching from place to place. In all the Strathconas marched close on to 6,000 miles, traversing in their journey Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony, touching Portuguese Territory on the north, and Cape Colony on the south, and skirting Zululand and Basutoland.

Mr. Traill gives a vivid account of the hardships to which the men were continually subjected. The want of good water was greatly felt, thick, soupy, stagnant fluid being the usual liquid available. Want of proper washing facilities was also another notable feature, laundry work being accomplished under difficulties, the men either remaining in the water till their clothes dried in the sun or sitting on the banks at the cost of a blistered epidermis.

Still another nuisance was the want of proper camp outfits, and most of the time the Strathconas were in the field they had to bivouac in the open air, which in chilly weather was anything but comfortable. Mr. Traill, however, speaks most cheerfully of his experience, and looks on the bright side of things. The Strathconas, it will be remembered, were under General Buller's command, and he speaks most highly of that general, saying that he had by long odds the hardest job to tackle of any of the South African generals. He tells also several laughable incidents which occurred during the war. On one occasion one of the officers in the Strathcona advance guard sent one of his men in to General Buller to inform him that the Boers were in force and getting their gun in position to shell the column. This man rode up to General Buller, who was in the midst of his staff, and said, "Say, is there a bloke called Buller anywhere round here?" I believe I'm that gentleman," replied Buller. "Well," said the man," if you fellers don't hurry up and do something, there's going to be the devil to pay around here."

On another occasion, an officer commanding an English regiment bivouacked his men for the night next to the Strathconas. On inquiring what the regiment's name was and on being informed that it was the Strathconas, the officer's dignity was outraged. He gave orders for his men to fall in again and marched them off to a further point saying that it was altogether too much of a good thing to be camped next door to such a set of thieving devils. This was an unconscious tribute to the prowess which the Strathconas had exhibited in corralling chickens, spearing pigs and shooting cattle to eke out their scanty rations. Who could blame them when many a time their food for the day consisted of two hard tack biscuits apiece? The Strathconas seem to have had more than an ordinary share of the hardships of campaigning. On one occasion, when they had crossed the Caledon River, they had to subsist for five days on what they could pick up, as the transports were unable to cross owing to the swollen state of the river. Mr. Traill very modestly says that they wanted for nothing during that period and lived well. So it may safely be presumed that somebody's barnyard suffered.

Another tale Mr. Traill tells is that of a Tommy Atkins pursuing a Boer. Tommy was rapidly catching up to the Boer, when the latter shouted out, "Don't kill me, I'm a field cornet" "I don't care if you're a whole brass band," replied Tommy, "if I get my bayonet into you, you'll be a bloomin' angel!" Mr. Traill doesn't state if Tommy Atkins helped the Boer to a higher sphere.

In the matter of active warfare, the Strathconas seem to have had heaps of experience. Of 75 days with Gen. Buller they were in engagements for not less than 72 and in chasing Dewet under Gen. Knox, they were out five weeks, being in touch with the Boer rear guard the whole time. The Strathconas also had a glimpse of Boer perfidy, one of their number being shot near Standerton by a man carrying a white flag. Altogether Mr. Traill's account of the doings of the Strathconas is most interesting. Like most soldiers, however, he is altogether averse to extolling the deeds of his own regiment, looking upon whatever they were able to perform as the natural outcome of duties entailed upon them.

Mr. Traill has just received the following letter from Lord Strathcona in response to one from him thanking the High Commissioner for the great kindness which the regiment experienced at his hands:

17 Victoria St,
London, S.W.

MY DEAR SIR,—I duly received your letter of the 14th inst. written on behalf of the members of the troop of Strathcona's Horse to which you belong. I need not say that I have read it with great pleasure and gratification. With kind regards and best wishes to all.

Believe me, yours very truly,
STRATHCONA.

CURIOUS FIRE LORE.

HEARTH FIRES WHICH ARE NEVER ALLOWED TO DIE OUT.

The Manner in Which the Living Fire Is Generated—A Peculiar Ceremony Which Illustrated the Uses of the Sacred Fire.

The domestic hearth fire is sacred among all Slavic peoples, without distinction of stage of culture. It may never be started by blowing with the mouth. A bride, on entering her new home, is led thrice around the hearth by the groomsman. She must stir the fire with the poker and utter the following words: "As many as the sparks that fly, so many may the cattle be and so many the male offspring that shall bless our new home."

The form of the andiron in the peasants' houses has from time immemorial been either where one side is shaped to represent a snake and the other the head of a cock or where some domestic animal is represented. The fire on the hearth is never permitted to go out. It is the eternal sacred fire of the peasant's home. Its extinction betokens misfortune or is a sign that some member of the family will die.

The servants employed on the farm gather about the fire and pass away the long autumn and winter evenings in lively conversation. On Christmas eve the sacred billet, badujak, is lighted, and is sprinkled by the father of the house with wine, olive oil and honey. On St. Ivan's day the Ivan's fire is lighted and maintained the whole night. The young people of the village gather together and dance the hoto, accompanying their dance with songs. But the "living fire" is prised most highly of all, because, as the Slavic tradition goes in the Balkan peninsular and the Carpathians, it possesses special curative powers.

The living fire is generated as follows: In some places (as in the mountains of old Servia) it is customary to select two children, a boy and a girl, between 11 and 14 years of age, who are intrusted with kindling the fire. They are conducted into a perfectly dark chamber, where they are obliged to remove all their clothing and not to utter a single word. Two dry cylindrical pieces of linden wood are given to them, which they alternately rub briskly together until the pieces are ignited. A piece of tinder is fired by the sparks thus produced and dedicated to sacred uses. This manner of obtaining the sacred fire is the oldest, but has now passed almost altogether out of use.

Another method prevails among the Servians of western Macedonia. Two slabs of oak wood are driven solidly into the earth, and in their upper extremities two round holes are bored, in which a cylindrical piece of linden wood is so inserted that it can be rapidly rotated. A stout cord is drawn tight around two upright slabs to prevent their springing asunder. A primitive violin bow is then constructed, the string of which is wound once around the piece of linden wood. By moving the bow to and fro the cylindrical piece of wood is brought into rapid rotation, and through the heat of friction thus generated a piece of tinder inserted in the holes of the uprights is ignited.

In the autumn of 1899, while in the Kosmaj highlands, I saw the sacred fire produced in a different manner. Two peasants drove two semicylindrical pieces of wood into the ground and drew a rope taut about them. The piece of light linden wood was so inserted that it could be readily rotated by means of a simple rope wrapped once around it, a device which was even more efficacious than that of the primitive violin bow and led quickly to the desired end.

The purpose for which the sacred flame, or living fire, is used in the peasants' homes remains to be explained.

While on a scientific journey in the interior of the great forest districts of Servia several years ago I accidentally had an opportunity of witnessing a ceremony which illustrated the uses of the sacred fire.

It was in the autumn. In the village of Setonje, at the foot of the Homolje mountains, there raged a general epidemic among the children, which the prejudiced peasantry concealed from the authorities for fear that the physician of the province would visit the place. Two old women who were obliged by tradition to have the names Stana (from stati, to stand, not to spread) repaired to a spot outside the village. One of them carried a copper kettle filled with water, the other an old house lock and key. The first one then said, "Whither goest thou?" Whereupon the one with the lock in her hand answered, "I have come to lock out misfortune from the village." With these words, she turned the lock and cast it, together with the key, into the kettle of water. She then walked thrice around the village, repeating each time the same ceremony as she passed the "woman of the kettle."

In the meantime all the inhabitants of the village gathered together, arrayed in festive attire, having extinguished before leaving home the fires burning on their hearths. Two sturdy peasants then constructed on a hillock to the right of an oak tree a tunnel sufficiently high to enable a person to crawl through comfortably on all fours. Lengthwise in the tunnel a wide board was laid, and at its exit a second board was placed crosswise, the two together forming a T. In the meantime an old woman and an old man had kindled on both sides of the tunnel the "living fire." When everything was ready, the woman with the kettle took her place to the right of the fire at the entrance to the tunnel, and the woman with the lock was stationed at the other end. To the left of the exit a peasant woman with a large pot of milk stood. To every one who crept through the tunnel she gave a cup of milk from a wooden spoon. At the other end of the tunnel stood a pot containing melted hog's fat, into the surface of which each person gazed as he crept through. Then on the back of each person that crept through a third peasant woman drew a cross with a piece of charcoal. After all had crept through each person present placed several of the glowing coals in a jar and hurried home to kindle the fires of their hearths. They then cast some of the charred wood into a vessel containing water and drank of it in order to render themselves proof against the epidemic.—Translated For Open Court.

A Queen Who Married Her Brothers.

At 17 years of age Cleopatra was married to her half brother, Ptolemy Dionysius, who was then 13. This was because of the will of his father, who left him the throne on condition of the marriage with his sister. They reigned jointly under the guardianship of the Romans until Cleopatra became dissatisfied with her brother's attempt to gain sole power. She plotted against him, and, obtaining the aid of Julius Cæsar, she brought about Ptolemy's death. Thereupon she married another brother, a boy of 11, whom she later poisoned, assuming sole power 43 B. C. With her death (30 B. C.) ended the dynasty of Ptolemy in Egypt.—Woman's Home Companion.

THE DUTCH ROYAL FAIR.

Wilhelmina of Holland is now the only ruling queen in the world. The description holds good, even now that she's married.—Los Angeles Herald.

Wilhelmina of Holland can now be as original as she likes. Among 15 kings, 6 emperors and 22 presidents she remains the only ruling queen in the world.—New York Press.

Of course it is a fine thing to marry a queen, but it must make the husband of Wilhelmina feel rather restive when he reflects that after all he is blowing only an "um-ta" horn in the Dutch band.—Topeka Capital.

Queen Wilhelmina's husband will have $12,000 a week. But from all that has been learned of him there seems to be little danger that he will go out and make a Count Castellane of himself.—Washington Star.

The little Dutch queen promised to obey her husband as wife, but not as queen. This required a special clause in the contract. Wilhelmina evidently does not lack brains. This will be as easy as standing on the other foot.

THE PEDAGOGUE.

The total number of students at the universities of Germany this winter is 34,389, a gain of 6,000 in ten years.

Charles A. Smith of Minneapolis has presented 25,000,000 feet of standing pine to the Swedish Lutheran college at Lindsborg, Kan. The timber is valued at $25,000.

The Berlin Academy of Science has awarded the Helmholtz medal to Sir George Gabriel Stokes of Cambridge. The only other holders of this distinction are Professor Virchow and Lord Kelvin.

Dr. Herbert Baxter Adams, Ph. D., LL. D., professor of American and institutional history and director of the historical department in the Johns Hopkins university, has resigned his position on account of ill health.

Chicago business men say that the country high schools provide them with a more promising class of clerks than those graduated from the city schools. They are smarter and more generally available than the town boys.

PROGRESS.

A St. Louis negro has devised an elevator in which a screw takes the place of weights and pulleys.

A pneumatic rocking chair has just been patented. The air cushions attached to the rockers are very similar to ordinary cycle tires.

The modern demand for high power machinery is shown by the fact that in Paris the average horsepower per machine exhibited in 1867 was 16; in 1878, 62; in 1889, 170, and in 1900, 973.

FLOWER AND TREE.

The peach and plum are nearly enough related to be budded or grafted on each other.

A complete change of the soil in flowering pots is necessary and will enable a plant to secure more food and grow better.

In an orchard intended for the supply of a family there should be a few trees that produce apples that ripen in the later part of the summer or early in the fall.

Assist Nature.

You have been told to "hitch your wagon to a star"—that Nature will assist you. That's all right. There are times, however, when you should assist Nature, and the spring is one of these times.

Nature is now undertaking to cleanse your system—if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla the undertaking will be successful and your complexion bright and clear.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

James J. Corbett entered the ranks of the vaudeville recently at a Cincinnati theater.

"'Way Down East" bids fair to have a rival in "Lovers' Lane," the new Clyde Fitch play.

Yvette Guilbert, who has just recovered from her long illness, has announced her permanent retirement from the stage.

Marie Tempest, according to rumor, is in negotiation with numberless American managers regarding her reappearance.

J. H. Stoddard has the reputation of having been on the stage longer than any notable actor living, not excepting Joseph Jefferson.

Felix, the Paris modist, was granted judgment recently to the amount of more than $2,000 against Mrs. Carter for dresses supplied for her role of "Zaza."

Madeleine Lucette Ryley has written a drama which Forbes Robertson and Gertrude Elliott will produce during their spring season at the London Comedy theater.

There is absolutely no truth in the published statement that Joseph Jefferson contemplates retiring from the stage. About once each year this denial is made necessary.

It is not generally known that the role of Flambeau, the old grenadier of the guard in "L'Aiglon," was written for Coquelin, although he never played it until in New York.

The Park theater in Philadelphia has hit upon a unique scheme, the success of which remains to be seen. Young women are the ushers at that playhouse. They wear black gowns and lace caps.

M. B. Curtis, the original "Sam'l of Posen," is master of nine languages besides English. He has spent a number of years in southern Europe and Asia and has resided for months at a time in Manila and Honolulu.

FOWLS AND THEIR FRUIT.

To fatten geese give boiled oats with milk three times a day.

Hens that are overfed are not healthy and will not lay regularly.

The eggshell is porous, and any filth in it soon taints the meat of the egg.

While quality is not indicated by the color of the skin or legs buyers prefer the yellow.

Eggs from fully matured fowls will not only hatch better, but will produce stronger chickens.

Compactness of body, early maturity, vigor and egg production are the cardinal points to be sought in each individual fowl.

Fowls are creatures of habit. When once they form a habit, like egg eating or feather pulling, it is hard to break them of it.

Geese may be made profitable on many farms. Besides yielding a regular income in the way of feathers they can readily be made a profitable fowl for the market.

Young chickens have very little storing capacity, and they need to eat very frequently. If not fed, they will suffer from long fasting and then from overeating. Feed only what they will readily eat up clean.

'Tis Easy to Feel Good.

Countless thousands have found a blessing to the body in Dr. King's New Life Pills, which positively cure Constipation, Sick Headache, Dizziness, Jaundice, Malaria, Fever and Ague and all Liver and Stomach troubles. Purely vegetable, never gripe or weaken. Only 25c at Jas; Lynch's drug store.

A Word of Encouragement.

Great things have resulted from a word of encouragement. Down in the bottom of her heart Nathaniel Hawthorne's wife may have felt a bit discouraged when her husband came home, all sad and depressed, after having received word that he had lost his position in the custom house. He did not then know where to turn for new employment and said so. But his wife bade him cheer up and write. When the disheartened man told her he could not afford to labor with financial results uncertain, she showed him the little store of gold that she had put by and told him to sit down and write the book he had been talking of wanting to write. And not long after that the world had "The Scarlet Letter," which it still prizes.—Exchange.

Different.

He—I wish I was worth a million dollars.

She—I don't like to hear you talk that way. It sounds mercenary.

He—So that I could give it all to you, dear.

She—After all, it is not money that one cares for but the things that money will buy.

He Wasn't.

Costigan—Don't say you ain't done nothin.

Madigan—And why not?

Costigan—Because that isn't good English.

Madigan—Faith, I'm glad to hear it, for by the powers, naythor am I.—Philadelphia Catholic Standard and Times.

LIKE A NEW MAN.

"I would say to all those suffering from that dread disease, rheumatism, 'Give Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure a trial and be convinced of its merits,'" is the recommendation of Mr. W. C. Switzer, Harrowsmith, Ont., a man 70 years old, who was a sufferer from sciatic rheumatism for ten years, and who never expected to find relief from this terrible disease this side of the grave. He had tried every known remedy recommended for the cure of rheumatism without obtaining relief, until he started taking Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure, of which he took six bottles, and found a perfect cure. He says he finds himself "like a new man," entirely free from pain, his appetite is good, and he sleeps well.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

FLATFISHES' EYES.

A Migration Which Takes Place After the Creatures' Birth.

Flatfishes keep their white and blind side on the muddy or sandy bottom and pretend that the upper and speckled side is a part of that bottom. This they do to avoid observation, for in spite of their awkward shape they are swallowed at sight by pertinacious enemies, to the manifest discomfort of both. A greedy cormorant curling up and attempting to swallow a plaice, which tries to be as disobliging as possible, affords an object lesson not soon forgotten on the way not to behave at mealtimes. But the bird usually succeeds in its object, and the flatfish, in spite of persistent efforts to retain its natural flatness, at last disappears down the round, elastic throat of the cormorant. With a view to avoid unpleasantnesses of this kind, soles are wont to hide themselves in the sand, keeping only their eyes above the surface to act as sentinels.

In reality the dark surface of a sole, plaice or turbot is its side and not its back. It is true that both eyes are visible, which is not the case when a mackerel or a conger is laid on its side, but this is simply owing to the fact that one eye of a flatfish has since the creature's birth passed across what we may call the bridge of its nose to keep company with the other eye.

The wandering eye begins its migration at a very early age—so early, indeed, that it is a little difficult to detect it on its journey. A plaice a fifth of an inch in length and 5 days old carries one eye on each side of its nose. When three-fifths of an inch long and about 2 months old, the left eye has crossed over to the right side. Lemon soles when one inch long or 2 months old have the left eye on the edge of the bead, but when double that size and 6 months old both eyes are found on the right side. A sole assumes its lopsided aspect by the time it has been hatched 2 months. When a turbot is half an inch in length, the right eye just begins to peep over the center arch of the bridge, at three-quarters of an inch it is half way across, and at an inch the passage is complete and the two eyes look out from the left side of the head.

The Matter of a Semicolon.

A Russian military paper tells of a lieutenant who overheard a sergeant giving a recruit a short lecture upon his duties. "The military service," said the sergeant, "requires little prayer to God and a strict attention to the orders of a superior." Somewhat astonished at this singular definition of military duty, the officer ventured to ask the sergeant for his authority, whereupon the sergeant produced an ancient volume containing the following: "The military duty requires little; prayer to God, and strict attention to the orders of a superior."

A Precaution.

Husband (going to his rich uncle's funeral)—Put a couple of large handkerchiefs into my pocket, dear. The old gentleman promised to leave me £10,000, and I shall want to shed some appropriate tears.

Wife—But suppose when the will is read you find he hasn't left you anything?

Husband—In that case you had better put in three.—London Fun.

Frozen In.

The making of postholes is an easy matter in Alaska. A mass of powder blasts out the hole in an instant, a telegraph pole is inserted, water is poured in, and the intense cold holds the pole secure in an incasement of ice.

Sterling Remedy.

Cholly Cityfeller (in country, with balky livery horse)—Beg pardon, sir, but what do you do when youah horse balks?

The Farmer—Trade him. Git up Bill!—Puck.

CONCENTRATE YOUR FORCES.

Borrow Napoleon's Idea For Use in Your Business Affairs.

This was Napoleon's brief statement of the art of war:

"The art of war consists in having always more forces than the enemy on the point where the enemy is attacked or where he attacks."

Napoleon won victories apparently as easily with an inferior as with a superior force—that is to say, Napoleon with a hundred thousand men was perfectly ready to meet another general with 200,000 men or 500,000 men. He simply took care that his men should be more numerous and better placed at the point of actual decisive struggle.

Don't think that Napoleon's view of success in battle applies only to emperors or generals or military men. Life is a battle, and successful strategy in one kind of fighting means successful strategy in another.

Napoleon, beginning his career as an ambitious, cautious young soldier, representing a republican nation intensely jealous of military glory, knew that he must not expect too great support from home—that he must win or perish.

Very often he could not equal his adversaries in numbers, but always he managed to surpass them in numbers at the particular point where the hard fighting occurred.

"To march always on the enemy at an angle and destroy his forces in detail."

Such was his successful plan. On one occasion three armies marched against him. They took different routes, stationed themselves in what they considered to be superb strategic positions. The army was almost three times as great as his own. He attacked one-third of this foolish force and destroyed it while the other two-thirds looked helplessly on. He attacked the second third and won the day. He could not have beaten the three-thirds had they combined their forces at every fighting point as he combined his.

"What has that to do with the agent trying to sell a lot of goods? What has that to do with the unemployed man looking for a job?"

If you ask one of these two questions, we can answer easily. Every man who approaches another with an object attacks him on some one point. He need not be in all ways the equal of the man whom he approaches. Let him simply be better prepared on the point of attack. If he wants work from the other man, let him be prepared to show that he can do the work and that the other man needs to have it done.

If he wants to sell merchandise, let him be thoroughly prepared to prove that his goods are the best and that they are really needed.

If the man who wants to win on a certain point will concentrate all his forces on that point, he can carry the day. Borrow Napoleon's idea. Learn to concentrate your forces.

He Wouldn't Quite Do.

"I would like," she said, marching up to the counter with a swing that was calculated both to attract attention and inspire awe, "to see the manager of this department."

The clerk, seeing that she was beautiful, smiled at her in his blandest way, felt that he ought to avail himself of any opportunity there might be to explain things to her and sweetly replied:

"I don't see him anywhere around just now. Won't I do?"

She looked up and down him a few times, permitted an expression that he didn't quite understand to overspread her features and then replied:

"No, I don't think you will. I'm his wife, and"—

But the clerk had gone to hunt for him.

are unable to enjoy the fruits of their labor because of kidney trouble brought on by the work which they are subject to. When the first sharp pain comes across the small of the back it is a warning that something has gone wrong with the Kidneys. At this time delays are dangerous and by taking Doan's Pills immediately many years of suffering may be avoided.

Here are a few proofs that Doan's Kidney Pills are a positive cure for backache:

MR. M. E. SANDERS, Fairbank, Ont., writes: I suffered intensely with pains across my back and am pleased to say that after taking one box of Doan's Pills I feel entirely cured, and can recommend them to all.

MR. G. WILLIAMS, Brantford, Ont., writes: I was suffering with a lame back, but after using three boxes of Doan's Pills the lameness entirely disappeared. He highly recommends Doan's Pills to others.

MR. R. T. ARNOLD, Bowmville, Ont., writes: I was troubled with severe pains in my back, but after taking one box of Doan's Pills felt greatly improved, after taking the third box was completely cured.

MISS ELLA F. VAN TASSELL, Tiverton, N.S., writes: I was subject to lame back, but after taking one box of Doan's Pills felt better and have not been troubled since.

MR. HAY KING, Claremont, Ont., writes: I consider Doan's Kidney Pills an excellent remedy for backache and all kidney troubles.

MARGARET A. BOUDREAU, Green Point, Ont., writes: Doan's Pills saved me from dying. Before using them I could not move on account of soreness in my back, but now I can do any kind of work. I can recommend them to any one suffering with backache.

THE WATCH CASE INDUSTRY.

Firms it the United States Declare War Against the Unions.

Newark, N. J., April 22.—In conformity with the action that is said to be practically unanimous among firms in the same line throughout the country, the two big watch case factories of Newark, the Crescent and the Churvoisier-Wilcox, informed their employes at closing time on Saturday night that when they returned on Monday they must come as non-union men, and that unless they did so they would not be allowed to go to work.

The two factories employ about 250 men each, and are among the largest in the United States. There are about twelve in the country; It is believed the local employes will, for a time at least, stand by the union and strike.

Fifty girls employed by the Crescent works have been on strike for about two weeks.

Irving Smith, general manager of the Crescent works, says he has been in communication with every watch case manufacturer in the country, and all have agreed to oust the union, except one concern, which has not been heard from.

Tried to Kill the Woman.

Chatham, April 22.—In a fit of jealousy Andrew Beck tried to take the life of Mrs. George Ellison, on Park avenue, Friday night. The couple have been living together for some time, although the woman's husband resides in the city. It appears that Beck met the woman on the street, and accused her of intending to desert him to return to her husband. She denied it, but the man worked himself into a passion and plunged the blade of a jackknife into the right arm and breast of the woman, who nearly bled to death before the necessary assistance arrived. He was arrested. Mrs. Ellison is suffering a great deal of pain, but it is thought that she will recover. The wounds are about three inches deep.

Labor Editor Pardoned.

Albany, April 22.—Governor Odell on Saturday pardoned William F. Sherlock, who is serving a three months' sentence in the New York County penitentiary for criminal libel. Sherlock is the editor of The Unionist, a labor journal, which, during the strike among the printers of a daily newspaper of New York city, attacked the foreman of that paper. For the attack Sherlock was found guilty of criminal libel and sent to prison.

Burglars at Lindsay, Ont.

Lindsay, Ont., April 22.—The shoe store of Mr. Hockin, who lately purchased the stock from Mr. W. L. White here, was burglarized Saturday night. A considerable number of the best boots were taken, with some rubbers. The full extent of the loss can't be ascertained until the stock is fully examined. The safe being unlocked was uninjured, the burglars only securing some coppers. The cash register was smashed with a pick-ax. The police are working on the case.

Dropped Dead in Guelph.

Guelph, April 22.—Robert Hyam, caretaker of the Government Buildings here, dropped dead yesterday morning while coming down stairs. Heart failure is supposed to have been the cause of death.

Coal Tax to Be Dropped.

New York, April 22.—The Times' London correspondent says: One outcome of the forthcoming debate over the budget may be confidently looked for. The export duty of coal will be dropped by the Government. It is not likely, however, that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's resignation will follow.

Earthquake at Plantaganet.

Plantaganet, Ont., April 22.—Shortly before midnight Saturday night there was a shock of earthquake felt in this vicinity. The disturbance was only of about ten seconds' duration, but was very distinct, having been observed by almost all residents.

Bank Men Suicided.

Vancouver, Wash., April 22.—Charles Brown and E. A. Canby, president and cashier respectively for the First National Bank, committed suicide Saturday night two miles from here. Their bodies were found yesterday morning.

Death of E. G. Conklin.

Winnipeg, April 22.—E. G. Conklin, ex-M. P. P., one of the leading political lights in the city a few years ago, died Saturday afternoon. He had been ill for some weeks. He was a life-long Liberal.

Royal Tourists at Singapore.

Singapore, April 21.—The Ophir arrived here at 6.30 this morning and the official landing of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York and their party was made at 10.15 o'clock.

Clergymen Murdered in New Guinea.

Sydney, N. S., April 22.—Advices received here from New Guinea say that the natives on Fly River recently murdered Rev. James Chalmers and Rev. Oliver Tomkins.

Naval Club Honors Buller.

London, April 22.—Sir Redvers Buller was the guest of the Royal Naval Club at dinner Saturday night at the Hotel Metropole.

Nervousness and Nerve.

The more nervous a man is, the less nerve he has. That sounds paradoxical—but it isn't; for nerve is stamina.

Hood's Sarsaprilla gives nerve. It tones the whole system, perfects digestion and assimilation, and is therefore the best medicine a nervous person can take.

If you get tired easily, mentally or physically, take it—it will do you good.

Re-Arrangement of Business!

HENRY & CO.

In view of an important business change now in process of arrangement, extensive alterations will be commenced in the store premises at once. Modern improvements, handsome new furnishings, store fittings and fixtures will be introduced, with the view of making this the "PALACE" Grocery and Liquor Store of the district.

On account of these changes, and the inconveniences that may be occasioned to our patrons during the progress of these improvements in the store, all shelf goods will be sold close to wholesale cost.

UNPAID ACCOUNTS

It is imperative that the books of the Messrs. Henry & Co. be closed immediately, and a satisfactory settlement of all unpaid accounts arranged for before the 1st day of May next. Early attention to this matter will save inconvenience and trouble to our patrons and ourselves.

DEWET IS DISABLED.

Cannot Recruit a Force For an Offensive Movement.

81 PRISONERS SINCE THURSDAY.

The British Also Captured 100,000 Rounds of Ammunition, Many Horses, Cattle and Wagons—Twenty Boers Have Also Surrendered — Four Canadian Colonels in the List of War Honors.

London, April 22.—A despatch to a news agency here from Harrismith on Saturday, located Gen. Dewet near Kroonstad, and says he has few followers and is unable to recruit a sufficient force to make an offensive movement. There have been numerous surrenders of starving Boers.

81 BOER PRISONERS

Taken by the British Since Thursday—Twenty Surrender.

London, April 22.—The War Office has received a despatch from Lord Kitchener reporting that since April 18 various British commanders have taken eighty-one prisoners, together with 100,000 rounds of small ammunition and many horses, cattle and wagons. Lord Kitchener reports also the surrender of twenty Boers since that date.

Boers Take a Train.

East London, Cape Colony, Friday, April 20.—A train laden with cattle and coal was captured by the Boers near Molteno, Cape Colony, last evening. The forward locomotive escaped and ran to Stormberg and returned with troops, who found the train on fire. A couple of natives were killed. The train hands had been stripped and then released.

Companions of the Bath.

London, April 22.—Among the ordinary members of the military division of the third class of the Companions of the Bath, published in The Gazette, are Col. C. W. Drury, of the Canadian Artillery, and Col. W. D. Otter, of the 1st Canadian contingent, and Lieut.-Cols. T. D. B. Evans, of the Canadian Dragoons, and S. B. Steele, of Strathcona's Horse.

BRITISH REVERSE IN CHINA.

Boxers and Robbers Defeated Indian Troops and Killed Major Browning.

Pekin, Brig.-Gen. A. J. F. Reid, commanding the 3rd Brigade of the India Imperial Service troops in China, who is now at Shan Hai Kwan, sent a company of Punjab Infantry to disperse a band of robbers in the neighborhood of Fu Ning. A force of "Boxers" and robbers, more than 1,000 strong, attacked the Indian troops, killing Major Browning and one Sepoy and wounding others. The company retreated to Fu Ning. Reinforcements have been sent from Shan Hai Kwan. The "Boxers" are apparently well armed with modern rifles.

Manchurian Railway Attacked.

London, April 22.—"Chinese rebels have again attacked the Manchurian Railway," says the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph. "They have destroyed 150 versts of the line, removed the rails and broken up the rolling stock. Moreover, they have killed nearly a whole detachment of railway guards. Troops have been sent from Amur Province to the scene of attack."

No Invasion of Shan Si.

Pekin, Friday, 8 p.m.—Dr. Mumm Von Schwartzenstein, the German Minister to China, in order to allay the excitement reigning here, and doubtless abroad, has made a statement. He declares that the expedition under Gen. Von Lessel, now proceeding westward from Pao Ting Fu, does not contemplate the invasion of Shan Si.

TOLSTOI TO THE CZAR,

Reformer Tells the Autocrat of the Russians a Thing or Two.

Vienna, April 22.—Count Tolstoi has addressed a remarkable letter to the Czar, telegrams from St. Petersburg report, courageously appealing to him to remove existing Russian grievances. In the letter Tolstoi writes:

"Why will you fight with what you can never subdue by force instead of covering your name with imperishable fame by treading the way of justice? You protect injustice, sire.

"Free the peasant from the brutal tyranny of the officials; give him equal rights with other ranks; do away with the present police system, which demoralizes society, degrades the empire and breeds spies and informers. Do away with restraints on education, so that the road to enlightenment may lie open to all. Prohibit no man from having his free belief, and let religious persecution cease."

The letter has created a deep impression and is warmly approved by educated Russians.

How a Sprain Does Hurt!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

LICENSES GRANTED.

West Peterborough Commissioners Met This Morning.

The License Commissioners for the West Riding of the County of Peterborough met this morning. All the licenses for the West Riding that had been applied for were granted with the exception of the applications of Mr. George Brown, of Bridgenorth, and Mrs. Bowman, of town. These two will be considered next Monday. It might be said that the delay in Mr. Brown's case is owing toa technicality in the manner the application was made.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Mrs. Wm. Payne is in receipt of the following resolution of condolence passed by Lansdowne Lodge No. 25 Sons of England:—

Peterborough, April 5th, 1901.

Mrs. William Payne,—

Dear Madam,—At the last regular meeting of Lansdowne Lodge No. 25, S.O.E.B.S., the following resolution was passed and ordered to be forwarded to you:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God in His infinite mercy to remove oy death from our midst your beloved husband and our brother, we feel that we cannot pass it over without extending to yourself and family our deepest heartfelt sympathy in your hour of bereavement. We therefore commend you to the Source of All Comfort, who alone can heal the broken hearted, and may He give you grace to look forward to that happy re-union, where parting never comes.

On behalf of the members of Lansdowne Lodge, No. 25, S.O.E.B.S.

Yours most respectfully,
A. KINGSCOTE, Rec.-Sec.

MEETING OF OTONABEE COUNCIL.

John Troop was present requesting that he be allowed to remove soil off the east side of the road opposite his lot. Granted on condition that he leave the road in a satisfactory condition. A communication was read re cement culverts. Mr. Weir was instructed to interview Peter Hamilton about getting up moulds for culverts. The Clerk was instructed to write to saw mill owners for tenders for about 4000 feet of 3 inch cedar plank, about half of it to be from 10 to 12 inches wide. Mr. McKay, representing the Sawyer-Massey Co., and Mr. O'Rielly, The Good Roads Machinery Co., were present, who ably presented the merits of their graders and the council fully comparing them and with information from other sources, purchased a Sawyer-Massey grader for $235.00 payable on the 26th of May next, or as soon as satisfactory to council. A trial of the grader will be made near Keene on the forenoon of Tuesday, the 14th of May, by an expert hand from the shop, at which the council will be present and will meet in the afternoon for the transaction of business. The Court of Revision will be held on Monday the 27th of May. The treasurer was instructed to pay D. McFarlane his salary for assessing and $1. for postage when he returns the assessment roll. A petition was presented, signed by all the rate-payers in the road division at Villiers, that their statute labor be commuted at 50 cents per day. The clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law in accordance with the above. On motion Robert Wright's 1900 taxes were ordered to be refunded as he is unable to work. The following accounts were passed: Jas. Wood, care of Duck Pond drain, $1; T. Mulcahey, cedar, $3.20; Jas. Rose, repairing Lock's bridge water trough and pipe, $4.50. The council adjourned to 14th of May. The Board of Health met on the same day and on application permits were granted to the following cheese factories on condition that they and their surroundings be kept in a clean and sanitary condition: Shearer, Villiers, Peterborough, Otonabee, Union and Lang. Mrs. P. Robertson made complaint that the excreta from the skating rink water closets flowed in the spring freshet onto her land near her house creating a nuisance. Left over to next meeting.

MARTER'S POSITION.

"I Cannot Run as a Conservative and Support the Leader."

MAY RUN AS AN INDEPENDENT.

Tells of an Occasion Last Session When He Declined to Be a Fool at the Behest of the Leader—Former Conservative Leader Declares There's Too Much Politics in Local Affairs.

Toronto, April 23.—To ascertain from Mr. G. F. Marter, M. P. P. for North Toronto, his version of the differences existing between himself and Mr. Whitney, a reporter waited upon him yesterday afternoon.

During the last session that has just closed, Mr. Marter said, he voted against the Opposition on two important questions. The first adverse vote was on Mr. Boyd's amendment on the best sugar factory question, the leader of the Opposition contending that the Government did not go far enough with its proposals, and that the farmer ought to reap the benefit of the country's generosity towards this industry. Mr. Marter considered that to develop the industry it was necessary to give a bounty only on the manufactured sugar, and that when the industry was started the prices given for the beets would adjust themselves. The promoters of the industry would have to pay the farmers a fair price or they would not grow the beets. Mr. Marter considered the proposal of Mr. Boyd unnecessary and altogether a foolish proposition.

"It was a question if I should make a fool of myself and I declined to do so," said Mr. Marter.

The second defection was on the vote on the pulp concessions. The first concession was granted in 1895, and at that time Mr. Whitney congratulated the Government on its being able to see things as he saw them. From that day until last year there was no word against the pulp concessions.

"Last year," said Mr. Marter, "I voted against the pulp concessions because I was a member of the Conservative caucus, but this year I remained away and was free to do as I saw fit. I believe I acted in the best interests of the province in supporting the concessions granted."

Continuing, Mr. Marter said: "I have yet to meet a man who disapproves of my course; on the other hand, I have been congratulated on the stand I have taken. I have been asked to reconsider my determination to retire, and many of my old supporters have come to me and told me that they would vote for me if I run as an Independent. I cannot run as a Conservative, and support the leader. I am now considering whether I shall retire or run as an Independent."

Mr. Marter believes that there is too much politics in Ontario legislation. He said: "I have always realized, since I have been a member of the Legislature, that there has been too much politics. The matters we have to deal with are not political questions, but have to do with the ordinary business affairs of the province, and party politics as we have them there are an injury to us instead of a benefit. My idea of a representative in the local House is that he should be responsible to his constituents and not to his party, and to be a useful member he should have a free hand."

"Do you still call yourself a member of the Conservative party?" the reporter asked.

"Certainly; in matters of policy I am with the Conservative party, but in the name of Heaven what are the matters of policy?"

THE FLOOD HAS SUBSIDED.

Pittsburg and Towns Above Are Out of Danger For the Present.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 23.—The flood is over. Notwithstanding the fact that early in the day there was every evidence of a renewal of the high water, the announcement can be made authoritatively that there is not the least danger of another rise at this point nor above, for the present, but the towns on the Ohio River below here are not yet out of danger, because of rains in the valley Sunday night and yesterday. All up-river points report the rain and snow having ceased and the rivers falling.

Not So at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 23.—The state of the river here at 6 o'clock last night was 31 feet, and rising at the rate of two inches an hour. This will mean 53 feet at 6 o'clock today, when trains will be shut out of the Grand Central Station. Owing to the inability of steamers to go under the bridges, navigation on the river is suspended.

THE NEW CONSOLS.

It Is Estimated That the £30,000,000 Offered to Public Has Been Subscribed Five Times Over.

London, April 23.—It was estimated in financial circles last evening that £30,000,000 of the new loan offered to the public has already been covered five times, and the subscription list will probably be closed to-day.

The premium on the new issue went up to 15-16 and afterwards fell to ½ per cent.

$50,000,000 TAKEN BY AMERICA.

Ten Million Pounds of the British Loan Goes to New York Firm.

New York, April 23.—The Evening Post says: "Fifty million dollars of Great Britain's new loan has been placed in the United States. The National City Bank, J. P. Morgan & Co., Baring, Magoun & Co., and the New York Life Insurance Co. comprise the syndicate that has taken the loan. American subscriptions will probably aggregate much in excess of the $50,000,000 arranged for, as the interest yield of the new consols places the loan in the front rank of high-class Government investments. It was announced yesterday afternoon that most of the loan had been placed by the syndicate."

HON. DR. BORDEN'S WARM TIME.

His Bed in Mr. Hyman's Residence, London, Took Fire.

London, Ont., April 23.—At 2 o'clock Sunday morning the Fire Department were called to the residence of C. S. Hyman, M. P., Grand avenue. They found a bed-room in the upper part of the house in flames. Chemicals were used, and, after considerable difficulty, the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the fire.

The bed-room had been occupied by Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, who was the guest of Mr. Hyman. The hon. gentleman was awakened to find his bed on fire. In the excitement Dr. Borden lost his valuable gold watch, and it was subsequently found by the firemen, destroyed by the fire. One of the firemen picked up a roll of bills on the floor of the bed-room, and another the hon. gentleman's spectacles. The loss will be considerable, as all the contents of the elegantly furnished room were practically ruined. Dr. Borden escaped injury. The supposed origin of the fire was a lamp and a lace curtain.

KITCHENER'S LATEST MESSAGE.

The Commander-in-Chief in Africa Tells What Has Been Accomplished by the British Troops Since His Last Report—Bekburg Wishes Peace—Another Boer Commander Comes In.

London, April 23.—Lord Kitchener, in a despatch to the War Office under date of Pretoria, April 21, says:

"Since my last report the British columns have captured 242 prisoners, 248 rifles, some ammunition and wagons and carts. A few men have also surrendered."

Another Force Surrenders.

Pretoria, April 22.—The force under Commandant Bokburg, composed of 106 men, with wagons and rifles, has surrendered near Middleberg, Transvaal.

A Lying Editor Punished.

Cape Town, April 22.—Mr. Albert Cartwright, the editor of The South African News, who was arrested in February on a charge of seditious and defamatory libel, in having published in his paper a statement that Lord Kitchener had secretly instructed his troops to take no prisoners, has been convicted and sentenced to one year's imprisonment.

Kitchener Warns Traitors.

Cape Town, April 22.—Lord Kitchener has issued a proclamation to the effect that any resident in the martial law districts of Cape Colony found in arms, inciting to fight, aiding the enemy or endangering by overt act the British forces, will be tried by court-martial, and be liable to the most severe penalties. Such persons may be shot.

Honors For Major Denison.

London, Ont., April 23.—Yesterday Mrs. Denison of Wolseley Barracks received a private cable despatch from England, stating that her husband, Major Septimus Denison, had been made a Companion of St. Michael and St. George for services rendered during the South African war.

MR. LAWRY HAS RETURNED.

Positively Denies That He Eloped With His First Wife.

Hamilton, April 23.—T. Harry Lawry, president of the Lawry Packing Company, of whom reports of various kinds have been current for the past 10 days, and against whom various writs have been issued by his business partners, Fowler & Co. of Chicago, Mrs. Lawry No. 2 and others returned to the city last night.

Mr. Lawry refused to be interviewed, but he has given a positive denial to the allegation that his second wife made, namely, that he eloped with his first wife, Mrs. Tuckett-Lawry, who is now in San Francisco. Mr. Lawry intends to accept personal service of the writs, which the county judge a few days ago granted permission to be served on his attorneys.

It will be remembered that shortly after he left the city, Mrs. Lawry No. 2 entered suit for $10,000 damages against Mrs. Lawry No. 1 (his divorced wife), for alienation of his affections.

Jake Gaudaur Names Conditions.

Rat Portage, Ont., April 23.—Jake Gaudaur has just returned, and when shown George Town's challenge for a race he said he would row Towns or any man in the world, and was anxious for a race to settle the matter, and to bring the would-be champion to time he makes the following condition for a race, as he considers it his privilege to give all aspirants for the title of champion oarsman of the world an opportunity:

"To make a race with me, I hereby agree to row any man in the world for the championship and a side bet of $2500 a side; the race to be three miles, with a turn, and to take place at Rat Portage between Aug. 16 and 20. As an evidence of good faith upon my part, I have to-day deposited $500 with the Imperial Bank here, and anyone wishing to make a match can cover the amount when the preliminaries would be arranged. Any oarsman would be welcome, but Towns or Rumohr, who have been doing considerable talking, are preferred. The date of the race must be fixed before June 1.

"(Signed) J. G. Gaudaur."

To Adopt Bisley Methods.

Ottawa, April 23.—The council of the Dominion Rifle Association have decided to adopt the Bisley positions and targets for the annual matches. There is also talk of introducing two important reforms. One is to admit to the matches marksmen who have served nine years in the active militia and can produce a certificate of honorable discharge. The other is to introduce a match under active service conditions. Those who compete in this will have rifles placed in their hands with which they are totally unfamiliar, and no aids to shooting, such as painting sights, etc., will be permitted.

This is the deadly season. Wet feet and chills mean colds, grippe, pneumonia, with consumption as a possible result. Your safety lies in using DR. SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE. A few doses will stop you coughing. You will be completely cured in 24 hours. It heals and strengthens the sore lungs. 25 cents a bottle. Money returned if you are dissatisfied.

PROMISE AND PERFORMANCE.

"Events," Ottawa, flippantly says that, in regard to public matters of importance, Premier Ross is much better at promising than at performing.

Well, let us see. Taking the last session of the Ontario Legislature as our field of inquiry, Mr. Ross promised that amendments would be made to the Assessment Act for the purpose of rendering more effective the government and powers of municipal corporations. Mr. Ross, in bestowing important optional powers of taxation on the municipalities, took a long step in advance, thereby partially, at least, fulfilling his promise respecting the matter in question.

He also promised in pre-session speeches, to see that the volunteers who served in South Africa as well as the volunteer militia of Ontario, who served on the frontier in 1866 and 1870, should receive a grant of 160 acres of land each. Mr. Ross fulfilled his promised part to the letter by placing the promised legislation on the statute book.

Mr. Ross promised the men of light and leading in educational matters that legislation would be introduced for financially promoting, at the fountainhead, the university, the maintenance and extension of the science and other departments of education in Ontario. The promised legislation was duly introduced and made law.

Mr. Ross, in various platform speeches, promised a measure for the financial encouragement of the manufacture of beet root sugar, as calculated to help the farmer and give work to Canadian workmen. The promise was duly crystallized into an act of the Legislature during the last session.

Mr. Ross, in numerous addresses, promised to facilitate transportation throughout the Province by granting one million dollars for the improvement of public highways, maintaining that it was of great importance to the farmers of the Province that they should be able to reach, at all seasons of the year, the markets at which they dispose of their products, with reasonable comfort and as cheaply as possible. The promised legislation in this regard was enacted into law during the session just closed.

Mr. Ross, in various speeches, promised to connect the railway system of Ontario by means of railways entering New Ontario, with the view of thereby developing the northern part of the Province, and the interests both of New and Old Ontario. So completely during the recent session, did Mr. Ross carry out the pledge made, that the charter in favour of the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway was carried triumphantly in the House; and like the Tuscans who could scarce forbear to cheer their opponents, even Opposition speakers and journals were compelled to pay tribute to the excellent bargain in the interest of the Province made by the Government of which Mr. Ross is head.

Now, here are six matters of importance, all of which were promised by Mr. Ross, and all carried out in legislative acts, the first partially, and the rest completely, according to promise, and all in one session. So far from Events been correct in asserting that Premier Ross has been better at promising than at performances, we challenge Events—and the search may include every civilized Parliament in the world—to watch the record we have given of important promises fulfilled in one short session of a legislative body.—London Advertiser.

DOES NOT DISAPPOINT.

The New Discovery for Catarrh Seems to Possess Remarkable Merit.

A new catarrh cure has recently appeared which so far as tested has been remarkably successful in curing all forms of catarrh, whether in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, or in stomach and liver.

The remedy is in tablet form, pleasant and convenient to take and no special secrecy is maintained as to what it contains, the tablet being a scientific combination of Guaiacol, Encalyptol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar valuable and harmless antiseptics.

This safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Whether the catarrh is located in the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and trachea from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, coughing, hawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer.

Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration in some cases to such an extent as to destroy the nose entirely, and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. Nasal catarrh gradually extends to the throat and bronchial tubes, and very often to the stomach, causing that very obstinate trouble, catarrh of the stomach.

Catarrh is a systematic poison, inherent in the blood, and local washes, douches, salves, inhalers and sprays can have no effect on the real cause of the disease. An internal remedy which acts upon the blood is the only rational treatment, and Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the safest of all internal remedies, as well as the most convenient and satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

Dr. Eaton recently stated that he had successfully used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in old chronic cases, even where ulceration had extended so far as to destroy the septum of the nose. He says: "I am pleasantly surprised almost every day by the excellent results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. It is remarkable how effectually they remove the excessive secretion and bring about a healthy condition of the mucous membranes of the nose, throat and stomach."

All druggists sell complete treatment of the Tablets at 50 cents, and and a little book giving the symptoms and causes of the various forms of cattarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart & Co., Marshall, Mich.

Hamilton's First Drowning Case.

Hamilton, April 19.—(Special.)—The first drowning accident of the season here occurred about 5.30 this evening. Mr. Waddell, a youth, whose home was at 34 West Simcoe-street, was the victim. He and two companions, William and Frank Devonport, were in an old scow. They rowed out some distance, when the tub sprung a leak and sank. Some persons noticed their predicament from Bastien's boat house, and rowed out and rescued Waddell's companions. Waddell sank before help arrived. The body was recovered, and an inquest will be held to-morrow by Coroner White.

THE PUBLIC WORKS.

Debate on the Question of Contract or Day Labor.

HON. MR. TARTE'S VIEWS STATED

The Minister of Public Works Says That the Minister Should Have the Choice—The Resolution Anent the Queen's Death Acknowledged—Votes for Dredging and Other Ontario Works Passed.

Ottawa, April 23.—The relative advantages of the day-labor and the contract system was the subject for discussion for a large portion of the afternoon session of the House yesterday, Mr. Ganong, Mr. Clancy and Dr. Sproule complaining because the Minister of Public Works was carrying out a public work by the day-labor system. Mr. Tarte explained that he invited tenders, but received none, and justified the system as economical and in the public interest. Mr. Sutherland supported the Minister of Public Works, and took advantage of the opportunity to read a letter from the contractor for the St. Thomas Drill Hall, contradicting certain statements made by Mr. Ingram in a recent debate.

Resolution Acknowledged.

At the opening of the House Sir Wilfrid Laurier laid upon the table a message from His Excellency, forwarding the despatch from the Colonial Office, acknowledging the receipt of the resolution passed by the Canadian Parliament, in reference to the death of Queen Victoria.

In answer to Mr. Clarke, Dr. Borden stated that the Department of Militia was satisfied that the pay of the men of C Battery was authorized by the War Office at Imperial rates.

The House went into supply upon the estimates of the Department of Public Works.

Question of Day Labor.

Mr. Ganong objected to the work on Campobella wharf being done by day labor.

Mr. Jabel Robinson held that it was quite right for the Government to do work by day labor instead of letting it to contractors, whenever it was in the interests of the country to do so, because they were supposed to look after the interests of the people as a whole. But it would be an iniquity if the foreman received instructions to employ only political friends of the Government.

Mr. Tarte's Reply.

Mr. Tarte—I have never done that. No such instructians were ever issued by me. Illustrative of his contention that public tender was not always the best, Mr. Tarte said that he had received an offer from last year's contractor to supply the coal for the public buildings at $5.-60, the same price as last year. Out of deference, however, to the contention for the principle of public tender being observed, and against his private judgment, he advertised for tenders, and the lowest was $6.-20 per ton, a loss of $2,000 incurred for the sake of following out a principle. He urged that some latitude ought to be given to a Minister, who should not always be looked upon as a thief.

Mr. Richardson sympathized with the Minister, but suggested that there was sufficient evidence of the existence of a coal combine to justify him in refusing to accept either tender, and to endeavor to buy the coal required either in Toronto or Montreal.

Dr. Sproule supported the contention that the contract system should be followed.

Mr. Clancy charged that the day-labor system was operated for political advantage, and that only Liberals could obtain employment upon public works under it.

Mr. Tarte replied that he would always give his political friends the preference. That had always been the policy of the Conservative party to a much greater extent than it had been under the present Government. There were dozens of Conservative employes who were retained in the departments by this Government, although they voted for the Opposition at the last election and made no secret of it; but they were free citizens, and he had no intention of interfering with them so long as they did their work and did not make themselves offensive partisans.

Ontario Votes Passed.

The votes which passed for Ontario were as follows: Cobourg—Repairs to pier and dredging, $5,-000. Collingwood—Harbor improvements, $25,000. Colpoy's Bay—Extension of pier, $1,400. Goderich harbor—Dredging, $7,000. Goderich harbor—Reconstructing of breakwater and repairs to piers, $2,000. General repairs and improvements to harbor, river and bridge works, $15,000. Hawkesbury—Dredging, $6,000. Lake Temiscaming—Wharf, $1,000. Lancaster—Wharf, $3,500. Leamington—Pier, $16,000. Meaford harbor—Dredging and pile work, $41,000. Midland harbor—Dredging, $8,500. Owen Sound harbor—Dredging and extension of pile protection works, $8,500. Point Pelee Island—Wharf, $2,500. Port Burwell—Improvements of harbor, $23,000. Port Hope—Repairs to pier, $3,700; dredging, $5,000. Providence Bay—Wharf, $1,500. Rondeau—Harbor dredging, $5,000; to complete repairs to pier, $10,000. Sheguiandah Landing—Pier, $3,300. South Nation River—Towards improvements at the pitch-off, $5,000. Toronto harbor—Works at eastern entrance, $22,000. Trenton—Dredging channel, Murray Canal to Central Ontario Railway dock, $5,000. Wiarton—Landing pier, $4,500. Total, $230,200. The remainder of the public works estimates for harbors and dredging were passed, and the House adjourned at 11.15 p. m.

A TOUCH.

A living coal, and with its glow
It touched another coal, when, lo,
The dark form into radiance grew,
And light and cheer beamed forth anew.

A loving heart, and with its love
It touched another heart, which strove
With adverse waves on troubled sea,
When oars were plying heavily,
And, lo, through rifted clouds Hope smiled,
And Love the weariness beguiled.

That living coal be mine to glow,
That living heart be mine to show,
While earth has sorrowing hearts that wait
The opening of Redemption's gate.

HOTEL KEYS.

They Are Carried Off by Guests Who Forget to Give Them Up.

"Our key fitter is one of the most important men on our staff," said the manager of a large New Orleans hotel. "He is kept busy every day of the year, and sometimes he is so rushed with work that he has to call in an assistant. It is no exaggeration to say that he averages from 25 to 30 keys a day."

"But I would suppose," remarked a listener, "that even a big hotel would acquire a sufficiency of keys in the course of time."

"So it does," replied the manager, "if the public would only let it keep 'em; but it won't. It would astonish anybody not in the business to know how many guests walk off with their room keys when they leave the house. When the average man gets ready to depart, he packs his valise, locks his door and then goes direct to the cashier's wicket to settle his bill. When that formality is attended to, he is generally in a rush to get to the depot and is quite apt to forget that he has omitted to return his key at the clerk's desk. That, at any rate, is the way I account for so much absentmindedness on the subject. The clerk doesn't discover that the key is gone until the chambermaid applies for it to clean up the room, which is probably an hour or two after the guest has taken his departure. Then nothing remains but to call in the key fitter and tell him to prepare a duplicate as quickly as he can.

"Formerly the hotels tried to guard against this innocent kleptomania," the manager went on, "by having their keys made very large and cumbersome and attaching them to enormous metal tags, the idea being to render it impossible to put them in one's pocket. To that end they were probably a success, but they were such an unmitigated nuisance otherwise, and guests complained so bitterly at the annoyance of handling them, that they were generally discarded. You will still find the plan popular in the country, however, and in small houses that have no locksmiths on the premises, and only a week or so ago I dropped into a quaint little establishment where the keys were attached to brass disks fully as large as dessert plates and serrated at the edge like circular saws.

"At present most of the big hotels use a modest metal check, stamped with their address and a request to forward through the mails if accidentally carried off. All that is necessary is to attach a 3 cent stamp to the tag and drop the key in the nearest letter box. Incidentally I may say that about one man in 50 takes the trouble. But, aside from the room keys carried away by guests, a vast number of all kinds disappear through the mysterious channels to oblivion that exist in all large hotels. They vanish, and that's the end of it—keys to furniture, wardrobe keys, closet keys, bathroom keys, keys to the help's lockers, padlock keys from the outside storerooms, big coal bunker keys, gate keys and keys of every imaginable size, shape and style. They are continually missing and have to be replaced. If a lost key turns up later, the duplicate is carefully ticketed and laid away in a drawer set aside for that purpose. But they seldom turn up. They have gone to the limbo of lost pins, last season's birds' nests and the snows of yesteryear."

Arabella Keneally's plea of not guilty of writing "An English Woman's Love Letters" is that she "considers inexpression the most eloquent expression of love and reserve its daintiest attribute."

Miss Melinda Hall, an esteemed resident of Bath, N. Y., died recently at the age of 80 years. She is claimed to have been the oldest woman compositor in the state and probably the first one. She worked on case on the Bath Courier for 40 years.

The Rev. Mrs. Maggie Van Cott, the revivalist, is 71 years of age, although she does not look to be over 50, and she is a very remarkable woman in many ways, both physically and mentally. She has been preaching the past 40 years and has traveled all over the United States.

Mrs. H. A. W. Taber has protested against the suggestion that the legislature of Colorado make an appropriation to pay the expenses of the funeral of her late husband, the United States senator. She says she will have $50,000 as soon as his estate is settled and can easily pay the bills herself.

While Mrs. P. T. Bulger of Portland, Or., was traveling on a train toward Spokane, Wash., recently she gave birth to twins. The elder, a boy, was born in Oregon and the other, a girl, in the state of Washington an hour later. This is the first case on record where twins were born in different states.

Mlle. Chauvan, the young French lady barrister, has made her first appearance in the Paris courts. She appeared as counsel for a pointsman who was charged with neglect of duty in connection with the railway accident at Chalsy-le-Roi. She argued that the amnesty law applied to the case, and the court decided in her favor.

Your Footing for Spring

Fine Weather and its Shoe Possibilities.

We're done with Winter—six months, and enough. Spring and summer are now before us. This opens the possibility of shedding our heavy garments and footwear that have done us good service, and donning something lighter and easier. It's these climatic facts and their application that makes us keep two stocks of Shoes, that we may suit the needs of customers for the two seasons.

Just now we are putting before you Summer Shoes. The heavier goods are sent aloft—not so far up that they cannot be reached if needed, but crowded out by their timely successors. So now for summer.

Here's a few seasonable lines—and the prices tell their cost, the cost well represents good value.

Men's Dongola Kid Balmoral, Goodyear Welt..... $3.00

Men's Box Calf Balmorals, in Tans and Blacks, Goodyear Welt.. $3.00

Men's Chocolate Dongola Kid Balmorals, extra value..... $2.50

Men's Dongola Kid Balmorals.. $2.00

Ladies' Dongola Kid, button, Goodyear Welt..... $2.75 and $3.00

Ladies' Dongola Laced Shoes, in a variety of qualities, and at..... ..... $1.00, $1.25, $1.35 and $1.50

All our Spring Goods are from the very latest lasts. The styles are correct and exactly what is being sold in the large cities, but few city stocks show the range that is seen in our store.

Eat All You Can, Mother!

An old man whose hair and beard were cut in a chaste, rural design appeared in one of the table d'hote restaurants the other day. He had his wife with him. That was more than the old lady could say of her hearing. She was almost stone deaf, which gave everybody a chance to find out what splendid lungs her husband had.

The meal was luncheon. The price which the old man was asked after he had ordered two meals was 75 cents.

"Seventy-five cents!" he exclaimed. "You don't mean apiece?"

"Yes, sir."

"Gracious!"

He thought it over a minute or two. Then he looked at his wife as if considering whether he should try to get the dreaded news past the old lady's tympanum. Evidently he gave it up. But he did what he could. When the first course came on, he leaned over and shouted in her ear:

"Eat all you can, mother! I'll tell you why after awhile!"

Got His Tips Direct.

One of the shrewdest serving men who has come to light lately is a waiter in the employ of Whittaker Wright, a London millionaire and director of the London and Globe Finance corporation. Mr. Wright not long ago discovered that the waiter was practically running a syndicate on the strength of remarks relating to the mining transactions the millionaire let fall at home. From the day that Mr. Wright discovered it that syndicate began to experience a series of misfortunes, and from that hour forth the face of the domestic, formerly so bright, became more and more careworn. The ultimate fate of the syndicate was what might have been expected.—M. A. P.

C.O.F. MEMBERS INCREASING.

ORGANIZER CORNOTT DOING EFFECTIVE WORK IN TOWN.

Court Littlejohn Gets a "Lift" and Votes a Resolution of Thanks.

At the regular meeting of Court Littlejohn, No. 92, Canadian Order of Foresters, held on Monday evening. Four new candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Robin Hood fraternity. These, with two previously initiated, and four more applications received, will add ten to the membership roll of this Court, through the efforts of Organizer Cornott. Besides these, Court Peterborough and Court Langton have also added a number of new members, with good prospects of more to follow. The following complimentary resolution was passed by Court Littlejohn in appreciation of Bro. Cornott's services :—

Moved by Bro. R. Morrison, seconded by Bro. W. J. Gordon,—That, Court Littlejohn desires to record its hearty appreciation of Bro. Cornott's services in securing additional new members to our roll, and we take pleasure in tendering to Bro. Cornott a unanimous vote of thanks for his assistance and advice, and to congratulate him on the success of his work in Peterborough on behalf of the Order generally.

Bro. Cornott expressed the pleasure it gave him to secure a standing vote of thanks from the Court. He said he had been only discharging the duties imposed upon him by the superintendent of the organization as faithfully as he possibly could in Peterborough. He had not accomplished all he desired, largely from the fact that when he came to Peterborough he found there were three good Courts, one with a membership of over 300, and two with a membership of over 100 each. With three such Courts as these, it was felt by some Foresters in town that there was really no need for an organizer here and quite a number of the brethren were somewhat indifferent as to the success of his work. This was a very serious mistake—the fact that all three courts had added comparitively few members during the past three years showed the necessity for stirring up the members to a sense of their duty. There could be no greater danger to the Order than the fancied security a Court may have in its large membership roll, and laying on its oars without making persistent efforts to bring in "new blood." There was far more real strength imparted to the Order by a small Court struggling to increase its membership than by a Court with a large number of members that concluded it was strong enough, and didn't need to bother any more about new members. He hoped that Court Littlejohn would help to keep up the C. O F. record by keeping up an active campaign in the canvass for new members. "Depend upon it," he said, "the present great strength of the Canadian Order of Foresters could only be maintained by keeping up the same rapid and constant additions to its membership in the future as had marked its career in the past." He again thanked the Court for their very kind appreciation of his services. He had found those of the members with whom he came in contact courteous and obliging, and willing to co-operate with him as much as their time would permit. Few of the members were able to leave their work, and come out with him in the canvass, and so he had to do the best he could, without much assistance.

ODDFELLOWSHIP.

A Field Night Arranged for Next Monday Evening.

On Monday evening next the local members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows will assemble to celebrate the anniversary of the formation of the parent organization.

It appears that there are quite a large number of members of both Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges, who have not yet taken their second and third degrees, and these members will be put through their final facings on Monday evening, the Otonabee Lodge team putting on the second degree and the Peterborough team the third.

Of course a spread follows and altogether an evening of most pleasant enjoyment is anticipated.

MARRIED THIS MORNING.

Nuptials of Mr. W. E. Baker to Miss K. Lynch.

The marriage took place at 8 o'clock this morning, at St. Peter's, of Miss Katherine Lynch, youngest daughter of the late John Lynch, of Peterborough, to Mr. W. E. Baker, of Lindsay. The ceremony was performed by the Venerable Archdeacon Casey. The bride was attended by her sister Miss Margaret Lynch and Mr. F. Killen of Lindsay acted in the capacity of best man.

A sumptuous wedding breakfast was served by Long Bros., at the residence of the bride's mother, No. 4 Elm street, and the newly married couple left on the noon G.T.R. train on their honeymoon trip, followed by the best wishes of their host of friends for a prosperous and happy future.

MRS. BECK WRITES.

Thanks The People For Their Kindness.

Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards to-day received a letter from Mrs. Beck, in England, mother of the late Harry Beck, who was killed some time ago, in which she expresses her sincere gratitude for the kind manner in which the people of Peterborough looked after the interment of deceased's remains and particularly to the employers and employees of the Canadian General Electric Co.

Lt.-Col. Edwards, it might be stated, is looking after the personal estate of the deceased.

A STRONG COMBINATION.

The Lakefield News Strengthening Up Its Staff.

Mr. J. W. Ridpath, proprietor of the Lakefield "News," has taken into partnership Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse. They should make a good team, with Mr. Ridpath as business manager and Mr. Dela Fosse as editor. Mr. Dela Fosse is a clever writer, and will bring the editorial department of the News up to a very high standard, while Mr. Ridpath will see that the typographical department is properly attended to. The Examiner wishes them every success.

LADIES WANT A COURT

In Connection With the Y.W.C.A.—May Get Same.

Lawn tennis is a game that during the past couple of years has received a great boom in Peterborough, and each year sees a new club, or several of them spring into existance. The formation of a tennis club in connection with the Y.M.C.A., is likely to lead to the formation of a like organization in connection with the Y. W. C. A. The young ladies it is alleged are clamoring for a tennis court, and it is understood that their claims are receiving due consideration. It is said that there is sufficient ground near the Y.W.C.A. to make at least one court.

DAN SPENCE MEMORIAL.

The Committee Will Meet on Thursday Evening Next.

A meeting of the Dan Spence Memorial Committee has been called for Thursday evening in the Town Council Chamber, and all members should be present.

Originally it was intended that the funds raised should be used for the purchase of an ambulance, provided a sufficient amount was raised.

Mr. McHarrie, manager of the Bank of Commerce, who is treasurer of the fund, states that the account has to its credit $413.90. As this is not enough money to purchase an ambulance it is probable that some other fitting memorial will be selected.

While the meeting called is designated as one for the committee still doubtless all who are interested will be welcome.

In connection with the discussion the fact will have to be taken into consideration that Mr. Aaron Comstock has already purchased an ambulance and there would hardly be enough calls for ambulances to keep two busy.

WANTS DAMAGES.

W. J. Morrison, a Member of the Second Contingent.

The Toronto Mail and Empire says: "W. J. Morrison, a member of the Second Contingent, commenced an action at Osgoode Hall yesterday against the Canadian General Electric Co. He claims unstated damages for serious and probably permanent injuries he received while working on a factory in Peterborough on February 9th last."

The action aries out of an accident caused by the scaffolding giving away, when the recent new addition was being erected.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

A meeting of the executive of the baseball club is called for to-night at the Oriental at 8 o'clock.

ADJOURNED VESTRY MEETING

Mr. W. E. Conway Chosen People's Warden.

Encouraging Reports Received From the Various Societies of the Church.

The adjourned Vestry Meeting of St. John's congregation was held last night, the attendance being much larger than at the Easter meeting.

The financial report for the past year was received from the auditors and fully discussed and adopted.

Reports were received of an interesting nature of the work of the Chancel Guild, read by Mrs. E. Brown, the Woman's Auxiliary, read by Mrs. John Manning, and from the Sunday School, read by Mr. W. H. Walkie, showing that these different branches of the church were in a good and healthy condition.

In moving their reception Mr. Dennistoun expressed his admiration of the clean and businesslike way in which the ladies had managed their finances.

The Woman's Auxiliary report showed $250 had been collected for dioceaan missions alone, and correspondingly large sums for missions in the Northwest and in Japan. A special paragraph testified the appreciation of the society of the receipt of fifty dollars from a sister society in the George street Methodist church for mission work in India. This money had been forwarded and would be expended for work in Tinnevelley.

The church guild reported that they had added several articles of furniture to the church during the year and had given the usual tender care to the sanctuary and the belongings. The different reports as they were read gave much satisfaction and elicited words of praise for those doing faithful work in the various departments.

The following committee was appointed to carry out at the earliest practicable date the work of decorating and improving the church: The churchwardens, and Messrs. J. Belcher, H. Long, A. P. Poussette, P. Campbell and McF. Wilson.

It was resolved to take steps to secure the full payment of the Widows' and Orphans' Assessment Fund, for which $84 was already on hand, out of $115.

The most important event of the evening was the election of a warden to succeed Mr. F. D. Kerr. After considerable discussion the meeting came to the conclusion that Mr. W. E. Conway was the man whose services should be secured. Complimentary references were made to Mr. Conway's success in commercial life, and to his other qualifications for the position. These the chairman of the meeting fully endorsed, and by a rising vote the position was offered to Mr. Conway. Though stating at first that on account of the claims upon his time he could not accept, he assented to the urgent call made upon him, on the condition that those who made the call should give him a hearty and steady support during his term of office. He felt sure that with the general co-operation which was thus assured, they would be able to advance the interests of the church.

The meeting adjourned, inspired with much hopefulness for the future.

TROUBLE AT THE LIFT LOCK.

The Rain Yesterday Evening Did Considerable Damage.

Residents in the vicinity of the lift lock in Ashburnham were alarmed last night by the long, piercing blow of a steam whistle, not unlike the whistle of a steam yacht. It was the night watchman on the canal, who called in vain for help. The heavy rains of yesterday evening proved rather disastrous to the work in and around the lift lock. The flow of water prevented the pumps from working and the embankments commenced to slide. Considerable earth was washed into the lock and the foundations from under certain of the machinery, suffered. The damage done will require considerable time to repair.

AS TO "PETERBOROUGH BEN."

The Dog is Still in Montreal—Mr. Taylor's Letter.

Mr. R. S. Davidson has received the following letter from Mr. F. W. Taylor, of Montreal, one of the inspectors of the bank of that name, and formerly of the local bank:

Dear Mr. Davidson.—I am in receipt of your letter of the 20th inst, referring to the dog called "Peterborough Ben." I am making enquiries from Lord Strathcona as to the disposal of the dog.. In the meantime he is in my charge.

F. W. TAYLOR.

NOTES FROM THE CANAL.

Navigation Will Soon be Open to Norwood Road.

With the opening of spring the work on the local section of the Trent Valley Canal is becoming quite active.

Lock No. 6 at Little Lake, is now in a finished condition, and the work of levelling the ground around about is in progress.

At the Lift Lock an office has been erected for the accommodation of the departmental staff. The office is situated east of the lift lock.

In about a month's time navigation will be open from the upper lakes to the Norwood road, just a short distance above the lift lock. At the present time a guard gate is situated at Warsaw road, and navigation is open to that point, but a guard gate is being made to be placed at the Norwood road, and will be put into position as soon as possible. This will enable steamers to bring down all kinds of freight this fall.

STREET LIGHTING.

What It Costs in Some of the Large American Cities as Compared With Peterborough.

The question of street lighting is occupying the attention of several of the American cities, and with varying results. Perhaps the most concise and critical report upon the lighting conditions of the day is that of Mr. Barnett, of Des Moines, who made an extended trip through several states, and writes voluminously upon the subject.

The city he found to be the poorest lighted is St. Louis, which has a contract with a private corporation at $74.95 per lamp, per year, and is doing so badly by it as to be disposed to surrender its bond and contract.

The best illuminated city is Detroit, which owns its own plant and has a three years' experience, the cost per arc lamp ascending from $87.40 the first year, to $89.42 the second, and $94.00 the third. The increase is accounted for on the ground of repairs, and the first superintendent of the plant lost his position, it is said, because he estimated that in ten years the cost per lamp would be $120.

Buffalo is furnished light by a private company, and the service is pronounced first-class. The former cost of light was $117 per lamp. Now it is $109 each, for 2,300 lamps, and when the number is increased to 2,500 the price will be $100.

Chicago has a divided service. A company supplies some of the light used at $145 per lamp per year—for every night—and the city has a plant which lights a part of the city, all the year, for $167.78 per lamp.

A contemporary extracts from a government report, however, presumably that of the department of labour, Washington, the facts applying to thirty-four cities, which gives the cost of street lighting, all night, and has it run from $61 to $164 per lamp, or an average of $104 per lamp. Candle power, one hour for 1c., 576. In seventeen cities, which own their own plants, and which allow for all charges for maintenance, interest, and depreciation, the cost is from $38 to $100 per lamp per year; candle power, one hour for 1c., 914—better light at a much smaller cost.

Local circumstances have to be considered, and a significant fact is that only one of the seventeen cities referred to required the outfit and franchise of a private company. The sixteen other places installed new plants at a cost which was limited to the value of the machinery and the labour in erecting it.

It is evident from this statement that Peterborough stands in a better position in regard to its lighting than any of these American cities, although it is much smaller, and there is not the opportunity for profit that would exist in a large contract. Light is supplied the town by the Peterborough Light & Power Co. at the rate of 80 lights for $65 a light. All over 80 cost only $60 each.

CEREAL WORKS NOTES.

Men Operating With Churn Drills in the River Bed and Along the Bank.

The Cereal Company is experiencing great difficulty in securing a drill with which to bore in the bed of the river in order to ascertain the depth of the table rock beneath the level of the water. There is not a drill to be secured in the town or county, and one has to be ordered from Toronto. In the meantime churn or pipe drills are being operated by hand, and some of the soundings have been taken. The water will have to drop considerably to allow the work to be completed, however, and give the engineers a chance to figure on the levels for the big concrete dam, which is to span the river.

A number of shafts, preparatory to the taking of the levels, are being sunk to-day along the river bank just below the dam.

In some places in the river, especially along the west bank, there is from ten to fifteen feet of earth, etc., to be bored through before table rock is struck. It is shallower on the east side.

KILLING DOGS.

It Costs a Lakefield Man Just $60—Rev. Mr. Campbell's Loss.

This has been a very bad season for the owners of valuable dogs, and in fact for the dogs themselves. Mr. Charles Amyes, of Lakefield, owned, perhaps one of the most valuable hounds that could anywhere be found. A certain resident of the village, for apparently no reason whatever, shot the dog and ended his bright future. The slayer of the hound was threatened with an action for damages and it cost him $60 to settle the matter, although the dog it is said was worth more.

Rev. Mr. Campbell, of Lakefield, owned a valuable Collie. It followed him to Peterborough one day last week and he finally lost him. Later he was found in a field in the north west end of the town with a bullet hole through him.

IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL.

The Chief Received a Message This Morning.

This morning Chief Roszel received the following communication from Toronto:

"Chief of Police, Peterborough:

"Kindly notify Mrs. Parvineau that her son is dangerously ill in the New York Hospital.

"F. H. THOMPSON."

After making inquiries the chief found that Mrs. Parvineau has not been a resident of Peterborough for eight or nine years. The message was forwarded to her present address No. 326 McWilliams street, Winnipeg.

LARGE FUNERAL,

The Late Harry Rutherford of Otonabee.

One of the largest funerals that has ever taken place in the Township of Otonabee, was that of the late Harry Rutherford, whose remains were taken from his late residence, Zion, Otonabee, yesterday afternoon, and interred in Little Lake Cemetery. The late Mr. Rutherford, it will be remembered, died in the Nicholls hospital Saturday from the effects of an accident.

The services at both the house and the grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. McCauley, of Keene, and the township's most prominent residents turned out to pay their last tribute of respect to deceased.

The bearers were Messrs. W. Hunter, S. Rutherford, T. Graystock, N. Swan, J. Kindred and J. Dickson.

OBITUARY.

(Havelock Standard.)

The many friends of Mr. Wm. Reynolds will be extremely grieved to hear of the death of his beloved wife and little three days' old daughter, which sad event occurred on Monday morning. The young couple have only been married about two years and a half, and the brief visit of the little one is the only fruit of their wedlock. Anæmia was the direct cause of their demise.

Mrs. Reynolds' maiden name was Ida Batchellor, and she was held in the highest love and esteem by her relatives and friends.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon, service being held in the Methodist church by the Rev. J. C. Bell, the interment taking place at the Maple Grove cemetery. The funeral obsequies were conducted by the I.O.O.F., the A.O.U.W. and the I.O.F., of which lodges the sorrowing husband and father is a member. Two pallbearers were selected from each lodge, Messrs. Edw. Fennell and Thos. Patterson, representing the I. O. O. F.; Messrs. F. C. McMaster and E. Chapman the A.O.U.W., and Messrs. Alex. Rose and John Garratt, the I.O.F.

The following societies contributed beautiful floral emblems: The Oddfellows, three links; the Foresters a pillow, and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, a broken pillar.

Mr. Reynolds has the most sincere sympathy of the community in this deep affliction.

PERSONAL.

Miss Dick, of the Nicholls Hospital, is visiting at her home in Toronto.

THE PISKY GLEANER.

From candle doubling to candle teaning
I labor at the weary gleaning;
The scattered ears I gather up,
Eat of your bread, drink of your cup,
And yet no ray of light can guide you
To guess a Pisky sits beside you,
You of your wisdom overweening.

I only of my wayward clan
Accept the food and wage of man;
I labor in your fields all day
Whence my own folk have fled away;
No voices call me to the moor
When at the noon the heat grows sore;
I bear my burden as I can.

My fairy birthright I have lost,
And yet I never grudge the cost,
Because of one who gleans beside me,
Whose dark brown cloud of hair shall hide me
From sorrow, who goes seeking ever
For hearts to break and hands to sever;
The running brooks for her I crossed.

Thresholds of human homes I passed;
My lot among you mortals cast,
Because a gleaner's voice was kind,
A gleaner's laugh rang down the wind
Like a bird's music among leaves.
I'll bind a whole green shire of sheaves
If she will love me at the last.

—Nora Hopper in Cornhill.

BEATRICE'S DILEMMA.

How She Dodged a Visitor and Got Her Sister Into Trouble.

It is manifestly impossible for a girl to be dressed to receive company every minute of the 24 hours. That was Beatrice's only excuse when it was all over. She sat on the big couch, which is the joy of the living room, busily sewing covers on to sofa cushions. Her attire was a kimono dressing jacket and a muslin petticoat, and her hair was held up in a precarious state by one pin. She was hurrying to get through and dress before callers came. It was under these circumstances that she heard the new and stupid maid usher into the hallway of the flat John Robertson Bellamy, who is all that his name implies. If given her choice between instant death or meeting Mr. Bellamy as she then appeared, Beatrice would have gone to the stake cheerfully. There was not the ghost of a chance to escape. In another instant Mr. Bellamy would set foot in the living room, for flats are small. With a beseeching glance at Geraldine, who was sitting in an armchair paralyzed at the situation, Beatrice swooped aside the cushions and—the big couch with no back being providentially set across an angle of the room—tumbled down back of it in a tumultuous heap.

Mr. Bellamy was somewhat alarmed at the agitated welcome he received from Geraldine. Never had he suspected her of being anything but eminently calm and sensible.

"No, Beatrice is not in, I am sorry to say," fibbed Beatrice's hysterical sister tremendously. "She was so sorry to break her engagement with you, but circumstances made it necessary for her—er—to"— Just here Geraldine's invention gave out wildly, and she sat staring at John Robertson Bellamy, who stared back in polite but ruffled attention.

And then Beatrice sneezed. Any one who has ever had the good fortune to hear her hearty, whole souled, resounding sneeze under ordinary circumstances can realize what it was like, intensified by the hollow behind the couch. The dust on the floor had brought about the catastrophe. It sounded like an amateur dynamite explosion.

It remained for Geraldine to put the finishing touch. "Ha, ha!" she laughed fiercely. "Ha, ha! My new pet Yorkshire has such a funny sneeze, hasn't he?" And she glared fiercely at poor Mr. Bellamy as though defying him to deny the paradox of laying that huge and startling noise at the door of a small and shivering toy dog.

Mr. Bellamy was on his feet, and he looked worried. "Oh, certainly—yes—don't mention it!" he said incoherently, and then he left. He is remarking to people of late that it is the oddest thing that he was kept in ignorance so long of Miss Geraldine's unfortunate mental affliction. When he remembers that curious sneeze behind the couch, he adds that there is certainly something creepy and abnormal about the whole household.

And whenever Beatrice wishes to bring Geraldine to time since the happening all she has to do is to bark once.

PLEASE TELL THE PEOPLE.

Mr. Coderre Wants Everyone to Know His Story.—He Had a Very Bad Case of Dyspepsia, and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cured Him.—After Everything else had failed.—His Testimonial Letter.

Everybody in St. Jacques, Que., knows Ademard Coderre. He has given for publication the following lettter:—

"I certify that for over two years, I suffered with Dyspepsia and Inflammation of the Stomach. I have taken several medicines, but have secured no relief. I was very discouraged.

"One day, I read an account of the cure of a similar case by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, so I determined to try again. I bought two boxes of them. From the very first, they relieved me, and now I am completely cured.

"I desire to make my case known to the public, so that all who suffer from that malady may find the only remedy that will cure it. Please tell all the people that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured me."

It is not often that any remedy receives such very high and unqualified commendation as Mr. Coderre gives to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. There can be nothing plainer than his straightforward statement of the facts of his case and its cure.

No one in St. Jacques doubts Mr. Coderre's truthfulness, and no one who hears him speak of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets can doubt his sincerity.

The earnestness of the statements made by the friends of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, is the distinguishing feature of their testimonials.

Almost everyone refers to the fact that they have tried other treatments without success, and all manifest a desire to impress upon other sufferers, the fact that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are not as other medicines are, but will instantly relieve and permanently cure all stomach trouble.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets is an honest remedy, endorsed heartily by honest people.

They are no experiment, but a tried and proven remedy. Thousands have used them, and everyone tells the same thankful story of restoration to health.

Better not delay longer. Try them. You'll not be disappointed.

Indigestion

Is about the first symptom of dyspepsia and other stomach troubles which lead to ill health and numerous other diseases. The want of space will not allow us to give all the symptoms and causes of indigestion. One of the most prominent is gas in the stomach after eating, causing colic, belching of wind and other stomach troubles. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS corrects the acidity and wrong action of the stomach. Here is testimony to prove what we say:

Here is what John Fisher of Douglas, Man., has to say of B.B.B.:

"Some time ago I was suffering from indigestion. A young man stopping at our place advised me to try BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. Before this time I had tried numerous remedies, but had found no relief from them. After taking a few doses of B.B.B. relief came as by magic, and I can now eat three square meals a day without any bad after effects, and although sixty-seven years of age can do an ordinary man's work every day—thanks to B.B.B."

March, 1900.

MRS. JOHN RILEY, West Liscomb, N.S.: "Have been using B.B.B. for indigestion and it works like a charm. Before starting to take it I was thin and run down in health and could get little strength from my food; two bottles completely cured me."

LOSING PASSBOOKS.

What Happens to the Careless Savings Bank Depositor.

Not even all of the happy possessors of deposits in savings banks are aware of the care that hedges about a passbook. That knowledge generally comes only to the smaller number who, being depositors, lose their passbooks and generally underrate the gain of their experience because of the temporary trouble and inconvenience. When a man loses his passbook, if he is a prudent man, which most depositors are, he immediately informs his bank of his loss. He is probably surprised to find that the officials are as fully prepared for this emergency as for their daily dinners. He is not only requested to advertise the loss, but specifically to advertise it in a prescribed form, a printed blank being handed to him to be filled in and given to the newspapers for insertion. In this way a constant reader of the advertising columns may in time learn by heart the respective forms used by all the savings banks.

This is a reason for all this. "A passbook," as a savings bank manager of 30 years' experience pointed out to an inquirer, "is a negotiable asset and can be used as collateral security for a loan. Loans are made on such security by business banks, but in such a case the bank making the loan will notify the savings bank as a matter of course. But suppose the depositor who knows that if he draws $100, say, on Dec. 20, he will lose the interest on it for nearly six months chooses to go to a private individual for the loan of that sum and so save the interest. The private individual who lends the money on a passbook is not at all likely to take the precaution of notifying us, and that leaves both him and us open to fraud. For that reason we never issue a new passbook to replace an old one supposed to be lost until we are sure that the loss has been duly advertised. The interval allowed to elapse before it is considered safe to issue a new book varies. In this institution we have no fixed time, but use a certain discretion in every case. After that we require an affidavit from the depositor, and then we give him his new passbook.

"No," the bank official continued, with a smile, "it very seldom happens that any intention to defraud is discovered. What happens in 75 per cent of these cases is that the man who has been positive of having lost his passbook ends by coming in with a sheepish look to tell us that the book was all the time just where he put it. To be sure, if we did not take these precautions it would be just possible for a man to obtain a new passbook on false pretenses and for his confederate to draw out the whole of his deposit in his name, because the possession of John Smith's passbook is taken as sufficient evidence that the possessor is John Smith, and the depositor's signature in our books might not be referred to by the teller. But that trick is not likely to succeed. A teller learns to know every signature as surely as other men know faces without being able to describe the individual features, and there would be pretty sure to be something unfamiliar in the forged signature. Still, according to up to date methods of banking it is not enough to be pretty sure. No possible chance of fraud must be left even to the most honest. An honest man has very little opportunity to display his virtue in these days."

ELEVATORS SAVING DAYS' WORK.

Figures of an Old Man Who Once Climbed Weary Stairs.

Recently an old man stood in the corridor of a big office building, with watch in hand, making figures from time to time on the back of an envelope. There were many who wondered what he was doing.

He was computing how much time the modern elevators in our high buildings save to men in a day, and to one who spoke to him he told how for years, away back in the sixties, he had worked in the sixth story of a building which was then one of the highest in the city or the country either, for that matter; how, though young and spry then, he had dreaded that climb up six sheer stair flights; how the men in the place would draw lots to see who at luncheon time should make the journey to the street to buy cakes and pie for the noonday meal, and how he had at times gone without his luncheon rather than use up so much strength in climbing the stairs. It took a minute and a half then for a young man to go up, he said, but the manager of the factory, who was more than 50 years old and somewhat rheumatic, always spent four minutes in the upward struggle.

"I was just figuring on the time saved by this modern appliance," the old man continued, "and I calculate that it is at least four minutes for every young man who goes to the twenty-fifth floor and ten minutes for your 'elderly gentlemen.' These express elevators, stopping only above the thirteenth floor, average 45 seconds in reaching the top. Of course we wouldn't have 20 or 30 story structures if the modern elevator manufacturers had not kept pace with the architects and builders, but I am arguing from the other side." And he showed an array of figures to prove that in a day's average business, in which 2,500 passengers are carried, two whole working days are gained. His young friend did not dispute him.

It is in New York, of course, with its score of buildings that are 14 stories high and over, that the elevator has reached its greatest development. In the matter of speed the makers have vied with one another until 800 feet a minute is the rate at which the cars can be propelled. This means to the twentieth floor of a building in 30 seconds, a velocity that is gained by a multiplication of gear wheels over which the car cables run.

Why He Was Successful.

The fact that success is mainly due to hard work has been expressed in many different ways, but one of the best was that recently employed by a very successful commercial traveler. He was talking with a companion, a rather lazy fellow, when the latter exclaimed:

"I declare, Jack, I can't understand why you always succeed in selling so many more goods than I do!"

"I'll tell you why it is," replied Jack. "But," he added, "it's a trade secret, and you mustn't tell it to everybody."

"Of course I wouldn't do such a thing," was the answer.

"Well, then," said Jack impressively, "I succeed because when I'm doing business I wear out the soles of my shoes more than the seat of my trousers."

Nervousness and Nerve.

The more nervous a man is, the less nerve he has. That sounds paradoxical—but it isn't; for nerve is stamina.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives nerve. It tones the whole system, perfects digestion and assimilation, and is therefore the best medicine a nervous person can take.

If you get tired easily, mentally or physically, take it—it will do you good.

Plants That See.

Certain plants stretch themselves out in search of support and food in a way that makes the ordinary observer believe that they can see, and the experience of a correspondent in connection with a convolvulus lends color to this sight theory.

He was seated at his back door and put his foot against a pillar round which a convolvulus was twined. The tendrils, to his surprise, began to move, and in half an hour were beginning to curl round his foot. He resolved to try an experiment with a pole, and on the following morning he set up one about 12 inches from the nearest tendrils and at the back of the pillar, so that it could not be said that the plant was attracted by the light. Within three minutes the tendrils began to move toward the pole, just like snakes, and it was almost impossible to believe that this was done without sight. In a few hours they were curled round the pole.

The Wonders of Plant Life.

Vegetable ivory is the fruit of a tree closely allied to the palms and of a similar habit. It is a native of South America and may justly be called one of the wonders of plant life. The fruit consists of a group of seeds in a cluster as large as a man's head, containing from six to nine seeds. Outside the seed is a covering composed of a sweet, oily pulp. When the nuts are ripe, the fluid has become a hard, white substance, which compares very favorably with the ivory obtained from animal sources. And yet, under the proper conditions of heat, light and moisture, this ivorylike substance will send out its rootlets, sustain the embryo and produce a plant of Phytelephas macrocarpa.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

Is it to worship earthly, groveling gold
And, dollar blinded, to look only down,
To rake the muck heap and forget the crown
Until youth's bounding blood creeps strangely cold;
To dwell with envy, arrogance and dread,
To barter all benevolence for dross,
To lose companionship nor feel its loss
Because the flower of sympathy is dead,
Is that success?

To labor for the rainbow bubble, fame;
Afloat so fairly in the morning air,
A perfect jewel for a prince to wear,
Is it a recompense for all its claim?
Through careful night and crowded, strenuous day,
Through iron rebuff or flattery, like snow
That leaves one thirsty, it is grasped, and, lo,
It vanishes in nothingness away!
Is that success?

With comrade duty in the dark or day
To follow truth wherever it may lead,
To hate all meanness, cowardice or greed,
To look for beauty under common clay,
Our brothers' burden sharing when they weep,
But, if we fail, to bear defeat alone;
To live in hearts that loved us when we're gone
Beyond the twilight (till the morning break) to sleep,
That is success!

—Ernest Neal Lyon in Success.

THE HOTEL CHECK PROBLEM

A Question of Whether to Offend Guests or Risk Losing Money.

The hotel clerk was standing behind the desk, with a disconsolate look on his face.

"What's the matter?" asked a friend.

"Matter?" said the clerk. "Why, it's the same old story. I've been stuck for another check. This check business causes us hotel clerks more trouble than anything else in the world. There is a general rule in hotels that no checks shall be cashed, but very often travelers run short of money. It is good business policy to cash these checks when you can be sure that they're all right. No hotel can afford to be continually offending guests. At the same time, if a clerk cashes a man check he has to stand the loss.

"The average hotel clerk has learned by bitter experience to be a pretty good judge of human nature, but every now and then he slips up. Only a week ago a big, splendid looking fellow came to me and got me to cash a check for $20. I sized him up and decided that he was all right and that he was a good man to keep among the steady patrons of the hotel. A few days later back came the check, with 'No funds' marked across it. The result was that I was out $20."

While the clerk was talking a swagger looking woman came up to the desk and, smiling sweetly at the clerk, said:

"Will you please cash this little check?"

The clerk was all graciousness. He took the check and examined it carefully without saying anything.

"Oh, it's all right," said the woman, "Of course, if you don't want to cash it you needn't. Mr. So-and-so knows me quite well, and you can telephone him about it if you want to, but it would save me a great deal of trouble if you could cash it for me now."

"Certainly, madam," said the clerk, and then he went over and held a consultation with the cashier.

They decided that the woman was a good investment and gave her the money. She went away smiling, and then the clerk said:

"Now, there is just about an even money chance. If I hadn't cashed that check, she would have been highly insulted and would have talked about this hotel as long as she could remember. If she is all right, she will be a good customer, but if she isn't I am out another $25."

Life Saving Politeness.

Patriotism and politeness are great virtues, and a Japanese physician, Dr. Aoyama, owes his life to the fact that he possessed them both in high degree.

He had caught the plague and was dying for the need of the food which, in his delirium, he refused to take. His nurse was in despair, but finally conceived the idea of playing upon his patriotism by filling a glass with liquid nourishment and then offering to drink to the health of the mikado.

This was repeated until, ardent patriot as he was, the doctor felt that he had honored his sovereign enough.

Then his politeness was appealed to, the nurse proposing a toast and reproaching the sick man for not joining in it. In this way the patient's strength was maintained until the delirium subsided and he became convalescent.—Youth's Companion.

James Phipps of San Francisco claims to have sung as a choir boy at Victoria's coronation.

Mr. Chamberlain is the only member of the British cabinet who does not possess a coat of arms.

Richard Mansfield has come out in Chicago for an endowed theater and for Mr. Carnegie to foot the bill.

J. Pierpont Morgan in his youth was a prize mathematician at the University of Gottingen. Small wonder he can multiply millions!

August Brassart, the silversmith, who made the plate on which Daguerre made the first successful photograph, is living in St. Louis at the age of 81.

Wyndham Spencer Portal, who has recently been created a baronet, is the head of a family which since 1724 has had the exclusive privilege of making the bank note paper for the Bank of England.

Ex-Speaker Reed declares that he is out of politics and will not even discuss the subject. "I'm a lawyer now," he says, "employed six days a week in making money. Prosaic occupation—horrible stuff! But most of these rich men seem to have it."

Donald D. Catlanach, now a citizen of Providence, was foreman of the 300 decorators who decorated the marble room at Buckingham palace. He is a native of Inverness, Scotland, and studied in the Loudon art schools. He has, however, lived in Providence since 1857.

Chief Justice Defue has resigned from the New Jersey supreme bench after 35 years' continuous service and gives this excellent explanation for his action: "I much prefer to withdraw when the public may wonder why I do so than to wait until the public shall wonder why I do not."

Representative Littlefield of Maine says that when Secretary Long was visiting Buckfield, Me., his native village, last summer, he sent some clothes to the village washerwoman and, driving by next week, stopped to ask for them. The woman accordingly called to her assistant, "May, is Johnny's washing done yet?"

The famous Arizona guide, John Hance, objects to the invasion of the Grand canyon region by automobiles. He still makes his trips with pack animals, looks on the canyon as practically his own and tells the same wonderful stories that have earned for him the name of "the most picturesque liar in Arizona."

Frederick Holbrook of Brattleboro, the war governor of Vermont, is 88 years old. "I am happy and contented," he says. "I try to make myself useful. I walk several miles every pleasant day. I attend to my correspondence. I do my own writing. I read aloud several hours daily, largely from the poets and works of imagination. This tends to prevent introspection when one is old. I try to be a young old man."

Dr. William Pole, the English authority on whist, who died the other day at the age of 87 years, was not a physician, but a successful civil engineer, and his doctorate was a degree for music, conferred on him by Oxford university. It was a proof of his cleverness that he wrote an able treatise on the method by which the eye discriminates color, although he was himself color blind. This dissertation caused him to be elected a fellow of the Royal society.

Tired Back Working hard all day is too much for some people. It makes their back tired. It is too bad people have to work so hard, but that is the way of the world. It is a consolation to know that the pains that come in the day will go away in the night, if the back is thoroughly rubbed with may be almost safely set down as wanting red in her blood. If subject to dizziness, fainting, shortness of breath on slight exertion, no doubt remains.

To want red in the blood is to fail of the good of one's food. Her food is not nourishing her. She needs a change.

The easiest change she can get, and one of the best, is Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It gives her the upper hand in the contest—her food has the upper hand now—she is pale no more.

SOME WISE MAXIMS.

The "bad boy" often makes the best man.

There are no elevators in the house of success.

No man can stand on top because he is put there.

A man can be too confiding in others, but never too confident in himself.

A bad man with good manners often outdoes a good man with bad manners.

Clothes don't make the man, but good clothes have got many a man a good job.

A college education is a good thing, but many a graduate finds himself overtrained.

Many a hero to the world at large sees a "no account" very time he looks in the glass.

The man who talks business at home is in danger of getting well meant but risky advice.

If you have $25 and want a job, it is better to spend $20 for clothes, $4 for shoes and the rest for a shave and a hair cut and a clean collar and walk to the place than go with the money in the pockets of a dingy suit.—H. H. Vreeland.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Clean bronzes with sweet oil, rub in and then polish with chamios.

When soot falls upon the carpet or rug, never attempt to sweep it up at once, for the result is sure to be an ugly mark. Cover the place thickly with well dried salt, which will enable you to sweep it up cleanly, so that not the slightest smear will be left.

Naphtha will clean velvet as well as it will silk and other fabrics. The velvet should be sponged or brushed with the naphtha until it seems to be perfectly clean. Then to restore the pile it may be held down over a basin of very hot water from which the steam escapes through the velvet. Delicate velvets thus treated show great improvement.

THE CYNIC.

People revise their list of heroes every three or four years.

Sawing wood is the better exercise, but golf is more popular.

When a man quotes "prominent citizens," he is really expressing his own opinion.

Many men who can tell you exactly where to go to catch fish cannot catch any fish themselves.

THE NURSERY.

Do not force a child to stand alone. Wait until he does so of his own accord. Many healthy children do not walk until they are 18 months old.

A child 2 years old should be put to bed for the night between 6 and 7 o'clock. No food should be given during the night. If the child wakens and frets, a drink of water may be given.

Confirmed Liars.

"I don't know who first said figures couldn't lie," said the young woman, "but I would bet any old sum that the person was a man."

Then for the fourth time she tried to make her personal account book balance.

MORE FLAGPOLES THAN EVER.

Growing Disposition Among the People to Show Their Colors.

"Flagpoles," said a man who makes them, "are the pick of the forest whence they come. Up to 60 feet in length, and this would include the great majority, they are commonly of spruce; flagpoles more than 60 feet long are of pine.

"The spruce poles come from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The pine poles come from northern New York and Michigan.

"Up to 50 feet in length and a 50 foot staff would be counted a good, big staff. Flagpoles cost, all set up, truck on the top and halyards rove, ready to bend on the flag, from $1 to $1.25 a foot. The cost depends somewhat on the pole and somewhat on the situation, the latter question involving the difficulties attending setting the pole up. Longer poles cost proportionately more. A 75 foot pole might cost, set up ready for use, $150. Flagpoles for buildings are sometimes made up to 80 feet in length, but not often.

"A 50 foot pole of the usual proportions, which would be 10 inches in diameter at the butt and 4 inches at the top, would weigh about 850 pounds. A 75 foot pole would weigh about 1,500 pounds, so that when you put up a pole of that size you would be standing upon one end a weight of three-quarters of a ton.

"Of course the flagpole must be securely set up. There are two ways of mounting a flagpole. One is to step it, running the lower end of the pole through the roof as you would run a mast through the deck of a boat. The other way is to set the butt of the pole in a shoe placed on the roof. The very tallest poles are always stepped through the roof.

"A good flagpole, properly put up and properly cared for, is long lived. It might wear as long as the building on which it was placed. A flagpole really ought to be painted every year. Flagpole painting is done by the riggers employed by flagpole makers, by steeple climbers, by men who make a business of it, who go about seeking flagpoles to paint. To have a flagpole carefully and properly painted costs, according to the size of the pole, $5 to $10.

"Flagpoles are made nowadays rather longer, if anything, than formerly. Their greater length is to make them more nearly proportionate to the higher buildings.

"There are now sold more flagstaffs than ever before in proportion to the population. The law requiring the flying of the flag from schoolhouses has increased the actual number of poles, and the presence of those poles and the flying of the flag from them has prompted the raising of other poles. I think also that people are more likely now to put up flagpoles than they formerly were; anyway, that they have more disposition now than ever to show their colors."

How a Sprain Does Hurt!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

The Ostrich's Legs.

Although the ostrich has powerful legs and can kick like a mule, his limbs are very brittle and are easily broken. He has two toes on each foot, one being armed with a horny nail which he uses as his principal weapon of warfare. When an unarmed man is attacked by one of these birds, the chances are very much against the man unless he can climb a tree or jump over a five foot wall.

An Alternative Conclusion.

A Jersey farmer visiting New York stood looking at a sign in a bookstore window, "Dickens' Works All This Week For Two Dollars." "Waal," he remarked, "my 'pinion is that that Dickens feller is either a mighty poor workman or else he's confounded hard up for a job."

Acted Out the Character.

"It was understood that the cashier had been a lamb in Wall street."

"Therefore," said I, with a happy smile, "he skipped."

PROSPECTUS OF THE PETERBOROUGH PURE MILK CO.

(LIMITED)

Capital $40.000 in 1,600 Shares of $25 Each.

This company has been formed for the purpose of carrying out the suggestion of the committee recently appointed to enquire into the question of pure milk supply.

It is proposed to enter into a contract for the supply to this Company of the quantity of milk required under the conditions referred to in the committee's report.

The Company will erect proper buildings and plant for treating the milk and delivering it free from impurities ; the herd of cows, stables, employees, etc, being subject to strict regulations and rigid inspection.

A careful estimate has been made of the cost of buildings and plant, including Refrigerating apparatus, and it has been decided that subscriptions to the necessary extent should be obtained in order to carry on the projected scheme successfully. It may reasonably be anticipated that within a short period the delivery will be sufficient to ensure the Company against loss and that as the quantity increases the return will produce a fair dividend upon the capital, after providing for depreciation.

Subscriptions to the extent of two shares and upwards are invited.

As soon as a sufficient number of shares have been taken to warrant the commencement of operations, a meeting of the subscribers will be called for the purpose of naming Provisional Directors.

Further particulars may be obtained at the office of Mr. A. P. Pousette, 379 Water St., or Mr. H. P. Kennedy, 340 George St., or Mr. F. H. Dobbin, at the Review office.

The following gentlemen have already subscribed :— Dr. Halliday, Dr. Boucher, Dr. Carmichael, Dr. Eastwood, Dr. Greer, Dr. Scott, Messrs A. H. Stratton, B. Shortly, W. D. Parker, A. W. Cressman, R. A CENSUS DIPLOMAT.

There is a certain census diplomat—who is a born diplomat.

The other day, daring the course of his peregrinations he entered a maiden lady's home and began popping question after question to her.

"I'll answer these questions," said she determinedly ; but I won't tell any man my age."

"I don't want to know your age," replied the enumerator in a reassuring tone. "I wouldn't ask any lady her age. Just give me the year you were born in, please?"

"I don't mind telling you that," she replied, and the date was given.

The enumerator's countenance never relaxed, and when he had finished his little list the woman of the house accompanied him to the door.

"Just to think," said she, as she bade him good-bye, "that I was worrying all this time about telling you my age ; and you didn't want to know it after all."

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church was occupied by a Persian on the 21st inst. He left Persia about six years ago, and is now a medical student at Toronto. He expects to return to his native country in about two years, having another year to finish his course in medicine, after which he will go to Knox College and study theology for one year. He thinks that having thus prepared himself he will be able to do the work of a missionary in that country. He told us of the mild climate, the great variety of fruits grown there, the state of society, and the different religious sects which inhabit that country. Why is it that those fine countries are allowed to be overrun by savage bands ; could they not be driven out and Ontario take possession?

We have had a second winter, or what is known as the borrowed days.

Farmers are rejoicing at the prospects for a great crop of fall wheat.

We will expect fine weather now in Ontario, seeing the local legislature has closed its session.

Re-Arrangement of Business !

HENRY & CO.

In view of an important business change now in process of arrangement, extensive alterations will be commenced in the store premises at once. Modern improvements, handsome new furnishings, store fittings and fixtures will be introduced, with the view of making this the "PALACE" Grocery and Liquor Store of the district.

On account of these changes, and the inconveniences that may be occasioned to our patrons during the progress of these improvements in the store, all shelf goods will be sold close to wholesale cost.

UNPAID ACCOUNTS

It is imperative that the books of the Messrs. Henry & Co. be closed immediately, and a satisfactory settlement of all unpaid accounts arranged for before the 1st day of May next. Early attention to this matter will save inconvenience and trouble to our patrons and ourselves.

Sch. Suffel Badly Buffeted.

Kingston, Ont., April 23. — The schooner Suffel was very nearly lost in the big storm on Saturday. She was on her way to Kingston with a load of grain for H. Mooers, and consigned by Mr. Coffee of Toronto. Near the Ducks she met with a tremendously heavy sea. Her main mast, two jib-booms and main-boom were carried away, and she labored very heavily in the sea, not being able to get in position. Near Cobourg she lost both her anchors, and, helpless, would have dashed against the pier there had it not been for the life-saving crew. They attached a line to her, and with great difficulty drew her into shelter and safety. The cargo is badly damaged.

Dr. Tanner, M. P., Dead.

London, April 23.—Dr. D. K. Tanner, who had represented the Irish Nationalists of the Middle Division of Cork County since 1885, died of consumption at Reading last night, aged 51 years.

The deceased was born in 1850, and educated at Paris, Winchester, Queen's College, Cork, Leipsic and Berlin Universities. He was the son of Dr. Tanner of Cork. He gained numerous degrees. He was B.A., M. D. and M.Ch., Queen's University, Ireland; L.R.C.S.I., L.K.Q.C.P.I., and L.M. He was elected for Cork in 1885.

The Innisfail Tragedy.

Innisfail, N. W. T., April 23. — Some fresh evidence was found yesterday in connection with the Bioletta-Karr murder case. The police went out to the scene of the tragedy and found Karr's hat lying on the ground on the spot where his head rested. It had a small portion of the skull attached. From this it would appear as if the second shot had been fired after the man had fallen, and at close quarters. Much sympathy is expressed for the family of the deceased.

St. Thomas, Ont., April 23.—J. L. Buckborough, proprietor of the Mero House, Aylmer, has on several occasions missed money from his cash register, which has not been working well for some months. He took it apart yesterday and found a wad of bills, amounting in all to $880.55, packed under the money drawer, which had evidently been accumulating for a year or more.

His Second Murder Trial.

Ottawa, April 23.—At the Spring Assizes for the County of Carleton yesterday morning Emery Coriesse was arraigned for the murder of Joseph Laurencelle in a shanty on the old rifle range last winter. H. H. COOK'S CHARGES

Further Evidence Heard by the Senate Committee.

CORRESPONDENCE SUBMITTED,

Letters of the Late Mr. M. C. Cameron—Mr. Preston's Claim—He Charges That His Letter Produced by Mr. Cook Was Tampered With—Adjourned for Argument.

Ottawa, April 24.—The Senate Committee who have been investigating the charges made by H. H. Cook resumed their sittings yesterday morning at 10.30, Sir Mackenzie Bowell presiding. Mr. S. H. Blake was present for the parties accused, Mr. C. H. Ritchie appeared for the committee, Mr. J. K. Kerr represented Mr. W. T. R. Preston, and Mr. Marsh acted for Mr. H. H. Cook. Mr. Cook himself did not appear. Mr. H. G. Cameron, son of the late M. C. Cameron, occupied a seat in the room. Sir Mackenzie Bowell wore a red rose in the lapel of his coat, in honor of St. George's Day.

Mr. Cameron's Letter Book.

The Chairman stated that after the last session of the committee he received the following telegram from London, Ont.:

"I am solicitor for the estate of my late father-in-law, Hon. M. C. Cameron. Dr. Wilson, the executor, has in his possession here Mr. Cameron's letter-book of 1896, containing copies of correspondence having an important bearing upon the Cook charges. We think these letters should be made public in the interest of the late Mr. Cameron's family, as they tend to contradict the suggestions made by the defence as to his interest in the transaction. R. A. Bailey."

Sir Mackenzie Bowell went on to say that he directed Mr. Bailey to communicate with Mr. Ritchie as to any evidence he had. Sir Mackenzie then read a paragraph from the Ottawa correspondence of The Globe, in which Mr. Preston was reported as making the charge that his letter to Mr. Cook in 1898 had been tampered with.

Mr. Ritchie announced that he had communicated with Dr. Wilson, the late Mr. Cameron's son-in-law, and as a result had issued a subpoena for his attendance with the deceased's letter-book. He understood that Dr. Wilson was present.

Some discussion took place as to the procedure to be followed and how it came about that Mr. Preston had obtained access to Mr. Cook's letter while it was in the possession of the Clerk of the Committee.

Senator Kirchoffer in a very wrathful manner demanded that the Clerk be asked how he came to show Mr. Preston the letter in question. The committee ignored the question and decided to hear a letter which the Chairman had received from Mr. Preston.

Mr. Preston's Letter.

A letter from Mr. Preston was then read addressed to the chairman, on April 19. In it Mr. Preston respectfully submitted that he had been a witness in the recent investigation and had been excluded from the room. He did not know the evidence given and did not know till afterwards that part of a letter from him to Mr. Cook had been read till he saw it. The date of that letter had been obliterated, but with a magnifying glass he could still read part of the date written with his own hand. He did not know until afterwards that Mr. Hancock had sworn that the interview with Mr. Cook took place in November, 1898. He now stated that the interview did not take place in Nov., '98, but in the early part of July. He was satisfied he could prove to the committee that the conversation described by Messrs. Cook and Hancock could not have taken place and asked to be heard in these points.

Mr. J. K. Kerr, K. C., appeared for Mr. Preston and made application that experts be called as to the letter itself. That could not be done yesterday morning as the expert had not been summoned and he wished this to be the first evidence.

Mr. Marsh said that when the letter was first produced it bore some slight marks of obliteration. There was the date 1898 in pencil, but no ink date. Mr. Blake had asked what this meant, and he told him that when Mr. Cook gave him the letter he asked Mr. Cook how the letter came there. Mr. Cook told him he did it, and he took his pencil with a rubber and gave it some half a dozen rubs. This was the apparent obliteration.

Hon. Senator Baker and Hon. Senator Ferguson showed that this had come out in the evidence.

Hon. S. H. Blake corroborated Mr. Marsh, but neither of them knew anything of the ink now said to have been rubbed out.

After conference, Mr. Ritchie, having inspected the letter, said that the pencil marks which were on the letter when it was put in had been removed since.

Mr. Kerr said he was instructed that experts could restore ink by acids; that the date had been removed by acid. He wanted experts called.

Mr. Ritchie—It is quite evident that there were pencil marks on the letter when it was put in, and there were none now.

Mr. Preston a Witness.

Mr. Preston was then called, but he had slipped out of the room. In a few minutes he returned. Mr. Ritchie then examined him, when he said: "Had no copy of that letter, and had no definite means of knowing the date, except by having examined by a magnifying glass." He could not tell what the date was. He saw a J. W. and 18—; with the glass he had he could not make it out. On the Tuesday following the date of the last meeting of the committee he had been rather disturbed over the letter, so he asked an official in one of the departments if he could get him a copy of the letter. His friend told him that there was no date but Toronto. He then came to Mr. Creighton, clerk of the committee, who allowed him to see the letter. He examined it by a magnifying glass and saw "A" or an "I," and a "W," which he recognized as his own writing. His friend then came up with him and saw the same. He could see nothing now in pencil but what looked like a "1."

After a long examination of the letter at a window Mr. Preston said the surface was very much rougher than it ought to be where the date should be. The friend who came with him was Mr. J. D. Clarke, private secretary to the Minister of Justice. He could not say that the word "Toronto" was in lighter ink than the rest of the letter. He first saw the letter on the Tuesday. No one was with him when he saw it in Mr. Creighton's room. His suspicions were aroused because of there being no date on it. We went right down for Mr. Clarke and they came together to examine it. He tried to see it again when Mr. Creighton said no one could see it except by order of the chairman. He went to Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick and told him he was anxious he should see it, as he was satisfied that he could recognize the writing on the paper. Mr. Fitzpatrick told him he saw the letter and could give his own story. In the fall of 1898 he was occupied with elections, he was doing nothing, and was not in the habit of going to the Parliamentary library after he left on Aug. 24 till he received his present position in February, 1899. He did not know where he wrote his letters, not necessarily, in the Parliamentary library. He could go into any office in the Parliament buildings. He could swear to the "I," "W" and figure 8 as being in his handwriting, but not to any other part of the writing. He discovered the figures easily with a glass.

The committee rose at 1 o'clock to meet at 2 p.m.

The Afternoon Session.

At the afternoon sitting the witnesses were Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. M. Graham Cameron, son of the late M. C. Cameron, and Mr. Wilson, the latter's son-in-law, and executor for the Cameron estate.

Sir Richard Cartwright said the only two letters he had been able to find bearing on the Cook matter was one dated Sept. 30, 1897, from Mr. Cameron.

The other letter was an unimportant one from Sir Richard's secretary, acknowledging receipt of one from Cameron.

Questioned by Mr. Marsh as to his reasons for having destroyed the original of a letter of Oct. 3 or 4, 1896, Sir Richard Cartwright replied: "As far as I can call it to mind, the reason was simply this: From the time of the death of Mr. Macpherson to the time of the appointment of Messrs. Mills and Cox, we were simply deluged, if you must know, with applications for Senatorships. I would be almost afraid to name how many gentlemen considered themselves eligible for that important position, and every one of them, I think without a single, solitary exception, was good enough to furnish me with certificates—Mr. Cook, especially—of their habits, their morals, their general demeanor, their fitness for the Senate; and I should think it extremely likely that I may have received within the six or seven weeks the thing was practically open, many hundreds of letters, and I did not undertake at all to preserve these."

Sir Richard said he had made inquiries of Mr. M. Graham Cameron whether he had the letter alleged to have been written by him to M. C. Cameron, and shown by the latter to Mr. Cook at the Union Station, Toronto, but had not learned that any such letter existed. He had three or four interviews with Mr. Graham Cameron since the investigation took place, one in the office of the Minister of Justice, one in Mr. Fitzpatrick's office, and the other when Mr. Graham came to see him in his (Sir Richard's) room, in the Commons. He thought Mr. Cameron was in town on private business, anyway.

Mr. John D. Wilson, executor of the Cameron estate, produced the late Mr. Cameron's letter book. One of these, dated Oct. 5, 1896, was addressed to Sir Richard Cartwright, and read:

"I had an interview with the person named in your letter at Toronto on my way home. I found the person named most indignant and threatened to smash up the Government. He had difficulty in getting an interview with the Premier, who then treated him very carelessly, and was like an iceberg. Sir Oliver insulted him, hinting pretty plainly that he had not brains enough for the position."

In the letter of Nov. 27, addressed to Sir Richard, Mr. Cameron wrote, after expressing his opinion of certain gentlemen in the Government: "I decline positively to open negotiations with the man in Toronto. The proposition was his own, and when matters reached a critical stage he backed out. That ends it as far as I am concerned."

Sir Richard, when questioned as to this, did not think, but wouldn't swear positively, that "the man in Toronto" was Mr. Cook.

Mr. Wilson told the committee that his reason for appearing was the slur placed upon the memory of his dead friend and brother-in-law, Mr. M. C. Cameron, of what Mr. Briggs said in evidence, that if Mr. Cameron got the money from Cook he would have kept it for his own use.

Mr. Malcolm Graham Cameron said he came down to Ottawa because his mother resented very much what appeared in the newspapers, and was anxious that he should come down and vindicate the character of his father. Having found the papers, he came down and handed them to Mr. Blake, in order to see to what extent they would be useful in accomplishing the vindication of his father's memory.

Mr. Preston's Application.

Mr. J. K. Kerr, K. C., renewed his application on behalf of Mr. Preston for permission to call witnesses to prove that his letter, by which Mr. Cook sought to corroborate the evidence he had given, had been tampered with by erasing the date, and also to show that Mr. Hancock, who swore to having been in Mr. Cook's office at the time of the alleged interview between Mr. Preston and Mr. Cook, was not in the city when the interview actually took place, which was in June, instead of in November. They desired to call Prof. Ellis of

MR. MARTER IS NOBODY'S FOOL

And he Declines to be Placed in That Position.

MAY BE AN INDEPENDENT.

He Tells Why he Twice Voted With the Government—What is the Conservative Policy?

(The Toronto World.)

There has been a great deal of discussion in political circles during the last few weeks, especially when the Legislature was in session, as to the attitude of Mr. G. F. Marter, M.L.A. for North Toronto, with regard to the Conservative party and the leader of that party in the House, Mr. J. P. Whitney. It was well known that Mr. Whitney did not greet Mr. Marter with the same cordiality and affection that he exhibited towards the other members sitting at the left hand of the Speaker, and Mr. Marter was no more genial towards Mr. Whitney, though the two leaders sat at the same desk. Mr. Marter, moreover, on two occasions during the session, voted with the Government against his Conservative friends.

Mr. Marter Interviewed.

To ascertain from Mr. Marter his version of the difference existing between himself and Mr. Whitney, a World reporter waited upon him yesterday afternoon.

During the last session that has just closed, Mr. Marter said, he voted against the Opposition on two important questions. The first adverse vote was on Mr. Boyd's amendment on the beet sugar factory question, the leader of the Opposition contending that the Government did not go far enough with its proposals, and that the farmer ought to reap the benefit of the country's generosity towards this industry. Mr. Marter considered that to develop the industry it was necessary to give a bounty only on the manufactured sugar, and that when the industry was started the prices given for the beets would adjust themselves. The promoters of the industry would have to pay the farmers a fair price or they would not grow the beets. Mr. Marter considered the proposal of Mr. Boyd unnecessary and altogether a foolish proposition.

Declined to be a Fool.

"It was a question if I should make a fool of myself, and I declined to do so," said Mr. Marter.

The second defection was on the vote on the pulp concessions. The first concession was granted in 1895, and at that time Mr. Whitney congratulated the Government on its being able to see things as he saw it. From that day until last year there was no word against the pulp concessions.

"Last year," said Mr. Marter, "I voted against the pulp concessions because I was a member of the Conservative caucus, but this year I remained away and was free to do as I saw fit. I believe I acted in the best interests of the Province in supporting the concessions granted."

May Run as an Independent.

Continuing, Mr. Marter said: "I have yet to meet a man who disapproves of my course; on the other hand I have been congratulated on the stand I have taken. I have been asked to reconsidur my determination to retire, and many of my old supporters have come to me and told me that they would vote for me if I run as an Independent. I cannot run as a Conservative and support the leader. I am now considering whether I shall retire or run as an Independent."

Mr. Marter believes that there is too much politics in Ontario legislation. He said: "I have always realized, since I have been a member of the Legislature that there has been too much politics. The matters we have to deal with are not political questons but have to do with the ordinary business affairs of the Province, and party politics as we have them are an injury to us instead of a benefit. My idea of a representative in the Local House is that he should be responsible to his constituents and not to his party, and to be a useful member he should have a free hand."

Doubts as to Policy.

"Do you still call yourself a member of the Conservative party?" the reporter asked.

"Certainly, in matters of policy I am with the Conservative party, but in the name of Heaven what are the matters of policy?"

Britain's Increase in Trade.

London, April 23.—The annual statement of the trade of the United Kingdom shows total imports and exports for 1900 to have been £877,448,917, against £814,570,-241 for 1899. The imports were £523,075,165, against £485,086,-583. The exports for 1900 were £354,373,754, against £328,534,-658 for the preceding year.

FOR GENERAL DEBILITY—Do you know why so many clergymen, druggists, business men, etc., have given statements endorsing Powley's Liquified Ozone? It is because it has cured them of disease. No other preparation ever had or ever will have so high endorsations as Powley's Liquified Ozone, because the condensed oxygen renders it at once the most powerful and the most natural system of curing disease known to science.

Allan McNab is a barrister who is well known in the city of Toronto and in Ontario. He enjoys a splendid practice, and his opinion is regarded as most valuable. He says:—

"I have used Powley's Liquified Ozone as a general tonic for a run-down constitution, and have found it the most reliable and efficacious of anything I have tried. (Signed) ALLAN MCNAB, 16 Toronto Street, Toronto."

Powley's Liquified Ozone for sale, 50c and $1.00 a bottle, at all druggists. Write the Ozone Co., of Toronto, Limited, 48 Colborne street, Toronto, for their literature.

Spring Medicine

Is of the greatest importance. This is the most critical season of the year, from a health standpoint.

It is the time when you imperatively need Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It will give you a good appetite, purify and enrich your blood, build up and steady your nerves, overcome that tired feeling, give mental and digestive strength—in short, will vitalize your whole being, and put you in perfect health.

Don't delay taking it.

Don't experiment with others. Get that which trial and test have proved the best—

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Best for Spring—"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla when needed for several years and would not be without it in the house. It is an excellent medicine and I heartily recommend its use in the spring and at any time when a blood purifier and tonic is needed." MRS. F. M. FOOTE, 21 Irving Place, Passaic, N. J.

Spring Fever—"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for my spring medicine for years and have always found it reliable and giving perfect satisfaction. In the spring it takes away that tired feeling or spring fever, gives energy and puts the blood in good condition." MISS EFFIE COLONNE, 1536 10th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

To Form a New Province.

Ottawa, April 23.—The Government will shortly enter into conference with representatives of the Territorial Council at Regina, looking to the admission of the Northwest Territories to the status of a province. Under date of March 21, 1901, Mr. Sifton, according to a return tabled in the House yesterday, wrote Premier Haultain of the Territories concerning the matter. If a confreence be held it will take place after the sessions of Parliament and the Legislature.

Copyright Act Amendment.

Toronto, April 23.—The committee appointed by the Wholesale Stationers' and Booksellers' Section of the Board of Trade to wait on the Government and urge the adoption of certain proposed amendments to the Copyright Act, left for Ottawa last night. They will see Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, this morning at 11 o'clock.

The Ashanti Ashore.

Montreal, April 23.—The Elder-Dempster Line agents here yesterday received word that the S.S. Ashanti, coal laden, from Newcastle-on-Tyne, April 7, bound for Quebec, was ashore at Cape Blanc, a point about 200 miles below Quebec. The vessel will probably be a total loss. The Ashanti is a vessel of 2,200 tons net, 3,400 tons gross.

Ill Health Saved Him.

Winnipeg, April 23.—A man named O'Connor, charged with carnally knowing 10 or 12 little girls from the ages of 9 to 12, was sentenced yesterday to 20 years in the penitentiary. The judge would have given him the lash, only he feared it would kill him, as he is a diseased specimen.

That Whoop!

Have you had it in your house? It's cough and cough and cough, and then that terrible whoop! Don't upset the stomach more by giving nauseous medicine. Just let the child breathe in the soothing vapor of Vapo-Cresolene. It goes right to the spot that's diseased. Relief is immediate, and in a very few days the cure is complete. You can't say the same of any other treatment. For asthma, catarrh, and colds it's equally good. 14

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

MUST FIGHT FOR MANCHURIA.

97,000 Chinese Troops Are Massed at Three Places Under Chief Boxer Generals—Russian Movements.

London, April 23.—According to a despatch from St. Petersburg to The Daily Mail, official information has been received that renewed military activity is beginning in Manchuria. Chinese troops are strongly entrenched at three points around Mukden. They are armed with good Mauser rifles, and have 80 Krupp guns.

To the eastward of Mukden, near Turchausen, there are 12,000 men, under the chief Boxer general, Lutanse. To the northwest, near Kulo, there are 6,000 Chinese, under the former Governor of Mukden. To the eastward, in Mongolia, and near the In Shan Mountain, there are 9,000 more, under the Chinese general, Schu.

Admiral Alexieff has accordingly organized an expedition, under Gen. Zerpinsky, consisting of two regiments and five sotnias of Cossacks, 16 guns and a body of volunteers, to operate against the points mentioned. The first movement was successfully carried out in the beginning of April. Kulo, which is 250 kilometers from Mukden, was stormed, and the ex-Governor of Mukden was taken prisoner. In this action the Russians had 13 men killed, and four officers and 18 men wounded. The advance toward the Turchausen position was then begun.

Owing to the departure of most of the Russian troops from Mukden, the latter city has become very unsafe. Almost nightly Russian sentinels are found shot in the back. The situation in Southern Manchuria is disquieting, and another advance of Russian troops will be necessary in the early spring.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

GIVE PERFECT DIGESTION, SOUND SLEEP, STRONG NERVES.

A Popular Remedy for Dyspepsia, which has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of act there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood and that is through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly, the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gasses, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas, and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers" because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tabets are prepared by the F. A Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

THE COPYRIGHT LAW.

Some Amendments Desired to Lord Monkswell's Bill.

STATUS OF A COLONY UNDER IT

Copyright-Holder Would Secure All the Advantages of a Canadian Copyright Without Any Obligation to Print His Books in Canada—What the Deputation Asked—Early Consideration.

Ottawa, April 24. — A deputation from Toronto representing the publishers and printers of that city waited on Hon. Sydney Fisher yesterday to ask that the Government urge upon the British Parliament an important amendment to Lord Monkswell's Copyright bill, now before the House of Lords. The amendment asked was in respect to a clause which provides that any British colony, in cases where a copyright has been issued in any other part of the Empire, may grant a license to the copyright holder or his assignee to exclusively print and publish the book within its borders, or to exclusively import the book. The Monkswell bill is so framed as to make it evident that a colony cannot give the license to print without being compelled, if such is demanded, to grant a license to exclusively import. In other words, the act would enable the copyright holder to secure all the advantages of a Canadian copyright without obligation to print his book in Canada, a condition at utter variance with the Canadian copyright law.

The deputation asked the Government to secure the passage of an amendment separating the two privileges above mentioned, so that a colony might be at liberty to grant the license to print and publish without being compelled to grant a license for exclusive importation. It also urged the necessity for haste in taking steps to remedy this feature of the bill.

Mr. Fisher fully appreciated the force of the arguments presented and the urgent nature of the case, and promised to give the matter early consideration.

Regulations for Rifle Association.

CARE OF THE EYES.

It Should Begin With the Moment of the Baby's Birth.

Nowhere is the comparison between an ounce of prevention and a pound of cure more applicable than in the care of the eyes, for the neglect of seemingly trivial affections, perfectly curable in their beginnings, may lead in an incredibly short time to permanent impairment of vision or even to total blindness.

The care of the eyes should begin with the moment of birth. The new baby's eyes should be the first part to receive attention. They should be wiped carefully with a piece of absorbent cotton wet with a warm solution of boric acid of a strength of about 60 grains in four ounces of distilled water. After the lids have been thus carefully washed on the outside, they should be gently separated and some of the solution dropped into the eyes.

In washing the eyes one should be careful never to dip again in the solution a piece of cotton which has once been used. A fresh piece must be taken each time the eyes are wiped.

The baby's eyes must be protected from the light. Its crib must be placed where the eyes are not exposed to the full light from a window, and the carriage should have a shade raised only about a foot above the baby's head.

Children often suffer from inflammation of the edges of the lids, which are red and scaly, and the lashes fall out and break off. This may betoken a general scrofulous condition, or it may depend upon some defect in the sight which causes eye strain, or it may be only a local trouble. If it is only a local trouble, a few applications of boric acid ointment at bedtime will generally effect a cure.

Conjunctivitis, or inflammation of the membrane covering the globe of the eye, may be due to a cold, to the action of bright sunlight, or reflection from water or from snow, or to eye strain from some visual imperfection. Usually the boric acid solution will give relief here, even when the trouble cannot be permanently cured until proper glasses are worn.

Another painful consequence of eye strain is a succession of sties. When a child suffers frequently from sties, from sore lids or from conjunctivitis, the sight should be tested.

Much harm is often done to the eyes, as well as to the general health, by too long application to books, either school or story books. Three hours of looking at print by daylight and one hour in the evening should not be exceeded by any child under 14, for that is as much as his eyes, even if their vision is perfectly normal, will stand without injury.—Youth's Companion.

Your Footing for Spring

Fine Weather and its Shoe Possibilities.

We're done with Winter—six months, and enough. Spring and summer are now before us. This opens the possibility of shedding our heavy garments and footwear that have done us good service, and donning something lighter and easier. It's these climatic facts and their application that makes us keep two stocks of Shoes, that we may suit the needs of customers for the two seasons.

Just now we are putting before you Summer Shoes. The heavier goods are sent aloft—not so far up that they cannot be reached if needed, but crowded out by their timely successors. So now for summer.

Here's a few seasonable lines—and the prices tell their cost, the cost well represents good value.

IMPROVEMENTS IN PROGRESS

The Morgan House is Being Thoroughly Overhauled.

Mr. R. J. Munro, the proprietor of the Morgan House, is just now engaged in making extensive improvements to his hotel. Every room is being carefully attended to, and is being painted and papered. A bath room is being fitted up, and will fill a long felt want in this regard. Perhaps, however, the greatest improvement when completed will be noticed in the bar. The fixtures for this apartment are being made in Toronto, and it is said that they will eclipse anything of the kind in Peterborough. They will be of quarter oak, beautifully polished, and several large mirrors will be conspicuous amongst the fixtures.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. W. D. Wilgar has returned to Toronto.

Mr. Lou Dobbin left for Buffalo to-day, having secured employment there.

Mr. Couch Grylls of the Sunbeam, was in town to-day and reports work on his new steamer as progressing rapidly.

Dr. Beattie, who for the past four weeks has been confined to the Nicholls Hospital with illness, was taken to Cobourg at noon, where his friends reside.

Port Hope Guide: Rev. Dr. Young returned from Peterborough on Friday at noon, where he had been attending the examinations of young ministers, and shortly after his arrival home he had to take to his bed, to which he has been confined until to-day, having contracted a severe cold. The doctor was billed to preach educational sermons at Campbellford on Sunday, but had to wire Rev. Mr. Greatrix of his illness. This is the first time the doctor has missed an outside appointment, during his whole twenty years as a minister. We are glad to state that he is so far improved that he will be able to resume his duties in a few days.

MR. GLASS CANED.

By the Members of His Young Men's Sunday School Class.

Mr. J. Glass, one of the teachers in George street Methodist Sunday school, and who is removing from town was last night treated to a pleasant surprise. A number of young men, representing his Sunday School class, presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane, suitably engraved, and also the following address:

Dear Friend and Teacher,—We are assembled here this evening to convey to you our feelings. We have had many pleasant gatherings here, which we greatly enjoyed, and we all looked forward to many more. This, however, is a different gathering;—we feel that in your departure we lose one of our best friends, one whom we have ever found ready to help by word or deed.

We wish at this time to thank you for the interest you have taken in us as a class and individually. Since the organization of the class, which you have so long and faithfully taught, over 150 boys have gone out into the world to battle for themselves, and many have been the testimonials as to what your efforts have done for them.

Our regret at your leaving us is increased by the fact that our church will also lose Mrs. Glass, who has been an earnest and zealous worker, and our prayer is that you both may be long spared to carry on the work of the Master.

As a token of our esteem and appreciation we ask you to accept this cane.

Signed—C. J. Whiten, T. W. Brisoin, T. Manning, B. W. Turner, W. J. Wood, Howard Robinson, Walter Robinson, Bert Meharry, John Miller, Fred Staples, Will Staples, W. McGuire, A. Bennett, R. Dobbin, Ed. Carr, R. Bacon, P. Reid, A. Hetherington, T. Miller, John Lush, Garnet Galley, H. Hall, M. Mitchell.

Mr. Glass made an appropriate reply, in which he thanked the boys most sincerely for their kindness, and expressed his regret on leaving Peterborough.

The engraving on the cane was done by Mr. W. A. Sanderson.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S MEETING.

There Should be a Large Attendance on This Occasion.

The citizens of the town are asked to bear in mind the meeting which has been called by Mayor Denne for Friday night for the purpose of discussing the wide tire by-law, and the proposition to hold a monster celebration in Peterborough on May 24th. Mayor Denne is most enthusiastic over the latter question and asks the hearty co-operation of all classes of citizens. At the meeting on Friday night it would be well that representatives should be present from the various sporting organizations and from the different manufacturing establishments of the town.

EXAMINATIONS IN DRAWING

Will Be Held On Thursday April 25th.

Mr. D. Walker, inspector of public schools, will be presiding examiner.

Every candidate is expected to be on hand sharp on time.

A SHAMEFUL SIGHT.

A Drove of Cattle on Victoria Park—Badly Cut Up.

Those who happened to be in the vicinity of Victoria park at noon, to-day, saw a rather lamentable looking sight. A local cattle dealer was taking a drove of about 20 cattle to the back country. The beautiful green grass on the park proved very tempting to them, no doubt, and in a very short while they were scattered throughout the park. The ground of course at this period of the year is very soft and the hoofs of the animals sank many inches into the sod. Nor was this all. The handsome flower beds, which have just been planted, were singled out by the headstrong cows, and they, too, are a sad looking sight.

The question is, who is responsible for such shameful damage? Is the park to be mutilated in this manner every time a drove of cattle is being taken up or down the street? Had the owner of the cattle to-day taken extra precautions at this point, by having more assistance, as should be the case, the park would not present the damaged appearance it does at present.

To-day's exhibition was most shocking to witness, and steps should be taken to prevent a recurrence of the same.

MR. BURDETTE REMEMBERED

By the Employees of the Peterborough Lock Company.

Mr. F. Burdette, who for the past 16 years has been an employee of the Peterborough Lock Co., and who has severed his connection with the same, was Monday presented with a purse and the following address, which was read by Albert Weatherhead :

Mr. F. Burdette, Peterborough,

Dear Sir,—We have learned that you are about to sever your connection with the Peterborough Lock Mfg. Co., with which you have been connected as an employee in a responsible position for the past sixteen years.

We cannot permit you to take your departure without giving expression to the kindly feelings we entertain toward you, and our appreciation of your many good qualities of heart and hand. During the many years you have been associated with us our relations have been most cordial and friendly and we cherish your many charitable acts, sympathetic words and kind deeds.

We beg of you to accept this purse as a slight token of our good will toward you, and we one and all earnestly hope and pray that good health and prosperity may attend you wherever in the future you may be located.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co., Limited.

The localities where sugar beet tests will be made this year have been finally arranged by the Department of Agriculture. The seed will be distributed this week. In all, twelve localities will be tested, grouped into half that number of tests, as follows :—

1. Waterford and Simcoe.
2. Whitby and Simcoe.
3. London and Alvinston.
4. Mount Forest and Walkerton.
5. Peterborough and Prince Edward.
6. Dunville and Cayuga.

The department will supervise operations, Professor Shuttleworth having the work in charge. It is not likely any applications made after this date will be entertained.

MICHAEL BARBINEAU ILL.

Former Toronto Hotel Clerk Down With Paralysis in New York Hospital.

A New York despatch says:—Michael Barbineau, clerk of the Rossmore Hotel, New York, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Saturday, and is lying unconscious at the New York General Hospital. Mr. Barbineau was for several years a clerk in the Walker House in Toronto, and the proprietors of the Rossmore would like to know his mother's address, so that she can be notified of her son's condition. The World made an effort last night to locate her, but the name is not in the Toronto City Directory, and no one could be found who knew where she resides. Barbineau was well-known to the travelling public. About four years ago he went to New York to take a position in the Hotel Rivers, established by Col. Rivers, a New Orleans capitalist, Col. Rivers failed, and lost control of the hotel, and it has since been known as the Rossmore.

Mr. Barbineau was a former resident of Peterborough, his mother keeping hotel on Hunter street, west of Carew's for many years.

WHAT THE GLOBE SAYS.

Much to be Admired About Social Life in Peterborough.

The Toronto Globe says :—Peterborough is winding up its winter with a round of entertainments well attended and much enjoyed. A large Kermess has been most successful with that attraction with which it is sure to draw of many children performers. Concerts and some addresses by Miss H. M. Hill, of Toronto, which were much enjoyed, especially one to the members of the different associated reading clubs, the subject and views being Italy, which country has occupied much of the winter in the clubs. The living whist performed at the Kermess so admirably must have been a fitting close to the whist clubs held throughout the winter. Without being very large there is much to make social life in Peterborough interesting and improving.

EASTER ENTERTAINMENT.

BY THE YOUNG WOMEN'S CHAPTER OF ST. LUKE'S GUILD.

In the Ashburnham Town Hall Last Night—"Cinderella" and "Pumpkin Ridge."

The annual Easter entertainment of St. Lukes church, is always looked forward to with much pleasure, not only by the people of Ashburnham but by many of the residents of Peterborough as well. Last night the annual affair took place in the Ashburnham town hall, being put on under the auspices of the Young Women's Chapter of St. Lukes Guild. The hall, notwithstanding the very inclement state of the weather, was well filled and the presentation of the two short plays "Cinderella" and "Pumpkin Ridge" were heartily enjoyed.

The production of "Cinderella" by amateurs, with the limited facilities of stage, etc., was exceedingly well performed, and reflected much credit upon the various artists. The costumes were pretty, particularly those of Fairy Queen, Miss Florence Butcher, and Miss Florence Scott as Cinderella, both of whom performed their parts most admirably. Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., as Prince, did honour to his position, assuming that stately dignity characteristic of the rank, while Mr. Harry Neill, ever popular before a Peterborough or Ashburnham audience, was cordially received by the audience as Baron. The cast of characters was as follows :—

Fairy Queen.....Florence Butcher
Cinderella.....Florence Scott
Prince.....J. J. Turner, Jr.
Baron.....H. Neill
Baroness.....Miss Fitzgerald
Waiter.....George Rogers
Step-Sisters.....Miss K. Phillips and M. Adams
Attendants to the Prince.....Mr. Parker and Mr. Poser
Page.....Rollie Howden
Fairies....Misses Lillian Rogers, Lillian Scott, Muriel Scott, Hilda Symonds, Antoinette Parker, Florence Howden, Clara Adams, Hazel Crane, Eva Crane, Kathleen Long, Reta Gaskins, and Jessie Spence.
Lords....Mr. C. M. Patterson and Mr Harold Burnham
Ladies..Misses Meade and Miss K.Calcutt

Equally well performed was the farce comedy, "Pumpkin Ridge,' in which Mr. Frank Pakenham was one of the leading lights, and kept the audience in rounds of laughter by his original comic style and the able presentation of his part. Miss Alice Tivey as "Miss Brown," a foolish old maid, proved herself to be an artist of more than ordinary ability, and with her much beloved, but rascally false lover, Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., as "Augustus Slimboy." created unlimited fun. The cast in this play was :

Jonathan Scroggin.....F Pakenham
Miss Brown.....Miss Tivey
Mr Brown.....Mr C Brown
Annie Brown.....Miss Helen Stethem
Augustus Slimboy.....J J Turner, jr
Harry Clifton.....C M Patterson
Policeman.....H Burnham
Belinda Jane Hopkins.....Miss Annie Burnham

Between the production of the two plays Mrs. A. W. Spence and Mrs. Bouchier rendered a piano duet in a delightful manner.

Altogether the entertainment was a great success, and nothing more than one might expect from the flourishing organization under whose auspicet it was given.

At the conclusion of the same refreshments were served to those who took part in the entertainment.

CHEMONG LAKE BRIDGE.

It Will be Repaired by Saturday Next.

The Chemong Lake bridge which was shifted by the high winds on Friday night, and has been impassable since for teams, will be repaired as soon as possible. In order that the anchors may be moved it is necessary that the day be a calm one, but unfortunately ever since the break the waves have been running too high to allow the men to work in the water. There is no doubt but that the break will be fully repaired by Saturday.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The closing exercises in connection with the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium will be held on Friday night.

—Last night's rainfall amounted to .69 of an inch, giving a total of over 4 inches on the level since the beginning of the present showery weather. This is an inch in excess of the usual monthly rainfall.

Pimples, blotches and all other spring troubles are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla—the most effective of all spring medicines

—It would be a novel idea to decorate the town on the occasion of the visit of the Duke of York in a similar manner to that in which it was beautified when his illustrious sire visited the town.

Many young ladies who were supposed to be going into decline have been restored to health and vigor by the use of Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by W. Madill, druggist.

Mr. Vanderwater offers to donate a pair of Morgan & Wright tires as one of the prizes.

BASEBALL.

A meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Baseball Club was held in the Oriental Hotel last night, there being present Messrs. H. R. H. Kenner, president, in the chair, and Manager Graham, R. A. W. Hay, secretary-treasurer ; E. Desautel and W. B. Rickey.

It was decided to give an "Assault-at-arms" entertainment in the opera house on or about the evening of Thursday, May 2nd. The programme will consist of gymnastics, fencing, bayonet, boxing and wrestling bouts, etc.

Letters were received from various clubs regarding games, etc.

The secretary was asked to write to Port Hope, Cobourg, Oshawa and Bowmanville clubs regarding a meeting of the Midland League. The meeting will be held in Port Hope on a day agreeable to all the clubs.

LACROSSE.

Mr. Jack Mooney, formerly of the Peterborough Senior Lacrosse Club, is Secretary Treasurer of the New Ontario Lacrosse Association, and Don Hogarth is on the Executive Committee. Both boys are now living at the Soo.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

The steamer Empress made her first trip to Young's Point last Monday.

It is expected that the new steamer Alert will be ready to launch by May 15th, and be ready to run regular trips by June 15th.

The dredge is at work again taking out the rock at the upper entrance to the canal, opposite Mr. John Hull's mill. Mr. Peck is engineer and foreman in charge, Mr. Fred McWilliams firemen and Mr. Hugh Sutton cranesman.

Mrs. W. Baptie is again at her old post, catering to the wants of the inner man.

Mr. Hugh Sutton on Saturday, while the dredge was being locked through the canal, was leaning over the lock to catch a rope thrown by one of the men, he lost his balance and fell down about twenty feet on to the dredge. He lit on his feet, but he has been unable to be at his home since owing to the shock.

About the same time Mr. Andrew Johnston sustained a severe kick in the face from a horse in Mr. John Isbister's blacksmith shop. A doctor was summoned and he was taken to his home.

VESTRY MEETING.

The adjourned vestry meeting of St. John the Baptist church was held in the old church on Monday evening, April 15th. Present Messrs. LeFevre, Blomfield, Langley, Everett, J. P. Strickland, R. C. Strickland, J. Strickland, Isaac Watson, Dench, Hilliard, Ogilvie, Amys and Dela Fosse. The incumbent in the chair. It was moved by Mr. Blomfield, seconded by Mr. Hilliard, that Mr. Dench be asked to act as secretary of the meeting. Carried.

The minutes of the last meeting were then read. The accounts for the past year, which had been audited by Messrs. Hilliard and Della Fosse were then read.

Moved by Mr. Hilliard, seconded by Mr. Everett, that the various financial statements submitted by the incumbent and churchwardens be received and adopted, and that the usual number of copies be printed for circulation amongst the members of the congregation. Carried.

Moved by Mr. R. C. Strickland, seconded by Mr. C. J. Blomfield, that when the churchwardens distribute the envelopes for the clergyman's stipend, the amount of shortage required to be made up at the end of the previous month or surplus in hand at that period be written on each envelope. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Amys, seconded by Mr. Ogilvie, that Messrs. Hilliard and W. M. Graham be appointed auditors for the ensuing year.—Carried.

Mr. Blomfield tendered his resignation as people's churchwarden, a position which he has filled most ably and acceptably for the past six years, but on the earnest representation of the meeting kindly consented to hold office and defer definite action till July next. A discussion ensued on the question of making assessments in regard to Diocesan Missions. Mr. G. B. Hilliard entered a protest against the system as being in his opinion ultra vires of diocesan law. The incumbent explained matters by stating that it was the outcome of the mission board discovering that the mission fund was going down hill. This method had been resorted to in order to raise the fund to a right level.

The meeting then adjourned.

BLIND FRIEND OF THE BEES.

Their Confidence In Him Taught Him Many of Their Secrets.

The world owes not a little of its knowledge to men and women who have been totally blind. Francis Huber, the Swiss naturalist, born at Geneva in 1750, is a noteworthy example of what may be done by a person without eyes. Through study and ill health he lost his sight in his seventeenth year, and, being possessed of enough means to live comfortably, he retired to a small town in his native land and set to work to fathom bee life.

There were many hive mysteries which naturalists had been unable to solve up to that time, mysteries so deep and elusive that there seemed but slight chance of a blind man unraveling them. But Huber had two assistants who used their eyes for him, his wife and a servant named Francis Burnens. With their intelligent help, he conducted a long series of experiments that unfolded a wonderful community and system among the little honey gatherers.

His discovery of the means by which they ventilated their hives was especially ingenious. It stood to reason that a multitude of insects living in a dwelling with one small door must have some way of renewing the air which they breathed. He first proved that bees would suffocate in a corked bottle. Then casting about for a solution of the ventilation problem he found that a number of insects were always busily vibrating their wings at the hive entrance. Frequently there were as many as 20 posted there at once, and they seemed to change guard regularly and keep up the work night and day. Some stood outside facing the door and more inside facing outward. By studying the mechanism of their wings he found that they were so formed as to maintain a constant circulation, bad air being forced out and fresh, life giving oxygen forced into every cranny of their dwelling.

The origin of wax was another mooted point among bee students. Some naturalists thought that the insects gathered their wax from plants, while others maintained that it was a secretion from the pollen which they ate, being disgorged from the bee's mouth as fast as needed in its building.

Huber first found that bees settling in new hives went to making comb at once, though they brought home no pollen, while the bees in old hives gathered pollen abundantly, though they built no cells. So he put a swarm into the new hive, made them prisoners with a netting over the entrance and fed them honey alone with drinking water. With in a day they had begun making comb, and when the comb was removed they quickly replaced it. This experiment was kept up long enough to exhaust any supply of wax that the insects may have carried from their old home. When fed upon fruit and farina, they made no comb at all, though the food kept them healthy and happy for more than a week. Further experiments and close watching by Mrs. Huber and Burnens proved that the wax came from between the rings of the bee's abdomen.

The Dyeing of the Eggs.

'Tis Easter mild,
And every child
Will agonize
With splashing dyes.
"Oh, mamma, I'm needing some crimson red!
I can get it all for a dime.
Oh, mamma, please do not shake your head!
You know it is Easter time.
And, ma, can I have the bottle of blue
That sits on the kitchen shelf?
I'll stand on a chair and won't bother you
And dye all the eggs myself."

Then, oh, for the white and yellow egg glaze
That plasters their curly hair,
And a sticky mass that lingers for days
Spread over the kitchen chairs!
No tattoo deep of the pirate main
Or the paint of the Zulu bands
Could ever hold their indelible stain
Like the dye on the children's hands.

PLEASE TELL THE PEOPLE.

Mr. Coderre Wants Everyone to Know His Story.—He Had a Very Bad Case of Dyspepsia, and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cured Him.—After Everything else had failed.—His Testimonial Letter.

Everybody in St. Jacques, Que., knows Ademard Coderre. He has given for publication the following letter:—

"I certify that for over two years, I suffered with Dyspepsia and Inflammation of the Stomach. I have taken several medicines, but have secured no relief. I was very discouraged.

"One day, I read an account of the cure of a similar case by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, so I determined to try again. I bought two boxes of them. From the very first, they relieved me, and now I am completely cured.

"I desire to make my case known to the public, so that all who suffer from that malady may find the only remedy that will cure it. Please tell all the people that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured me."

It is not often that any remedy receives such very high and unqualified commendation as Mr. Coderre gives to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. There can be nothing plainer than his straightforward statement of the facts of his case and its cure.

No one in St. Jacques doubts Mr. Coderre's truthfulness, and no one who hears him speak of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets can doubt his sincerity.

The earnestness of the statements made by the friends of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, is the distinguishing feature of their testimonials.

Almost everyone refers to the fact that they have tried other treatments without success, and all manifest a desire to impress upon other sufferers, the fact that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are not as other medicines are, but will instantly relieve and permanently cure all stomach trouble.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets is an honest remedy, endorsed heartily by honest people.

They are no experiment, but a tried and proven remedy. Thousands have used them, and everyone tells the same thankful story of restoration to health.

Better not delay longer. Try them. You'll not be disappointed.

SHOW WINDOWS RENTED.

The Way Some New York Storekeepers Swell Their Incomes.

In one corner of the window were several pieces of fine embroidery and a sample of accordion plaiting. The woman with the small package under her arm stepped inside the shop and laid her bundle on the counter.

"I would like to get this silk plaited," she said. "How much do you charge a yard?"

The man in attendance smiled affably.

"We don't do that kind of work here," he said. "This is a stationery store. For particulars as to plaiting you'll have to inquire at No. 246, around on the next street."

The would be customer pointed to the specimens in the window.

"What have you got those things hung up there for if you don't do the work here?" she asked.

"Oh," said the man, "we are simply advertising the man around the corner. This is a busy street, and where one person would notice the windows around there ten people will stop to look and admire here."

"You are very accommodating," remarked the woman, "to give your neighbors space in a prominent place like this."

"Oh, don't fool yourself," he corrected. "I'm not advertising their business for nothing. They pay me for every square inch of window room they occupy and at a good rate too.

"It's a lucrative business, this thing of renting out your windows in sections. I've had applications for a foot or two of space from a dozen other people living on less populous streets, and if I didn't have to keep a portion of my window, which is rather small, for the display of my own goods, I could make the rent of my whole shop off this one pane of glass. Sometimes a man with a small trade will rent the whole of his window to an outsider, but this wholesale disposal of privileges is not common, for the reason that a good window costs more money than a renter cares to pay.

"The price asked for a window, or a portion thereof, all depends upon the location and the nature of the display. For the five square feet of space utilized by the man at 246 I get $14 a month, and I'll wager he makes three times that off the trade I send him.'

How a Sprain Does Hurt!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

DOES A BABY PAY?

A Father's View of the Entries Made on the Family Ledger.

Does a 2-year-old baby pay for itself up to the time it reaches that interesting age? Sometimes I think not. I thought so yesterday when my own baby slipped into my study and "scrubbed" the carpet and his best white dress with my bottle of ink. He was playing in the coal hod ten minutes after a clean dress was put on him, and later in the day he pasted 50 cents' worth of postage stamps on the parlor wall and poured a dollar's worth of the choicest white rose perfumery out of the window "to see it wain."

Then he dug out the center of a nicely baked loaf of cake and was found in the middle of the dining room table with the sugar bowl between his legs and most of the contents in his stomach.

He has already cost $100 in doctor's bills, and I feel that I am right in attributing my few gray hairs to the misery I endured walking the floor with him at night during the first year of his life.

What has he ever done to pay me for that?

Ah! I hear his little feet pattering along out in the hall. I hear his little ripple of laughter because he has escaped from his mother and has found his way up to my study at a forbidden hour. But the door is closed. The worthless little vagabond can't get in, and I won't open it for him. No, I won't. I can't be disturbed when I'm writing. He can just cry if he wants to. I won't be bothered for— "Rat, tat, tat," go his dimpled knuckles on the door. I sit in silence.

"Rat, tat, tat."
I sit perfectly still.
"Papa."
No reply.
"Peeze, papa."
Grim silence.
"Baby tum in—peeze, papa."
He shall not come in.
"My papa."
I write on.
"Papa," says the little voice; "I lub my papa. Peeze let baby in."

I am not quite a brute, and I throw open the door. In he comes with outstretched little arms, with shining eyes, with laughing face. I catch him up into my arms, and his warm, soft, little arms go around my neck, the not very clean little cheek is laid close to mine, the baby voice says sweetly:

"I lub my papa."

Does he pay?

Well, I guess he does! He has cost me many anxious days and nights. He has cost me time and money and care and self sacrifice. He may cost me pain and sorrow. He has cost much. But he has paid for it all again and again in whispering those three little words into my ears, "I lub papa."

Our children pay when their very first feeble little cries fill our hearts with the mother love and the father love that ought never to fail among all earthly passions.

Where Medical Science Fails

to cure rheumatism, and all the time you suffer dreadfully, why don't you get a bottle of Polson's Nerviline and try that? Rub it into your stiff joints, sore arms, lame back, bent shoulders—wherever the pain is. Nerviline has cured plenty of people in this way, and that ought to be proof enough that it will cure you too. It is an unusually strong liniment that cures rheumatism in unusually quick time. Best household liniment known. 25 cents.

VICTORIA, P.E.I., Sept. 26th, 1900.
From MRS. P. H. CURTIS: My daughter, aged 19, had severe pains in her back at times, also swelling of the feet and legs. I procured a box of Doan's Pills and by the time she had taken the one box she had gained 9½ pounds and was completely cured.

MIDGIC, N.B., March 22nd, 1900.
From REV. J. W. GARDNER: I think it is nothing but right to say that both Mrs. Gardner and myself have derived great benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills. They were used by myself for backache and lumbago with wonderful success.

Backache MEANS Kidney Ache

And it all comes from the same cause—sick kidneys—and sick kidneys mean Kidney Disease, Urinary Troubles, Diabetes and Bright's Disease.

If you are wise you will always heed the first backache and procure Doan's Pills and save yourself further trouble.

Here are a few letters endorsing the virtues of Doan's Pills:

LUNENBURG, N.S., Sept. 26th, 1900.
From MR. E. M. SMELTZE: It affords me great pleasure to write you of the good Doan's Pills have done my father. He has been ailing for many years, and I consider it Providential that he ever got a box of your pills. Altogether he has used five boxes and is completely cured, and wishes to recommend them to all who suffer from kidney trouble.

AURORA, ONT., Nov. 23rd, 1900.
From MR. SILAS MILLAR: Some months ago, previous to procuring a box of Doan's Pills, I was badly troubled with backache, and the one box completely banished all pain from my back, and I take great pleasure in recommending them to others.

STARBRIDGE EAST, QUE., Feb. 8th, '99.
From H. C. HALL, ex-Mayor: I have been troubled with my back and kidneys off and on for some time, and not long ago I was taken with such a backache that I could not straighten up and could hardly lift a one pound weight. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and was astonished at their effect, for in a very short time I was completely cured, and do not hesitate to recommend them to those who suffer from lame back or kidney troubles.

MIAMI, MAN., Nov. 14th, 1896.
From MR. ALEX. FRASER: Some time ago I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills determining to give them a trial for lame back and kidney complaint which had become so bad I could hardly endure it. After using the box of pills I was cured and cannot refrain from recommending them to all persons troubled with kidney disorder.

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Sept. 26th, 1900.
From MR. MATTHEW DRYSDALE: Sometime ago I was troubled with an aching pain in my back, and tired feeling after the slightest exertion. My urine was also discolored. I procured a box of Doan's Pills and after taking them my backache has disappeared and my urine has returned to its normal color. Altogether the Pills were a perfect cure. I consider them a wonderful preparation.

A Preferred Creditor.

A member of the commercial swindling fraternity lately called his creditors together and offered them in settlement his note for 2 shillings on the pound on their claims payable in four months. His brother, one of the largest creditors, rather "kicked," but the debtor took him aside and said:

"Do not make any objections, and I will make you a preferred creditor."

So the proposal was accepted by all.

Presently the preferred brother said:

"Well, I should like what is coming to me."

"Oh," was the reply, "you won't get anything! They won't any of them get anything."

"But I thought I was a preferred creditor?"

"So you are. These notes will not be paid when they come due, but it will take them four months to find ont that they are not going to get anything. But you know it now. You see you are preferred."—London Answers.

Weary Waiting.

She (wearily)—Did you give the waiter your order?

He (gloomily)—Yes, but I think he means to keep it as a souvenir.—Harper's Bazar.

Nervousness and Nerve.

The more nervous a man is, the less nerve he has. That sounds paradoxical—but it isn't; for nerve is stamina.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives nerve. It tones the whole system, perfects digestion and assimilation, and is therefore the best medicine a nervous person can take.

If you get tired easily, mentally or physically, take it—it will do you good.

PERFECTLY HELPLESS.

Probably the most remarkable case of rheumatism known to physicians in Kingston, Ont., was that of Mr. Richard Savage, driver for G. M. Wilkinson & Son. During the past winter this young man was away from his work for no less a time than five weeks. If he attempted to do anything, he was obliged to return home at once, being unable to endure the pain. For two weeks he could not walk a step. "I tried all the cures everybody suggested," said Mr. Savage, "but they were of no use. Finally a friend sent me a bottle of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. I drained the contents of the bottle and was so relieved that I sent for another. I was completely cured by the second bottle, and I have not had a rheumatic pain since. I never felt better in my life, and I heartily recommend Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure to all sufferers from rheumatism."

HIS RECALL TELEGRAM.

It Didn't Work as Smoothly as He Had Anticipated.

"I have had only one experience in addressing a communication to myself," said a professional man, "and that was so disastrous I never tried it again. It happened in this way: Shortly after I hung out my shingle and while I was having a desperate struggle to make both ends meet a rich, eccentric old aunt of mine invited me to spend the summer at her country home in Vermont. I knew the old lady had a very peppery temper, but she had always promised to 'do something for me,' and, under the circumstances, I concluded to go. Her home was several miles from the nearest village and was really a beautiful place; but, just as I had feared, my aunt herself proved to be terribly trying company. She was irascible and domineering to the last degree, and, having lived alone with a lot of cringing servants, she was in the habit of saying things that made my blood boil in my veins. I managed to hold my tongue, however, and when I finally saw that I wasn't going to be able to stand it much longer I thought up a neat little scheme for beating a graceful retreat.

"I had a special chum here in New Orleans who knew all about my trip, and one evening I slipped over to the village and sent him a telegram, running about like this: 'Impossible to remain longer with the old shrew. Wire me tomorrow that important business demands my immediate presence. Make it strong. Must skip.' That was brutal, I admit, but I was badly worked up.

"Early next morning I announced to my aunt that I was going out fishing for the day. 'I had a lawsuit coming up this week,' I remarked casually, 'and it's barely possible I may get some message about it. If any telegram arrives, please open it, and if it needs an answer one of the men can come over after me at the bridge.' I wanted her to see the recall telegram with her own eyes so as to avert any suspicion and went off chuckling over my cleverness. Somewhat to my surprise, however, the day wore away without a messenger, and I began to soften. 'The poor old lady don't want me to go,' I said to myself, 'and is holding back the news.' But when I walked up to the house that evening I was thunderstruck to see my trunks standing on the porch, and before I could ask any questions my aunt appeared at the threshold, flung me a telegram with a tragic gesture and slammed the door in my face. I opened the paper mechanically and nearly fell dead. It was my own message. My chum was out of town when it arrived, and it had been returned to the sender."

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

WITCH HAZEL.

Made Altogether From the Bark of a Common American Shrub.

The manager of the drug store took up a bottle of distilled witch hazel and pointed at the picture of a lot of naked South American Indians engaged in bringing to the distillery huge bundles of twigs. From this picture the natural inference was that this was the way in which the shrub from which the witch hazel or hamamelis of commerce is extracted was brought to the distilleries in some wild and hardly habitable region.

"That picture," he remarked, "is one of the pretty little fictions of trade that have created a decided impression. It has, I have no doubt, brought to the concern shrewd enough to adopt it many thousands of dollars in profit. But it was all a 'fake,' as we call such things nowadays. As a matter of fact, the great bulk of all the witch hazel distilled is made in factories along the line of the Shore Line division of the New York and New Haven road. The bark from which it is distilled is all harvested in the New England states, near where the distilleries are located. The savages that bring the bark to the factories bring it in farm wagons. The nearest they come to being untutored savages is when they are at their homes engaged either as country farmers or charcoal burners.

"There has always seemed to be a great mystery about this popular astringent that is used in about every home in the country. Few know or stop to think that it is distilled from the bark of one of the most common of our wild shrubs. Now that the talk of a trust to control the manufacture of the extract has reached the papers, the facts as to witch hazel are appearing. I have had several of my customers ask me if it is true that witch hazel is not an imported remedy, but merely a 'Yankee concoction.' It is a fact that it is entirely a Yankee industry, and all the bark from which the distillation is made is gathered in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. The latter state is the chief source of the supply. Madison, Guilford, Clinton, Westbrook and the contiguous Connecticut shore villages have a lot of families that are mainly supported by their harvestings of witch hazel. Cat Tactics.

The other day I heard of a cat which had been trained to rattle a certain door when she wished to go out. Her owner, it seems, had set apart for the cat's use a special chair in the sitting room and one day inadvertently occupied it while the cat was in the room. Meanwhile the cat roamed restlessly about, trying first one place and then another, until, finding that her mistress still sat stolidly in this special chair, she deliberately went to the outer door, rattled it, and when her mistress came to let her out turned around and ran back to the sitting room, perching herself on the chair with an air of triumphant satisfaction, much to the amusement of her mistress.

Sleep the Best Rest.

A physician says the cry of rest has always been louder than the cry for food; not that it is important, but it is often harder to obtain. The best rest comes from sound sleep. Of two men or women, otherwise equal, the one who sleeps the best will be the most moral, healthy and efficient. Sleep will do much to cure irritability of temper, peevishness and uneasiness. It will restore to vigor an overworked brain. It will build up and make strong a weary body. It will cure a headache. It will help a broken spirit. It will assuage sorrow. Indeed, we might make a long list of nervous and other maladies that sleep will cure. The cure of sleeplessness requires a clean, good bed, sufficient exercise to produce weariness, pleasant occupation, good air and not too warm a room, a clear conscience and avoidance of stimulants and narcotics.

The Stimulus.

"Sometimes," answered the very serious young man, "but oftener by the expiration of the period for which rent has been paid."

Mysteries.

The wise man gazed out into space
And said in measured tones and slow:
"There are some thoughts we cannot trace;
There are some things we may not know.

"We may not know what holds the life
Within the blossom bearing seed
Nor why some people use the knife
When they have gathered round to feed.

"We may not know what sets the glow
In stars that gem the midnight sky
Nor what the merchant folk bestow
In half the things to eat we buy.

"We know not how fate will befall
And bear us low or to the top
Nor (deepest mystery of all)
Just where the car is going to stop."

Got Her Puzzled.

"I don't intend to marry a man who'll smoke himself into a heart failure," she said.

"Now look here," he protested, "I don't interfere with you eating candy. Why should you interfere with my smoking?"

"But I don't eat candy morning, noon and night."

"Neither do I."

"You smoke morning, noon and night."

"But you don't."

"Well?"

"Well, if you don't smoke morning, noon and night, and I don't eat candy morning, noon and night we break even, don't we?"

Capital $40.000 in 1,600 Shares of $25 Each.

This company has been formed for the purpose of carrying out the suggestion of the committee recently appointed to enquire into the question of pure milk supply.

It is proposed to enter into a contract for the supply to this Company of the quantity of milk required under the conditions referred to in the committee's report.

The Company will erect proper buildings and plant for treating the milk and delivering it free from impurities ; the herd of cows, stables, employees, etc, being subject to strict regulations and rigid inspection.

A careful estimate has been made of the cost of buildings and plant, including Refrigerating apparatus, and it has been decided that subscriptions to the necessary extent should be obtained in order to carry on the projected scheme successfully. It may reasonably be anticipated that within a short period the delivery will be sufficient to ensure the Company against loss and that as the quantity increases the return will produce a fair dividend upon the capital, after providing for depreciation.

Subscriptions to the extent of two shares and upwards are invited.

As soon as a sufficient number of shares have been taken to warrant the commencement of operations, a meeting of the subscribers will be called for the purpose of naming Provisional Directors.

Further particulars may be obtained at the office of Mr. A. P. Pousette, 379 Water St., or Mr. H. P. Kennedy, 340 George St., or Mr. F. H. Dobbin, at the Review office.

The following gentlemen have already subscribed :— Dr. Halliday, Dr. Boucher, Dr. Carmichael, Dr. Eastwood, Dr. Greer, Dr. Scott, Messrs A. H. Stratton, B. Shortly, W. D. Parker, A. W. Cressman, R. A. Dutton, J. J. McBain, A. J. Gough, T. F. Matthews, W. H. Hill, H. P. Kennedy, A. Parker, F. H. Dobbin, C. H. Moore.

Toronto and Mr. McGill of Ottawa to give expert testimony upon the matter.

After considerable discussion the committee decided that it was not necessary or desirable to accede to the request of Mr. Kerr, the points raised not being pertinent to the issue before them.

This concluded the evidence and the committee adjourned till to-day at 10.30 to hear arguments.

Some of the Exhibits.

These are some of the exhibits filed at yesterday's investigation: 1897—On Sept. 30, Mr. Cameron wrote Sir Richard Cartwright stating that he had a letter from —— ——, urging him to recommend him for the Senate in succession to Sir Oliver Mowat. Mr. Cameron went on to enumerate the claims of the party in question and then concluded: "I do not wish to press ——'s claims above others, because, as you know, when a vacancy took place in the Senate not very long ago I strongly pressed the claim of another man upon certain conditions. The thing fell through, and I vowed I would never again interfere in a matter of the kind. I may say to you that yesterday I received a letter from the same man, pressing me very strongly to press on the Government his appointment. I have declined to interfere on his behalf for reasons well known to you," etc.

Marked "Confidential," and addressed to "My dear Cameron," is the following letter, signed by Sir Richard Cartwright, and dated Oct. 6, 1896:

"Your friend's present mood does not quite take with the idea you expressed to me—that he left Ottawa exceedingly confident. It looked more as if he had found a difficulty in the question you originally approached; at the same time, it is very unlucky, as I doubt if matters can be left standing much longer. There is always trouble in too long delay, and that is the case here."

The following was from Mr. Cook to Mr. Cameron:

"Toronto, Aug. 25, 1896.

"My Dear Cameron,—Your letter of yesterday is to hand and contents noted. I shall always be guided by your good judgment, and keep quiet in the meantime. However, I have sent my applications to-day, addressing them to Laurier, Mowat and Cartwright, and I am waiting with a great deal of anxiety for your letter anent your second interview. What do you think of having some member having influence with Sir Oliver, to see him in reference to this matter? If you think well of this, whom would you suggest? I return your letter, and will do so with any further communications you may send me, so there will be nothing on record from you, knowing your cautions in matters of this kind. I am very thankful for the trouble you have taken, and I shall be able to reciprocate at any time, and at any time you can make use of me let me know it. Yours faithfully,

"(Sgd.) H. H. Cook."

This gem was read, and marked "Exhibit No. 55":

"House of Commons, Canada,
"Ottawa, Aug. 29, 1896.

"Dear Cook,—Had long interview with Mowat. One other man stands in the way, wealthy; also interviewed Bill Paterson and Cartwright this morning. The latter strong, sound. There is one way by which the matter can be put, sure. I won't mention the way until I see you. I go west on Thursday next. If you are not here before next Thursday, I will see you on my way down. Yours truly,

"M. C. Cameron."

STEEL RAILS CONTRACT.

The House of Commons Spent the Entire Day Discussing the Clergue Bargains —Mistake in Draft.

Ottawa, April 24.—The House spent the entire day discussing the Government contract with the Clergue syndicate for the supply of steel rails for the Intercolonial. It came out in the discussion that the contract which had been laid on the table had not been signed by Mr. Clergue, and that as it had not come before the Minister of Railways for his signature he had not seen that it did not embody the provisions of the Order-in-Council. This error of the officers of the department gave rise to a discussion which lasted until midnight.

In reply to Mr. Maclean, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that on Monday he would be able to tell the House what would be done in reference to making the 24th of May a public holiday this year.

Steel Rails Contract.

The House went into Committee of Supply upon the Railway Department's estimates. Mr. Blair, referring to the recent debate upon the contract with the Sault Ste. Marie & Lake Superior Power Company for steel rails, said that he had expected members opposite would have refrained from harsh criticism until they had all the facts before them.

The debate continued until 11.45, when, on a suggestion to adjourn, Mr. Blair said he had no objection to adjourning at that time, and promised that he would bring down the information that had been asked for.

Re-Arrangement of Business !

HENRY & CO.

In view of an important business change now in process of arrangement, extensive alterations will be commenced in the store premises at once. Modern improvements, handsome new furnishings, store fittings and fixtures will be introduced, with the view of making this the "PALACE" Grocery and Liquor Store of the district.

On account of these changes, and the inconveniences that may be occasioned to our patrons during the progress of these improvements in the store, all shelf goods will be sold close to wholesale cost.

UNPAID ACCOUNTS

It is imperative that the books of the Messrs. Henry & Co. be closed immediately, and a satisfactory settlement of all unpaid accounts arranged for before the 1st day of May next. Early attention to this matter will save inconvenience and trouble to our patrons and ourselves.

The old gentleman was the recipient of several pretty souvenirs of the occasion, and a very pleasant reunion was enjoyed.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The lake was all cleard of ice on Wednesday, the 17th, without doing any damage to the bridge, but some of the farmers on the north side of the lake met with a surprise on Saturday morning. After they had started for Peterborough and got as far as the bridge they found it unfit to cross, the result of the high winds on Friday night, this meant that they would either have to go around the head of the lake which is about seventeen miles or go back home again. It will be a good job when the new bridge is completed.

The continued rains mean serious loss to the farmers as the land is so wet the grain which is sown such as barley and peas has a tendency to rot in the ground and it is going to be late before the rest of the crop is got in.

COUNSELS' ARGUMENT

Mr. Marsh Presents Mr. Cook's Case Before the Committee.

MR. BLAKE'S SPEECH IN REPLY.

Severe Arraignment of Mr. Cook—Mr. Blake Said That in His Opinion There Was Nothing in the Charges From Beginning to End—Mr. Marsh Says Charges Are Proved.

Ottawa, April 25.—Argument by counsel took place before the Cook Investigation Committee yesterday. There was a much smaller attendance than when evidence was being given, thus showing a decided falling off in public interest. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the Chairman, read a letter from Mr. Graham Cameron, stating that in giving his evidence on the previous day he made use of an expression which he should not have done. He used the word blackguard in reference to his brother-in-law, Dr. Wilson, in a moment of irritation, and this expression he now desired to recall. The committee granted the request.

Mr. Marsh's Argument.

Mr. Marsh, who represented Mr. Cook throughout the enquiry, began his argument by reading the original charges, published long ago. He laid particular stress on Mr. Cook's first interview with Sir Richard Cartwright as furnishing the key to the situation. At that interview, it will be recollected, Mr. Cook said he was given to understand that one man, Mr. Cox, had a stronger claim than he. The next part of the evidence on which Mr. Marsh laid emphasis was M. C. Cameron's letter to Cook, dated Aug. 29, 1896, in which he said: "There is only one way by which the matter can be put sure." If that one way was an honest, decent way why didn't Mr. Cameron mention it? Why, if the letter was an open, frank one, should Mr. Cameron have put at the end of it "Peruse and return?"

Then Mr. Marsh referred to the letter said by Mr. Cook to have been presented to him at Toronto station, written by Sir Richard Cartwright, the letter which said Cook must "do something." That part of Mr. Cook's story had not been shaken by cross-examination. The "do something" phrase struck Mr. Marsh as being full of significance. As explained to Mr. Cook by Mr. Cameron, it meant $10,000. Sir Richard's denial of the existence of this "do something" letter, Mr. Marsh characterized as very faint-hearted. He merely said he didn't recollect any letters on the matter, and yet only yesterday a number of letters written by Cameron to Sir Richard and one by Sir Richard to Cameron were produced before the committee. Sir Richard's memory, all through, Mr. Marsh said, was very treacherous, and was not to be depended on when it seemed to contradict some one else's memory. The letters in the matter seemed to show that Cameron was "working Cook" with Sir Richard's approval.

Mr. Marsh then turned to the interview in the Rossin House at Toronto between Mr. Cameron, Mr. Cook and Mr. Biggs. In a general way, Mr. Marsh said, Mr. Biggs' evidence corroborated Mr. Cook's account of the interview, though it was evident he (Biggs) did not specially desire to help Mr. Cook out. Mr. Frank Macdonald's evidence, Mr. Marsh claimed, also corroborated Mr. Cook. Mr. Macdonald, it will be recollected, gave evidence regarding an interview he had at Goderich with Mr. Cameron.

Then Mr. Marsh passed on to point out discrepancies in the evidence given by Mr. Biggs regarding the occasion when he said to Mr. Cook: "You have got those fellows now," etc. Mr. Marsh criticised at length Mr. Biggs' evidence regarding Mr. Cameron retaining the $10,000 if it was put up. He was evidently measuring another man's honor with his own little tape measure.

Mr. Marsh then pointed to Mr. Cameron's letter of September 30, 1897, to Mr. Cook, in which he said Mr. Cook had the cards in his own hands, refused to play them, and lost the game. There was only one inference to be drawn from that letter, which was corroborated to a certain extent by Cameron's letter of the same date to Sir Richard. Sir Richard's explanation of the reason why Mr. Cook did not get the Senatorship, that Mr. Cook was persona non grata to Sir Oliver Mowat, Mr. Marsh characterized as exceedingly diaphanous. Sir Richard's letter to Mr. Cook of March 9, 1898, was also suspicious. In that letter Sir Richard says: "I may want to see you first." That meant, Mr. Marsh said, that Sir Richard had something to say which he dare not commit to paper.

Then Mr. Marsh passed on to consider the part played by Mr. Preston in the matter, and incidentally said Mr. Preston had endeavored to draw a herring across the trail, meaning, of course, Mr. Preston's attempt to show that the date of his letter had been tampered with. The evidence as to Cook's outburst of temper after the Preston interview, when he referred to Preston as a — scoundrel, was, Mr. Marsh thought, of weight. Cook would not have lost his temper on that occasion merely for theatrical effect. Mr. Marsh ridiculed the general tenor of Mr. Preston's evidence, especially that part of it in which Mr. Preston said he had warned Cook against putting up money as an inducement to secure his appointment. The charges against Preston and Cameron were, he said, proved to the hilt.

Mr. Marsh passed in review the various letters in the matter in which Sir Richard Cartwright figured, for the purpose of showing that Sir Richard was implicated in the Senatorship trafficking. As far as Sir Richard was concerned, Mr. Marsh said, the evidence was not all one way, but, if submitted to a jury, the verdict would undoubtedly be guilty. As to the Premier, he was connected with it through his accredited agent, Sir Richard Cartwright, who had charge of the Ontario Senatorships. In this case Sir Richard was not to be put in the position of wicked partner. Sir Wilfrid was as deep in the mud as Sir Richard was in the mire. Mr. Marsh concluded by a reference to Bystander's comment on the matter, which, he said, he wished to include in his argument. The quotation was to the effect that nobody supposed the offer was made to Mr. Cook by an Order-in-Council; few doubted, however, that an offer was made.

Mr. Marsh concluded at 12.45 when the committee adjourned till evening.

Mr. Blake's Reply.

At the evening sitting of the committee Mr. Blake followed for the defence. He regretted that Mr. Marsh had reflected on Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and pointed out that Mr. Cook said he did not make any charge against the Premier. Besides, Mr. Ritchie had said there was nothing to justify calling on Sir Wilfrid to give evidence. The character of the Premier is something to be held in honor by the whole Dominion, and should not be lightly assailed, unless there is evidence against him of wrong doing.

Continuing, Mr. Blake said it must have "disgusted" the committee to hear from Mr. Cook the "degrading methods" he took to enter such an august body as the Senate. He pleaded his race, religion and money expended, and even traversed holy writ, comparing himself to St. Paul, much to the apostles' "disadvantage."

Sir Richard was a champion of Cook's claim to a Senatorship from start to finish, and consequently it did not need money or favors to influence him. Mr. Cook had interviews with him far too frequently, and could not state on any of these occasions was the question of money mentioned.

Mr. Blake argued that other members of the Government having been approached, the proposal that a bribe was under consideration was ridiculous. Mr. Blake scored Mr. Cook for keeping copies of letters he promised Mr. Cameron to destroy, concluding with the exclamation, "Thank God, he is not in the Senate, and he never shall be."

Dealing with the relations between Mr. Cook and Solicitor Biggs, he said that everything went to show that Cook was waiting to be bought, and consulted Biggs about the criminal law with a view to his own protection.

Reviewing the evidence about the Cartwright letter, in which it was stated: "Surely our friend Cook must do something," the counsel read from Mr. Cook's examination to show that he remembered nothing else about the letter, and said that no man's mind could come to a definite conclusion upon it.

Dealing with Preston's evidence, Mr. Blake said there was nothing to justify the committee in discrediting his statements. He, however, discredited Frank Macdonald's evidence, that he went to Goderich and while there saw Mr. Cameron, who told him that Mr. Cook could have got the Senatorship by paying the $10,000.

Mr. Hancock's evidence was dismissed with the suggestion that it could easily have been manufactured.

The letters put in were next reviewed. Mr. Blake said they were quite easy to understand if the letters were read in the proper order as to dates. In his opinion there was nothing in the charge from beginning to end. Concluding, he said that in Cook, the accuser, there was no honor, sense of right or truth, no regard for the dead nor for friends who stood by him.

Mr. Blake's closing sentence was a severe castigation of Mr. Cook, closing with the words: "Let us leave him to the infamy which he so richly deserves."

The committee adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Ritchie will deliver the closing address.

Mr. Preston and Mr. Marsh.

The rotunda of the Russell House was the scene of a heated altercation yesterday afternoon between Mr. W. T. R. Preston and Mr. Marsh, counsel for Mr. H. H. Cook. It was just after the adjournment for luncheon of the Senate Committee, and the rotunda was thronged with guests. Mr. Preston, according to his own version, received an account of certain remarks made before the committee by Mr. Marsh concerning himself, and looking around saw the Toronto lawyer close at hand. Immediately he strode over, and in an emphatic manner intimated that Mr. Marsh was a coward, and had not told the truth. The lawyer retorted in "You-are-another" style, and some very lively language was exchanged for a time. No blows were, however, struck.

ONTARIO'S EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

Opposition Critics Know not of What They Speak.

MANY DIFFERENT OPINIONS,

Why the University Men Think There is Room for Improvement—Conditions Would not Suit a Young Country Like Canada.

(From our special Correspondent.)

Toronto, April 25th, 1901

Just now a great deal of irresponsible criticism is being waged against the educational system of Ontario. The Opposition in the Legislature is always willing to seize on any murmur and fan it into an uproar. Their willingness is greater because Premier Ross was so long identified with the educational system that it is regarded, in a measure, as his creation. Consequently, they argue any fault in the system is a fault in the Ross Government and therefore good political material. Several times during this last session Mr. Whitney delivered a few thunderbolts, and just as many times they fell short, because Mr. Whitney, as far as educational matters are concerned, doesn't forge his own thunderbolts and doesn't understand what he is using. In other words, Mr. Whitney has no clear comprehension of the system and says what he is told.

In the Legislature discussion of educational problems has not been very intelligent, because Mr. Whitney and his colleagues were more anxious to make a noise than to investigate faithfully the merits or demerits of the system. The discussions in the Ontario Educational Association were, perhaps a little better, because the teachers were on their own ground and had at least, an empirical knowledge of the subject. As usual, the critics were more active in tearing down than in building up, and the only practical result of considerable fault-finding was the passing of a resolution recommending that the subjects of the high school entrance be divided into those of culture and those of precise knowledge—the latter carrying with them an examination, the former not. This recommendation, passed by a general meeting of the association, may be regarded as an endorsement of the Government in emphasizing the practical side of the educational system. The criticism which went on in the various sections of the association must not be accepted as final. The sections see little farther than their own limits. It is only in the general meetings of the association that you get fruition of opinion and a comprehensive view. Therefore, it is well to remember that the aggregate voice of the association is with the Government, whatever may have been said in the sections. It is also to be noted that such educationists as, in the nature of their duties, have had a chance to obtain a bird's-eye view of the system, are thoroughly in accord with the practical policy of the Government. Mr. Tilley, inspector of Model Schools, read an excellent paper, in which he upheld the present system as helping to popularize the high school; incidentally he demolished President Loudon's idea of beginning language study in the public schools, and pointed out that the model school system, part of which President Loudon is so anxious to discard, is now being taken up by the most progressive educationists in the United States. In this connection, also, the latest report of Mr. John Seath, B. A., high school inspector, is worth nothing. Mr. Seath, a veteran educationist, with exceptional opportunities for observation, comes out squarely for the practical in secondary education. After an examination of the German, Swedish, Russian, and United States systems, he gives it as his conclusion that the high schools must accommodat themselves to the practical tendencies of the age if they are to deserve and retain public confidenee. Mr. Seath's report is lucid, exhaustive, and convincing. Although formerly a high school teacher and a specialist, he refuses to make common cause with other high school specialists who are clamoring because modern tendencies may rob their phase of education of its prestige.

* * *

Small apology is due for an educational system which, though contrived a generation ago, had in it enough flexibility to keep fairly well abreast of the times. No system in human affairs is perfect at its inception. It takes time and experience to file and polish it. The educational system of Ontario has aimed always to give the greatest good to the greatest number, and any faults it may have sprang from the difficulty of the task it undertook. It is still a serviceable structure, and can be remodelled without tearing down. Criticism of the system just now is mainly directed toward secondary education for these reasons—President Loudon's convocation speech, Professor Watson's (Queen's) pamphlet, and the recent action of the Government in aiding the practical side of university education, both at Toronto and at Queen's College, Kingston. Events seem to indicate that whatever Professor Watson thinks, Principal Grant of Queen's is a wise man, and will not run his head against modern conditions. He takes the grant to the School of Mines thankfully, because no man is shrewder than he in apprehending tendencies and in making use of them. On the other hand President Loudon kicks against the pricks. He takes the money for the mineralogical and geological departments of the University of Toronto, but he does it grudgingly. He complains that the "humanities"—that is, Latin, Greek, belles lettres, and so on—are slighted. It is a struggle between culture and utility, almost between practice and theory. In Germany, Russia, Sweden, United States utility has conquered; in England utility rears a conquering head above the old tradition of classical knowledge. The pressure of circumstances makes these old and wealthy countries abandon, or at least modify, these old ideas. How much more ought this pressure to be felt in a new country. Ontario is a province with its resources largely undeveloped. What Ontario needs is, as Mr. Harcourt says, trained captains of industry. The educational system must tend to these necessities.

In these discussions, apparently university men like President Loudon and Professor Watson take one view; those connected with the public schools and many of those connected with the high schools—including Inspector Seath—take another. The attitude of President Loudon and Professor Watson is to be expected. Neither of them has been educated in our high and public schools; or if either of them has, he is now thoroughly out of touch with conditions. Both of them are cloistered scholars, and they fear lest, the tide of culture ebbing, they should be left high and dry on the shore. Professor Watson would have the languages begun in the public schools at 9 or 10 years of age, and presumably a considerable amount of time devoted to their study. President Loudon would have a pupil enter the high school at 9 or ten years, and his programme of preparation for the high school would be a mengre one compared with the present. President Loudon would have us emulate the German system. Professor Watson would have a system of our own, in which the ideal course would be that adapted for a theologian or a scholar. Neither of their proposals would suit Ontario. Most of our boys and girls never enter the high schools; most of the high school pupils do not remain more than two years. The proposals of these university men would suit only a condition like that of Germany, where the system is highly organized, and where the pupil devotes seven or eight years to the study of the languages. In twenty-five or fifty years, by which time a leisured wealthy class might develop, a system like President Loudon's or Professor Watson's might suit; but meanwhile the chief aim of education in this province must be to fit the student to earn a livlihood with the greatest economy of time in preparation.

* * *

Inspector Seath's position is being sadly distorted in the Conservative press. His report is a long one, and some phrases of it, separated from their context, have been made texts for ingenious accusation against the Government. The fact of the matter is that Inspector Seath argues openly for a predominance of the practical in secondary education. He is a zealous advocate of manual training and technical education. He emphasizes the value of a good knowledge of English, mathematics, and the sciences, the last including agriculture, and all being made practical. In his duties as high school inspector he has ample opportunity to learn the requirements of the country and the capabilities of the pupils. Having been a member of the Senate of Toronto University for ten years, he knows also what higher education needs. He has a broader horizon, too, than the university or high school men, who are interested in the continuance of so much language teaching as now exists in our high schools, and which is seeking a way into the public schools.

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this. that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

NIPISSING ELECTION.

Proposed Reference to the Committee Voted Down.

THERE WAS NO ONE WRONGED.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick's Answer to the Contentions of Mr. Northrup—Matter Has Been Already Investigated by the Courts and Therefore There Is Nothing to Investigate—Steel Rails Bargain.

Ottawa, April 25.—By a majority of 43 the House last evening, after a debate lasting upwards of five hours, voted down the amendment of Mr. Northrup to refer the Nipissing election case to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The contention urged by the Opposition, who voted solidly for the amendment, supported by Messrs. Richardson (Lisgar) and Robinson (Elgin), was that Parliament should deal with a question affecting its privileges, which had been invaded by the Executive. Sir Wilfrid Laurier contended that no harm had been done to anybody, that a fair and pure election had been held, and that the court had already decided the question, which it was proposed to refer to the committee. In supply Mr. Blair announced that a new contract, prepared in strict accordance with the Order-in-Council, would be sent to the Clergue Company for signature, and the item of $500,000 was passed upon the understanding that the new contract will be laid upon the table before the supplementary estimates are passed.

Mr. Northrup, on the motion to go into supply yesterday, brought up the Nipissing case, as to which, he said, the story of Sheriff Valin, the returning officer himself, given under oath, was such that no Canadian could read it without a feeling of shame. He reviewed the evidence given by Sheriff Valin, the facts showing, he said, that Mr. Klock was unable to secure nomination. Mr. Northrup contended that there was no authority for the issue of the second writ, and the seat for Nipissing was still legally vacant. Mr. Northrup then moved his resolution, which, after reciting the recorded facts of the Nipissing case, concludes as follows:

"That in view of the matters herein set forth, the question of the validity of the writ of election bearing date Nov. 10, 1900, and the conduct of the said returning officer, be referred to the Committee of Privileges and Elections for the purpose of enquiring into all the circumstances of the case, a reporting on the validity of the said election and on the action of the returning officer."

Mr. Fitzpatrick's Response.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, after congratulating Mr. Northrup upon the ability with which he had presented his case, observed that while he agreed Parliament had not by the Controverted Elections Act divested itself of the power to enquire into matters affecting elections, or to deal with the conduct of returning officers, had decided that reference of such matters to the courts was preferable. But what would be the result of a reference to the commmittee? Merely the taking of a mass of evidence of cases already heard before the courts, as to which the House was already in possession, not only of the finding, but the evidence. The question of validity had not been decided, but it had been argued. By the act of the returning officer, right or wrong, the first writ had been made of the first writ had been made of no effect, and if no new writ could be promptly issued by executive action, the constituency would be disfranchised, there being no House and no Speaker to issue his writ, as in the case of a bye-election.

Mr. Fitzpatrick asked why the Conservatives did not avail themselves of the opportunity offered by the second writ, as the Liberals had done. The question of the validity of the writ could have been submitted to the courts. A reference to the committee would be of absolutely no avail, because they were now in absolute possession of all the facts, and it was for the House to determine whether the writ of November 10 was legally issued and whether on these facts it was desirable to take action against the returning officer, because if he had done wrong he was liable to be proceeded against under the Election Act. There was nothing to be inquired into by the committee, as the House was in possession of all the facts.

The debate was continued by Messrs, Alcorn, Marcil, Monk, McCarthy, Barker, Borden, (R.L.), Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Haggart and German.

The resolution of Mr. Northrup was then voted on, and defeated by 91 to 54 on a straight party vote.

Steel Rail Item Passed.

In Committee of Supply at the evening session, Mr. Blair's half a million dollar estimate for steel rails was discussed for the third time. Mr. Blair said the return of the draft contract, inadvertently sent to Mr. Clergue before the Minister had seen it, had been wired for. He now proposed to have an agreement drawn up in strict accordance with the Order-in-Council, and have it sent to the company for execution by them. He had no doubt it would be satisfactory to them, and they would sign it.

After a further discussion the item was allowed to pass on the understanding that it would be discussed later on.

The House adjourned at 1 a. m.

That Whoop!

Have you had it in your house? It's cough and cough and cough, and then that terrible whoop! Don't upset the stomach more by giving nauseous medicine. Just let the child breathe in the soothing vapor of Vapo-Cresolene. It goes right to the spot that's diseased. Relief is immediate, and in a very few days the cure is complete. You can't say the same of any other treatment. For asthma, catarrh, and colds it's equally good. 14

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

Recommended and sold by H. H. Edmison druggist, Peterborough.

NO HOPE FOR BREWERS.

Hicks-Beach Will Not Revise Sugar and Glucose Duties.

London, April 24.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, informed a deputation of brewers yesterday that he could hold out no hope of revising the sugar and glucose duties.

In the Commons.

In the House of Commons yesterday various members sharply criticized the budget's increase of the income tax and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, replied that more money must be raised somehow. None of the objectors suggested a better way. He hoped that the additional taxation might bring home to the country the virtues of economy.

The income tax resolution was adopted by 363 to 88 votes.

WON THE VICTORIA CROSS.

Gazette Officially Announces Honors to Three Canadians.

London, April 24.—The Gazette last evening announced that the Victoria Cross has been conferred on Lieuts. H. Z. C. Cockburn and R. E. W. Turner, and Sergt. E. Holland of the Royal Canadian Dragoons for conspicuous bravery at Komatipoort River, Nov. 7, 1900, in protecting artillery from capture.

Lieut. Cockburn is a son of G. R. R. Cockburn of Toronto, and is a captain in the Governor-General's Body Guard.

Lieut. Turner is a Quebec man, a captain in the Hussars.

Sergt. Holland is a member of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards of Ottawa.

DOES NOT DISAPPOINT.

The New Discovery for Catarrh Seems to Possess Remarkable Merit.

A new catarrh cure has recently appeared which so far as tested has been remarkably successful in curing all forms of catarrh, whether in the head, throat, bronchial tubes, or in stomach and liver.

The remedy is in tablet form, pleasant and convenient to take and no special secrecy is maintained as to what it contains, the tablet being a scientific combination of Guaiacol, Encalyptol, Sanguinaria, Hydrastin and similar valuable and harmless antiseptics.

This safe and effective catarrh cure may be found at any drug store under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Whether the catarrh is located in the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or stomach, the tablets seem to act with equal success, removing the stuffy feeling in head and nose, clearing the mucous membrane of throat and trachea from catarrhal secretions, which cause the tickling, coughing, hawking and gagging so annoying to every catarrh sufferer.

Nasal catarrh generally leads to ulceration in some cases to such an extent as to destroy the nose entirely, and in many old cases of catarrh the bones of the head become diseased. Nasal catarrh gradually extends to the throat and bronchial tubes, and very often to the stomach, causing that very obstinate trouble, catarrh of the stomach.

Catarrh is a systematic poison, inherent in the blood, and local washes, douches, salves, inhalers and sprays can have no effect on the real cause of the disease. An internal remedy which acts upon the blood is the only rational treatment, and Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is the safest of all internal remedies, as well as the most convenient and satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

Dr. Eaton recently stated that he had successfully used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in old chronic cases, even where ulceration had extended so far as to destroy the septum of the nose. He says: "I am pleasantly surprised almost every day by the excellent results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. It is remarkable how effectually they remove the excessive secretion and bring about a healthy condition of the mucous membranes of the nose, throat and stomach."

All druggists sell complete treatment of the Tablets at 50 cents, and and a little book giving the symptoms and causes of the various forms of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart & Co., Marshall, Mich.

Was This Priest Murdered?

Montreal, April 22. — Rev. Mr. Joly, parish priest at St. Emilie de Lenergie, Que., disappeared one night in November and since that time not a trace or even a suspicion of his doings or whereabouts has been discovered. It is supposed that he has been murdered, since it is found that he was comparatively wealthy, although seemingly so poor.

MONTREAL'S BIG LOAN

Government Aid For Harbor of Commercial Metropolis.

ELEVATOR QUESTION SETTLED.

The Commissioners Are Jubilant at Being Granted Aid by the Dominion to the Tune of One Million Dollars and Will Now Build Elevators for Themselves—Marine Insurance.

Montreal, April 24.—The Harbor Commissioners are jubilant, and will now build their own elevators, the Government advancing the money. The decision was arrived at yesterday morning by the Harbor Commissioners upon the receipt of a telegram from Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Public Works. At a former meeting of the Harbor Commissioners, Capt. Wolvin offered to build elevators on the Conners' sites, provided the commissioners would guarantee interest on $70,000 bonds, which he would issue for the purpose of obtaining the money wherewith to build.

The commissioners had no authority to guarantee the bonds, and so transmitted the offer to Ottawa. Mr. Tarte's telegram, received yesterday morning by Mr. Robert MacKay, puts a veto upon Capt. Wolvin's scheme. It seems the Government cannot agree to the proposal, but will loan Montreal Harbor Commissioners $1,000,000 at 3½ per cent. The commissioners lost no time in sending a telegram to Hon. Mr. Tarte, stating they accepted the offer of the Government.

INSURANCE OF SHIPS.

Rate Will Be Higher on Cargoes Leaving Montreal Than That Charged Where Ships Sail From Quebec.

Montreal, April 24.—The statement was made here yesterday from an indisputable authority that the marine insurance rate on cargoes leaving Montreal this season will be higher than that charged where the ships sail from Quebec. Hitherto the rate has been the same from both ports, the St. Lawrence route being treated as all one. The change will take effect at the opening of the season of navigation, and as ships are expected in Montreal to-day, the new rates will doubtless apply to their outward cargoes. The change will no doubt be considered as of a most serious nature, considering the forward steps taken by Ontario in the last year, the arrangement for the Great Northern Railway to take grain to Quebec and the diversion of the Leland Line ships to Quebec for this year's business.

THROUGH WELLAND CANAL.

An Experiment in Shipping Direct Which May Have Far-Reaching Results in Future.

Chicago, April 25.—Bound for Europe with a cargo of agricultural implements, packing house products and miscellaneous manufactures, the steamer Northwestern drew out of the Chicago River yesterday and headed for the Atlantic. At Buffalo a large quantity of wheat will be discharged, lightening the vessel to 12 feet to permit passage through the Welland and other canals and the shallows of the St. Lawrence River. At Montreal the Northwestern will load down again with grain and proceed.

The company owning the Northwestern contemplates putting several other steamers in commission between here and Europe. The company has built four boats—the largest that can pass through the Welland Canal—at a cost of $1,000,000, and within a month all will be on the way across the ocean or en route to the Atlantic, the second steamer starting to-day.

BRITISH RELEASE SLAVES.

Campaign Against Raiding Emirs on th West African Frontier.

London, April 25.—Brigadier-General Sir Frederick Lugard and Col. G. V. Kemball, with a force of West African frontier troops, have completed a successful campaign against the powerful slave-raiding Emirs of Bida and Kontagora, in Northern Nigeria. The British defeated the Emir of Kontagora, after heavy fighting, 5,000 natives frequently charging the British squad. The British captured the capitals of both Bida and Kontagora, and released thousands of slaves. The Emirs, who have been the terror of the country for years, killed thousands of natives during the past year. They are now entirely powerless, and this was brought about without the assistance of white troops.

Sixty Outlaws Killed.

London, April 25.—News has reached here of a severe battle in the vicinity of Fort Darwin, Mashonaland, between a force of Charterland police and natives from Chintsi, under the outlaw, Mapondara. Sixty of the outlaws were killed.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

ROBERT HALL, OF ARKONA, ONT., NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH.

Struck Twice in the Same Place—The Kidneys Turned Out of Their Natural Position—Doctors Said He Would Die, yet Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Forest, Ont., April 25 (Special).—Probably the best known man in the Townships of Warwick and Bosanquet, is Mr. Robert Hall, of Arkona. Mr. Hall says:—

"Five years ago last April, I was kicked by a horse in the left kidney. The doctor that treated me said that the kidney had turned out of its place, and I passed blood for several days.

"I did not get quite well from that until I got another kick, which caused me to pass blood again from my kidneys.

"I continued to doctor until last fall, when they told me I could not get well, and that I would die, so I quit taking their medicine.

"I lost the power of my legs, and had to be lifted in and out of bed. I was so low that I was not expected to live from one day to the other.

"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and from the first I commenced to improve, and by the time I had taken five boxes, I was quite well. Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly saved my life."

No more startling case has ever taken place in the neighborhood of Forest, and many questions have been asked of Mr. Hall, in explanation of the very startling statements made above.

He has but one answer—"Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life, and that after all the doctors had told me I could not get better, and that I must die."

Mr. Hall is certainly a living monument to the wonderful curative properties of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills is the only remedy known to science that has ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes, or Dropsy. They never fail.

The Munster Fusiliers Mutiny.

London, April 24.—Two hundred of the Royal Munster Fusiliers refused to parade at Carlisle Fort in Cork Monday as a mark of their disapproval for being transferred from Spike Island to Carlisle Fort. As a precautionary measure the officers of this battalion locked up the men's arms, and notified military headquarters at Spike Island of the occurrence. It is understood that soldiers from another battalion will be sent to Carlisle Fort to bring the insubordinate Fusiliers under control.

Your Footing for Spring

Fine Weather and its Shoe Possibilities.

We're done with Winter—six months, and enough. Spring and summer are now before us. This opens the possibility of shedding our heavy garments and footwear that have done us good service, and donning something lighter and easier. It's these climatic facts and their application that makes us keep two stocks of Shoes, that we may suit the needs of customers for the two seasons.

Just now we are putting before you Summer Shoes. The heavier goods are sent aloft—not so far up that they cannot be reached if needed, but crowded out by their timely successors. So now for summer.

Here's a few seasonable lines—and the prices tell their cost, the cost well represents good value.

Bee Killers.

As a reminder it may be said that all who spray trees while the blossom is bursting and in bloom, create great havoc among the bees, as the composition of the liquid is poisonous to the little honey makers, and hosts of them die. The proper time to spray is before the blossom appears and after it falls from the tree, and three or four times is sufficient for the season. This should be rigidly observed to prevent the destruction of the bees. There is a heavy penality attached to a breach of the law in this particular.

BURNS GOT THREE MONTHS

For Indecent Assault Upon a Young Girl.

He was Also Found Guilty of Obstructing the Police in the Performance of Their Duty.

Arthur Burns who was a week ago arrested on a charge of indecent assault upon a young girl 16 years of age, and who was subsequently committed for trial by Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble, was tried yesterday afternoon in the County Judges Criminal Court, by His Honour Judge Weller.

An additional information was sworn out against Burns in which he was charged with obstructing the police in the performance of their duty. He was found guilty on both charges and sentenced to three months in jail.

The circumstances of the affair are pretty generally known. Burns was the night watchman at a certain hotel in town and attended the midnight train with the 'bus. A week ago Saturday night a young girl came off the train and her friends not being on hand to meet her, she entrusted herself to the young man to be conveyed to the desired spot. The girl alleges that she was indecently assaulted and the Court believed her story.

Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, conducted the case for the Crown and Mr. F. D. Kerr represented the prisoner.

THE LOCAL DRILL SHED.

It Was Inspected By a Government Official This Morning.

Captain Weatherby, Chief Engineer of the Militia Department, was in town this morning inspecting the drill shed of the 57th Regiment, and will report to the Department as to the repairs necessary. Needless to say, Captain Weatherby was convinced that the local drill shed is not in very excellent condition. The Captain was shown the sights around town by Lieut.-Col. Edwards, Major Miller and Capt. Eastwood.

14th FIELD BATTERY.

Orders by Lieut. E. O. Bradburn and Lieut. W. C. Ackerman.

The 14th Durham Field Battery, whose headquarters are practically Peterborough now, promises to be a leading feature in local artillery circles this summer.

Through the efforts of Lieut. E. O. Bradburn and Lieut. W. C. Ackerman two guns have been brought to Peterborough, having arrived here yesterday afternoon, and are now at the drill shed of the 57th Regt.

It is the intention to enlist two sections of the 14th Battery in Peterborough and drill will be held every week throughout the summer season.

The following orders have been issued:

FOURTEENTH FIELD BATTERY.

Orders for the Left and Centre Sections 14th Durham Field Battery C.A.:

All members of the corps will parade at the drill shed for the issue of uniforms on Friday evening, April 26th, at 8 o'clock.

By order,
E. O. Bradburn,
Commanding Left Section.
W. C. Ackerman,
Commanding Centre Section.
Peterborough, April 25th.

MR. ELCOME'S GENEROSITY.

He Presented a Mounted Deer Head to the Y. M. C. A.

Tuesday Mr. Edwin Elcome, taxidermist, presented a very beautifully mounted deer head to the Y.M.C.A. It has been placed in the reception room in a most conspicuous position, and adds much to the attractiveness of the building. The management wish to thank the kind donor for this, another token of his deep interest in the work.

TO-NIGHT'S MEETING.

Regarding the Dan Spence Memorial—What will be Done?

The Dan Spence Memorial Committee will meet in the town council-chamber this evening when no doubt the matter as to the nature of the memorial to be undertaken will be fully discussed. It is desirable that not only the members of the committee should be in attendance, but also all those who take an interest in honouring the memory of a departed hero should make it a point to be present.

There seems to be great diversity of opinion as to the manner in which the funds now in the hands of the treasurer, should be supplied. To the Examiner, this morning, Mr. D. W. Dumble, who takes a keen interest in matters of this kind said that he considered, in view of the fact that an ambulance was already owned in Peterborough, and at the disposal of the public, and which was the original idea of a memorial, that another means of commemorating the memory of the deceased should be adopted. It further should not merely be to the memory of any one individual but as an honour to all those from the County of Peterborough who died in the cause of their country. Mr. Dumble thinks that if this plan were carried out grants of a suitable nature could be received from the various municipalities towards the project.

MR. CORNISH'S APPOINTMENT.

Was Formerly Pastor of the Park street Baptist Church.

Mr. R. E. Harding of town, has received a letter from Rev. T. H. Cornish of Chatham, formerly a pastor of the Park street Baptist church, and who supplied at the Murray street church during Rev. Mr. Bastow's holiday, stating that he had been appointed to the charge of the church at Pontiac, Mich., at a salary of $1,000 a year and a parsonage.

Mr. Cornish, it will be remembered, established the Baptist Church at Indian River, Otonabee, and left there about two years ago. His many friends here will be pleased to learn of his success.

THE STEAMER RAINBOW.

She Too Has Been Greatly Improved This Season.

The prospects are that the Otonabee and Rice Lake waters will possess a fleet of the finest line of steamers anywhere on Ontario's inland waters. The Peterborough boats are not the only ones that are undergoing extensive repairs. The Rainbow, the popular little boat owned by Mr. Burnett, of Burnett's landing on the Trent River, is being made over and is now about completed. The great success this steamer met last season induced Mr. Burnett to make these extensive improvements. The Rainbow has had 25 feet added to her length, two feet to her width and has a neat little upper deck placed on her. In addition to this she has a new engine which will send her through the waters at a rate of speed not surpassed by any boat on the local waters.

CANADIAN CORDAGE CO.

A Local Advisory Board Formed in Manitoba—An Aggressive Management.

"The Plaindealer," of Souris, Manitoba, in its last issue anounces the establishment in Manitoba of a Local Advisory Board in connection with the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company. In a list of over fifty members of the Board such well known names are recognized as James Argue, M.P.P., of Elgin; A. Henry, Reeve of Cameron; C. W. Miller, J. P., ex-Councillor of Elgin; William Forbes, Councillor, Glenwood, Hartney; George Kerr, John Perdue and R. J. Taggart, all Councillors, Glenwood, Hartney, as well as a splendid representation of the prominent farmers and ranchers of the entire district.

The fact of the establishment of an Advisory Board in a Province, which uses millions of pounds of binder twine every season, should give the stock a big boom, and convince intending investors that the Company means business, when it is pushing its interests forward in so aggressive a manner.

MR. GILLESPIE'S RECORD.

Has Just Completed His Final Year in Medicine.

The many friends of Mr. James Gillespie, son of Mr. Alex. Gillespie, Hunter street, will be pleased to learn of his success at Bishop's College, Montreal. Mr. Gillespie has just recently passed his final examination in medicine, coming out on top in every subject and carrying off the only two gold medals awarded in his year. While in Peterborough Mr. Gillespie was an apprentice in the drug store of Mr. J. D. Tully, and afterwards entered a wholesale drug firm in Montreal. He then went into medicine, his record throughout being a very brilliant one indeed. He is now engaged in one of the leading hospitals of the city.

Mr. Gillespie is an old Peterborough boy and he is to be congratulated upon the success he has attained.

GET YOUR DOG TAG.

There Have Been Only 26 Tags Issued So Far.

Owners of dogs are asked to keep in mind the fact that there are only five days more in which to obtain tags for their dogs. There are generally 1000 tags issued each year, but so far there have been only 26 dog owners who have taken out their required license. This is a rather alarming state of affairs and the Town Clerk should be kept busy during the remaining five days of grace.

Profitable Losses.

We can afford a certain amount of loss on flood-sprinkled goods rather than be crowded for room for incoming spring goods. We can afford a certain loss to get rid of a lot of elegant things a little mussed, but not spoiled, broken lots, and too few of certain lines which our flood sale is intended to clear out.

Friday and Saturday there will be Golden Chances at every turn.

We can afford a certain loss on things we have too much of, caused by the interference with their sale at the time of the fire.

Out-Door Sports.

We are outfitters for every game in vogue in Canada. Each line is represented by a large and varied stock, and the fact that this department has been "on the grow" from the beginning is the best evidence that we are helping to cultivate out-door sports and that our prices and goods are right. We are special agents for Spalding & Co., of New York, and are enabled to quote special net prices to clubs.

BASEBALL—Baseballs, Baseball Bats, Baseball Mits, Baseball Masks and all requisites for the game.

LACROSSE—Lacrosse Balls and Lacrosse Sticks. Special Clock Cord Sticks, specially selected.

GOLF—Golf Clubs, Golf Balls, Caddie Bags, etc. The most particular player suited from our collection of clubs.

TENNIS—Tennis Racquets, Tennis Balls, Tennis Nets, Tennis Sets.

FOOTBALL—"Stratton's Special" Association Football and other requisites.

COURT QUEEN I.O.F.

A Resolution of Condolence Which Was Passed.

At the last regular meeting of Court Queen, No. 276, I.O.F., the following resolution was passed by the Court on motion of Companion George Swaine, seconded by Companion A. P. Melrose :—

Whereas it has pleased the Sovereign Ruler of the Universe to remove from our midst our beloved Sister, Mrs. Albert Dunford, who was our honoured Court Deputy and Financial Secretary, we, the members of Court Queen 276, I.O.F., while bowing in humble submission to the Divine will, grieve to part with so dear a friend, and desire to place on record our love for and appreciation of so faithful an officer, and we fully realize the vacancy that will be difficult for us to fill. Therefore, resolved that this motion be entered in the minutes of the Court, and that the Chief Companion, Recording Secretary and Orator be, and are hereby appointed, a special committee to await upon the bereaved family and convey to them our sincere sympathy in their hour of trial and sorrow.

Signed on behalf of the Court.

MRS. W. METHERAL, Rec. Sec.
Miss E. NOBLE,

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Passed by the Local Carpenters' and Joiners' Union.

At a recent meeting of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners the following resolution was adopted :—

Whereas; It has pleased the Almighty to remove from this earth to a better one the beloved wife of our Brother and fellow member Albert Dunford. Therefore be it resolved, that the members of the union extend their heartfelt sympathy to our Brother in his sad affliction; and be it further resolved, that a copy of the resolution be spread upon our minutes, and copies sent to our official journal, The Carpenter, and our daily papers for publication, and to our bereaved Brother.

Committee { JAMES DONALD, ROBERT F. MCGREGOR, ALEX. DUGAN.

A DELIGHTFUL EVENING

Miss Hill Charmingly Entertains the Little Folks.

An interesting and amusing entertainment was given last evening in aid of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society by Miss H. M. Hill, of Toronto. The lime light views were excellently shown by Mr. Roy and the result was a combination of variety and instruction very helpful to the little people.

First came a selection of views and extracts from a lecture on Windsor Castle and Queen Victoria given last week in St. Paul's Lecture Hall, then a collection of humorous pictures and some from the best masters, of which we would especially mention Landseer's Little Red Riding Hood, Vandyke's Cupid on Skates, and Murillo's Boys Selling Fruit.

The final set of pictures was much appreciated by those who have read the true and wonderful stories of Ernest Seton-Thompson on wild animal life. These pictures of his animal play were preceded by a graphic account of his lectures and a sketch of the lives of Silverspot, the crow who lived for many years in Rosedale, Toronto, and of Molly Cottontail and her son Raggyling, the rabbits of Oliphant's swamp, near Mimico. The closing pictures of patriots easily recognized sent the children home charmed with what they had heard and seen.

PERSONAL.

Miss Ethel Jones is visiting Miss Ethel Shaw, in Omemee.

Mrs. Dr. Cameron, of Omemee, was in town this afternoon.

Mayor White, of Port Hope, spent Wednesday in town on business.

Mr. L. F. Clarry, barrister, Hastings, was in town this morning on business.

Mr. Robert Rea, of town, is at present the guest of Mr. Wm. Shaw, Omemee.

Mr. J. J. Turner, who has been somewhat indisposed, is able to be out again.

Messrs. W. T. Hall and Dr. Young went up to Toronto this morning to attend the horse show.

Mr. Adam Gillespie underwent successfully an operation for appendicitis yesterday in the Nicholls Hospital.

Mr. W. Y. Morgan, George street, accompanied by Miss Pearl are spending a few days with friends in Toronto.

Miss Effie Robertson, who has been enjoying a pleasant two week's visit with Miss Ada McBain, returned to Kingston to-day at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Kavanagh, of Toronto, are in town to-day. Mrs. Kavanagh is superintendent of the Mercer Reformatory.

Mr. Will Paterson, the Queen's medical student, who came into so much prominence over the recent grave snatching case, returned to Kingston at noon to resme his studies.

Mr. John Holmes, of Lakefield, dropped into the Examiner office this morning, for a pleasant chat. Mr. Holmes says he is through with the hotel business for good, as twenty-three years of it is enough for him.

Hastings Star:—Mr. Henry Johnson, Hastings' well-known financier, left yesterday morning for an extended tour through Mexico, Texas and California, coming home by way of British Columbia. Health and weather permitting Mr. Johnson will visit the Klondike and intends bringing his friends a nugget apiece from the gold fields. Henry said not to say anything about it—but he was sure this time to bring home the wife. If he does not our idea of his errand to the sunny South will be knocked out. Mr. Johnson will be away over three months.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

The Meeting for the Organization of a Bowling Club Postponed Till Monday Night.

BOWLING.

The meeting which was to have been held in the Bank of Commerce building to-night for the purpose of organizing a bowling club, has been postponed until Monday evening on account of several other attractions this evening.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETICS.

Parents and those interested, are invited to the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium to-morrow evening to witness the winding up of the indoor work for the season of 1900-1901, commencing at 8. Boys unaccompanied by a guardian not admitted.

A meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Athletic Club Executive is called for to-night at 7.30 o'clock.

LACROSSE.

One by one the old players are becoming enthused and announcing their attention of getting into the game again this summer. Jack Mein now says he'll try another season. A meeting of the Peterboroughs should be called next week to decide on the question of grounds.

Harry Doonan, Hastings' star lacrosse player, has been fobbled by Bracebridge and has gone to that town for the season. Harry is a fast man and should strengthen the Bracebridge home division materially.

BASEBALL.

A baseball player in the California League was made the recipient of a gold watch. In receiving the gift he was addressed as follows "Wear this gift proudly in memory of the donors until life's 'game' shall be 'called', and, when the recording angel shall have made up your life's 'score' may the error column be clean; may you be credited with an 'assist' for every good deed performed; may it show that you 'struck out' every unworthy inclination, and, when your last 'time up' shall come, may the record show that you went cheerfully 'to the bat' knocked out a four bagger and was declared 'safe' on the home plate by the Great Umpire on High."

Port Hope Guide—Maanger Fred Outram, of the File Works Club says his team will be strong, and also states that the Midland League will be in existence, which will keep up the baseball boom in this district.

CRICKET.

The Campbellford Cricket Club has reorganized with the following officers :

Hon. President—A. A. Mulholland.

Patron and Patronesses—Dr. and Mrs. Macoun.

President—W. C. Boddy.

Vice-President—Dr. Scherk.

2nd Vice-President—G. E. Burrows.

Sec.-Treas.—T. S. Tait.

Committee of Management—J.C.Fowlds, D. E. Tait, R. Bonnycastle, jr.

Committee to Solicit Subscriptions—T.S Tait and J. C. Fowlds.

THE TURF.

Mr. L. G. Bennett, of Port Hope, Ont., who drove Looking Glass, 2.19¼, in his ice races last winter, says the report that that horse is one of the "cold storage" sort is without foundation as he has driven him in 2.14 over one of the worst half-mile tracks in Canada, on one of the hottest of August days. Mr. Bennett says Looking Glass' poor showing when he was brought to the States to be raced, was simply because he was not properly balanced and he predicts that the ice pacer will be the fastest in Canada next summer if he meets with no bad luck.

THE TOWN PARKS.

Central Park Being Put Into Proper Shape.

The Horticultural Society is not sleeping these days, but is busy arranging for the proper care of Victoria and Central Parks. The greatest improvement will be noticed in Central Park. Town Engineer Hay has been engaged in striking the levels for the new walk that will be laid out from the southeast to the northwest corner. The Park will be properly graded and additional elm trees will be planted. Altogether Central Park will be fitted up in a very neat manner this summer.

The damage to Victoria Park caused by a drove of cattle getting on it yesterday is being repaired with much difficulty.

SEATING HOLES IN SHIRTS.

The Vigorous Way They Have of Washing Clothes In India.

The following extract is from the letter of a young medico in India:

"I have just extricated myself from an awkward fix. The washer people here take your best shirt to a stream, dip it in the water and then smack it hard on a bowlder, repeating the process again and again till a hole is made in the linen. Then and not before do they regard that particular article as finished.

"I objected to this and told my washerman that I didn't want holes knocked into my clothes.

"'But, master, how, then, am I to know when they are finished?' he asked.

"I couldn't knock any sense into his head, so I tried to get somebody else to do my work. But nobody else would do it for me. I discovered that a sort of tribal trades' union exists here. Each kind of work is done by a particular caste.

"One caste limits itself to boot cleaning, and the only scope which another allows for its genius is carrying. If you badly treat the man who cleans your boots or sack him, he reports you to his tribe, and unless you clean your boots yourself they will ever remain dirty, for no other member of that tribe will clean them for you, nor will anybody else, for the work is not consistent with the dignity of the carrying, washing or any other caste.

"There being no help for it, I had to go back to my old washerman, and it was only by bribes and entreaties that I could get him to forgive me.

"Now, I want you to send me two dozen shirts and let them be of the strongest quality. If he must knock holes in them, I am determined that he will have to work hard. It is possible that I may have some further trouble with him, for if the holes take a long time coming he may complain that he cannot finish my washing.

"These ignorant fellows always require some sign by which their actions are to be guided.

"When one of them is eating, how do you think he is to tell when he has had enough? When he ta' s no further interest in his food, you might say. But, no, he might be suffering from indigestion or some other ailment, he argues, and therefore not be able to judge when he had eaten the proper quantity.

"So he ties a thread lightly round his waist when he is at meals and eats till it breaks!'

Two Drinks For a Quarter.

A young man about town who thought he had seen the limit in strange happenings ran up against a new one the other night. He had drifted into a hotel bar for a drink, and while standing at the bar an elderly man, very nicely dressed and with every indication of prosperity, if not wealth, came in and ordered a drink of 15 cent whisky, inquiring at the same time if that brand were not sold at the rate of two drinks for a quarter. Upon receiving a reply in the affirmative the old chap produced a flask, laid down a quarter and asked the bartender to put the other drink in the bottle to take away with him. The bartender, dazed, did so without a word, and the incident was closed.

Premature Criticism.

A green Irishman having been ordered by his employer to saddle the horse and ride to town on a mission, was observed by a neighbor putting the saddle on hind part before. Approaching him, he remarked:

"You've got that saddle on wrong end first."

"Indade!" exclaimed the greenhorn. "An how do ve know which way Ol'm goin?"

Corn Sowing

Is a process excited by vanity, backed up by good tight boots—you may lack the vanity but you have the good tight boots—you may wear any size boots you please up to three sizes too small, if you use Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor. Druggists sell it.

Cutting Sealskin.

A furrier is thus quoted in the Philadelphia Record: "The styles in sealskin coats change so often that women are constantly having them made over. Few people realize just what this means to us. Of course it means an increase in business, but I don't mean that. The cutting of sealskin is an art in itself, and the men who do it are experts and get experts' salaries. The work of a sealskin cutter must be almost as delicate as that of a diamond cutter. This may sound like an exaggeration, but it isn't—at least, not so much as you might think. The slightest error on the part of the workman who is handling an expensive skin is nothing short of a catastrophe."

Nervousness and Nerve.

The more nervous a man is, the less nerve he has. That sounds paradoxical—but it isn't; for nerve is stamina.

Hood's Sarsaprilla gives nerve. It tones the whole system, perfects digestion and assimilation, and is therefore the best medicine a nervous person can take.

If you get tired easily, mentally o phy sically, take it—it will do you good.

Words Never Fail Her.

"There is a certain woman in our town," said a Buffalo man, "who has the famous Mrs. Partington tied to a post. Her use, or rather misuse, of words has time and again resulted in her making the most extraordinary statements. For example, in speaking of one of the most popular members of her social circle, a young woman of great brilliancy of intellect, but unfortunately blessed with a superfluity of avoirdupois, she said of her: 'Sallie Clark is such a nice girl. It's a pity her figure is so obtuse.' She once said of a volume that had formerly belonged to the third president of the United States that it had intonations in Jefferson's own handwriting. But her crowning triumph was when she said that her brother had been forced to give up his hotel in an eastern Massachusetts town after suffering many vicissitudes of fortune because it was such a nefarious business

WOULD TELL OF A DINNER.

But the Bore Was Discomfited and Put Off the Train.

The girl was pretty enough to attract attention as she entered the elevated train, and of her escorts the one whose name was soon disclosed to be Jack looked very important. His accent was slightly affected. The other escort was a neutral looking chap with no accent. His name proved to be Tom.

As soon as the trio were seated Jack in a loud voice took up a story with which he had evidently been boring his companions before they entered the car. It was a recital in great detail of his experiences at a recent dinner. He described the courses, told what the guests said, which was uninteresting, and even retailed his own feelings. The girl and Tom looked as if they were heartily tired of it. Jack gave them no opportunity to interrupt.

"Then," he continued, "when the coffee was brought in I asked the waiter to put three lumps of sugar in mine, and he seemed surprised because, you know, most people take only one lump of sugar, but I have always taken three in mine ever since I was old enough to order, and that was the way my father did, and what he did was good enough for me, and then the gentleman who sat opposite me and whose name I did not catch, as most of them were French, lifted his glass and, bowing to me, said, 'A votre sante,' and I"—

"What did he say?" interrupted the girl.

"He said, 'A votre sante,' and I"—

"Do you mean to say that a gentleman said that to you?" said the girl, and one of the passengers thought he saw her give Tom a little kick.

"Why—er—that is, of course he was a gentleman," said Jack.

"Do you know what it meant?" asked the girl.

"Why—er—that is, not exactly, of course, but in a general way it is a complimentary toast."

"Do you know its true meaning," said Tom, coming to the girl's aid, "when the man lifts his glass and says it to you?"

The chap called Jack was now badly flustered, and he admitted that he did not know exactly what the Frenchman intended to say to him.

"And you sat there, Jack," said the girl earnestly, "and permitted that fellow to say that to you without resenting it?"

"Resent it! Why, I didn't know that the fellow was insulting me. How did I know that?"

"But he said 'A votre sante' to you. Tom, would you let anybody say such a thing as that to you?"

"Not if I were as big as he was," said Tom promptly.

By this time most of the passengers within earshot were enjoying the sport. When they wanted to laugh, they held up their newspapers. The girl's face gave no indication of the fun that she was having except when she turned around to Tom and allowed one eyelid to drop slowly until the lashes rested on her cheek. It was a deliberate wink, and Tom responded in kind. The other chap seemed to feel that he had made a mistake in some way, but he didn't know just how. Moreover, he knew that enough of the conversation had been overheard by the other passengers to make him appear ridiculous in their eyes.

"I don't just see yet where the insult in saying 'A votre sante' comes in," he said.

"You explain to him, Tom," said the girl.

"I have not the heart to tell you, Jack," said Tom. "Really, I haven't, old man, but if you ever see that Frenchman again just punch his face and see what he does."

"It was certainly a most unwarranted insult," added the girl. "I always thought you would resent such a thing."

"I would have resented it," said Jack, "if he had said it in English. How was I to know? Hello, this is Eighteenth street and I must get off. I've got an engagement with my dentist. No, I can't go any farther. Well, goodby; see you soon," and as he disappeared out of the door the young woman and Tom laughed to make up for lost time, and so did the other passengers.

Kentucky Negro Superstition.

If a log should fall on a negro and kill him, the chances are that the log would rot where it might lie, as it would be hard to find anybody willing to move it.

It is a belief among negroes that whoever removes a log or tree that has been the means of death will meet a similar fate, and there are many who share the superstition. It is said a number of years ago a man in Harrodsburg, it is supposed, attempted to steal a log from some wood pile and while crossing the icy street slipped and was killed by it. He was found the next morning and his body removed, but for six months or more the log remained untouched on the side of the street, although the weather was very severe and fuel was scarce among the darkies.

There is another superstition among them in regard to transplanting cedar trees. They believe as soon as the lower limbs of the tree grow to be the length of a coffin the person who transplanted it will die.

A Ceylon Cocoanut Forest.

The tree which gives character to the landscape in the island of Ceylon is the cocoanut palm, whose slender grayish trunk soars up for 60 or 80 feet and then bursts into a dense crown of great feathered leaves, each from 10 to 12 feet in length. These palms grow close together in vast groves, and to one walking about under their shade their appearance is very striking and recalls the comparison which has been so often made between a forest and a cathedral, for there is a rude but evident resemblance to architecture in the lofty aisles formed by the shafts of the palms and roofed in by the arched and densely intermingled foliage. The sunlight filtering through the leafy canopy makes a golden green twilight, in which multitudes of gaudy butterflies sport about and flit from cup to cup of the pink campanulate flowers that cover the ground.

The ancient Mexicans had a year of 18 months of 20 days each.

Some Polynesian languages have only seven consonants.

MEN AT THE OFFICE, WOMEN IN THE HOME, CHILDREN AT SCHOOL,

Who are overworked mentally or physically derive great benefit from Milburn's Pills.

They supply the necessary elements for making good the wear and tear incurred by the present mode of life now prevalent in this age of business and social life.

Every day in the week and every week in the year men, women and children are suffering from nervousness brought on by their efforts to keep up to the modern "high pressure" mode of life necessary to this age.

Thousands find life a burden and others an early grave.

Overwork is often the cause, as it strains the Nervous System and causes Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Faint and Dizzy Spells, and General Debility.

The blood becomes weak and watery and eventually causes decline.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are indicated for all diseases arising from a weak and debilitated condition of the nerve centres.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific we are receiving letters from people who have used Milburn's Pills with great benefit.

Here are two. Others will be sent on application.

NORTONDALE, N.B., Jan. 2nd, 1901.

The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—I have suffered for a number of years with a smothering sensation caused by a weak heart.

My whole system was run down and I was very nervous and could not sleep.

I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and by the time I had taken them I was perfectly cured and can recommend them highly.

My mother was also subject to heart trouble and was so bad that the doctors said she could not live.

She took your pills and says they were the means of curing her.

Yours truly,
MRS. WM. CUMB.

INWOOD, Ont., April 2nd, 1900.

The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—Some time ago I was so run down that I could not do any work.

I had distressing shortness of breath, my stomach would be sour and I could scarcely eat anything.

My heart palpitated badly and caused faint and dizzy spells.

I felt weak and nervous, and gave up all hope of ever being cured until my husband procured two boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and since taking them I feel like a different person. I have been well and able to work ever since.

Yours truly,
MRS. EDMOND BROWN.

BESTOWALS.

Dear, I would be to you the breath of balm
That sighs from folded blossoms, wet with dew;
The day's first dawn ray I would be to you,
The starlight's cheery gleam, the moonlight's calm;
I would be as a pillow to your cheek
When toil in done and care hath ceased to grieve;
I would be the dear dream your soul doth seek,
The dream whose joy no waking hour can give.

When strength is ebbing and the road is long,
I would be the firm staff within your hand,
A pillar of cloud in a sun beaten land,
A pillar of fire where night's black shadows throng.
Last, at death's threshold, tender, faithful—nay!
What need to tell that which heart's truth hath shown?
Is not all said, beloved, when I say,
"I love you," being woman and your own?
—Madeline S. Bridges in Woman's Home Companion.

A Legend of the Salty Sea.

There are hundreds of queer myths and traditions given to account for the fact that the sea is salt. The Arabs say that when the first pair sinned they were living in a beautiful garden on a tract of land joined to a mainland by a narrow neck or isthmus. When it became known to the Holy One that his people had sinned, he went to the garden for the purpose of driving them out and across the narrow neck of land into the patch of thorns and brambles on the other side. Anticipating what would be the consequence of their heinous crime, they had prepared to leave their beautiful garden and had actually gone so far as to send the children and goats across into the thicket.

When the Holy One appeared on the scene, the first pair started to run, but the woman looked back. For this the man cursed her and for such a crime was almost immediately turned into a block of salt. Compare with Genesis xix, 26. The woman, more forgiving than her husband, stooped to pick up the shapeless mass of salt, when immediately the narrow neck of land began to crack and break. As she touched what had once been her companion she, too, was turned to salt just as the neck of the land sank and the waters rushed through. From that day to this, the Arabs say, all the waters of the ocean have rushed through that narrow channel at least once a year, constantly wearing away the salt of what was once our first parents, yet the bulk of the two salty objects is not diminished in the least.

Imitations

of Dodd's Kidney Pills are legion. The box is imitated, the outside coating and shape of the pills are imitated and the name—Dodd's Kidney Pills is imitated. Imitations are dangerous. Chinese Method of Measuring.

Many travelers returning from China have commented upon the apparently singular lack of knowledge of the distances across their country or between their towns that exists among the Chinese. If at one town you inquire the distance to the next, you may be told that it is 20 li (one-third of a mile), but upon arriving at the town you will be surprised to find the distance back to the town from which you have just come is 24 li and that the cost of journeying back again is correspondingly greater than the cost to go to it.

The Chinese measure distance not by rule, but by the amount of physical energy required to traverse them. Their wage is based on a unit of energy, the amount that it takes them to carry a given load, one picul one li, on level ground. If the road from A to B is down hill, the distance is regarded as less than the actual linear distance because it is supposed to take less energy to travel in that direction, or, as the Chinese say, "the li are short." It naturally follows that in traveling in the other direction, from B back to A, the road being a gradual ascent, a greater expenditure of energy is necessary. "The li are long," and in order to get a fair compensation for their work the carriers must see that the distance and the charges are correspondingly increased. With this explanation what has often appeared as a vagary of the Chinese becomes simple and reasonable.

Olives.

The olive tree in its wild state is a thorny shrub or small tree, but when cultivated becomes a tree 20 to 40 feet high, with no thorns. It lives to a good age. The leaves resemble those of a willow, the flowers are small and white and grow in clusters as grapes do, and the fruit is greenish, whitish, violet or even black in color and generally oval in shape. It is produced in great profusion, so that an old olive tree becomes very valuable to its owner.

Among the Greeks the olive was sacred to Minerva, the goddess of wisdom. It was also the emblem of purity. A crown of olive twigs was the highest honor that could be bestowed upon a Greek citizen. An olive branch was also the symbol of peace, and the vanquished who came to beg for peace bore olive branches in their hands.

The American olive is remarkable for the hardness of its wood. It is found as far north as Virginia. Its fruit is fit for use, and its flowers are fragrant.

The fragrant olive of China and Japan has extremely fragrant flowers, which are used for flavoring tea.

From a newspaper printed in the year 1770 is the following description of a dandy: "A few days ago a macaroni made his appearance in the assembly rooms at Whitehaven, dressed in a mixed silk coat, pink satin waistcoat and breeches, covered with an elegant silk net, white silk stockings with pink clocks, pink satin shoes and large pearl buttons; a mushroom colored stock, covered with fine point lace; hair dressed remarkably high and stuck full of pearl pins."

Cooked Under Water.

An Englishman made a wager that he could cook a plum pudding ten feet beneath the surface of the Thames and won the bet by placing the pudding in a tin case and putting the whole in a sack of lime. The heat of the lime, slaking when it came in contact with the water, was sufficient to cook the pudding in two hours.

Until 1627 the Chinese wore their hair long and coiled on the top of the head, where it was fastened with an ornamental pin. The Mantchoo edict making the pigtail a sign of loyalty changed this style.

THE SPEED OF BIRDS.

It Is Not Nearly So Great as Has Been Generally Assumed.

If you consult the usually accepted authorities on the speed of birds in their flight, you are likely to be misled by an exaggeration of from 100 to 300 per cent. This is because figures have been given on hearsay, appearance and very superficial observation. But recently American, English and French observers have been comparing notes and are practically agreed, after most careful calculation, on the speed of the best known birds.

They started with the carrier pigeon and have made him a base of comparison. He has heretofore been credited with 110 miles an hour, but it is now agreed that he is entitled to 50. A quite recent long distance, carefully conducted test of 592 miles, from the Shetland Islands to London, showed that the most rapid pigeons made 37 miles an hour. On shorter distances none made more than 50 miles.

Because frigate birds have been seen far from land and have been supposed not to fly by night or to rest on the water they have been credited with a speed of from 150 to 200 miles an hour. If they did fly at that speed, they would have to overcome an atmospheric pressure of from 112 to 130 pounds to the square foot of flying surface. There is no certainty that they fly more rapidly than a passenger pigeon or that they do not fly at night or do not sleep on the water.

The swallow, that is indeed a rapid flier, has been credited with 180 miles an hour, but he must be cut down to 65 miles, and the marten is five miles behind him, though authorities have placed him ten miles ahead.

The teal duck is brought down from 140 to 50 miles an hour. The mallard is five miles slower and flies the same as the canvasback, while both of these are five miles an hour ahead of the wild goose and elder duck.

The pheasant makes 38 miles an hour, which is three miles ahead of the prairie chicken and quail, though the latter appears to fly much faster on account of his temporary burst of speed that seldom exceeds 200 feet. The crow flies 25 miles an hour.

Small birds appear to fly more rapidly than the large ones and have deceived many observers. The humming bird does not fly as fast as many awkward appearing, very much larger, slow flopping birds

A Proud Father.

A member of the New York Yacht club was proudly boasting to an old friend he had not seen in 15 years of the merits of his children. "Henry, as you may possibly have heard, is at Harvard. As yet he has done nothing for the family. Archbold is at the Leland Stanford university. I wanted to bring up my sons as far apart as possible, under hopelessly different and varying circumstances. Of course Archbold has not as yet done anything for the family. Harriet is married to young ——, and, well, I really can't say that she has done anything for the family. The youngest child is Virginia, who is just becoming useful."

"Indeed? And what does Miss Virginia do?"

"She has just reached the age and stature when she can wear her mother's old clothes. Captain, will you accompany me to our grillroom?"

Scrofula is a bad thing to inherit or acquire, but there is this about it—Hood's Sarsaprilla completely cures even the worst cases.

An Emblematic Face.

Tom—How can you admire that fellow? He's as homely as an ash barrel. Got a pug nose and a ghost of a mustache.

Clara—That's what makes his face so eloquent.

Tom—You can't prove it.

Clara—I can. His nose tells of the ups and his mustache typifies the downs that all lives are full of.—Exchange.

Donnelly's Wit.

Ignatius Donnelly was once rudely interrupted in the course of a political speech by a head of cabbage thrown from the audience. "Gentlemen," he said mildly, "I only asked your ears. I don't care for your heads."

WE KICK THE CHAP THAT'S DOWN.

This is a queer old world of ours, just as it's always been;
It is made up of hills and dales, of women and of men,
And while a host is ever near the one that wins the crown,
A goodly number are about to kick the chap that's down.

Whoever strives in any line and meets with great success
The world will sit up half the night to flatter to excess,
But woe to him who tries and fails; he gets a chilling frown,
Because so many still delight to kick the chap that's down.

And so I fancy 'twill remain down to the end of time,
Since human nature's 'bout the same in every age and clime;
A man has always been a man, a clown has been a clown;
So there will always be a crowd to kick the chap that's down.

Portugal a Dog in the Manger.

In the 500 years in which he has claimed the shore line of East Africa from south of Lourenco Marques to north of Mozambique and many hundreds of miles inland the Portuguese has been the dog in the manger among nations. In all that time he has done nothing to help the land or the people which he pretends to protect, and he keeps those who would improve both from gaining any hold or influence over either. His strip of land is still unsettled and unsafe, its wealth undeveloped, its people untamed.—Scribner's.

A Useful Trunk.

A clever little housekeeper said the other day that she has a large trunk in the garret marked "Things I do not want." When she comes across anything she thinks good for nothing, instead of throwing it away she consigns it to this trunk. And what then, do you think? She says, further, that when she wants anything she doesn't have she goes to this trunk and is sure to find it.

Knew What He Wanted.

They tell in London of an impecunious nobleman who once wrote to the late Sam Lewis, the money lender, inviting him to dinner. Lewis replied thus:

Dear Lord ——: I am sorry that I shall not be able to accept your invitation to dinner. If, however, you will tell me the amount you require, I will see what I can do for you.

BROWNING AVENGED.

Internationals Disastrously Defeat the Boxer Band.

THE GERMANS BEHAVING BADLY

Fifty of the Enemy Were Killed Before They Fled to the Mountains—A Close Pursuit Will Be Maintained—Great Indignation in Pekin Among All Classes Over German Troops.

Pekin, April 24.—The International detachment of 800 men under Col. Radford, which left Shan Hai Kwan to punish the force of Boxers and robbers that recently attacked the Indian troops, killing Major Browning, met the enemy in force, killing 50. Of the International detachment six British, two Japanese and one Frenchman were killed. The enemy fled into the mountains, but will be closely pursued. The body of Major Browning was recovered.

The Germans have been ordered back from the Pao Ting Fu expedition. Their behavior for the last week or so has caused great indignation in Pekin, not only among the Chinese, but among the foreigners as well. Carts, horses, mules and ponies have been impressed for transportation purposes; coolies have been made to work for nothing, and even educated Chinamen have been impressed. A contractor working for an American quartermaster was impressed while at work, and was only released on proof that he was working for the Americans. An employe of the British Legation had a similar experience. Mr. Hillier, manager of the bank, was stopped and made to prove his ownership of a cart.

The Chinese say there is intense feeling throughout the province, largely because of the harsh treatment the Chinese have received from the Germans. They also assert that the needless expeditions of the Germans against perfectly quiet communities have caused many Chinese who have lost their all to join the roving bands of robbers.

British Found Buried Guns.

Tien Tsin, April 25.—The British have discovered 19 Krupp field guns, with a quantity of ammunition, buried in the vicinity of Shan Hai Kwan.

MORE CANADIANS HONORED.

Buchan, Lessard, Denison, Belcher, Jarvis and Others Decorated.

Ottawa, April 25.—The Minister of Militia has received from the High Commissioner a cablegram, announcing additional honors for Canadians who served in South Africa, as announced in The London Gazette. They are:

Companions of St. Michael and St. George—Lt.-Cols. Buchan and Lessard, Major Denison and Majors Belcher and Jarvis, Strathcona's Horse.

Distinguished Service Order—Capt. A. C. Macdonald, C.M.R.; Capt. Panet, Lt. Irving, Artillery; Lt. Ogilvy, Canadian Regiment; Lt. Turner, R. C.D.; Capts. Cameron, Cartwright and Mackey, Surgeon Keenan, Lts. Christie and Leckie, Strathcona's Horse.

Medal for Distinguished Conduct in the Field—Pte. Kingsley, R. C. D.

He Is Now a Sergeant.

Berlin, Ont., April 25.—A letter was yesterday received from Herman Quirmback, the Berlin boy who went to South Africa over a year ago. He is now with Howard's Scouts and promoted to Sergeant.

Deceased Wife's Sister Bill Passed.

London, April 25.—The Deceased Wife's Sister bill in 1891 passed second reading by 202 to 155 votes. In 1896 the bill passed its third reading in the House of Lords by 142 to 104 votes, but it was afterwards blocked in the House of Commons.

King Edward's well-known interest in the adoption of the measure, it is hoped by its supporters, will help it through on this occasion.

After a long debate for and against the bill, Sir William Gurdon moved the closure, which was carried by 290 to 106 votes.

The bill passed its second reading by 279 to 122 votes,

Over 100 Years Old.

Cayuga, Ont., April 25.—Mr. Thos. Grogan, an old and highly respected settler of the Township of North Cayuga, died yesterday at his son's residence. Mr. Grogan was 100 years and five months old. He was born in Ireland (County Tyrone), and emigrated to Canada about 1830. He was a veteran of the Mackenzie rebellion, a Roman Catholic in religion, a Liberal in politics. He retained all his faculties until the last.

Another Child Kidnapped.

Rochester, N. Y., April 25.—Mrs. John H. Christner, living on Davis street, has reported to the police that her 5-year-old daughter has been kidnapped. She says while the child was playing in front of a house on Augusta street late yesterday afternoon two strangers drove up, lifted the child into the carriage and drove rapidly away. The police are still searching for the alleged kidnappers and the little tot.

British Budget Criticized.

London, April 25. — Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, speaking last evening in London, severely criticized the budget of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, predicting that a system of protection would eventually result from the introduction of new imposts.

Five People Killed.

Dayton, Ohio, April 24.—Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Express went through the bridge near Johnson Station, eight miles south of this city. Five people reported killed.

BASEBALL.

The Eastern League Opening.

Toronto at Rochester—Warner.
Montreal at Buffalo—O'Loughlin.
Hartford at Providence—Hunt.
Syracuse at Worcester—Rinn.

Toronto, April 25.—The Eastern League baseball season opens to-day, as above, giving the officiating umpires. Southpaws are slated for the slab in Toronto's game, and it should be a fight. Hargrove will be out of the game for some time, and Manager Barrow will conveniently keep Bruce in the gap. The teams will line up as follows:

Toronto—Bannon, c.f.; Brown, r.f.; Bonner, 2b.; Bruce, 1.f.; Bemis, c.; Schaub, 3b.; Madison, s.s.; Slater, 1b.; Altrock, p.

Rochester—Lush, c.f.; Bean, s.s.; Barclay, l.f.; Smith, 2b.; O'Hagan, 1b.; Greminger, 3b.; Francis, r.f.; Phelps, c.; Morse, p.

At the Toronto shareholders' meeting in the Rossin House last night the directors were authorized to issue debentures to the value of $5,000.

National League—Wednesday.

St. Louis 4, Pittsburg 5.
New York-Brooklyn—Rain.
Philadelphia-Boston—Rain.

American League—Wednesday.

Chicago 8, Cleveland 2.

Veterans of '66 Want Land.

Ottawa, April 25.—The Militia Department is being inundated with applications for grants of land from veterans of '66, who appear to have conceived the idea that the Dominion Government has embarked upon some such policy. In every case they are told that no such grants are being made, but that the Ontario Legislature has sanctioned grants to the soldiers from the province who served in South Africa.

The Kidneys and the Skin.

In the spring, the kidneys have much to do. If they are weak or torpid, they will not do it well, and the skin will be pimply or blotchy. That is telling the story in a few words.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, cures and prevents pimples, blotches and all cutaneous eruptions.

Don't fail to take it.
Buy a bottle to-day.

TAPS FROM THE WIRE.

Earth shocks were felt Wednesday afternoon in the Island of Guernsey.

The claims that Japan will make upon China for indemnities amount to £4,750,000 sterling.

Although the flood is bot over, the latest report from Cincinnati is that the situation is no worse, and the water is expected to recede to-day.

Civil servants at Ottawa have subscribed for 1,000 shares of $5 each for a co-operative association, and merchants are angling for their trade.

Major Noble, Adjutant-General of the Department of the Visayas, has received the surrender of Quentin Salas and three of his officers at Manila. All the insurgents under Salas will surrender soon. It is claimed that this will terminate the insurrection.

Smallpox in Ontario.

Toronto, April 25.—At the meeting of the Provincial Board of Health yesterday, Dr. Bryce, officially and formally, in a written statement, charged that medical practitioners in some localities "had refused to recognize the disease as smallpox, had persistently refused to accept the theory of infection, and had based their attitude in some cases on clinical pictures of smallpox. Wherever this had occurred the hands of the local health boards had been tied, and the smallpox spread to other houses or municipalities." Dr. Bryce also charged that "the inspectors had again and again discovered cases in which false certificates of vaccination had been issued by doctors to persons who had no vaccination whatever."

GORE'S LANDING.

Mr. H. Edwards, of Winnipeg, a member of the first contingent, is a guest of his aunt, Miss Edwards, at "Fir Cliff."

Mr. H. J. Dale, who has been travelling in Quebec, is at home for a few days.

Mr. W. S. K. Edwards returned to Montreal on Monday, to resume his position there.

Mrs. Wallace is at Harwood, called there by the illness of her sister, Mrs. Cleary.

Miss Waddingham entertained a few guests at whist last Thursday evening.

Herald Bros. are very busy this season. They have already more orders for canoes than for a number of years and are putting on extra men.

There is a rumour that the football team is to go to Warkworth on the 24th.

On her return from Peterborough on Saturday evening the "Star" was unable to make port owing to the gale and was compelled to lay in the shelter of Close's Point until Monday morning. Some anxiety was felt for the welfare of Capt. W. C. Harris, when a canoe belonging to the "Star" was picked up at noon on Sunday, bottom upwards. Capt. T. Harris made his way to the "Star" to investigate and found that it had blown overboard during the night, and that the crew were all well and simply waiting for the wind to moderate to get home.

JERMYN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Spring is again on hand and farmers are busy putting in the crop. The snow storm puts them back a few days.

Mr. Hector Nelson is spending a few days in Jermyn. He will likely soon make it his future home.

Mr. J. Fife is preparing again for milk drawing and the people will be glad to see him coming around.

Mr. John Pallin has purchased a new partridge dog from Dr. Harrison, and intends going hunting this fall.

Charles Manley is busy cutting shingles for P. G. Walker.

Mr. John Lang, M. P., is home from Ottawa and intends staying a few days.

Mr. Stewart Fife is leaving for the Northwest on Tuesday with a car load of cattle. We wish him good luck.

How a Sprain Does Hurt!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

Re-Arrangement of Business!

HENRY & CO.

In view of an important business change now in process of arrangement, extensive alterations will be commenced in the store premises at once. Modern improvements, handsome new furnishings, store fittings and fixtures will be introduced, with the view of making this the "PALACE" Grocery and Liquor Store of the district.

On account of these changes, and the inconveniences that may be occasioned to our patrons during the progress of these improvements in the store, all shelf goods will be sold close to wholesale cost.

UNPAID ACCOUNTS

It is imperative that the books of the Messrs. Henry & Co. be closed immediately, and a satisfactory settlement of all unpaid accounts arranged for before the 1st day of May next. Early attention to this matter will save inconvenience and trouble to our patrons and ourselves.

COAL TAX A FIXTURE.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Replies to Protests.

SIR MICHAEL ON THE SITUATION

While He Had No Intention of Dropping the Coal Tax, Some Exceptions Might Be Made in the Cases of Existing Contracts—The Announcement on the Second Reading.

London, April 26.—Replying to a numerous and influential deputation representing coal owners, miners, shippers and merchants, yesterday assembled to protest against the export duty on coal, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, declared he had no intention of dropping the coal tax. He had already admitted that there ought to be some exemption in the cases of existing contracts, and thought that on the second reading of the Budget Bill he ought to be in a position to announce the terms upon which exemption should be given.

RUSSIA'S NEXT MOVE.

A Paris Paper Confirms the Plan Outlined From St. Petersburg.

Paris, April 26.—The Courrier du Soir, which is often well informed on Ministerial intentions, said last night that the settlement of the Chinese situation is a question of finance. The newspaper says that Russia, repeating that operation which has had the greatest success, will advance China the sum required to pay the indemnities, and that French savings will provide the Russian Government with the requisite funds. The European troops, except the legation garrisons, will then leave Pekin, and a fresh period will begin, during which Chinese patience will strive to tire out the British and German Governments in their claims, regarding the opening of the ports and the customs. Russia, however, will retain Manchuria as a pledge for the loan. This appears to be the general scheme of the object of the French Foreign Minister, M. Delcasse, in discussing in St. Petersburg with Count Lamsdorf and M. Witte, respectively Russian Ministers of Foreign Affairs and Finance.

Expediti n Called Off.

Pekin, April 25.—The expedition from Pao Ting Fu has been entirely called off, and the French troops have been ordered to return to the original station. The only casualties suffered by the entire expedition were two German soldiers killed.

"THIEVES AND SWINDLERS."

Mr. Markham's Opinion of a South African Company.

London, April 26.—Counsel for Mr. Arthur B. Markham, M. P., have notified the lawyers representing Wernher, Beit & Company, that he is prepared to justify publicly the statements which he made last month in the House of Commons to the effect that the Transvaal Concessions Commission was made up of persons affiliated with several of the great South African companies, and characterized Mr. Beit's firm as "nothing more or less than a gang of common thieves and swindlers," as soon as the suit brought against him by Wernher, Beit & Company was withdrawn, thus affording the basis for a suit which would not be stopped by the immunities afforded by a speech in Parliament.

C. P. R., G. T. R. and R. and O.

Report of Negotiations For Consolidation of the Three Companies Denied.

London, April 26.—The Vice-President of the Grand Trunk Railroad authorizes a denial of a report telegraphed to New York from Montreal, that negotiations are on foot for the consolidation of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Grand Trunk and the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company.

Canada at the Glasgow Show.

Montreal, April 26.—The Star's London cable says: Canada will make a good show at the Glasgow Exhibition opening on May 2. The exhibit is thus described in a London paper: "Canada has a substantial hall to itself. They are now erecting a triumphant monument to cereals. Such cornstalks, such heads of oats and barley! That display alone ought to carry over some adventurous young blood to the west. Around the corn trophy are stands, on which are bottles full of quite the largest apples, beans and grapes I have ever seen. Well done, Canada. More power to your land."

Elephant Killed Keeper.

Peru, Ind., April 26.—Henry Huffman, a well-known animal trainer with the Wallace Shows, met a horrible death here yesterday, being killed by "Big Charley," a monster elephant, while the animal was bathing in the Mississinewa River. He held the keeper in the water with his fore feet. He was killed.

Dr. Parker's Queer Prayer.

London, April 26.—In delivering the presidential address at the Congregational Union in the City Temple yesterday, Dr. Parker somewhat astonished the meeting by exclaiming:

"God be thanked for Queen Victoria, and God save the son, the King."

An Old G. T. R. Man Dies.

Stratford, April 26.—Joseph Robb, father of Master Mechanic Robb of the Grand Trunk, died suddenly yesterday afternoon of heart failure. Deceased was 75 years old, and for many years was locomotive fireman on the Grand Trunk at Brockville. His home was in Smith's Falls.

By His Chin From a Wire.

Chicago, April 26.—Limp and unconscious, John Carroll, with his chin caught on a live wire, hung 45 feet above the ground yesterday until rescued by his fellow-linesmen. The electrical current ate deep gashes into his throat and cheeks while he swayed in the wind.

Boer Agents as Cattlemen.

London, April 26.—"It is reported," says The Daily Chronicle yesterday, "that the British agent in New Orleans has discovered that Boer agents, employed as cattlemen, have infected horses destined for South African [illegible]

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.

Explosion in a Chemical Plant—The Dead Are Estimated to Number One Hundred and Fifty.

Frankfort, April 26.—The boilers of the Griesheim Electro-Chemical Works, near Griesheim, exploded yesterday afternoon, and the factory caught fire. Fifty persons are reported to have been killed and 140 injured. The three boilers of the works exploded. The explosion was audible here. The Frankfort fire engines, fire escapes and ambulances have gone to the scene of the disaster.

The number of dead and injured is estimated at 150, but cannot be determined until the list of employes of the chemical works can be compared with the survivors.

The fire continues to burn, although the greater part of the Frankfort Fire Department and troops are trying to prevent its spread to the buildings outside of the fire zone. Hospitals have been improvised in the vicinity.

The fire apparently originated by the blowing up of vats of chemicals in the explosive departments of the works at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. They spread with frightful speed to the adjacent buildings, and then over the river Main to Schwanheim. When a second explosion took place the fumes and masses of burning chemicals made it impossible to stay in the vicinity. The inhabitants of Griesheim were ordered to leave their village, which they did, flocking to Frankfort.

War on British Budget.

London, April 26.—The House of Commons had a dull sitting last evening, devoted to the discussion and formal passing of the budget resolutions. The Irish members made an ineffectual attempt to get the tea duty reduced from 6d to 4d.

The proposal was received by a vote of 221 to 140. A similar fate was reserved for the attempt of Mr. William Redmond to get Ireland exempted from the tobacco duty.

The second reading of the finance bill has been postponed for a fortnight, and the Liberal party will utilize the delay to the utmost in working up an agitation against the budget.

Four Men Drowned.

Halifax, April 26. — Arthur Shaw, 25, single; Charles Stanton, 17, single; Orbon Elliott, 18, single; William Powell, 31, married, with a family of young children, were drowned yesterday afternoon by the capsizing of a rowboat 20 yards from shore, at Long Grove Island, St. Mary's Bay, Digby County. Stanton's and Elliott's bodies were recovered. The only survivor was Leslie Powell, who clung to the boat and drifted ashore in an exhausted condition.

Cudahy Kidnapping Case.

Omaha, Neb., April 26.—In the trial of James Callahan on the charge of connection with the kidnapping of Edward Cudahy, jr., Dec. 18, 1900, the victim took the stand and absolutely identified Callahan as the "dark man" in the case.

Callahan betrayed no emotion when the boy declared he was one of the abductors, but a cynical smile played faintly over his features.

Picture of Tolstoi Banned.

London, April 26.—A despatch from St. Petersburg says the Russian Government has forbidden the exhibition at Moscow of Repine's life-size portrait of Count Leo Tolstoi, representing him in the costume of a peasant and barefooted. When the portrait was recently exhibited at St. Petersburg the public paid unusual tributes to the picture and surrounded it with flowers.

West Durham Election.

Ottawa, April 26.—The following appeals have been inscribed for hearing at the session of the Supreme Court of Canada, beginning Tuesday, May 7:

Election appeals, West Durham election, Thornton v. Burnham.

Ontario cases—Sinclair v. Preston, Gurney Foundry Company v. Morris, Prov. Savings Life Assurance Company v. Mowat, Ash v. the Methodist Church, Dunn v. the King (ex-appeal), Hopkins v. Upthegrove, G.T. Ry. v. James, Soper v. Littlejohn, the King v. Stewart (Exchequer Court case).

Deceased Wife's Sister Bill.

Montreal, April 26.—A Star special cable from London, says:

The swinging majority which the Deceased Wife's Sister bill received is Lord Strathcona's first Parliamentary triumph, he having undertaken to engineer the bill through Parliament. Lord Strathcona's interest in the measure kept him from the Royal Colonial Institute dinner last night. The King's warm sympathy is expected to expedite its progress.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

GIVE PERFECT DIGESTION, SOUND SLEEP, STRONG NERVES.

A Popular Remedy for Dyspepsia, which has Made Many Remarkable Cures.

The spring of the year is the time for blood purifiers. It is the season when we think we must dose ourselves with sarsaparillas, bitters and the endless list of so-called blood purifiers and nerve tonics.

As a matter of act there is but one possible way in which to purify the blood and that is through the stomach and bowels.

Pure blood results from wholesome food thoroughly digested. Impure blood results from poor digestion and assimilation. When the stomach refuses to work properly, the food remains too long a time, fermenting, forming gasses, shown by sour, bitter taste in the mouth, bloating and belching of gas, and distress and discomfort generally. Poor blood, weak nerves, sleeplessness and a general don't care feeling can always be traced to imperfect digestion.

This is the reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to all other spring medicines and purifiers. They give perfect digestion, the food does not lie in the stomach for hours. They give a vigorous appetite, sound sleep, strong nerves, and wholesome food well digested makes pure blood, and in no other way can the blood be purified. The idea that a medicine, in itself, will purify the blood when the stomach and digestive organs are out of order is nonsense. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by thousands in preference to "bitters," "after dinner pills" and "blood purifiers" because they remove the cause of the impure blood, and you do not have to take them forever to get results. Dyspepsia is an obstinate disease to cure and a remedy must be designed especially for it and nothing else. Cure-alls will not cure dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not claimed to cure everything or anything except Dyspepsia and stomach troubles and for that it stands alone among patent medicines. Anyone suffering from any trouble with their digestion will find these tablets will give immediate relief and a permanent cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tabets are prepared by the F. A Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. No dieting nor change of habits is required, they digest the food.

MR. KING EXONERATED

Twenty Affidavits to Disprove Charges Made by Mr. Monk.

NOTHING TO BE SAID IN REPLY

Mr. Monk Was Unable to Produce the Promised Affidavits—Labor Questions Discussed in the House—Militia, Labor and Customs Estimates Passed in Committee of Supply.

Ottawa, April 26.—In the House yesterday Mr. Loy, Liberal member for Beauharnois, produced some twenty affidavits from operatives at Valleyfield contradicting the statement of Mr. Monk three weeks ago, that Mr. W. L. M. King, Deputy Minister of Labor, used his position as mediator in the strike to further the interests of the Liberal party. Mr. Monk replied that his informants had not yet secured the affidavits he promised to lay before the House. He undertook to produce them next week or take the consequences. The balance of the day was spent in supply, and good progress was made with militia, labor and customs estimates. All of the customs items were passed, except one, which was held for discussion. The House adjourned at 1.10 a. m.

The Government Geologists.

Mr. Sifton gave and explained the distribution of the members of the geological survey for field work for the coming summer. There are 25 in all and while some will collect various kinds of specimens, others will survey sections of the Yukon, British Columbia and parts of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. There will be nickel investigations in Ontario, and Prof. John Macoun will explore Temagimi Park.

In reply to a question by Col. Prior, Mr. Sifton said that no director of the Geological Survey had been appointed, but Dr. Bell, as senior assistant director, was acting director at present. After the session the matter would be taken up.

Valleyfield Strike Charges.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Loy brought up the question of the labor troubles at Valleyfield, in connection with which Mr. Monk made charges against Mr. W. L. M. King, Deputy Minister of Labor, who brought about the settlement of the strike. He asked if Mr. Monk had laid on the table the affidavits in support of his charges, which he promised at the time to produce.

Mr. Monk replied that he had communicated with the parties who gave him the information, asking them to procure the affidavits, but he had not received them yet. At the same time he complained that the return brought down in the case was incomplete, as a report from the officer commanding the troops was not included.

Mr. Loy was proceeding to lay before the House affidavits in his possession, when Mr. Monk rose to a point of order, asking that the reading of Mr. Loy's affidavits be deferred till he had produced his affidavits, particularly as the return brought down was incomplete.

The Chairman ruled that the fact that the return was incomplete was no reason why Mr. Loy should not be permitted to discuss the question on motion to go into supply.

Mr. Loy read the affidavit of N. Benoit, to the effect that labor unions of that town were not a political institution, that, in fact, it was prohibited to talk politics in the union, that the union took no part in the strike, but, on the contrary, endeavored to prevent its members going on strike, and that Mr. Mackenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor, while in Valleyfield settling the strike, made no allusion to party in the matter.

Thirteen other affidavits of a like nature were produced, as well as one showing the strike to be justified upon the statement of a foreman in the mills.

Mr. Loy left it to the House to draw their own conclusions between the statements which were made by Mr. Monk, without proof given, and the statements which he now gave, denying all these facts and producing affidavits in support of them.

Mr. Monk thought the hon. member might at least have given him the customary notice, if only as a matter of courtesy. However, he did not think he had any correction to make. He had made the statements he made on the assurance of parties in whom he had every reliance and who had before and since assured him that affidavits in support could be produced at any time required. Had he known this matter was to have been brought up to-day he would have urged these people with more vigor than he had. Knowing the difficulty of getting people to make affidavits, he would suggest that the Government appoint a commission as a far better means of exonerating Mr. King, than the present proceeding. Still, he would endeavor to have the promised affidavits. If they were not, forthcoming he would take the consequences.

Mr. Loy announced his willingness to have a commission of enquiry.

After Messrs. Ralph Smith, Fulton, R. L. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier had spoken, Mr Sutherland, acting Minister of Labor, said the Militia papers had nothing to do with the case. He would ask what delay Mr. Monk required to make his reply.

Mr. Monk told the House he had at that moment sent a telegram to his informant, telling him what had just transpired in the House, and any reasonable delay would suit him.

Mr. Sutherland suggested some day next week, and to this Mr. Monk readily assented and the matter dropped.

A Million For Rifles.

While the militia estimates were under discussion, Dr. Borden said that the 40,000 rifles purchased for the Canadian Militia had cost a million dollars, and as much more would have to be spent for the same purpose. When the rifle associations were formed 10 rifles would be given to each association.

The estimates of $50,000 for the Department of Labor came in for a great deal of criticism from the Opposition. The item passed.

Mr. Paterson's Estimates.

On the customs estimates, showing an increase of $45,000 over the previous year, Mr. Paterson explained this increase was due to the larger number of entries, the Yukon customs, and the addition of a new steamer to the preventive service, which, under its present head, had almost stopped smuggling on the St. Lawrence and on the Cape Breton coast.

The customs estimates were passed and the House rose at 1.05 a.m.

Spring Medicine

Is of the greatest importance. This is the most critical season of the year, from a health standpoint.

It is the time when you imperatively need Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It will give you a good appetite, purify and enrich your blood, build up and steady your nerves, overcome that tired feeling, give mental and digestive strength — in short, will vitalize your whole being, and put you in perfect health.

Don't delay taking it.

Don't experiment with others. Get that which trial and test have proved the best—

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Best for Spring—"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla when needed for several years and would not be without it in the house. It is an excellent medicine and I heartily recommend its use in the spring and at any time when a blood purifier and tonic is needed." Mrs. F. M. Foote, 21 Irving Place, Passaic, N. J.

Spring Fever—"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for my spring medicine for years and have always found it reliable and giving perfect satisfaction. In the spring it takes away that tired feeling or spring fever, gives energy and puts the blood in good condition." Miss Effie Colonne, 1585 10th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

SOUGHT GOLD, FOUND DEATH.

Terrible Fate of a Party of Six Men Who Went to Copper River.

Victoria, B. C., April 26.—A terrible story of the fate of a party of six gold seekers in the Copper River country comes from Dawson, where the sole survivor of the little company has arrived, broken in body and mind. The party left Seattle three years ago for Copper River, and, according to this man's tale, the treacherous Voldez glacier claimed one of the party for its own. He disappeared in a fissure in the ice, descending with lightning-like rapidity a distance of 75 feet, where he became wedged between walls of ice. He remained conscious and gave final instructions to his companions, who were powerless to assist him.

The next misadventure was on a raft which was tossed over thundering rapids and smashed to smithereens against the jagged rocks. The five men made a desperate fight for life, but three of them were never seen again. Two reached shore, one of whom was severely injured internally and the other with a fractured arm. They were bereft of all provisions and hundreds of miles from civilization. After days of untold suffering a spark of life in the man injured internally was mercifully extinguished. His lone partner, for 13 days wandered on without food. After that his life became a blank for a period of 12 months, and when his senses returned he found himself among friendly Indians, with whom he remained for six months and then continued his journey to Dawson.

At Toronto on Thursday there were over 6,000 paid admissions — 2,100 at the afternoon performance and 3,900 at the evening entertainment of the Horse Show. All the events were watched with interest, but the naval drill by the seamen from H. M. S. Charybdis, under Lieut. Gathorne Hardy, went beyond interest and excited the greatest delight and enthusiasm.

The cable despatches anent the alleged Anarchist, Romagnoli, have been wired of late. His capture has been reported several times in several different places. Now the New York Herlad of Thursday prints the following despatch from Bremen: "There is no truth in the report published that Romagnoli, an Anarchist, who is said to have been chosen by a circle at Paterson, N. J., to assassinate Emperor William, has been arrested here."

TRUSTING LIFE TO A ROPE.

Walking Backward Over a Cliff and Down Its Face.

A fowler of the seacoast may be in little danger of losing his life while walking the cliffs, for he is sure footed, iron nerved, hardy and resourceful, but it must be a creepy business to watch, as it surely is to read about. To see a man walk backward over the top of a cliff between 300 and 400 feet above the waves breaking at its base; to see him go steadily down, down, saved from falling, as it seems, by a mere thread; to see hundreds of birds circling about his head, filling the air with their discordant cries, while he swings to and fro like a pendulum—to see this must send a thrill up the spine.

Yet nowadays such climbing is carried on systematically and, according to a writer in "Chums," with every precaution suggested by the lessons of the past. Each party consists of four men, who begin operations by driving an iron crowbar into the top of the cliff. To this is fastened what is called the guide rope, the end of which hangs loosely down the cliff and is used by the climber for controlling his movements, signaling and so on. Then the man who is to descend, wearing something like a sling round his waist and thighs, to which is securely attached the end of another rope, walks backward over the cliff and down its face.

His body is inclined outward, and its weight is mostly borne by the rope, which he holds by both hands. The other end of the rope is under the control of a companion, who sits on the top, his feet firmly planted in holes. The rope is passed round his waist, which is protected by a strong leather belt, and he gradually pays it out, bearing the weight of the climber upon his loins.

Down the gleaner goes, sometimes for 70 or 80 yards or even a greater distance. Then, if he is an expert, he works himself to the right or the left. This is a precaution of the first importance, for a stone dislodged above by the rope will, by the law of gravitation, fall in a straight line, and if the climber should be there to intercept it he runs the risk of having his skull cracked.

However, such accidents as take place in egg gathering are alarming rather than tragic. They rarely do more than cause anxiety. As an instance a happening which occurred last season on the north seacoast of Scotland will do as well as any.

One day after a climber had been over the cliff for some time the man on top could not "feel" him. His weight was not perceptible. This circumstance made his companions apprehensive that an accident had befallen him, and when the minutes sped on and no signal came from below they became very uneasy. So at last they tried to pull up the rope, only, however, to fail. They could not get it in.

On this one of the party went along the top till he could command a view of the face. Much to his relief he saw the climber sitting on a ledge calmly smoking his pipe.

What had taken place? Simply this: The rope had slipped into a crack. This being so, the gatherer had climbed up the guide rope and settled down as comfortably as possible till his companions should discover the position of affairs.

The Kidneys and the Skin.

In the spring, the kidneys have much to do. If they are weak or torpid, they will not do it well, and the skin will be pimply or blotchy. That is telling the story in a few words.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, cures and prevents pimples, blotches and all cutaneous eruptions.

Don't fail to take it.

Pleasant Disagreements.

"We can disagree," writes a modern maker of epigrams, "without being disagreeable." The point is well taken, and the epigram is one which very many of us would do well to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest. To disagree politely, yet firmly—how few of us there be that find the way to do that? Women particularly seem to feel that if they fail to think as their companion thinks about any subject under discussion they must say so in as vigorous and combative a fashion as possible.

EVOLUTION OF THE COAT.

The Buttons on the Back and Sleeves of the Garment.

"Modern man's coat is as much a creature of evolution as modern man himself," declared a New Orleans tailor who reads Huxley after working hours. "All its principal features have been gradually developed from a primitive garment that was itself the great-great-grandson of a shirt of mail, and those features have been modified by environment, just as they say human beings have developed and modified since they gave up walking on all fours and went in for polish and politics. It's very interesting to trace such things back," continued the scientific tailor, "but unless you are pretty well posted you are apt to make serious blunders as to the origin of different details.

"Take the two buttons above the coattails, for instance. They occupy precisely the same relation to the garment that the vermiform appendix does to a man—in other words, we know they must have performed some valuable function in the remote past, but at present they are not only useless, but are actually a nuisance. Their location brings them into constant contact with the backs of chairs, and unless they are closely watched they soon become ragged and shiny and make the whole coat look disreputable. Like the appendix, they are a source of anxiety, with no corresponding benefit.

"The early office of these mysterious buttons is quite generally believed to have been a support for a sword belt, and I have often seen the statement in print, but it is a great mistake. If you will look in any costume album for the court coat of the Louis XV period, you will find the skirts folded back diagonally and buttoned to the rear of the waist. Take hold of the lower front corners of your fashionable frock coat and draw them back and up so they touch the buttons behind and you will have a fair imitation of the old court costume. The idea was primarily to get the garment out of the way of one's sword hilt, and you will notice in some of the plates that only one coattail, the left, is folded back, but for the sake of symmetry and, I dare say, to display the handsome silk or satin linings both sides were eventually treated alike.

"The folded and buttoned coattail survived in military costumes clear down to the Revolutionary war, and you will see it in pictures of some of Washington's officers. In civilian dress the heavy flap of cloth soon evoluted itself away, but the buttons lingered and are likely to stay with us.

"The origin of the two buttons on the cuff is a little less clear, but I think I struck the right solution one day when I found an old engraving of a dandy of 1740 making his toilet. He was in the act of buttoning a wide, detached cuff to the sleeve of his dress coat. The cuff was richly embroidered, and when the garment was not in use it was probably laid away by itself. That, unless I am much in error, was the birth of the buttons."

KICKED BY A HORSE.

ROBERT HALL, OF ARKONA, ONT., NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH.

Struck Twice in the Same Place—The Kidneys Turned Out of Their Natural Position—Doctors Said He Would Die, yet Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

FOREST, ONT., APRIL 25 (Special).—Probably the best known man in the Townships of Warwick and Bosanquet, is Mr. Robert Hall, of Arkona. Mr. Hall says:—

"Five years ago last April, I was kicked by a horse in the left kidney. The doctor that treated me said that the kidney had turned out of its place, and I passed blood for several days.

"I did not get quite well from that until I got another kick, which caused me to pass blood again from my kidneys.

"I continued to doctor until last fall, when they told me I could not get well, and that I would die, so I quit taking their medicine.

"I lost the power of my legs, and had to be lifted in and out of bed. I was so low that I was not expected to live from one day to the other.

"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and from the first I commenced to improve, and by the time I had taken five boxes, I was quite well. Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly saved my life."

No more startling case has ever taken place in the neighborhood of Forest, and many questions have been asked of Mr. Hall, in explanation of the very startling statements made above.

He has but one answer—"Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life, and that after all the doctors had told me I could not get better, and that I must die."

Mr. Hall is certainly a living monument to the wonderful curative properties of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills is the only remedy known to science that has ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes, or Dropsy. They never fail.

Yet They Felt Disappointed.

In a large warehouse in a Scottish city a worthy official who had served his employers faithfully for over 20 years thought he would like a change of scene and occupation in the south of England.

Accordingly he sent in his resignation, which was accepted with regret.

His fellow employees, by whom he had always been highly respected, raised among themselves a purse of 100 sovereigns, which the senior partner of the firm presented to him in a neat, choice speech.

"Weel," said the recipient as he pocketed the purse and rose to thank his donors, "I dinna ken how I can thank ye for this magneeficent present. I'm sure I never thocht I was sae weel like't until this meenit, an noo, when I see ye a' sae kind an sorry at the prospeck o' losin me, I—I think I'll just stop amang ye an no 'gang awa' at a'!"

And stop he did, and he's there still.

Your Footing for Spring

Fine Weather and its Shoe Possibilities.

We're done with Winter—six months, and enough. Spring and summer are now before us. This opens the possibility of shedding our heavy garments and footwear that have done us good service, and donning something lighter and easier. It's these climatic facts and their application that makes us keep two stocks of Shoes, that we may suit the needs of customers for the two seasons.

Just now we are putting before you Summer Shoes. The heavier goods are sent aloft—not so far up that they cannot be reached if needed, but crowded out by their timely successors. So now for summer.

Here's a few seasonable lines—and the prices tell their cost, the cost well represents good value.

How a Sprain Does Hurt!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

Knew When Washday Came.

To teach a child one particular thing often proves to be a most vexatious job. The child is, as a rule, to say anything, but the particular thing desired.

A young couple sought to impress on their little daughter's mind the names of the days of the week a few days ago. To facilitate their work they repeated over and over again the rhyme beginning, "Solomon Grundy was born on Sunday."

The little tot was finally able to repeat it fairly well. The more difficult part of the lesson then came.

"Now," said her father, "what day was yesterday?"

"Sunday," came the quick response.

"What day is today?"

"Monday, I dess," came the more uncertain reply.

"Well, what day is tomorrow?"

There was no hesitancy here. "It's washday," triumphantly replied the little girl.

Common Shots and Hail.

The efficacy of cannon shots in preventing hail is owing to a whirlwind created by the shot. The whirlwind ascends with a piercing whistle, and the sound is heard for 18 seconds by day and 20 seconds by night. A swallow flying within the radius of one of these whirlwinds instantly fell dead. Experiments in Austria made with horizontal shots fired at targets of thick paper and linen 40, 60, 80 and 100 yards away demonstrated that the whirlwind was able to tear the targets and break their frames. A large mastiff standing by a target was whirled into the air and hurled with violence on the ground. It is calculated that these artificial whirlwinds carry energy to a height of 1,600 yards to 2,000 yards, and this accounts for their effect on clouds.

Died on the Way to a Concert.

A despatch from Selkirk to Winnipeg Tribune, dated March 23rd, says: "Word was brought in from Nettly Lake, 12 miles from here, of the sudden death of Mrs. Beckett, wife of James Beckett, while on her way to a concert. Heart disease was the cause of death. She leaves a family of five small children. They arrived here from Winnipeg last summer." Mr. Beckett, who is a former resident of Norwood, accompanied by the children, has returned to the village.

A Change in the Cast.

THE STONY LAKE COTTAGERS MEET.

Mr. Benj. Shortly was Re-elected President.

PROSPECTS FOR THE SEASON.

Mr. Arthur Piper is Chairman of the Regatta Committee — New Wharf at Juniper.

The annual meeting of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association was held in the office of the Toronto Loan and Savings Company last night, when officers for the ensuing year were elected, and business of much importance to the cottagers and others who visit the lake, was transacted.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Benj. Shortly, president of the association, and there were also present Messrs. W. G. Morrow, R. B. Rogers, David Breeze, John Crane, E. B. Edwards, J. J. McBain, G. M. Roger, D. W. Dumble, T. W. Robinson, George Cochrane, A. C. McCallum, R. McWhinnie; Arthur Piper, Toronto; and W. M. Graham, Lakefield.

The minutes the last meeting were read, and on motion of Mr. G. M. Roger, seconded by Mr. D. W. Dumble, were confirmed.

The Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. R. F. McWilliams, presented his annual report, which was as follows:

The President and Members of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association:

Gentlemen.—I beg to present the following report of the work of the past year:

At the last annual meeting I was instructed to communicate with the officers of the Grand Trunk Railway, the steamboat companies and the Post Office Department with the object of getting a better connection between the railway and the steamboats at Lakefield, the existing arrangements being a great inconvenience to residents of Peterborough, without being any advantage to residents of Lakefield or other places. The effort proved ineffectual as the Railway Company declined to make any change. The point is that the railway finds it necessary to make a considerable stop at either Peterborough or Lakefield to accommodate through travellers and certain interests in Lakefield seem to have sufficient influence to secure the continuance of this system, though highly inconvenient to the large majority of travellers.

The preliminary arrangements for holding the annual regatta were made in good time, but unfortunately when the season came not one of the officers was able to be at the lake for any length of time. It looked for a time as if the regatta might not be held, but in the last few days Mr. T. W. Robinson and a few others took charge of it, and the result was a most pleasant and successful day. There is a general feeling that the regatte should be conducted on a large scale, with perhaps some outside entries, and with competition and prizes, which would attract the support of all parts of the lake. Much might also be done to enliven the season by a series of concerts and by the revival of bonfires, illuminated parades, etc. The Association is now in a good financial position, and could easily undertake such arrangements.

As treasurer I beg to report that, after starting the year with a few small accounts owing, we have now paid everything due, including the balance of purchase money of the piano, and will have on hand, after paying present expenses, about $30.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. F. McWILLIAMS,
Sec.-Treas. S. L. C. Association.
Peterborough, April 25th, 1901.

Officers for the year were elected as follows:

President—B. Shortly.
1st Vice-Pres.—Harry Brock, Toronto.

AMBULANCE IS NOT NEEDED

As There is Already one in in Town - Subscribers to Meet on Thursday Evening Next.

The Dan Spence Memorial Committee met last evening in the Council Chamber and the members in attendance were unanimous in agreeing that as Mr. Comstock has already purchased an ambulance, it would be useless to devote the funds raised to the purchase of another one being sufficient to supply the needs of the town.

His Worship Mayor Denne was asked to preside and Mr. H. C. McHarrie, treasurer of the fund, announced that the subscriptions now totalled to the sum of $439.90. He stated that in speaking to a number of the citizens during the last few days he had ascertained that the public was not in favour of seeing an ambulance purchased. The idea had become unpopular and whilst many were willing to contribute towards the erection of a monument, it would be impossible to raise any more money for the purpose for which the fund originated. Those whom he had seen were in favour of procuring as a memorial something which would exist for all time, and which could be pointed out to the rising generation as something given as a tribute to the men, who had been willing to give up their lives in South Africa as a proof of their loyalty.

Mr. R. E. Layfield agreed with Mr. McHarrie and could see no benefit to be derived from the purchase of an ambulance, when one was already possessed in the town. If a monument was erected, as a memorial, it should, in his opinion, be dedicated to the living heroes, as well as to those who had lost their lives in the war. He hoped that arrangements would be made for a certain portion of the fund to be paid over to the Horticultural Society for the purpose of providing for the proper care and maintenance of the memorial, as the condition of the Brown monument was a disgrace to the town until last summer. Unfortunately the committee had not been given the power to dispose of the fund as the members saw fit, but a general meeting of the subscribers could be called within a week and arrangements made for the purchase of a fitting memorial.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong expressed himself as in accord with the sentiments expressed by Mr. McHarrie and Mr. Layfield.

On motion of Mr. Layfield and Mr. Armstrong a meeting of the subscribers to the fund and the general public is called for Thursday evening next for the purpose of deciding what form the memorial shall take.

It is probable that if at all possible the unveiling of the memorial will, in accordance with a suggestion of Mr. McHarrie, take place on the occasion of the visit to Peterborough of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York in September.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

A Little Simcoe Street Boy Attacked Yesterday Afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon, a small child belonging to Mr. Elliott, of No. 242 Simcoe street, was badly frightened and not a little hurt through being attacked by a Collie dog belonging to Mr. Geo. W. Hall.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum was riding by, most opportunely, just at the time, and was able to rescue the little one before any serious injury was inflicted. A number of corporation labourers ran up a minute later and for a time there was quite an amount of excitement, which however, subsided when it was discovered that beyond one mark on the hand the child had escaped. The wound was cauterized and dressed by Dr. Greer and to-day the youngster is able to be out again.

The dog was shot last night.

WAS BANQUETTED.

Mr. Robert Bradburn Remembered by His Friends.

Previous to his leaving for the Northwest, where he is about to take up ranching, Mr. Robert Bradburn was banquetted by about fifteen members of the Spion Kop Sporting Club. During the evening Mr. Ed. Brown, on behalf of the club, presented Mr. Bradburn with a cowboy outfit, and delivered a harangue on "Love, hatred and old associates."

Mr. Bradburn's courtesy to all who had occasion to be "behind the scenes" at the opera house for many years past will long be remembered.

14th FIELD BATTERY.

Profitable Losses.

We can afford a certain amount of loss on flood-sprinkled goods rather than be crowded for room for incoming spring goods. We can afford a certain loss to get rid of a lot of elegant things a little mussed, but not spoiled, broken lots, and too few of certain lines which our flood sale is intended to clear out.

Friday and Saturday there will be Golden Chances at every turn.

We can afford a certain loss on things we have too much of, caused by the interference with their sale at the time of the fire.

Out-Door Sports.

We are outfitters for every game in vogue in Canada. Each line is represented by a large and varied stock, and the fact that this department has been "on the grow" from the beginning is the best evidence that we are helping to cultivate out-door sports and that our prices and goods are right. We are special agents for Spalding & Co., of New York, and are enabled to quote special net prices to clubs.

BASEBALL—Baseballs, Baseball Bats, Baseball Mits, Baseball Masks and all requisites for the game.

LACROSSE—Lacrosse Balls and Lacrosse Sticks. Special Clock Cord Sticks, specially selected.

MERCHANT OF VENICE

A Most Creditable Performance by Amateurs.

WAS A DELIGHTED AUDIENCE

Opera House Well Filled and Everyone Thoroughly Pleased With the Efforts of the Young People.

Perhaps the most intelligent and appreciative audience that has ever assembled in the local Opera House gathered together last night to witness a production of the Merchant of Venice by local amateurs.

This drama is one of Shakspere's most perfect works — popular to an extraordinary degree, and calculated to produce the most powerful effect on the stage, and at the same time a wonder of ingenuity and art for the reflecting critic.

Last night's delineation of it surprised everybody and went beyond the expectations of the performers themselves. Certainly the young people have every reason to be proud of the results of their efforts, and to feel ample satisfaction for the time and hard study they have expended. The task that lay before them was no easy one and it is a question whether amateurs have ever before carried out with such success so difficult an undertaking. "All honour to those who try!" From the first act, in which the melancholy and self-sacrificing magnanimity of the princely merchant, Antonio, is portrayed, through the "casket" scenes, in which, first, the Prince of Morocco in the language of Eastern hyperbole makes his choice among the caskets, exciting the imagination with the splendour of an olden tale of marvels, and, secondly, where the two lovers stand trembling before the inevitable choice which in a moment must unite or separate them forever; through the fourth act, where the splendid figure of Portia hangs beside the terrible, inexorable Jew—the brilliant lights of her character set off by the shadowy power of his "like a magnificent beauty breathing Titian by the side of a gorgeous Rembrandt," to the end of the fifth, which opens with the prattling of two lovers as they sit in the "paler day" of an Italian moon, followed by soft music and a rapturous eulogy of this powerful disposer of the human mind and the world and afterwards by a simulated quarrel which is gracefully maintained, ending with the most exhilarating mirth, the interest and attention of the audience never for a moment abated.

The honours of the evening were almost equally divided between Mr. T. J. Begley and Miss Nellie McCabe. Both possess wonderful talent in this line and their splendid acting last night was both a surprise and a treat to the audience.

Mr. Begley, in Shylock, was grand and surpassed the expectation of everybody. Of course he was no stranger to a Peterborough audience and all who saw him in this same character last year were very anxious to witness last night's performance. Shylock is a wonderful production and it is doubtful whether any actor ever efficiently represented the more delicate traits of character that lie beneath the greater passions of the Jew's heart. His subtle malice and energetic revenge are the main ideas to be be brought out, but Mr. Begley did not only portray these but also the majority of the other minor qualities. Certainly his acting, for an amateur, was something wonderful and would do credit to a professional. His rating of Antonio in the first act, his passionate outbursts in reply to Salarino and his venomous threats to Tubal won for him golden opinions, while his rendering of the speeches in the trial scene were without blemish.

When it is borne in mind that Portia is perhaps the most beautiful character ever described by pen we have an idea how difficult a task lay before Miss Nellie McCabe. But she proved worthy of her steel and not only mastered the sentiment of the selection but expressed it perfectly. She is a promising elocutionist who possesses a well modulated voice and distinct articulation while her graceful gestures and carriage were admired by all. Her playful conversation with Nerissa was splendidly carried out; her speeches in the casket scenes held the audience spellbound, while her rendering of the "mercy plea" proved the hit of the evening and brought down the house. The remaining selections in the trial scene and the dialogue of the fifth act were also beautifully taken. Miss McCabe's equal would be hard to find and she deserves the highest praise for her good work last night.

Antonio is one of the most beautiful of Shakespeare's characters. He does not take a very prominent part in the drama; he is a sufferer rather than an actor. Mr. T. Packenham certainly did justice to the part. He possesses a very flexible voice capable of giving expression to a most passionate outburst as well as to a speech of greatest pathos. This was shown last night by his almost perfect rendition of the scornful outbreak against Shylock in the first act and afterwards of the mournful farewell he takes of his friend.

Shakespear's Bassanio is a manly generous gentleman although a gay and somewhat dependent gallant. Mr. Jack McCabe, in his personation of this character proved that he had made a thorough study of it and had mastered all the fine traits. Mr. McCabe's gestures and facial expressions were splendid and his elocution almost faultless. His speeches and acting during the casket scene were especially worthy of note, while his argument with Shylock in the fourth act and his quarrel with Portio in the fifth were excellently carried out.

Mr. A. F. Saunders played Gratiano and Morocco in good form. He is the owner of an excellent voice of which he has perfect control. The boastful speeches of Morocco could not have been delivered better, while it would be difficult to improve on his rendition of Gratiano's witty sallies and original speeches. His acting in Act V captivated the audience who thoroughly enjoyed it.

Miss Ethel Primeau in Nerissa was all the dramatist intended—a clever, confidential waiting-woman, who possesses a tinge of her lady's elegance and romance and mimics her mistress with good emphasis and discretion. Miss Primeau's interpretation of the character was correct, and her elocution of a high-class order. It would be difficult to pick on her best parts, so well did she handle the whole selection. Her playing in Act V delighted the audience, who thoroughly appreciated it.

Mr. Jas. Mulligan seemed to have caught the spirit of Lorenzo, and played the part excellently. He proved to be an adept at love making, more particularly in Act V.

Miss Fanny Holmes was certainly "a most beautiful pagan—a most sweet Jew." She possesses a clear, distinct voice, and her articulation and expression were perfect. From the moment she appeared on the stage she had the audienc with her, and commanded their undivided attention whenever she entered.

Mr. Geo. Lynch in Launcelot was indeed the jester of the evening, and promises to make a first-class comedian. He took the house by storm and called forth rounds of applause by his witty although slightly foolish speeches. Mr. Lynch's acting showed that he had discovered the humour of the piece, and kept the audience in peals of laughter, even when his emotions overcame him and he wept. He also played Salerio in good style. In fact it was the opinion of a great many that he excelled in this character. The two character are entirely different and Mr. Lynch must be remarkably clever at acting to play both so excellently. His speeches in the latter were characterized by feeling, force and distinctness. His appearance was always warmly applauded, and his work on the whole brought him fadeless laurels.

The Duke of Venice was taken by Mr. Angus McPherson—his deep sonorous voice suiting well his white hairs and pompous manners. His appeal to Shylock is especially worthy of note, being minus a single defect. His accent and expression were beautiful.

Mr. Ed. Dillon played Tubal and Old Gobbo very satisfactorily, while Mr. M. Fitzsimmons as Stephano was all that could be desired.

Messrs. W. Young, J. Fitzsimmons and W. A. Jackson made three very imposing court guards, while Messrs. J. Carey and T. McGrath acted as Portia's attendants.

A word about the costumes. They were without doubt the richest ever seen on the local stage, and were procured from Canada's leading costumiere, Mrs. McKenna, of Toronto.

During the evening several delightful overtures were rendered by the Philharmonic Orchestra, under Mr. R. Gliddon. Miss Lottie Bell, violiniste, in her rendition of "The Palms" scored a triumph, and in response to an encore played a beautiful arrangement of "Annie Laurie." Mr. A. F. Saunders, baritone, sang in excellent voice "Love's old sweet song", and for a recall number, "Answered." He is the possessor of a magnificent voice.

Miss Maggie McCabe filled very effeicently the position of pianiste of the evening.

Last night's presentation was under the management of Mr. Jack McCabe and he was loyally assisted by the other members of the circle. The young people intend giving the proceeds to charity.

The thanks of the young people are due to Manager Bradburn and his opera house staff for their kindness, to the merchants who kindly loaned stage properties, as well as to all those who assisted in making the entertainment a success.

PERSONAL.

Mr. R. J. Munro and Dick Garlick went up to Toronto this morning on business.

Mr. W. E. Lech went up to Lindsay at noon to make arrangements for the band concert this evening.

Mrs. James S. Lang of New York, is visiting her mother-in-law, Mrs. (Dr.) Lang, Gilmour street.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Young's Point, came down for The Merchant of Venice production last evening.

Mrs. D. O. Roblin of Belleville, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Snowden, Charlotte street.

Rev. O. C. Elliott has removed from No. 186 Perry St. to No. 183 Rubidge St., just below Dalhousie St.

Mr. M. Hackett, of Granby, Quebec, formerly employed with his cousin, the late Mr. John Hackett, here, is in town for a few days.

The Misses Hurley went down to Cobourg at noon to-day. They will furnish the music for a large dance there this evening.

Mr. George Brown received a letter, yesterday, from his son Jack, who is now located in Everett, near Seattle, with the Eclipse Lumber Co. He likes the west very much.

An uncle of Mr. Ernest Mann's was in town from Cobourg, yesterday, and exhibited a photograph taken at Niagara Falls at the time of the Fenian Raid. Amongst those recognizable in the group besides the owner of the photograph are Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, of Ashburnham and Mr. Ned Fitzgerald, of British Columbia, formerly of town.

FIRE ALARMS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Some days ago an item appeared in a local evening paper regarding our fire alarm system, and I heartily concur in what the writer states when he says that the privileges of the alarm box have been been greatly abused. Why is it that for a small bush fire or a little chimney blaze people will run to the nearest alarm box and send in an alarm, causing much inconvenience to the firemen, who have had enough calls of a more serious nature of late? The number of alarms that have during the past four weeks been sent in for small grass fires, insignificant chimney blazes, etc., has been very large, and as a result one of the firemen has been laid off duty for three weeks, an accident having occurred when the brigade was called out without sufficient reason.

The public should exercise a little more judgment, and the individual sending in the alarm should give his name to the person in charge of the alarm box.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,
Yours, etc.,
J. T. C.

HAWAII'S LEGISLATURE.

Many Picturesque Individuals in the Territory's Senate and House.

The session of the Hawaiian territorial legislature is being watched with interest in this country, chiefly owing to the fact that it is the first public event connected with the annexation of Hawaii in which the native Hawaiians as a body have been able to take part.

Much business of importance is being transacted at this session. What is regarded as the most important measure which will come before the legislature was recently presented in the senate by D. Kanuho of the native party. It is a dispensary bill, providing for the government control of the liquor traffic. The bill differs somewhat from the South Carolina measure.

Another important measure is a bill to prohibit persons afflicted with leprosy

DR. NICHOLAS RUSSEL.
[President Hawaiian senate.]

or tuberculosis being admitted into the territory. Reports from the board of health show that tuberculosis has increased in the islands at an alarming rate, and stringent measures to restrict it must be taken.

There are some very picturesque personages in both senate and house. The president of the upper body is Dr. Nicholas Russel, a Russian, expelled from the czar's dominions many years ago on account of his liberal opinions. The speaker of the house is Representative Akina. His father was an adventurous Chinaman who went to Hawaii many years ago, prospered as a rice planter and married a native woman.

In the house there are the son of a Chinese cooly, the son of a chief justice of the supreme court of Illinois and one of Lincoln's closest friends, the son of one of the early New England missionaries to Hawaii, native members who are descendants of old chiefs and others who were of the commonalty and half whites in whose veins run the blood of runaway sailors who deserted the hard service of the whale fleet in arctic rigors for the freer and more genial life of the tropics.

In the senate is the son of a missionary who is known as the richest as well as one of the most liberal men in the islands. Members of old island families as well as men who are reckoned as malihinis or strangers are also to be found in the senate. Here, too, as in the house, is a man whose father came to Hawaii as a contract Chinese laborer.

Mixed as it is in its elements, there is probably as much solid sentiment of honesty and desire to do well by the country as is to be found in any legislature. The house has proved itself jealous of its rights and liberties by ejecting from its chamber the secretary of the territory, of whom it thought he intended coercion or intimidation of the liberties of the house.

Corn Sowing

THE COOKBOOK.

If hard boiled eggs are dropped into cold water as soon as they are done, the yolks will not turn black.

The addition of the stiffly beaten whites of an egg or two to the whipped cream will not only make the cream go further, but it will be more palatable to those who like it less rich.

Soak sweetbreads in cold water, remove pipes and membranes and cook in boiling salted water with one tablespoonful of lemon juice 20 minutes; then plunge into cold water to harden. When very cold, break into small pieces, heat them in a rich cream sauce and serve in puff paste shells or in biscuit boxes.

A PHONOGRAPHIC SURPRISE.

The Pretty French Doll Spoke Terrible German.

"At the time Edison was perfecting the original phonograph and the whole country was agape at the invention," said an old reporter who happened to be in a story telling mood a few nights ago, "I was sent to his laboratory at Menlo Park by the city editor of a New York paper, with instructions to get a good story about the wonderful talking machine. I found three or four other newspaper men on the ground, and Mr. Edison promised us all that he would give us an interesting demonstration of the apparatus that afternoon.

"At the appointed hour we were on hand in his private office, and as a sort of preliminary entertainment the great inventor said he would give us an illustration of how the phonographic principle could be applied to children's toys. The old fashioned 'talking doll,' he went on, could squeak 'papa' and 'mamma' by means of a very elaborate arrangement of bellows and reeds, but it was now possible to produce a doll with much simpler and cheaper mechanism that could recite poetry, say its prayers or sing songs of several verses. He dwelt at some length on the immense sale of such toys and pointed out how that field alone would prove a source of enormous revenue.

"While he was talking an assistant brought in a beautiful French doll about two feet high that had been fitted up with the necessary apparatus. It was a perfect effigy of a coquettish little Parisian, with curly chestnut hair, a saucy tip tilted nose and a mouth like a cleft cherry. We all fell in love with her on the spot. The assistant stood the fascinating doll on the table and reached for a spring concealed somewhere in the back. 'Now, gentlemen,' he said, 'we'll see what this little lady can do in the way of a recitation.' With that he pressed the button, and these words issued from the rosy lips in a deep, gutteral, German bass:

"Twinkle, twinkle, liddle star,
How I vondert vere you vas!

"The newspaper gang howled with laughter, and the assistant switched off the mechanism in a cold fury. 'Who made this doll cylinder?' he bellowed into the next room. 'Mr. Schmidt,' somebody replied. Schmidt was the big German foreman of the experimental department, and, being a member of the Liederkrans and very proud of his voice, he had insisted on preparing the phonographic record himself. The only man who was unmoved throughout the incident was Mr. Edison, who, as you know, is very deaf and consequently missed the point of the joke. The remainder of the doll exhibition was indefinitely deferred."

OLDEST FISHING CLUB.

Located in Philadelphia and Dates Back to 1732.

Indian scalping being forbidden by the decrees of William Penn, the early Philadelphians were obliged to look about them for other forms of recreation. This may account for the fact that the oldest fishing club in the world has its headquarters in the Quaker City. It came into being in 1732, the birth year of Washington, and has been preserved through all the succeeding generations. Instead of calling itself a mere club it is the "Fishing Company of the State In Schuylkill." Its organization is not that of a company, but of a state, and the maintenance of this little mock government has added an element of play which a plain, matter of fact "fishing club" could never suggest.

There is a delightful modesty about the records of the state. Not once are the members disgraced by the recording of large catches. On the other hand, they seem to have taken a keener interest in the minute details of angling than in the amount of killing. They delighted more in rare catches than in the feats of the professional fisherman. In 1779 it is recorded by order of the governor that "Ben Scull, the prince of fishermen, produced a trout which he caught in Schuylkill that measured 15 inches." This was an unusual catch, for trout were few in Schuylkill. We wonder why "produced" is used in the record. Why did not the governor order it recorded that Ben Scull caught such a trout in Schuylkill? Was it because he was a conservative official, who dreaded to state on his own authority that Ben Scull did "catch" such a trout, and did he word his record purposely so that any skeptics among us may imagine that Ben was a prince of jokers as well as fishermen and that the fish which he "produced" was caught elsewhere than in Schuylkill?

A tale that seems worthy to go down to history along with the adventure of Jonah with the whale is recorded on Oct. 5, 1791. On that date, says the record, "a four foot sturgeon boarded one of the frigates." After something of a struggle the boarding party was captured and was later served up as a "delicious repast." We wish the chronicler had been more explicit, but perhaps, after all, it is better that he should leave each of us to picture for himself the "boarding of a frigate," the surprise of the crew, the slimy struggle and the final capture.—Leonidas Hubbard in Outing.

Nervousness and Nerve.

The more nervous a man is, the less nerve he has. That sounds paradoxical—but it isn't: for nerve is stamina.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives nerve. It tones the whole system, perfects digestion and assimilation, and is therefore the best medicine a nervous person can take.

If you get tired easily, mentally o physically, take it—it will do you good.

A Good Vacation.

Many of the enjoyments of life may be considered as merely negative—enjoyments by contrast.

Professor Harrimore, sorely against his will and in compliance with the mandate of his physician, went away from home for a six weeks' vacation.

"Did you have a good time?" asked one of his friends after his return.

"Splendid," replied the professor, "although I didn't know it until I came back. Then I learned that my nearest neighbor had occupied his entire time during the last six weeks in learning to play the trombone."

KIDNEY TROUBLES.

FORD'S MILLS, N.B.,
Jan. 2nd, 1900.

"After doctoring for years for kidney trouble and receiving little or no benefit, the physicians whom I consulted told me my case was hopeless, I then decided to take Doan's Pills, and after taking three boxes I am completely cured. Words fail to express my feeling for the good the pills did me."

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE NURSERY.

A good way to test toilet soap is to touch it to the tongue, and if this smarts the soap will irritate the baby's skin.

If a bean or a pea has lodged in a child's ear, do not use water to remove it, for the water will only cause the "foreign substance" to swell.

Giving an emetic to a child who has swallowed a button or any such choice and indigestible article is a fruitless waste of time and energy. It will do no good. It may do a deal of harm. If the bit he has elected to take into his system has sharp or rough edges, give him potatoes and cheese to eat and see that he eats them.

Scotland was the birthplace of golf and for years led the world in the royal and ancient game.

THE LOCKJAW GERM.

IT IS A FORMIDABLE BEAST AND IS INSEPARABLE FROM DIRT.

Odd Ways In Which Tetanus May Enter the Human System—Any Mere Scratch May Admit It—Distressing Symptoms of the Disease.

The lockjaw bacillus is a formidable beast. It is inseparable from dirt. Down on Long Island, where the tetanus bacilli most do congregate, the microbe ought to be used as a bugaboo for scaring dirty youngsters into reformation. Dirty hands, lurking bacillus, a scratch or cut, and the mischief is done.

The unenlightened public persists in associating all lockjaw with rusty nails and quite refuses to accept the bacillus that was formally introduced in 1885. As a matter of fact, the nail's only function is the making of a wound through which the poison can enter the system, and an oyster shell or a toy pistol can serve the purpose of the bacillus quite as well as a nail.

Why this bacillus should be especially prevalent in certain localities scientists do not explain, but the fact remains. The Shrewsbury river is a happy hunting ground for the beast, and a clam shell taken out of the mud down there may inflict a scratch that will mean death. All Long Island mud is full of the bacillus, and the fact that Long Island children live to grow up would speak volumes for their cleanliness were it not that exposure to sunlight kills the bacillus immediately, and so the sun fights for the preservation of the Long Island species.

A wound upon the face or head, if effected by the bacillus, will be more dangerous than a wound upon the foot or hand. The poisoning develops more rapidly and is more violent in form. A large majority of lockjaw cases originate in the feet or hands of the sufferers because those parts of the body are most exposed.

In warm climates the disease is more common than in colder localities, not because the germ revels in heat, but because the feet are less heavily shod in warm countries and so are more liable to injury.

For the same reason, in the south, more negroes than Caucasians have lockjaw. The negro makes a practice of going barefoot, and his feet are frequently scratched or cut. In one recent mild case of tetanus poison, caused by stepping upon a nail, a New York doctor analyzed leather scrapings taken from the shoe around the point of incision and found them full of tetanus bacilli which had been rubbed from the nail in its passage through the thick leather. Had the patient's foot been bare the germs would have entered the wound.

Another New York doctor tells of several cases of lockjaw which he has treated while at his summer home and which have been caused by the introduction of the tetanus bacillus through wounds made by the horns of catfish.

"I have known of tetanus poisoning from cuts made by fish fins and from lobster claws and from oyster or clam shells," said the doctor to a reporter, "and I'd advise any one to suck a wound like that vigorously the instant it is made. The poison isn't ordinarily on the fish or the shell, but it is on the dirty hands, and a fisherman is pretty likely to have dirty hands and to get occasional scratches in handling fish."
